Chapter 481 Cheating

A hint of light flashed through Vivian's mind. She walked over and leaned herself against the door.

Daniel went into Angie's room after he knocked the door politely. But she was unable to hear their conversation.

Feeling slightly depressed, Vivian sat on the bed.

She felt like Daniel might brainwash Angie.

In Angie's room.

"It seems that you are living a comfortable life here. Daniel cast a casual glance at the woman, who was savoring a bottle of wine on the bed. A hint of smile instantly appeared on his slightly pale face.

Frowning, Angie put down the bottle, "It will be better if you let me go."

"I'll, but I assume you know well that I'm a business man, and a business man will never accept an unfair trade." A hint of light flashed through his eyes as he smiled.

Angie sneered, "Businessmen like you will do anything for profit. I know you want my dad's help. But you did it in a wrong way.

Mr. Shen, I'm sure my dad won't like the way you treat your guest."

Surprised by what the woman just said, Daniel raised his eyebrows.

Besides being a very prudent man, Alan was just a Vice Director and this man had no other support. Compared with the Jing Family, the Shen Family could only be stronger after all these years' development.

How confident she must be, as she believed that he brought her here to take advantage of her father.

Daniel guffawed, "Mrs. Jing, you must have mistaken me. I invited you to be here because of your fiancé, not your father." "William? What happened to him? What's your relationship with him?" Angie looked at him with wary eyes.

Daniel smiled, "There's nothing between us, but I'm interested in things that lawyer has. I wonder if you would help me on that aspect."

Something flashed through Angie's eyes, then she held her head high, "Of course, I'm the love of his life. He will do anything I tell him to. He won't even think of refusing me."

Daniel sneered inwardly, but he seemed elated. "Well, I will be looking forward to your good news."

"But business is not only taking. What can I get after I have done this favor for you?" Angie looked at Daniel haughtily with her arms across her chest, seemingly forgot the fact that she was the hostage.

Daniel raised his eyebrows, "So what do you want?"

A hint of hatred suddenly flashed through Angie's eyes. The weariness on her face was replaced by fierceness.

He suddenly understood something.

As he had expected, Angie said hotly, "I noticed that Mr. Shen has lots of talents under your command. Vivian was my classmates. She's beautiful and single. Why don't you find a boyfriend for her?"

"Well, what's her preferences?" Daniel sounded interested, but he shook his head inwardly.

He deemed this a fool.

Angie smiled viciously, "She likes stout men best and she will get excited if it's a threesome or foursome, and there should be camera to record it."

"I know now." Daniel smiled.

Soon, Daniel stood up and took his exit.

Angie believed that they had reached an agreement. She reminded him before he left, "You must be quick about it, otherwise I cannot assure you that I will help you."

"Please be assured. You will soon see William." Daniel said with a smile on his face.

Then, he waved his hands and let the servants shut the door.

Irritated. Angie stamped on the ground.

He was the leader of Shen Family, but he kidnapped her in such a vicious way. Though he wanted something by doing her a favor, he showed little sincerity.

She swore to teach him a lesson after she met William and her father.

How dare he lock her up with that bitch? Now she was just waiting for the opportunity.

Vivian heard the movements outside stop, which meant no one was going to visit her. She could not stop thinking.

Did William know that she was here with Angie?

Did Daniel come here to take Angie away?

Did William know they were here, so he came here to help Angie get away?

However, they abandoned her because she was useless?

No! She must stop thinking, otherwise she would lose her sanity in this quiet room.

Vivian patted her face with her hands, trying to make herself seem normal.

Then she began speculating this room again. Although she had been doing it for days. She wanted to find a way out of here.

Of course, the room was almost like a sealed bottle. They would never give her any chance of escaping.

Eventually, Vivian had to lie down on the bed with disappointment in her eyes.

The place where William met Daniel was Huatian International.

But William only got a clip of voice record when he got there.

Frowning, he heard Angie's bluffing and the arrogance in Daniel's negotiation. William cursed inwardly.

The final part of the recording was Daniel's monologue.

"So what does Mr. William think of Ms. Shen's proposal? Can we do it?" Daniel sounded as if he was smiling, but no doubt his intention was not good.

William shut the recorder with his face turning dark.

'It's a threat.' James said with panic.

A second later, his phone rang.

"I assume Mr. William has listened to it. So what do you think of it?" Daniel was laughing on the phone. The casualness in his voice made him not seem like an outlaw.

William winked at James and out of nowhere Joe took out a laptop. His fingertips clicked on the keyboard swiftly and William's phone was connected to it.

“It’s Mr. Daniel’s own business. My thoughts will not change a thing, right?” William said with a cold voice.

“Is that so? You don’t care the things we will put Vivian through?”

William almost crumbled his phone. Right now he craved that he could kill Daniel.

But he still sounded emotionless and cold, “Whatever, I only want Angie.”

“That’s very honest of you!” Daniel guffawed, the complacency plain in his eyes.”

“The fate of my family is in the hand of that bastard because of you. And now you are helping him.” William raised his eyebrows, then he cast a baffled glance at James.

James nodded, a hint of ecstasy flashing in his eyes.

William said knowingly, “You want me to help you retake the leadership position of your family?” “You are really very smart!” Daniel snapped his fingers.

William snorted, “Impossible!”

Then he hang up.

The light glimmered and dimmed in Daniel’s eyes as he stared at the phone.

Then he smiled when he looked the file of the recording.

Since he was put into a difficult situation, he decided to share it to others.

Chapter 482 A Big Fire

As soon as William hung up, he gave the address found by James to his fellow man.

Immediately, several forces he headed towards a small and distant apartment.

In Vivian's room, she found there was a small voice recorder beside the supper they just served.

Vivian narrowed her eyes, wondering what Daniel meant by this.

She opened it and soon heard Angie telling her vicious lies with her harsh voice. She frowned instantly.

Her face paled when she heard the cold voice of the man.

Is this William?

As his voice became clearer, the hopelessness was obvious on her face.

Did he not care about her at all?

Even though Angie had been treating her so viciously, or had he known this woman's viciousness for a long time? He just tolerated it because he loved her.

It was Daniel's voice at the end.

"Vivian, can you guess who William will choose to save if you and Angie are both in danger?" His casual voice gave her heart a punch.

She opened her eyes instantly.

In danger?

She stood up and opened the door with hurry.

The door of the room was not locked this time. But the main gate and the windows nearby were all sealed.

But to her surprise, she smelt of fire.

Even though the windows were shut, she could clearly see the light outside. It became brighter and brighter under the cover of the night. It seemed to be dancing in front of her, revealing the panic on her face.

“Angie, open the door! Angie! “Vivian kept knocking the door while shouting loudly.

It took quite a while for Angie to open the door. She was surprised that the door was unlocked.

But she snorted when she saw the face she despised, “What are you doing here? Want to start a fight again?” Then, she looked at the scratches on Vivian’s face with disdain and mockery.

Vivian looked serious. She was not in the mood to quarrel with Angie. “There’s a fire! “ She said calmly.

“Fire? Are you mad? “Angie narrowed her eyes and turned around, trying to shut the door.

Vivian stopped her, “Look out of the window and you will see it! Daniel said that he will burn us alive. The exits here are all sealed. I don’t see any way out! “

Angie’s face paled. She shoved away Vivian’s hands and screamed, “What are you talking about? I won’t believe it. If you want to die, don’t drag me with you. Now get out! “

Then she closed the door.

But she grew less and less confident about what she had just said. She then ran towards the window and looked down.

The blinding light of the fire made her face pale.

Vivian was right. Did Daniel want to burn them alive?

Vivian looked around and paced back and forth in the room.

She must do something. She cannot die here!

There were still people she cared about.

Then Vivian smashed the beer bottle. She picked one shard of the glass and tried to break the window with it.

However, it barely worked.

When William and others arrived, the fire was out of their expectation.

“Damn it!” William gritted. His face turned dark as the building was about to be devoured by the fire.

A hint of worry flashed through his eyes.

James stepped forward, “Now we must begin the rescue now. I will call the firefighters now!”

“There’s no time!” He looked around, picked several bottles of water and poured it on his head. Then he started climbing the wall as fast as a flying arrow.

The fire was burning beside him, and to his other side the fire was spreading towards him. Although the fire didn’t catch him, he could feel the burning heat.

The moment after James called the firefighters, he saw what William was doing. Then he followed him.

Joe grabbed William by the hand, "I'll go there. You go down and ask them to prepare the air mattresses!" Then he went up before William could say anything.

James moved his lips, but he didn't say anything.

He went back and did what he was told to do.

Vivian was still trying to break the window. The hope in her eyes gradually turned into desperation.

Angie suddenly opened the door and went in with a gloomy face.

'Vivian, are we going to die here?' Angie wept, she seemingly have forgotten their feud.

Vivian didn't answer. She looked out and found the fire near them. It seemed the window would soon burn to ashes.

Should she jump out of the window?

It might be her last chance of survival.

But what if she was choked to death by the smoke before she could do that? Vivian twitched her mouth and laughed herself at that.

Angie glared at her with reddened eyes. "It's all because of you. Why did you try to step into me and William? If it weren't for you, William and I would just be fine. He would have put trust to that man and I would not be kidnapped here. It's all because of you!"

Angie accused Vivian, while weeping, but even she herself knew it was not true.

But she needed it to mitigate her fear.

Vivian ignored her because she could feel the smoke rushing into her nose.

It was very uncomfortable...

Angie had been swearing for quite a while, but she found it barely worked. The light in her eyes gradually dimmed.

Then she sat on the ground with her legs crossed like Vivian.

Suddenly, Vivian's face changed. She saw a figure under the light of outside.

"Some... Someone is coming..." Her voice was shaking. She was terrified.

Angie found it hard to utter a word because of the smoke.

But she heard it and followed Vivian's gaze.

Her eyes brightened instantly. Surprisingly, she shoved Vivian away from the window and began patting it, "Help... Help me..." Then, she saw that figure smashing the window with something.

Angie stepped backward instantly, and looked at the window with hope.

They wondered what sealed the window because it seemed unbreakable, although several trails of smoke had found their way in.

What they didn't see was that William was smashing the window outside, despite the burning fire around him.

"William, you must stop. The fire is too fierce!" Joe wept the sweat on his forehead. He was not far away from William.

Chapter 483 Can't survive

William turned a deaf ear, his eyes were staring straight inside, as he could hear the shouting in his ear.

Finally, the window broke with a BANG.

But at the same time, the fire outside had finally spread in, and the powerful tongue of fire almost engulfed people in an instant.

"Ah William. ...I knew you would come to save me...I knew it!" Angie threw herself on William with tears in her eyes. She cried with joy and excitement.

William's eyebrows twitched for another moment, and his dark pupils glanced at the room. His heart leaped when he found Vivian's fixed eyes.

That pair of eyes implied too much information. He could not see clearly in the light of the fire, but the disappointment and despair were so strong.

"Wait!" William's voice was obscure. He left a word and left with Angie in his arms.

Vivian's heart was empty, and the light in his eyes disappeared instantly. It was as dark as the sky at this time without any star light.

Sure enough, Daniel was right.

Wait? Could she wait in the time when every minute and second was deadly?

Vivian covered her mouth and coughed twice. She could almost clearly feel the loss of her life.

Vivian's eyes flashed a trace of determination when she was looking at the sky through the fire outside.

She got up and stood by the window and looked sideways at William, who was about to stick to the wall and left safely with Angie in his arms, a sarcastic smile flashed across her mouth.

She really failed!

William was sweating and looked up inadvertently to see her in a skirt standing in the ring of fire around her, with a sharp look in her eyes.

He had a bad feeling in his heart. He suddenly lifted his arm and pushed Angie out of his arms, "Catch her..."

Joe grabbed Angie.

Angie said discontentedly, "William, I want you to..."

William didn't look at her. He got up and went upstairs again.

Joe was shocked, "William, the fire is out of control. You can't go up now. Neither of you can survive. You..."

"Leave!" William gave him a word.

As soon as his fingers seized the rope, he looked up and saw a scene that made his eyes crack.

Vivian jumped from the six-story building with a smile on her lips and eyes closed.

"No..." His lips whispered and his whole soul seemed to tremble for a moment.

Joe was also shocked, and he didn't expect Vivian, a delicate and weak woman, to be so strong.

However, if she could raise a child without telling William for four years, she was a woman of strong temperament, wasn't she? Joe said, "William, get down!"

Needless to say, William had fallen rapidly.

There was no doubt about their skills.

It didn't take long to make a quick fall, but William didn't like how slow he was. He looked at Vivian's location immediately.

Vivian was lying on the air bag, with a trace of serenity on her delicate face, her eyes closed.

William was so nervous that he put his index finger on the tip of her nose.

James's eyelids jumped, "William, what are you doing? She's alive."

William's finger stopped and he tried to restore calm.

"What's up?" he asked in a deep voice. The medical staff waiting at the side had a preliminary examination before answering this question.

"The young lady inhaled too much smoke in her chest, leading to a coma and not life-threatening for the time being. However, there may be some problems with her throat. In addition, although there is a safe air cushion under her body, falling from the sixth floor at such a height may cause the risk of concussion, the specific details still need to be checked in the hospital." the doctor said anxiously.

William's lips were pursed, his hair on his forehead blocked the flickering eyes, and he said coarsely, "Well, take her to the hospital."

On the other side, Angie, who also fainted because of too much smoke in her chest, was pulled over by Joe, "What about this one?"

William's eyes were deep, "Give her to Alan."

“Now?” Shouldn’t she be taken to the hospital?

The woman who had been trying so hard to save now had to be sent back and forth. He couldn’t figure out what William thought.

William nodded and said nothing more.

William’s eyes were fixed on Vivian’s face without a blinking when he was sitting in the ambulance.

Alan and Vanessa were startled when they saw Angie being sent back.

He was sure Daniel would never do anything to Angie. How could this happen?

Vanessa cried, “Angie, Angie, what’s wrong with you? How could this happen?” Alan’s eyelids were jumping, and he always felt that he had missed something.

“Somebody help! Please send her to the hospital! Come on!” Vanessa asked people to send her daughter who had more air out and less air in to the hospital. Her face suddenly became angry when she looked back at Alan’s seemingly unmoved look.

She said in a vicious voice, “Alan, are you not happy that our daughter is back now? What do you want? If something wrong happens to Angie, I won’t forgive you!”

Alan frowned, “No, I’m so happy. Go to the hospital quickly. It’s not good to delay the time!”

Vanessa was so cold that she didn’t believe him.

She quarreled many times with him in the past two days, and he remained unmoved.

If she hadn’t acted secretly and asked someone for help, she didn’t know if Angie could come back now.

When Vanessa was thinking that maybe Angie would be gone if she was a little late, so she was even more resentful of Alan However, now that Angie had come back, she promised to others, and naturally she would do it.

But she couldn't bear to think of it.

Vivian was in a coma for two days after he was sent to the hospital. On the third day, Vivian finally woke up. There was still some confusion in her mind when she opened her eyes.

Roe was the first to find out that she was awake. He was so elated that he was lying on the edge of the bed and cautiously said,

"Mom...

The harsh sound was like pulling a wind-box, and the pain in her throat was incomparable.

Vivian coughed twice, which attracted the attention of the drowsy man.

William's eyes were bloodshot and his face was not shaved.

At this time, he got up with burning eyes and poured a glass of water, "You can't talk much now. First drink some water to moisten your throat."

Then a cup of warm water was passed over.

Chapter 484 Rigid Relationship

Vivian looked up at him with a vague look. She did not refuse immediately and reached for the glass and took a drink.

The feeling of liquid crossing her throat was so comfortable that she sighed contentedly.

"Are you hungry? Do you want something to eat?" William asked.

Vivian shook his head and didn't give him a look.

Roe took Vivian's arm and rubbed his face on her shoulder, "Mom, I missed you so much. I was so scared."

Roe was so scared that he didn't even dare to speak up the moment he saw her lying motionless on the bed.

Vivian reached out and touched his head. Although she didn't speak, the love and care in her eyes would melt anyone into it.

Roe giggled, "I know, mom must want to say that you love Roe the most, right?"

Vivian nodded contently.

Roe immediately raised his eyebrows at William with a smile of victory in his eyes.

William sneered and put his hand on his head.

Then he found a small stool and sat beside her and looked at her.

Vivian felt his eyes put pressure on her.

And there was always a sense of uneasiness.

William didn't seem to be right today, Vivian thought.

William's mother Mrs. Lucia came in and held a thermos box in her hand when the door outside was pushed open. She was.

surprised the moment she saw Vivian, and said, "You are awake! That's great."

Vivian nodded and laughed with kindness.

Mrs. Lucia went forward and said, "I'm really worried about you. How can you jump from such a high place in that situation? Even if you don't care about the rest, don't you think about Roe? You can't do such a rash thing next time."

"Thanks to that, nothing serious happened; otherwise Roe and William would be very sad." Mrs. Lucia nagged. Now she was a little less haughty and more homely.

Vivian was not someone who didn't know good or bad, but he didn't want to talk about it now.

If it was not for personal experience, people would never experience the feeling of despair again after seeing hope.

But fortunately, the safety cushion had been set up below, which meant her life should not end.

Her heart was happy the moment she was landing on the cushion. That was good!

Mrs. Lucia didn't say any more after nagging a few words. When she set up the meal, she saw William sitting on Vivian's side and staring at her without making a sound, and felt uncomfortable.

"Look at you now. It's almost like you've just been dug out of the coal mine. Go back to take a shower quickly. Don't get in the way here." Mrs. Lucia said to William in disgust.

William looked at Vivian, but saw her turning her eyes and staring at the food in William's hand. She seemed very hungry.

After thinking for a while, William held out his hand and reached for it, "Hungry? Let me feed you."

Mrs. Lucia looked at him in surprise and shook unbelievably.

Vivian looked away and shook her head gently.

William saw it and looked at his mother.

“OK, OK. I told you to go back and have a good rest, so take a bath and dress up. You have been with Vivi for several days and haven't got any sleep yet, How can you do that? I will stay here with Roe!” Mrs. Lucia inadvertently said the fact and looked at Vivian's face.

Vivian didn't move. It seemed that the person William had been guarding for several days was not her.

Mrs. Lucia was a little disappointed. She felt her son had a long way to pursue his wife! William left obediently.

After the three of them finished dinner, Mrs. Lucia said, “Roe and William have been here with you these days. The hospital is no better than home. There are viruses even if it is cleaned up well, so Roe has not done the examination these days. I will take him back to have a test, and I will come to see you in the evening.”

Vivian nodded.

The hospital was really bad for Roe's health.

Roe didn't want to leave, but he still listened to his grandmother's words and gave Vivian a kiss on her face before he left.

Vivian watched them go, and the room was quiet again. She just looked at the bedside with a cold look and didn't know what she was thinking.

In the evening, William didn't come, but Selina did.

Selina burst into tears as soon as she entered the door, and she held Vivian and cried like a fool!

“Oh I’m sorry, it’s all my fault. If it wasn’t for me, you wouldn’t have been taken away. It’s all my fault...” Selina was crying in her arms, heart-broken.

She had been living in self-reproach these days. If she had not been taken to the manor to threaten Vivian, she would not have been taken away, let alone nearly being killed.

Vivian was saved, and had been in a coma for several days. Selina was afraid that an oversight would lead to another incident.

Vivian opened her mouth, but thought about the condition of her throat and finally patted Selina gently to show her comfort.

Selina’s mouth shriveled when she calmed down, “I forgot you can’t talk now.”

Vivian smiled helplessly and didn’t care much.

“Vivi, I’m sorry. I’m really sorry.” Selina said with tears almost come out again.

Vivian shook his head.

Selina told her what happened in the past few days after her accident, mostly about how William was worried and how he neglected to eat, worrying about her.

Vivian listened with a cold look.

Selina probably didn’t know there was another person kidnapped at that time, did she? She probably didn’t know William was actually worried about another woman? Though, it didn’t seem to make sense now.

What was more, she couldn’t say it.

Vivian shook her head and chuckled.

Selina finally felt a little uneasy and said, "Vivi, I always wanted you to be with John, because he has a good character and has always been good to you. On the contrary, William has always been so bad to you, and you've been hurt a lot because of him, including Angie and Roe, but now I've changed my mind."

"John loves you very much, but his character is doomed that he can't leave everything for you, and he cannot protect you at all.

He doesn't know anything about your accident these days. He came to me twice and just wanted to win you back through me.

William not only has good information, but also saves you in the end. I have seen his care for you these days." Selina said seriously to Vivian.

Chapter 485 He cares about you

"Vivian, I can see William cares about you!" She came to this conclusion with a loud voice.

Vivian's lips were slightly raised, with points of irony.

Selina was worried when she saw this. "It's true, what I said is true. You don't know how worried William is these days. He just sits here and looks at you and almost becomes a stone."

Vivian shook his head and didn't want to talk about it again.

Selina stopped, and finally asked carefully, "Vivi, don't you like William any more?" Vivian sighed helplessly. Was Selina here to chat with her?

Couldn't she change the topic?

Finally, Selina understood her and changed the topic, which shocked Vivian.

"By the way, do you know my boss Jack? It turns out that he is a member of the Shen family and the brother of Daniel, who is the leader of the Shen family now. It is said that Daniel is wanted for drug-related crimes. Jack now owns all the family property of the Shen family. It's really out of my expectation that there are still connections in the rich circle. Their circle is really chaotic!" Selina was filled with emotion.

Vivian thought Jack was very handsome before. Although he was just the boss of a magazine, he gave people the feeling that he was more like a noble man, different from others.

But Vivian didn't expect that he was a member of the Shen family.

However, there was no disclosure before and now it suddenly revealed, so she could imagine the public remarks involved Jack.

Illegitimate son!

Vivian's mind was in a mess. Daniel was involved in drugs?

She thought about William's identity as he told her before.

So, it was William who caused his accident? So he kidnapped her and Angie to threaten William, didn't he? Vivian thought fast in his head, and then there was a gentle smile on her face.

It didn't matter. The lives of big persons had nothing to do with her.

Selina didn't say any more when she saw Vivian was not interested.

Vivian was resolute because she jumped from a tall building. In addition, she spent more time in the fire than Angie, so she woke up later than Angie, and recovered less quickly than Angie.

Angie, as soon as she woke up, found that William was not around, so she made a fuss to see William.

Vanessa placated, "Angie, William is busy. This time he rescued you, and he also went to the hospital. How can he come to see you right now? You just wait for another two days, and he will come for sure."

Angie thought she was rescued by William. It was very likely that he was also injured, but later she fainted and could not remember clearly.

She was relieved to think so.

But two days later, she still did not see William and could not sit still any more.

She was crying and crying to be discharged from the hospital.

Vanessa had no choice but to pacify her temporarily and let someone go to William.

William was working in Vivian's ward at that time. When he heard the request, he refused directly, "No!"

The statement removing Alan from office would come down soon from the top. Alan was finished. He didn't have to pretend to be polite.

Vanessa got the brief reply, and she was really angry!

"Alan, you go to see William tomorrow. I'd like to see how proud this man is. Our Angie is his girlfriend. He hasn't even visited her in hospital these days. Is that right?" Vanessa's teeth itched.

Even if he was the prince of capital city, he was in Jin'an City now, and Angie was his girlfriend, he couldn't mess around!

Alan grabbed his hair and looked tired, "He can do what he likes. Angie is not a child anymore. Isn't she ok now? Why bother him? Don't you know that men hate women being unreasonable?"

It had been several days, and there was no action on William's side. His people also investigated that William had rescued Angie.

Did this mean that William actually cared about Angie, so he turned a blind eye to the crimes committed by his future father-in-law?

That was why he risked his life to save Angie? He thought it was the only possibility! Alan didn't worry so much when he thought about it.

Vanessa glared, "What are you saying? Angie would have no rights if she gets married? She has to watch her face to survive, right? Angie is my daughter, why can't she compare with him? "

"What is the character of your own daughter, you don't know? If you go on like this, she must be spoiled. When the time comes, even any man in Jin'an city will look down on her let alone William, you will regret for what you have done!" Alan pulled the quilt over and stopped talking to her.

However, it occurred to him that it was ok if William didn't want to see Angie. If he wanted to help him cover up the evidence, he might be busy with it.

But his attitude still needed to be made clear. He decided to take another look by the way.

Alan made plans and went to see William the next morning.

William did not hide his whereabouts, nor did he go to the hospital to find Vivian. Instead, he sat in his office in the law firm, waiting for his arrival.

It was not long before the Shen family's chaos about changing the leader. A large number of high-ranking officials in Jin'an city were about to fall down. However, the initiator was sitting leisurely behind a small desk.

"Deputy Director Alan, are you all right?" William put his hands together and leaned back slightly.

Obviously, he was sitting and Alan was standing, but the condescending man seemed to be him.

William's undisguised momentum liking the wolf king's majestic breath burst into Alan's mind for no reason.

Unwilling to be weaker than him in momentum, Alan, like him, was sitting opposite William with his neck raised and said, "Thank you very much. I'm fine for the time being."

William raised his eyebrows.

Alan's eyebrows moved, "I heard Angie say you saved her?"

"Deputy Director Alan could come to the point directly." William didn't smile, with some teasing in his eyes.

Alan was unhappy. No matter how high William was, he was just a junior to him.

No one liked to be challenged by the junior at this time.

He was no exception.

"In principle, you should take the initiative in this matter, but since you can save Angie in fire, I don't think outsiders need to say much about your mind. Angie and you are not young. When are you going to get married?" Alan thought about it and started from another aspect.

William sneered, "Sorry, Deputy Director Alan. I don't understand you."

Alan's face turned dark and then he reluctantly laughed, "What's up? Don't you and Angie plan to have a wedding?"

Chapter 486 Forced marriage

"I can understand that young people have some free ideas. But as a man, it's his responsibility to give a woman a marriage.

William, you are a responsible person, and you should not let Angie be wronged?" Alan's eyes, twinkled were fixed on William, as if he would bite if William dared to say no.

William seemed to hear some funny joke and said frankly, "I think you may have misunderstood something, Deputy Director Alan!"

Alan's face changed.

"I'm not a celibate. On the contrary, I really want to marry my future wife. Unfortunately, that person is not Angie." William spread out his hands and his eyes seemed to be joking.

Alan was so angry that he patted the table, "Do you know what you're talking about, William? My daughter Angie is your fiancée.

Do you still think about that woman named Vivian? "

It was the only thing he could think of.

Of course, if his network was broad enough to penetrate into William's protective zone, he would know that there was another woman trapped in addition to Angie that day, and William took care of her inseparably for a long time.

The corner of William's mouth rose, and a cold streak crossed it, "Soon, you should call her Mrs. Lu." "You..." Alan was so angry that he almost vomited blood.

He managed to settle down and gasped, "Why? You and Angie have been good all the time. Do you really want to let down the friendship between you and Angie for the sake of this woman who came from nowhere? If it's for the sake of the child, Angie is young and beautiful, and she can give birth to more. What else do you want?"

Alan didn't know how cheap his actions looked, but what he knew was that if Angie lost William's favor, there would be no reason for William to help him with his misconducts.

By then, the Jing family would soon be finished.

Therefore, Angie had to marry into the Lu family!

As for Vivian, since she didn't know how to yield, she could only be removed sooner or later!

The ferocity in his eyes flashed by, and he had set the future for Vivian in his heart.

William seized the moment's ruthlessness and sneered, "Deputy Director Alan must be joking. Angie and I broke up many years ago. The Lu family can't never accept a second marriage woman who has given birth to another man's child."

Alan was stunned, "H...how do you know that?"

William laughed and said nothing. He not only knew, but knew everything very well, including how Angie was not nostalgic for the child, how to use the means to get rid of her ex-husband.

Unfortunately, Alan and his family always thought of him as a fool.

"You... You..." Alan was speechless and paralyzed in the chair, opened his mouth, and finally closed it.

William took a sip of tea and looked at him.

Alan gritted his teeth, and his eyes were a bit embarrassed, "No, since you are still willing to help me cover up the crime, since you are willing to save Angie out of the fire, it's impossible that you don't care about her at all."

"William, I know Angie made mistakes in the past, and she is not worthy of you. She is really repentant, and loves you. If you think it's OK, you can make her a mistress. I believe Angie will agree." Alan suddenly said so.

William looked at him with complicated eyes and said, "Alan, you really don't have any human nature in you!"

Alan's throat was dry, and he picked up a smile that was even worse than crying, "Human nature? ...Oh... I'm just for her good.

You are the prince of the Lu family, even if she is just your mistress; she will get more than marrying an ordinary person. I'm all for her good. "

He repeated a few words out loud, as if to persuade himself, and to defend himself in front of William.

His eyes were covered with a layer of fog. Alan didn't know whether he had foreshadowed his tragedy coming, and suddenly remembered something when he was a child.

It was half a lifetime ago, the memory that had been blurred for a long time became clear in a moment.

Who could be born as a man who would do anything to achieve his goal?

Human nature?

He did have, as it has been cast away when he was trampled and climbed up again and again.

His desire for supreme power had become an obsession in his heart.

He staggered to the present position from a small official with few people supporting him, and many things had long been abandoned.

Now talk to him about human nature?

What an irony!

"William, I have to, I'm..." He tried to get him to agree with his point of view.

It was a pity that William had no patience to listen to him. "These words are best reserved for the discipline inspection team." "Discipline inspection?" Alan was in a daze.

The door outside was opened in an instant, and three men in uniforms came in. The leader saluted to William first and then took out his identification card, "Mr. Alan, please come with us."

Alan was removed from his post.

There was no one to cover him from the top, and his subordinates are scattered away. His ending was doomed.

The newspapers and magazines began to talk about it.

It was really unforgettable for a senior official to fall, and the society was dark!

The news on TV was still in the heat of reporting this matter, and Angie, with red eyes, held the fruit in her hand and severely smashed it.

Vanessa walked in, but she was exhausted and saw this.

“Angie, what are you doing?” She was upset.

Angie cried and pointed to the TV, “Mom, they reported nonsense. How could dad have an accident? Dad is the Deputy Director.

How many people dare to move him? What’s wrong with the news? Is it possible to spread rumors on such a large scale now? Do they want to give up their career? ”

Vanessa’s eyes flushed and she hugged Angie, “Angie, calm down, calm down, you have mom, you have me!” Angie struggled, “No, I don’t believe it. I don’t believe daddy get caught. I don’t believe...” “Angie, don’t be like this. You should learn to accept the reality when you grow up. Don’t be like this...” Vanessa didn’t feel well.

Alan fell from a senior position; this brought a series of earthquake like domino cards, and it was impossible to have a small impact on them.

Moreover, the two of them have been doing illegal things with Alan’s power over the years.

Vanessa was a little scared at the thought.

The ward door was opened the next second, as if to confirm her idea.

Vanessa's heart thumped at the sight of the visitors.

Chapter 487 Marry me

"Please come along with us to the police station, Vanessa and Angie." After Alan was arrested, Vanessa and Angie were also arrested for several cases.

Vanessa's family had some power in the locality and were running for the personal relations to set them free. However, their target was just Vanessa and Angie.

As for Alan, it was none of their business! Apart from the disturbance in Alan's family, William found Vivian took a frosty attitude towards him.

At first, he thought it maybe because she was not convenient to talk with him.

Now she has been able to say a little bit, however, she left all of the words to Roe, and gave as little as possible attention to the other people.

When facing him, she was too mean to give him even a word.

William was annoyed by this, but he didn't show anything because she was a patient and might have been frightened by the fire.

Today, Vivian was discharged from hospital, and William brought her home.

They were still living in the manor. Since Daniel was still hiding in somewhere, William was worried that he would come back at any time.

What was more, he hadn't figured out the deep reason. Was Daniel doing that just to make Alan and him worried? No, there must be some reason he didn't find out!

"I will do it." William came in, while Vivian was trying to rub ointment to her shoulder blade.

There were several burns on her body, though not serious, but the scars looked ugly.

She cared about her appearance.

Vivian's finger stopped and William had already taken the ointment away.

She blinked and didn't take it seriously.

Without refusing and chattering, William was not used to it.

When William looked over, he saw Vivian expose her shoulder to him.

William sat behind, ordered some ointment, and applied gently as if she was a treasure to him.

But there was still a reddish color on her snow-white skin, which made he feel distressed.

After applying the medicine, William hugged her waist from behind and placed his head on the other shoulder, "Vivian, marry me.

Let's get married."

She went blank for a moment and made no movement.

After a while, she asked hoarsely, "Why..."

William packed her ear and said, "Of course because of love, I love you..."

Was it hard to speak out? Of course yes, for a man like William.

For four years, he got used to her around him. He thought it was just a habit.

But then a series of accidents told him that he had her in mind.

After Angie's provocation, although he had negative impressions about her, he never thought of letting her go.

Then he knew the existence of Roe and her strength, and he couldn't control himself anymore.

He could be angry about her cold shoulder and her relationship with John. He could be tough and never say something like "I love you", but that was his confidence of having everything under his strong control.

He believed they would be together. However, he was not sure right now.

He couldn't afford to wait after two accidents in a succession.

He didn't want to undergo the fear of seeing her injured in front of him a third time.

Love wasn't a forbidden word for him. Once he spoke out "I love you", she couldn't leave him forever!

She would be stuck on this love all her life!

Vivian's mouth twitched with a not-so-happy smile.

"Really?" She murmured.

If William had said "I love you" last time, maybe she would have said yes on impulse.

But this time, all she felt was woe.

William sensed something wrong with her mood. He loosened his arms a little bit and stared at her, "Don't you believe me?" There was something ironic in his voice.

He managed to say love, but she didn't believe in him!

“Should I?” Vivian chuckled, and the voice from her throat was not soft, like a curse, “Because Alan has scandals, you can’t marry Angie, so you just give me a “wife” title. Let me tolerate her at the cost of this title?”

This was the only reason she can imagine for his propose.

Alan had been removed from his post and almost had been put into prison. How could a family like William’s allow him to marry a daughter of a criminal with political scandal?

So he thought she was vulnerable. She had no money, no power, and was also Roe’s mother. So he married her?

Vivian had a head canon at the moment.

William just wanted to dive into her brain and figured out what she was thinking about.

“Vivian, are you happy when I am angry?” William asked through clenched teeth.

Vivian just turned around and didn’t see him.

William turned her around and gazed at her. “I will say for the last time, this propose is not because of anything else, it’s just because you’re Vivian. Do you understand?”

Vivian’s mouth rose slightly and did want to argue with him.

William pursed his lips and restrained what he wanted to say. He was very angry.

From her eyes, he had no doubt that she did hear what William said, but she didn’t take it.

William angrily let Vivian go in order to prevent him from saying something without thinking carefully. William got up, took a few breaths and walked outside.

The next day, Angie, which should have appeared in the prison, was released.

Vivian took Roe to the clinic behind their home for the physical check-up. On the way, she took a walk with Roe. There was a jujube tree in the garden behind the gate.

The jujubes on the tree were red, and the leaves looked like small lanterns hanging high, attractive.

Roe was fond of food, and Selina, who liked to join in the fun, was also there. Vivian brought them here.

“Roe, this is the biggest one. Here you are!” Selina wiped it with tissue paper, and put it in Roe’s mouth.

“Auntie, it’s dirty,” Roe said.

“You brat, dislike it? We must eat a peck of dirt before we die. Have you ever heard it?” Selina threw the jujube into her mouth and rolled her eyes at the little Roe.

Vivian patted his forehead, “Are you two three years old?” Selina responded with the smile like a three-year-old child, Roe didn’t give up and made a four with his fingers.

The jujube tree was a bit high, and jujubes below were actually enough to eat, but Selina got excited and popped up with the idea to climb up the tress.

“Be careful with the caterpillars. There are a lot of them in this season.” Vivian spoke with concern.

“Okay, I can’t deal with small caterpillars?” Selina, with a smile, climbed to a very high branch.

She felt easy to climb the tree with flat shoes today.

After throwing down a jujube, Selina suddenly gestured to Vivian and Roe.

Vivian stopped talking and gave her a strange look.

Roe didn't know, so he stared at Selina, who's standing in a strange position.

Chapter 488 Who was Behind

Selina looked out of the gate with anger in her eyes.

Vivian had an inspiration and took a few steps outside. Through the crack of the gate, she saw the man standing outside in an upright form.

William!

However, at this time, there was a delicate woman in William's arms, all in pink and red, she could not see the face clearly.

But it was impossible for Vivian to not recognize the woman. She was so familiar with the figure.

Angie!

Vivian took a deep breath, and her good mood disappeared in an instant.

She thought it was so ironic.

Was that William's attitude to the failed proposal?

He had just proposed to her, and the next second he was hugging another woman, still at the gate?

His sincerity seemed worthless!

Vivian waved to Selina, "Come down, that's enough."

Selina lost interest. She saw Vivian's expression changed, so she did not say anything and began to climb down.

But there was something appearing out of her expectation and make her jump.

For example, when climbing up the tree, everything was okay; however, when return the same way, Selina was shocked by a green furry insect.

"Oh my god..." A shrill voice pierced the air. Selina screamed and fell down from more than a meter high, landing with her butt first.

Vivian was shocked, "Selina, are you all right?"

Roe was also scared and rushed over, "Auntie Selina, are you all right?"

Selina screamed at the caterpillar on her arm and almost cried out.

Seeing this, Vivian also felt disgusted, but quickly grabbed her arm, "Don't move, hold on!"

She picked up a branch and plucked that bug away, while Selina's arm had swollen up quickly.

"Go to the clinic in the back and ask the doctor to put a bandage on it. Right now!" Vivian frowned.

Selina was sad, and then she had come to her mind, "Why am I so out of luck, Vivian, it hurts..." "Selina is stupid and not strong at all." Roe looked at her with contempt.

Selina was unconvinced, "I'm very careful. It's not all because of the mother fuck... Oh, William, here you are!" She felt a lack of confidence at the end.

Selina stared at William, who seemed cool and coughed awkwardly.

William frowned and ignored her. Instead, he looked at Vivian, "Are you ok?"

“Well, it’s me who’s injured, OK? Vivian is fine, bite your tongue!” Selina thought of the scene she had just seen, and immediately felt confident again. So she did not answer in a good mood.

William frowned again.

Selina took a look behind him, “Don’t you hurry up to hug your sweetie? Don’t you feel ashamed of yourself in public? What are you doing now? To show excessive attention to Vivian? William, don’t be so greedy!”

William glanced at her coolly, “Want to be thrown out again?”

Selina was infuriated, and his words reminded her of her last experience!

She rolled up her sleeves and seemed ready to fight with William.

Vivian came up and said, “Don’t fight yet, your arms are swollen like this. Go to see doctor first!” Selina looked at her swollen arm. She was suddenly discouraged and walked away.

Vivian followed her, and Roe followed at the end, holding a handful of fresh jujubes in his arms.

William picked up Roe and held it in his arms, “Did your mum see?”

Roe was confused, “What?”

He didn’t know because he saw nothing.

But he could guess from Selina’s words that his daddy got involved with Angie again!

Ugh! William sighed, patted his head and looked at the jujubes in his arms, “If you like to eat that, I will ask someone to pick it for you, don’t learn from your aunt climbing trees, got it?”

“Daddy, how did you spend your childhood?” Roe picked up a jujube and rubbed it on his clothes. “Crunch” he bit it in William’s disapproval glance, and chewed it crisply, “Picking jujubes is fun. Jujubes are only sweet when you pick them yourself!” Roe said, biting twice more.

William felt headache.

While the doctor treated the patient Selina, William took Roe home first.

Selina said mysteriously to Vivian, “After Alan was arrested, the police also found he abused his power and committed money laundry together with Daniel. What’s more, the police also found out that he had used his authority to help solve the cases for Angie and Vanessa, such as school bullying and improper business competition. Anyway, he committed a lot of crimes, which are absolutely enough to put the family into jail for several years.”

“Really? I didn’t see the report on it.” Vivian frowned with doubt.

Selina waved her hand, “Reporters also need to read the mind of the top, do you know? What I got is the insider information from my father! Everyone kicked Alan since he is down. I supposed Angie would go to jail as well. But I do not know why she was set free. There must be someone behind helped her. Who is behind her? It can’t be Venessa’s family!”

Vivian blinked and said softly, “Maybe it’s William!” “Well? Is he so powerful?” Selina goggled.

Vivian came to her mind and chuckled, “I’m kidding. Just a possibility.”

“Alan has been an official for so many years, and he must be well-connected. Maybe some friends helped him at this time, so they are released. But this won’t be the end of it.” Selina whispered.

Vivian chuckled. Did it have anything to do with her? No!

But since she knew William’s identity, she thought if William did something to protect them, then a lot of things started to make sense.

However, this idea just approved what her thought, didn’t it?

William still cared about Angie. Vivian sneered.

Selina's arm wasn't seriously hurt, and after emergency treatment, the swelling would be reduced in two hours.

Roe washed the fresh fruits for his grandmother. Selina was taken away by Grace, who was called by William.

Only Vivian was left in the room and William came to her.

"Did you see?" William asked again.

Vivian seemed confused, "What?" Her expression was as same as Roe's, especially eyes.

William frowned and thought she did not seem to be pretending, so she didn't see it at all?

"Just now Angie came to me!" William confessed now, as he could not imagine what would happen when Selina told her the truth.

So, he caught the ball before the bounce!

Chapter 489 Wedding Banquet

Vivian nodded quietly in exchange for William's frank words, "I know."

"You know?" William was stunned.

Did you say you didn't see it?

Vivian said absently, "I heard what Selina just said. What's up? What's the matter? "

“Are you ok?” William narrowed his eyes to see if she really didn’t care, or acted as if nothing had happened.

Vivian’s eyelids closed slowly, and her body seemed to have this sleepiness. She seemed to be talking about an unimportant person without any mood fluctuation when she was talking about Angie.

He was uncertain, and felt quite uncomfortable. He was annoyed when she cared and didn’t want to explain anything to him; he thought she didn’t believe him. But now it made him more miserable that she didn’t care about his explanation.

William sighed in his heart. Sure enough, man was a self-tormenting creature.

“Angie just came here to say goodbye, and she’s going abroad in a week.” William explained, although she didn’t necessarily want to hear it.

Vivian raised eyebrows, going abroad? With Angie’s temperament, it was impossible to go abroad in a mess as long as there was a chance even if there was such a big change at home.

She said quietly, “That’s good. It’s quiet in foreign countries, and it will be good for her to sort out her mood.”

William looked at Vivian up and down, and his twisted eyebrows were about to turn into a mountain.

The thoughtful Vivian was terrible! He couldn’t help saying when Vivian was about to leave, “Don’t you have anything to say?” Vivian was stunned. She sneered, after thinking about it for a while and said, “Do you want me to wish her a pleasant journey?” William’s face turned black.

Vivian left with a touch of irony in her eyes.

It seemed that Alan’s case had come to an end, and Daniel’s case was basically confirmed by the investigation, but William found it incredible that everything was going well. There were some indescribable feelings in his heart. He didn't know how to express it.

He always felt there were many mysteries that had not been solved.

The amount of black money that made Daniel and Alan fight against each other was huge.

But the exact source of the money had not been found up to now. What was more, Daniel provided good food and drinks to Vivian and Angie after kidnapped them, but he set a big fire and just ignored them at last.

But he shouldn't keep them for several days if it was just to vent his anger?

Last but not least, Daniel seemed to have disappeared from the world, and he might never be found again. William hated the fact.

At least, there was at least one thing that made him feel good.

William's mouth rose when he looked at the invitation above and turned to Vivian's room.

Vivian dressed in her pajamas with her cell phone in hand. Suddenly she raised her head and tightened her eyebrows, "Knocking on the door is the least respect for people in the room!"

"Oh, really?" William raised his eyebrows, bent his fingers and knocked twice on the doorframe.

Vivian was a little angry.

"What's the matter?" She took an impatient look at him and returned her attention to her cell phone.

William paused, stood at the door with his chest in his hands. "There's an invitation to an engagement party from my friend. I want you to go with me."

"Why should I join you at your friend's party? William, we will go to court after two days." Vivian reminded him.

William sneered and realized that she still remembered it!

“Oh, I forgot to tell you. It has been cancelled.” William said apologetically.

Vivian exclaimed, “What?”

“I said that ifs cancelled!” William spoke coolly.

Vivian’s face changed. Had he had such a great influence that he directly decided the outcome of the lawsuit? “What did you do?”

He knew he could not continue to tease her when he looked at her pale face. He laughed and shook his head. “I told them that we are going to get married and give our child a happy family. We share the custody of Roe.”

“You lied to the court!” Vivian was shocked.

William’s tone was not clear, “This is the truth, and the wedding candies had been sent out.” “You...” Vivian couldn’t speak.

She had seen forced buying and selling, but she had never seen a forced marriage yet!

Last time, he asked for her consent at least, but this time, he told the world directly without her consent. How could he do it to her?

Vivian’s teeth itched with anger.

After a while, she said, “William, you can’t do this.”

“Why can’t I? I have a lot of confidence that I can be a good father and a good husband. Vivian, you should believe me and believe what you think in your heart. ”

“No way! The husband I asked for would be at least faithful to me unto death, and the good daddy that Roe needs is not your type that always stares and scolds!” Vivian shook her head a little dejectedly.

William didn't say anything about it. He just looked at Vivian for a long time, which made her a little flustered.

After a while, he turned his head, “You will change your mind.” “I wouldn't!” Vivian muttered to herself.

William straightened up and said, “I'll have a dress sent to you for the engagement party the day after tomorrow. I'm looking forward to seeing you in full swing.”

Vivian's lips dropped. What kind of engagement party? Was it an enemy's wedding banquet? And by that day, she finally knew why William had to come and make her look better.

Vivian looked vaguely at the red carpet on the first floor of the hotel and the words on the banner when she was in a customized evening bobtail with a price tag of several million dollars.

Was it the engagement of Haylee and John? Vivian found herself unable to laugh.

She pulled at the corner of her mouth and was embarrassed. “Don't laugh like that!” said William. Vivian's emotions which had been surging up were gone like the sea water. She gave William a cold look, “I don't care”

Today, William wore a black suit matching Vivian's white dress, plus their beautiful and attractive appearances, which immediately won countless surprise and envy. As a result, the eyes on them suddenly increased.

William and the team around him couldn't resist the exploration of the people who were interested in even if they were very low- key after Alan's case. William's identity was known only to a certain small circle. At this moment, everyone saw him appear with a light of surprise on their faces.

They didn't hear about his relationship between them.

Some people discussed in a low voice, of course, some of them talked about the woman beside him.

“You seem to be very popular recently.” Vivian noticed the eyes around him and joked. William glanced at her and said nothing.

Chapter 490 Happy Marriage

Vivian was smart enough to hear pride in what he didn't say! Sam, John's father was entertaining the guests with joys on his face.

Although the engagement party was just a casual event at the hotel, it can't be extravagant because of John's words, but he made a lot of preparations carefully. Most of the people came today were friends in business circles.

Sam Suddenly changed his face when he saw Vivian.

Sam walked to Vivian after smiling at the people around, he grabbed her aside with a cold face.

“Miss Vivian, why are you here?” Sam said coldly with squinting eyes.

Vivian raised her eyebrow, “Why can't I be here?”

Sam got angry. It was uneasy to let John finally agree to the engagement party. Wouldn't the engagement party be ruined if he saw this woman?

He was wondering why he didn't hear from this woman these days. John looked so dejected that he thought they should have broken up.

He didn't expect the woman was haunted, and appeared again!

Sam said with a cold face, “Miss Vivian, you and John have broken up. Now he is looking for a plan to return to the right path and get married well. Your appearance will make it difficult for him to do that. You are not welcome to this party. Please leave.”

Vivian stared at Sam with repressing anger on his face and agreed with him. Sam's recuperation was still good, if he was a more vicious parent here, maybe he would have yelled a lot at this time.

Vivian took a deep breath, "Mr. Sam, I didn't mean to destroy them. In fact, I just found out that it was John's engagement party when I came here. Believe it or not, I was invited by my friend to come here. Since my existence makes you so unhappy, I'll leave first."

Vivian didn't mean to say more.

Leaving aside the last time Haylee hired a murderer to kill her, she was not clear about the relationship between Haylee and John now, but she applauded the idea that he obeyed the arrangement of the family and found a good girl to live a good life.

Haylee's true heart for John was admirable, but she was not good enough for John.

Mr. Sam looked at Vivian doubtfully, but he didn't believe her.

Vivian was helpless.

"In that case, I'll forgive you for leaving. Miss Vivian, you know that the wedding banquet is quite busy. It will not be good to disturb you if something goes wrong." Mr. Sam's meaning of words was very clear.

Vivian was in a bad mood. Anyone who was driven out of the party by the host would be more or less sad.

She sighed helplessly and nodded to Mr. Sam, ready to leave. Suddenly, the wrist was caught.

"Vivil' John came with a tone of surprise, which made Mr. Sam glare angrily.

Vivian moved her wrist uneasily and tried to pull her hand out.

John looked at Vivian brightly, "Vivi, why are you here? Is it because of me? I..."

“Well, John, congratulations on your engagement.” Vivian grinned, and saw Haylee who was also in a white dress came slowly from the corner of her eyes.

She always looked like the princess and a little girl never growing up, looked particularly beautiful today with a bit of gentle virtuous.

But her beauty was a little less brilliant in front of Vivian.

The same color which would become a fairy tale in Vivian’s dress could be only considered beautiful on her body.

Haylee naturally found this too. She grabbed John’s arm with a glimmer of jealousy flashed in her eyes.

“Miss Vivian, thank you for coming to our engagement party.” she said with a smile on her face, but thought to herself that Vivian was lucky not to be killed last time!

John’s face changed. He pushed her hand away, then took Vivian’s shoulder and said, “Vivi, it’s not what you think. Haylee and I just agreed to get engaged. My mother’s health has gone worse. This is her wish. That’s why I just...”

John’s confused explanation made Mr. Sam and Haylee’s faces suddenly fell.

Haylee had a terrible face, and the resentment that she can’t control from time to time flashed at Vivian.

Mr. Sam held on to John, “What are you talking about? Haylee is your fiancée. John, how did you promise me? Your mother will be here soon.”

The last sentence made John pause. Mr. Sam sighed with a relief.

But he heard John saying, “Dad, I will do what I promised you, but I have to make it clear to Vivi. It’s just an engagement, and it will be terminated sooner or later.”

“You...” Mr. Sam almost fell down in anger.

Haylee's eyes turned red, and she complained to John, "Brother John, you are too much! Today is our engagement ceremony.

Haven't you considered my feelings? "

John was silent. It's inappropriate for him to do so to a girl, but he didn't want Vivian to misunderstand him.

Vivian felt guilty and couldn't help but come forward and said, "John, don't do this. Today is your engagement banquet with Haylee. I sincerely wish you all the best!"

"Vivi, are you angry with me? I know you've been wronged by this, but I... "John just thought she was still angry.

He couldn't contact her recently. He always suspected Mr. Sam was involved in the previous event, so he felt guilty about Vivian and want to calm down between them.

But he didn't expect that Mrs. Renia would not go into the operating room. Naturally, the operation was risky, and the risk was very high.

Mrs. Renia said that she might die on the operating table, so she had to watch him get married.

The doctor said she missed the best time for treatment after a long time of fuss over this matter and the benign tumor might get worse. John finally agreed to marry Haylee with no choice.

"Mr. John, today is your big day. Isn't it inappropriate to hold my woman like this? You'd better consider it for the sake of the two ladies, even if it's not for the sake of the reputation of your family?" William's cold voice sounded, and his eyes looked at Vivian.

Vivian seemed to understand the meaning of his words.

What a troublemaker. He was only being away for a while.

"William!" John clenched his teeth and looked at William with an ugly face.

William came forward as if nobody was there. He grabbed Vivian's hand and held her in his arms, "Why do you get blown here? Is it cold? My son missed you on the phone. Let's hurry back."

Mr. Sam frowned with his eyes looking suspiciously at William.

John's face grew darker.

Vivian pulled the corner of her mouth, clapped his hand away without trace, and looked at John, "Happy marriage. Roe has come to me and we'll go back now."
