1351 Chapter 1351

While Luna was thinking about the humanoid monsters before her another one appeared making it three.

"Oh?" Luna's lips curved into a smile as she added.

"This is getting interesting, let me crush you before getting to your master." She declared before putting her hands together in the form of prayer.

"9th Tier Holy Magic: Sanctuary!"

A dazzling light erupted from her and with her, as the center spread around until it covered the humanoid monsters, they flinched feeling uncomfortable.

The next moment they were beheaded by a white resplendent sword. The Sanctuary seemed to have dulled their senses until they got beheaded, 3 Level 150 monsters died just like that.

In another location was a man who was observing the fight through the monster's eyes and when he saw how they died he froze, it was then Luna's voice reached his ears.

"Found you!"

'Oh! No!'

The man's heart tightened and a chill went down his back as cold sweat covered his hands and feet; a feeling of a certain clawed at his heart. He knew he was done for. He had to do everything possible to escape so he threw something on the ground which exploded, and the thing contained inside turned into countless monsters.

Using this as a cover the man disappeared but he didn't notice a small white ball following him as he teleported.

Shortly after Luna arrived at the place the man previously stood she smiled looking in a certain direction before focusing on the monsters summoned by the man.

"Well, I'll never say no to a free Exp! You better run fast as you can little rabbit."

Even though the monsters couldn't understand what she was saying they flinched feeling fear and the next instant they hailed like pigs being slaughtered.

The Demon continent.

In a magnificent palace that stood on the top of a mountain surrounded by clouds and mist.

A peerlessly beautiful woman in a black robe was writing something in front of a table.

Her facial features were beautiful, and her eyes were deep and calm. There was a little light red makeup between her eyebrows, which made her look a little demonic. Naturally, it was Lilith who temporarily returned to her empire to take care of a few pressing matters before going back.

Four females stood beside the empress in silence.

"Your Majesty, a letter arrived from the Freya academy, it was sent by the headmistress Freya."

At this time, a female officer came in with a letter with a respectful expression.

Lilith was surprised because she would have never expected Freya to contact her because they didn't have much interaction, she was her principal before she regained her memory nothing much. After that, they only met recently during the world council meeting, so naturally, she was shocked to receive a letter from her.

Lilith took the letter and after opening it read the content. It was nothing much she was just asking for permission to use one of their named dungeons to nurture some good seedlings she had picked. Naturally, Lilith understood and wouldn't refuse, on the eve of the incoming fight every useful person should be put to use.

After reading the letter and having decided to grant Freya's request. I think you should take a look at Lilith picked up the pen next to her and began to write on the paper. It was rare that she wrote on her own, and did not let the female official beside her write for her.

After writing the reply only then did she pass it to the female officer beside her and say lightly.

"Send it to Freya as soon as possible."

She ordered the female officer who brought the letter to immediately send this reply to Freya.

"Yes."

The female official with gray skin and a small horn protruding from the left side of her head took the letter and then quickly left the palace.

Thinking about who was the one suggesting this Lilith smiled, it was not hard to guess it was Elseria's doing. Every dungeon existing, even if it was not affiliated with the Adventurer guild is recorded in their Dungeon's annual so as the Guild master she knows which one was most useful and where it is. So naturally she would have made this suggestion to Freya whom many considered as her pupil if not she couldn't have known and made this request.

Shaking her head Lilith mumbled. "As expected you're still too troublesome, playing behind the scenes Typhania."

Nobody heard what she had just said not even the four females besides her despite their powerful strength.

Afterward, Lilith went back to what she was doing, she perused through the papers stacked on the table with a frown. She heaved a tired sigh upon seeing that even on this continent the same thing happening over there was happening as well.

"They surely want to draw our attention somewhere else while focusing on what is most important. Keep your eyes open and pretend to fall for it." She ordered the four and they nodded.

They were the closest female officials to the Empress, and at the same time, they were also her confidants and advisor while Althea was her shadow, the head of her Shadow guards.

They understood their empress's aim and faithfully carried her order. The enemy wouldn't get what he wants like he was expecting.

After the four females beside her left Lilith put down what she was reading and clasped twice, and from her shadow, someone appeared.

It was Althea the one that appeared. She was holding a dagger covered in blood and her body seemed to be surrounded by a terrific amount of killing intent capable of making even Grandmaster fall on their knee just because of it.

Lilith was unbothered by this, with a flick of her fingers Althea's heavy killing intent vanished as if it was a smoke.

"How is the interrogation going?" She asked her sister who was interrogating a spy they caught.

Althea shrugged her shoulders before taking a seat across from her little sister.

"Nothing much, his memory seemed to have been wiped clean."

"I see, kill him, his entire family to set an example and then go back to that place and stay on standby. I've got the feeling that thing won't take long before coming out."

Althea's eyes turned cold when she heard that, she nodded before vanishing into her sister's shadow. Not even for a moment she found her sister's order to eradicate an entire family because of a single man to be unreasonable because ruler sometimes have to be ruthless to set an example. Everything is for the bigger picture.

Lilith massaged her temple feeling a headache coming, for some reason she thought of a certain black-haired man with heterochromia eyes.

"Sigh! I must be too tired it is why I'm thinking of him."

Her words seemed like a poor attempt to persuade herself that even this excuse was ridiculous. Fortunately, her sister hadn't heard this, or else she would have made fun of her.

1352 Chapter 1352

Back to Alex's location for a moment.

Crack!

Something had stepped on a dead twig prompting Alex to look in that direction.

Three giant eyes monitor their surroundings from their wide sockets. A wide nose rests below, but it's the enormous mouth below that takes all the attention. A creepy smile reveals rows of dull teeth and a coarse tongue.

Large spiky ears sit on each side of its large, bony head, which itself is covered in tiny hairs and has two broad horns protruding from the top.

Its small fat body is slightly hunched over. Two thick almost branch-like arms dangle at its sides and end in claw-like hands with small fingers, of which it has 6 in total.

Its legs are wide and slightly bent, each ending in lean hooves.

Its body is covered in oily skin and its shoulders are about the same width as its pelvis.

"What the hell is this ugly thing?" Alex felt goosebumps rising all over his body. The thing which showed up was really ugly.

Immediately after seeing this ugly thing, Alex unleashed hell upon it, instantly killing it but more appeared and he did the same.

In the next twenty minutes, the sound of gunshots rang out as Alex slaughtered his way in.

At the end of the massacre, Alex's level rose by two, he was now Level 214.

Ba-dump!

Suddenly, Alex's heart thumped wildly inside his chest and his vision blurred.

Silveria quickly turned into her human form and helped Alex to find somewhere safe to say. She seemed to have expected something like this to happen.

pandasNovel.com "It is bloodline inheritance." She said and even if Alex was curious about what this bloodline inheritance was it got no time before his consciousness was forcibly dragged somewhere and he lost consciousness.

Unfortunately, Nyx appeared and gently laid his body on her tights.

"I wonder how powerful you'll become after this." She mumbled while gently caressing Alex's hair.

Silveria watched her sister with a strange expression because of her current action which was unlike her but everything is for the best.

...

Meanwhile, Alex appeared before a huge gate, and carved above this door was the following sentence.

"Devil's Abyss."

Alex walked toward the door and was immediately sucked in. The next moment he appeared in Devil's Abyss.

He knew the thing making him excited was the depth of this place and he had to go.

Demonic aura surged in the Devil's Abyss. The deeper one went, the more one could feel the terrifying waves.

Countless skeletons of all races hung on the walls. They could feel the fear that seeped into their souls. Even their flesh and bones were penetrated by the cold energy

Normal people couldn't see through the thick fog obstructing their views.

However, with Alex's eyesight, he could easily see the surroundings. The walls were steep and filled with all kinds of strange plants.

The depths of the Devil's Abyss were a completely different world. The territory here could be said to be endless. I think you should take a look at Alex arrived at the depths of this place and saw an ocean that made his heart race and his blood boil, without a doubt it was the final destination. He observed the ocean in front of him.

This was an ocean that was scarlet red like fire, or perhaps it could be said to be a sea of blood. It was boundless, and a dense demonic aura rose and surged into the sky. It emitted a hazy bloody radiance, and strands of powerful pure mana interweaved and condensed within it.

If one looked at it from above, one could even see bubbles rising into the sky, as if it contained an ancient world.

At this place, even Alex felt like his body was about to crack. It was clear how terrifying the aura of this sea of blood was. It could be said to be unparalleled.

Even those who had stepped into False God Realm would change their expressions. They wouldn't dare to approach easily and would tremble afraid of dying.

However, as Alex's aura was revealed, this feeling of cracking disappeared. After all, the two were of the same origin.

At this time, several figures appeared not far away. They were very blurry, but their auras were equally terrifying.

However, their faces were not of the human race. They were very strange as if they were pieced together by various creatures. There were some with human heads and beast bodies and some with beast heads and human bodies.

At this time, they stared at Alex with bewilderment, awe, and submission at the same time.

This was a feeling that came from the bottom of their hearts. This was because they were terrifying creatures born from this sea of blood.

At the bottom of the Devil's Abyss, they were overlords. Few could rival them. In their eyes, the other demonic creatures were just food.

Alex closed his eyes slightly and came to the shore of the sea of blood. He couldn't help but exclaim in admiration.

At this moment, the sea of blood in front of him was boiling. There was a monstrous bloody light that rushed out as if it was cheering and welcoming its original owner.

"Huff ..."

In the next moment, he suddenly opened his mouth and roared at the boundless sea of blood in front of him.

The terrifying aura seemed to sweep through the world, shaking the heavens. Even space was collapsing, on the verge of collapse.

All the creatures near the sea of blood couldn't help but tremble. They knelt on the ground and didn't dare to move.

Buzz!!

Between his eyebrows, the top of his head was shining brightly. It was incomparably brilliant and sparkling. That was the terrifying power and blood.

This was an unparalleled power.

In the next moment, something terrifying happened. As Alex roared, the sea of blood in front of him began to boil crazily and surged toward him.

He swallowed the endless blood in this place. Streaks of red brilliance like the Milky Way fell into Alex's mouth.

This place seemed to have formed a bottomless black hole. It was more like a dim and collapsed sun that gathered all the light in the world.

The sea of blood was disappearing quickly. It was boundless, but now it was setting off stormy waves.

This scene was too shocking.

All the creatures in the vicinity were terrified and shocked. They were stunned by this scene. They trembled in place and were extremely frightened.

They never thought that one day, the source of the sea of blood that gave birth to them, the source of all the demonic qi, would be swallowed by someone.

And the aura of this young man made them even more fearful.

Something terrific was being born. Slowly but surely Alex's new bloodline was becoming perfect with this true blood of Asura he was swallowing.

The sea of blood was disappearing quickly. It was boundless, but now it was setting off stormy waves.

This scene was too shocking.

All the creatures in the vicinity were terrified and shocked. They were stunned by this scene. They trembled in place and were extremely frightened.

They never thought that one day, the source of the sea of blood that gave birth to them, the source of all the demonic qi, would be swallowed by someone.

And the aura of this young man made them even more fearful.

Something terrific was being born. Slowly but surely Alex's new bloodline was becoming perfect with this true blood of Asura he was swallowing.

Finally, after what seemed to have been an eternity Alex opened his eyes, and currently, they were crimson, the world trembled and he felt like he could destroy everything at will, it was an intoxicating feeling he wished to bask in but he quickly controlled it not giving in to this desire as he knew it wouldn't do him any good.

Suddenly, a light flashed and he was transported somewhere and when he opened his eyes again he saw a palace standing before him.

A majestic palace that towered into the sky was located here. It was grand and sacred, like a celestial palace standing here.

The palace was built grandly and magnificently. It was made of flawless white jade as the tiles, with ancient purple gold sandalwood as the eaves and pure obsidian star stones as the floor.

It was grand and simple, majestic and solemn.

Alex entered the palace after admiring it for a moment and was immediately teleported to the throne hall.

Narrow braziers surrounding each of the twelve marmoreal columns light up the lower levels of the throne hall and paint the hall a range of yellows and oranges. The marble stone of the bowed ceiling dance in the flickering light while sculptures and memorials look down upon the mahogany floor of this radiant hall.

A carmine rug splits the entire room in half from the doors to the throne while matching banners with gilded fringes drape from the walls. Between each banner, many of them have been lit and in turn, illuminate the paintings of late blurry figures below them.

Tall, tinted glass windows are shrouded by curtains colored the same carmine as the banners. The curtains have been adorned with embellished borders and burnished corners.

A striking throne of granite sits in front of a large window radiating light onto the throne.

The throne is covered in simple marks and fixed on each of the wide armrests is a chiseled moon. The thick pillows are a light carmine and these too have been adorned with adorned lacy.

Sitting on this throne was a woman, long crimson hair with her of the same hue, there was no need to describe her beauty she was like the mature version of Silveria. Alex knew this woman as he had rescued her in that dungeon and it was because of her she gained his current bloodline.

"Welcome mine inheritor!"

When she opened her mouth she said those words and her crimson eyes landed on Alex and he happened to have looked at her at that moment.

Buzz!

Alex's head buzzed and he experienced something he had never experienced.

It was as if his skull had been ripped open, and cold water poured directly into his body. An even more frightening cold air swept through his four limbs, almost causing his entire body to feel cold, and he stood there in a daze.

It was fear, the primal fear that he was nothing before this person, she could decide his fate in an instant, killing him with just a look.

"Nooooo!"

Alex roared shaking away the fear trying to eat away his sanity, he vomited blood and was sent flying but he managed to shake away the fear.

He struggled to get on his feet, Alex felt like every single bone inside his body was broken, of course, it was an illusion. He couldn't help but feel a chill down his spine. With just a look he almost died he wondered how strong this person was in person.

Alex was not an idiot he knew full well that the woman before her was just a mere consciousness left in the Asura's true blood, not the real thing. It was shocking to think that even a mere consciousness could be capable of inflicting such damage on him. Once again it remind Alex that the road was still far ahead, he must not become conceited just because he gained a little bit of strength, only when he was at the top, the true top can he act arrogantly.

"Thy resolve is not bad. I'm proud. I don't have too much time but beware of the enemy and congratulations on achieving something out of my expectations. We shall meet again."

The crimson-haired goddess said before turning into a crimson light that penetrated Alex's body, healing his injuries.

"Eh?" Alex was left befuddled by the unusual development, he was dragged outside shortly after.

On the outside Alex opened his eyes and scanned his surrounding, he saw Silveria, Nyx was gone but Alex knew she was here a moment ago.

"Thank you." He said before calling out for his status window.

Upon seeing how much his stats have increased Alex was satisfied, naturally, the corners of his mouth curled up slightly.

His trip into the Infinity Maze was a blessing in disguise as he successfully managed to increase his levels a lot, gaining a few boons in the process. The Infinity Maze was his lucky star Alex believed.

Suddenly, there was a buzzing sound inside Alex's mind making him freeze then he saw a battlefield at first.

The town was littered with suits, wounded fighters, and bodies. Red, black, and pink are the new colors of what was once a reserved, fishing town, which has now become the stage of a cruel war.

The air which would normally be vibrant with the sound of work, trade, and craftsmanship was now heavy and thick with the scent of smoke, enough to make even the bravest tremble in fear.

Two armies fought for unknown reasons, but it was clear who would win. The dead of the losing side lay in heaps across the town and the faces of the fighters are grim with horror and gloom, they continue to fight, but their fight is a hopeless one.

With a certainty of victory, the winning side pushes on and on. Some have succumbed to rage and are on a rampage against anybody standing in their way, while others can only think of home and what they left behind.

The toll on both nature and humanity was tragic. It'd likely take years before this town would have recovered. It was clear that broken siege engines, weaponry, and rubble had taken the place of gardens, roads, and buildings.

The scenery changed from this battlefield to another one and this time the enemies fighting against each other were humans and monsters, suddenly someone from the human side whose features Alex was unable to see advanced, it was a woman she floated above the sea of monsters waving her arms, a crimson light spread out from them and covered the monsters and in the next moment they started to massacre each other.

Alex seemed to have reached an epiphany when he was in this scene and at the same time, a notification rang out in his announcing of the birth of a new bullet.

Finally, he opened his eyes to the outside world and he immediately wanted to read the description of the new special bullet he'd acquired.

[Blood Bullet Level 1: A special bullet made from the host blood capable of controlling lower being but certain conditions have to be met first.

The other party must be weaker than the host, it has to be intimidated first for better effect.

This control can last as long as the one being controlled has mana.

The Host can strengthen the controlled target by using another Blood Bullet but more Blood essence and mana would be required. The one being controlled can't never surpass its master's level no matter how many Blood Bullet is used at the lowest level.

Only one person or monster can be controlled at your current, the more often used quickly the Blood Bullet Level will rise.

It required 1/3 of the host's current mana plus a little bit of blood essence to create this special bullet, the cost will be reduced as the level rises.

The host has absolute control over the target who got hit by the Blood Bullet.

At the highest level it is possible to possess the target body and use your full strength for 5 minutes.]

Alex was shocked and reread the special bullet description one more time but it was the same thing. For some reason, Alex had the feeling that the description of this special bullet surpassed all the previous ones he ever read, almost as if someone was favoring this special bullet.

"That must have been my imagination." Alex denied this thought by shaking his head and thought about the Blood Bullet and even as the owner his body shuddered.

A terrifying chill swept through his entire body. His spine was cold, and his scalp felt like it was going to explode. Then he became so excited that he burst out into laughter.

"Hahahahaha!"

Alex was shocked and reread the special bullet description one more time but it was the same thing. For some reason, Alex had the feeling that the description of this special bullet surpassed all the previous ones he ever read, almost as if someone was favoring this special bullet.

"That must have been my imagination." Alex denied this thought by shaking his head and thought about the Blood Bullet and even as the owner his body shuddered.

A terrifying chill swept through his entire body. His spine was cold, and his scalp felt like it was going to explode. Then he became so excited that he burst out into laughter.

"Hahahahaha!"

Silveria who had already the skill description could understand her master's enthusiasm, she was shocked by this special bullet. Only Alex could create something so dangerous thanks to his bloodline. With this bullet, many things could be done.

"Let's head deeper into the forest." An impatient Alex said making Silveria smile.

A few minutes later Alex stopped because he found another humanoid monster.

Two hollow eyes monitor their surroundings from their eerie sockets. A crooked nose rests below, but it's the deep mouth below that takes all the attention. A brittle smile reveals rows upon rows of small teeth and a small tongue.

Thin round ears sit on each side of its huge, narrow head, which itself is covered in small tentacles.

Its short stout body is slightly hunched over. Two thick fleshy arms hang at its sides and end in small hands with long fingers, of which it has 6 in total.

Its legs are small and stand straight, each ending in small hooves.

Its body is covered in nasty skin and its shoulders are about the same width as its pelvis, from which a coarse tail sways back and forth.

Alex chuckled before aiming the silver gun at the monster before unleashing his full strength. The humanoid monster froze in place bearing the full brunt of Alex's strength. Fear could be seen in the depth of the monster's eyes, it could only think of one thing at the moment which was to flee.

The first condition to use the Blood Bullet was met and next Alex wished for the special to be created.

Immediately he felt 1/3 of his mana getting drained following a small blood essence being swallowed to create the Blood Bullet.

"Blood Bullet Unleashed!"

Bang!

The crimson bullet left the gun chamber at a speed akin to teleportation. The next thing the humanoid monster saw was a crimson bullet right before its eyes and then it penetrated its head before everything became blank.

In the blink of an eye, its brain got overwritten turning the monster into a faithful dog. It stared at Alex like a dog expecting orders.

Alex had a smug expression on his face, he could feel a subtle connection between himself and the monster standing a few feet away.

"Go slaughter the others!" Alex ordered while looking at the Level 160 monster he put under his control through the Blood Bullet.

The humanoid monster nodded before turning around and dashing in a certain direction and naturally, Alex followed after it, even Silveria was curious she turned back into her human form and followed him.

Soon they arrived at their destination and stopped because there was a screech in the sky, a crackle of thunder, and suddenly the group was faced with a shocking figure of grime and darkness. Two empty eyes stare at them with a bellowing fury, and another screech thunders from its broad mouth in a show of force.

Hair of shadows adorns its blubbery head, which itself was covered in glowing tattoos. Toxic smog escapes the creature's slanted nostrils set within a fat nose.

Its blubbery head sits atop a lofty, blubbery body. Gaping wounds show an infernal fire within, but you can only guess at the origins. I think you should take a look at

The creature treads forward, its two legs gracelessly carrying its cursed body with restless energy. A scythe-like tail writhes behind it, which itself almost seems like a separate, serpentine creature.

The creature steps closer, it becomes more and more menacing, and its eyes stare intently into a certain creature's eyes, it was the humanoid monster under Alex's control.

There was a short stalemate between those two as if trying to size each other, their level was the same.

Suddenly, both monsters disappeared but the demon was shocked to see the humanoid monster being fast as it attacked with its claw, the demon dodged but soon widened its eyes because that claw turned soft and was wrapped around its neck before being slammed into the ground.

Bam!

pandasNovel.com "Graa!"

The demon growled unable to believe its eyes, this fallen thing have never won against its kin but why this one seemed different? Almost human-like?

"Screech!"

With a shrill shriek, the humanoid monster tore through the air and heavily slammed its knee into the demon's chest, giving it no time to dodge.

BANG!

The impact sent the demon flying over hundred of meters, breaking many ancient trees

"Cough!"

The demon coughed up a mouthful of blood. Its chest and hands ripped open, and hot blood splashed out.

The demon ignored the pain as the impact sent it flying. The demon put its feet on the ground forcefully and stopped its body from dragging back any further.

Everything happened too fast not giving the demon the time to understand what happening, the humanoid monster was too fast.

The demon's pupils dilated as at the same moment, the humanoid monster appeared before him and grabbed its head.

Bam!

Th humanoid monster thrashed the demon's face into the ground, bursting it with pieces of stones and mud. Before he could release a cry, the monster pulled her out and tossed her into the air. He followed her in the air, his knee crashing into her belly.

Its mouth fell open, and blood sprayed out.

The demon tumbled to the ground, its body convulsing with pain.

While this was happening the humanoid monster stood before the convulsing demon and had a smug expression on its face before joining its arms to form a hand hammer and then violently smashing it on the demon's face, the latter head was crushed like a watermelon.

"Marvelous!"

Alex was the one who said those words upon witnessing the humanoid monster under his control easily deal with the demon. He couldn't be happier because he saw countless opportunities from this and started to make a plan.

As if she could read her master's mind, Silveria chuckled before turning into the silver gun in Alex's hand, the latter grinned before unleashing another Blood Bullet on the humanoid monster he decided to call Harvest. Harvest after getting strengthened went on a rampage, killing everything in sight.

Alex calmly tagged along while enjoying the feeling of doing nothing other than lazing around and letting Harvest collect an incredible amount of XP for him. He wished if possible he could go back to collect more XP but unfortunately found out that he couldn't go back, at least not lower than one floor so he reluctantly continued forward.

Harvest's little adventure continued until they reached a forest.

The forest was far-reaching, dark, and verdant. Its canopy was dominated by juniper, sycamore, and oak, still, plenty of light passed through their crowns for a variety of mushrooms to grow in the branch and twig-laden ground below.

Curving branches dangled from a couple of trees, and a medley of flowers, which desperately tried to claim the last remnants of light, adorned the otherwise homogeneous forest grounds.

A tumult of noises, predominantly those of foraging beasts, filled the air and formed a chaotic orchestra with the occasional roar of a large animal trying to scare away predators.

As soon as they stepped into this place Alex immediately understood that this was no ordinary forest, there seemed to be something hidden deeper in this ordinary-looking forest.

Alex sighed feeling reluctant to part with his cash cow, he wouldn't mind making it work for a while but it was impossible.

"Adios Amigos!" He said before putting a bullet into Harvest's head.

Immediately after a potion of experience mixed with various stats got transferred to Alex's body.

He was pleasantly surprised by the unexpected gain.

While Alex intended to check his various gains during this time night arrived as if she was in a hurry prompting Alex to postpone his plan for tomorrow.

After searching for the right spot before bringing out his special tent in the form of a house. He was in a good mood and thus invited Silveria and Nyx to join him as he cook unfortunately only Silveria appeared making Alex disappointed but knowing Nyx's personality he understood and was not that disappointed anymore. One day he would completely melt that ice heart and make her smile, make her open up to him and his family. Alex made this secret vow.

The night passed without incident, and the darkness slowly melted away as dawn usurped it.

The morning came like a refreshing oasis.

The golden rays of sunlight pierced through layers of cloud. The beautiful scenery in the sky showered the land with its brilliance.

The blazing sun was high in the sky. The air started turning warm under the intense glare of the sun.

Alex stood with his hands behind his back like a peerless expert. He was dressed in a black shirt and pants.

"Status!" He calmly called out. He had to do this before going deeper into the forest to meet this stage's enemy.

1357 Chapter 1357

After checking how much he had progressed Alex was satisfied and now it was finally time to confirm that hunch he got. Whatever was in that place it won't be your rundown monster Alex was sure of this.

Alex stepped into the void and arrived at the depth of the forest. He was shocked to find the entrance to what he believed to be a dungeon, that powerful enemy must await in the depth of this small dungeon he believed.

A large boulder in shadowy woods marks the entrance to this dungeon. Beyond the boulder lies a grand, damp room. It was covered in dead vermin, bat droppings, and puddles of water.

Further ahead are two paths, he took the right on a whim. Its twisted trail leads passed pillaged rooms and soon you enter a crumbled area. Rows upon rows of shelves are packed with books or remnants of books. In the center sits a single skeleton.

He slowly moved onwards, deeper into the dungeon's expanse, passing dozens of similar rooms and passages, most leading to nowhere or back to this same path. He eventually makes it to what was likely the room before the final room.

He stepped forward pushing open the door and entered it. It was pitch black but Alex had no trouble seeing through it.

A whimper in the darkness, a spark of light, and suddenly he was met with a foul creation of sickness and shadows. Two fiery eyes stare at him with a bone-chilling intensity, and another whimper escapes from its concave mouth at the sight of Alex.

Six curved horns adorn its lean head, which itself has a perpetual grin. A quick snort escapes the creature's rounded nostrils set within a pudgy nose.

Its lean head sits atop a compact, ossified body. Otherworldly armor covers every inch of it, probably remnants of an encounter with a different, horrifying being.

The creature darts toward him, its six legs calmly carry its infernal body with a terrorizing energy. A scythe-like tail writhes behind it, a thick liquid drips from the stinger on its tip.

Unimpressed eyes still look at him, but only barely before sprinting madly toward him. His speed was akin to teleportation but Alex was faster.

"Sil turns into Storm's mode." Alex leisurely ordered and Silveria turned into a shotgun's mode.

This double-barreled shotgun is quite intimidating, it's used legally in many countries as it's a low-cost, high-power weapon.

The standard length of the weapon is 931mm and has a barrel length of 815mm. The weapon weighs 2.9kg.

The caliber used in this weapon is 18 gauge and uses a lever-action firing mechanism. The ammo used most commonly is buckshot, but it also takes rock salt, flares, and shotshells.

This shotgun comes with a folding stock, but a straight English stock and a pistol grip are also available.

The stock is made out of plastic, but it can also be made out of exotic wood and expensive wood if you so desire.

There are custom carvings on the stock, but horn decorations or leather decorations are available as well.

This weapon was designed by a Spanish man named D. Cruz who initially designed it for use in warfare, today it's used for the fight against drugs, guerilla warfare, and civil warfare.

αΠδαςNovel com The name of this weapon is the AM-5U, but it usually goes by its nickname, Storm.

The demon came to an abrupt stop when the double barrels of Storm were put against its temple. I think you should take a look at

"Adios!" Alex playfully sentenced it to death and then there was a gunshot.

Bang!

The demon's upper body was blown off just like that. A level 185 died just like that.

At his current level, Alex had no trouble dealing with Demigod-level experts. A human would be more tricky but regardless it would still end in Alex's victory. This is the clear difference between the Demigod and the False God realm, it was like heaven and earth, like a great chasm.

Shaking his head to the little experience he got Alex proceeded to the final floor and stood before a door.

A massive metal door blocks his path. Various odd symbols are all over it, somehow untouched by time and the elements.

Behind this door was another forest.

The forest was far-reaching, gloomy, and primal. Its canopy was reigned by dogwood, crab apple, and ash, still, plenty of light passed through their crowns for a flood of bushes to grow in the insect-riddled soils below.

Curling tree limbs embraced every tree, and a range of flowers, which grew in abundance, added colorful variety to the otherwise mundane lower level.

A tumult of noises, which were caused by insects, brightened up the forest and was backed by the occasional sounds of large animals in the distance.

In the depth of this forest was the Boss of this stage. Alex was too shocked upon seeing the identity of the enemy.

Calm ivory eyes sit lightly within the creature's scaled, bony skull, which gives the creature a savage-looking appearance.

Several crystal growths sit atop its head, just above its thick, angular ears. A row of small horns runs down the sides of each of its jawlines.

Its nose was short and had two short, curved nostrils and there are crystal growths on its chin. Several huge teeth poke out from the side of its mouth and show a glimpse of the terror hiding inside.

A strong neck runs down from its head and into a long body. The top is covered in scale-like skin and rows of small tendrils run down its spine.

Its bottom is covered in small scales and is colored slightly lighter than the rest of its body. Two slender limbs carry its body and allow the creature to stand dignified and illustrious. Each limb has 5 digits, each of which ends in keen talons seemingly made of onyx.

Huge wings grow to start from its shoulders and end at the end of its shoulder blades. The wings are almost butterfly-like, the insides of the wing seem to be made of thin crystals and sharp, spiky scales cover the top of each visible bone.

Its fairly short tail ends in a fan-like tip and is covered in the same scale-like skin as its body.

"So it's a dragon before meeting him, huh!"

The demon's pupils dilated as at the same moment, the humanoid monster appeared before him and grabbed its head.

Bam!

The humanoid monster thrashed the demon's face into the ground, bursting it with pieces of stones and mud. Before he could release a cry, the monster pulled her out and tossed her into the air. He followed her in the air, his knee crashing into her belly.

Its fairly short tail ends in a fan-like tip and is covered in the same scale-like skin as its body.

"So it's a dragon before meeting him, huh!" Alex murmured, his expression was interesting.

Floating above the dragon was the following sentence.

[Lesser Dragon Lv202]

Shockingly it was a monster in the False Gold realm. If it was outside this dragon rank would be classified above the SSS rank.

Alex narrowed his eyes as he seized the beast, the latter was doing the same thing. It was a pity it was not one realm lower like that he would have put the dragon under submission using the Blood Bullet, unfortunately, they are both in the same realm with just a few levels apart.

"Truly regrettable." Alex shook his head.

In the meantime, the dragon could understand human language because he was created by Bahamut's consciousness using the fallen adventurers in the infinity maze together with dungeon essence and his flesh.

The dragon frowned feeling like he had been looked down upon and as the last barrier before his lord's castle he couldn't tolerate such blatant disregard, even if his lord seemed to think highly of this human. He would kill him and show his lord his loyalty and usefulness. To go to the outside world to join the main body, he was all his lord need not this fragile human.

While the lesser dragon was arrogantly thinking how to teach Alex the lesson the latter couldn't help but shake his head as he saw the contempt in the beast's eyes.

It's known consensus that dragons are arrogant beings that always think they're above everyone else. This arrogance is rooted deep in their bones.

It is good to be arrogant but only when you are sure of your strength if not your arrogance will be your sin and at the same time cause your downfall.

Alex smiled and already thought about how to deal with this arrogant lesser dragon a good lesson. Then the smile faded and his expression became cold like the oldest glacier.

It would be overkill to use his Asura's mode because of his Royal Asura's bloodline, his strength would skyrocket if he were to use it more than in the past, Alex was leaving this mode for the final boss. As for how to deal with this lesser dragon he got the perfect mode.

"Dragon's mode!" Alex announced before a boundless force exploded from his body in an instant crushing the surrounding trees into a powder.

The lesser dragon who was thinking about how to ruthlessly trample on Alex before killing him froze unable to even blink looking at the transformed Alex.

Standing above two meters and covered in glittering dark golden scales with two vertical golden pupils and two curved dragon horns was Alex, behind him was a long dragon tail. He looked majestic, he looked imposing at the moment.

The lesser dragon felt something he had never felt before, a kind of primal fear even though he seemed unaware of it. Even his lord, his creator didn't give him this kind of pressure, never made him feel death was so close as the man before him.

All his previous arrogance disappeared in a puff of smoke and was replaced by fear, endless fear, and the scent of death gripping its throat.

The first step in Alex's plan was achieved, time to continue with the following one. He fired a seemingly normal bullet behind him before lowering his dragon's pressure, dragon's force if you want.

Immediately after, the lesser dragon who regained its mobility attacked by spewing fire.

Boom!

Everything was happening at a speed impossible to describe, with the exploding dragon's breath reaching Alex instantaneously. Despite this, he smiled and said,

"Nice reaction!"

Turning around in a flash, he fiercely smashed his dragon's claws into the ground.

BOOOOM

A world-ending blast occurred, turning into a gigantic mushroom cloud. I think you should take a look at

Simultaneously, black flames swirling with golden lightning rippled outwards as shockwaves because he fired two special bullets to create this illusion.

The lesser staggered back, its eyes reflecting the incredible sight of Alex.

He was rushing through the mushroom cloud, splitting the mushroom cloud!

"To be honest, if I want to completely overpower you, it would be difficult even for me," Alex acknowledged with a pleasant smile.

"As for obliterating you in an instant it would be harder it's why I came up with certain countermeasures."

"?!"

The lesser dragon didn't know why, but Alex's acknowledgment made it feel as if this was some ominous premonition.

While trying to make sense of this, it swiftly raised its front claws to protect its chest as Alex's fist reached there.

But then he surprised the beast by stopping the fist just a hairsbreadth away.

His lips curved up, and he said, "But luckily for me, I neither have to overpower you nor obliterate you. I only have to push you into the thing behind turning you into my nutrient..."

As these words entered the lesser dragon's ears, he felt an intense sense of crisis. This crisis reached its peak when it heard the concluding phrase.

"Hell's Gate!."

Swoosh~!

Suddenly, the forest turned pin-drop silent and turned blinding dark. Every source of light lost its function.

RIPPPPPPPP

In such an environment, just a mile behind the lesser dragon, a gate appeared and was opened.

The lesser dragon corpse hurriedly jerked its head at the ominous-looking portal.

Whoosh!

Novel com Ghost-like and demon-like figures appeared in the swirling colors, their expressions filled with hunger.

The lesser dragon froze and felt a chill down its spine.

"Do you really think now is the time to be distracted?"

Alex's voice rang in the lesser dragon's ears, bringing it back to reality.

It quickly turned its head.

But it was too late.

BANG!

By then, Alex's fist has brutally pounded onto its chest.

Its chest caved in, and its back arched out while its body slammed into the portal. The ghost and demon-like figures smiled and grabbed the lesser dragon.

Their ethereal hands and tentacles turned into chains and tightened around the big dragon's body, and they dragged the him3 in.

The lesser dragon didn't even get the time to resist—all due to a moment of carelessness.

"Relax, this isn't the end for you," Alex said with a friendly smile. "In fact, it is a start...the start of your eternal suffering before you will turn into my tonic."

The lesser dragon growled angrily, and flames exploded out of it. A few ghost-and-demon-like figures were burned by them, but Alex was calm.

He snapped his fingers, and the Hell's Gate disappeared. Now the lesser dragon has no choice of escaping even if it broke its confinement. He would suffer endlessly before turning into Alex's nutrition.
