1361 Chapter 1361

Ghost-like and demon-like figures appeared in the swirling colors, their expressions filled with hunger.

The lesser dragon froze and felt a chill down its spine.

"Do you think now is the time to be distracted?"

Alex's voice rang in the lesser dragon's ears, bringing it back to reality.

It quickly turned its head.

But it was too late.

BANG!

By then, Alex's fist has brutally pounded onto its chest.

Its chest caved in, and its back arched out while its body slammed into the portal. The ghost and demon-like figures smiled and grabbed the lesser dragon.

Their ethereal hands and tentacles turned into chains and tightened around the big dragon's body, and they dragged the him3 in.

The lesser dragon didn't even get the time to resist—all due to a moment of carelessness.

"Relax, this isn't the end for you," Alex said with a friendly smile. "In fact, it is a start...the start of your eternal suffering before you will turn into my tonic."

The lesser dragon growled angrily, and flames exploded out of it. A few ghost-and-demon-like figures were burned by them, but Alex was calm.

He snapped his fingers, and the Hell's Gate disappeared. Now the lesser dragon has no choice of escaping even if it broke its confinement. He would suffer endlessly before turning into Alex's nutrition.

Silveria who watched how the fight unfolded couldn't help but praise Alex's ingenuity.

The fight ended in less than fifteen minutes because of Alex's meticulous planning. He first unleashed his dragon's mode to put the lesser dragon under pressure making him scared because of his purest dragon bloodline, he then fired a Hell Gate bullet and used the power of time to delay its activation and finally attacked. The three steps in his plans were all important as they made the final result possible.

Alex stored the Hell bullet away before harvesting what he could harvest from the dead dragon's body. When he finished he decided to find a nice spot and finally found one.

This place was near a waterfall. He set up the tent and outside the tent, there was a table. Alex took a seat followed by Silveria who had just returned to her human form.

Alex didn't say anything before taking out a priceless wine offered by Typhania (Elseria).

"Let's stop a body's natural alcohol inhibition." He decided and Silveria looked at him for a moment before chuckling. She understood his intentions, without this, they couldn't get drunk even if the alcohol was very strong.

After getting Silveria's approval Alex took two glasses and poured the white wine into it and the strong smell of the wine permeated the air, it was intoxicating.

Silveria took her glass of wine and observed it first before inhaling some of its scents and finally taking a sip.

Meanwhile, Alex looked at her leisurely and swirled the wine cup in his hand.

Then, he raised his head and drank the rest of the wine in one gulp. Only then did he say, "I dare you to do the same?"

"Petty trick." She said before taking another sip.

Silveria's eyes were curved, and her words were somewhat teasing. However, there was a strong smell of wine in her voice.

Although she had only taken a small sip, she felt dizzy now.

Alex calmly poured himself another cup of wine, and said, "I think you should take a look at

"You are beautiful when you are drunk."

Silveria's silver hair cascaded down like a waterfall, and some of it fluttered in the air. There was a faint glow on her face, and her eyes were a little blurred, as if they were unfocused. She just looked at the man sitting in front of her.

Alex seemed to be smiling at her, but also seemed to be minding his own business and drinking his wine. His eyes were calm.

His flawless and perfect appearance was enough to make all the women in the world jealous.

However, at this moment, he seemed to be very high and mighty, sitting in there like an emperor, looking down on all living beings.

Silveria started to have trouble seeing therefore she asked Alex to bring her back to her room in the big tent and he did as he was told. He princess carries her while chuckling thinking of how weak Silveria's alcohol tolerance was.

There was a sudden mist drifting and a cool breeze blew. A delicate fragrance assailed Alex's nostrils. It was a very pleasant smell. Some of the fluttering silver hair was blown by the wind and landed on Alex's face.

"Do you ever miss me, Alexander?" Silveria absentmindedly asked.

He was slightly stunned. Then, he looked at Silveria to make sure that she was drunk, or was still somewhat sober.

However, at this time, Silveria still had her eyes closed and her head buried. After asking this question, she did not speak again.

It was as if she had asked this question unconsciously.

Her fair and flawless face was slightly flushed as if it was stained with the glow of the sunset. Her breath was also slightly drunk, and it warmly blew onto Gu Change's neck.

"Have I ever missed you?" He asked himself this question before smiling.

"Of course I do but I know you'll be here for me forever." The last part was said inaudibly and it was unknown whether she heard him or not as she seemed completely drunk and passed out.

The following morning he came and was about to check on her when she suddenly woke up.

Immediately became alert. She said, "Alex, what do you want? I'm warning you, stay away from me. "

With that, she shrank back and hugged her knees. Her whole body was almost curled up to the corner of the bed.

A pitiful expression appeared on her delicate face.

Alex rolled his eyes at her and naturally didn't care about her pretense. He smiled faintly and said, "If I wanted to do something, I wouldn't have waited until now. The seven hours you slept for days are more than enough. "

Hearing this, Silveria glared at him and decided not to pretend anymore. She stretched and looked at her clothes. Surprisingly, they hadn't been touched.

"He's worse than a beast ..." She couldn't help but mutter.

"It seems that you are still a little disappointed." Alex smiled.

Silveria gritted her teeth and ignored Alex teasing. She stood up and was about to leave.

She did not want to stay in this place at all, and she did not want to see Alex now.

Although her memory of that day was a little fuzzy, she still had some impressions of what happened after that.

For example, when she wrapped her arms around Alex's neck and rubbed her face against him, recalling this intimate gesture Silveria's face heat up and she couldn't wait to find a hole and jump in. That was too embarrassing, to think she'd do something like that when drunk, fortunately, she didn't drink much if not who knows what could have happened.

Afterward, Alex and Silveria had breakfast after which they left their tent. Silveria pressed her hand on the door and the house transformed into a small cube before she keep it.

Alex gazed at the morning sky which was covered by an icy mist. A chilling breeze blew past his ear like a whisper from a ghost.

He observed the sky through the mist. He sighed, he could feel the final fight of the Infinity Maze slowly closing, the next floor would probably be the last one and he couldn't help but clench his fists feeling a little bit of pressure, after all the enemy he'd be facing was none other than Bahamut's clone, this could be said to be their first clash. He could use this chance to gauge the other party's strength and make proper countermeasures.

'It won't be an easy fight.'

Meanwhile in a certain realm.

You force forward through the untried portal hidden in plain sight in an alley. You're immediately met by a vibrant world. Light as a feather you gently float above the surface, hanging in the thick smog that fills the air. A new world has opened up to you, vast expanses of new life ready to be explored. You can't wait. I think you should take a look at

Because of this rough environment, you feel slightly panicked as danger hides everywhere. This world is certainly benign, but with great risks come great rewards.

In the far-off distance, you see bits and pieces of eerily familiar beings. While they appear to be docile and safe, you realize it's probably best to keep your distance. There are fluffy creatures, tiny creatures, and what you think might be crawling creatures of some sort.

In the middle of this realm was a house.

From the outside, this house looks very elegant. It has been built with oak wood and has tan stone decorations. Small, squared windows let in plenty of light and have been added to the house in a fairly symmetrical pattern.

The house is equipped with a small kitchen and two modern bathrooms, it also has a warm living room, two bedrooms, a cozy dining room, and a snug storage room.

The building is shaped like a T. The two extensions are linked by a patio circling half the house.

The second floor is bigger than the first, which creates a stylish overhang around half the house. This floor follows the same style as the floor below.

The roof is high and triangular and is covered with wheat straw. Two large chimneys sit on either side of the house. Several large windows let in plenty of light to the rooms below the roof.

The house itself is surrounded by a modest, childsafe garden covered mostly in grass and with a children's playground in the center.

In the garden, A fresh plot of grass is accompanied by young hedges and flower bushes. Several, stocky trees stand near the left edge, their leaves, and branches continue to be home to countless creatures. The rows of flowers are clearly in need of a little care, but they're hanging in there; they're home to all sorts of life. The hedges and flower bushes reach 1.2m/4ft high, but they won't grow much taller than this. A few, short signs are scattered around the garden, almost taking people by the hand in order to show them the best sights. Vines and grass creep and crawl their way beyond their borders, sneakily trying to take just a little more land.

The trees, moosewood trees, have stood there for dozens of years, and are what started the creation of this entire garden in the first place. The rows of flowers do attract some attention, and the hedges and flower bushes do deserve some credit, but the focus is just simply on the moosewood trees.

In the middle of this beautiful garden was a table and sitting around this table was a beautiful woman.

Nyx's black hair cascaded down like a waterfall, and some of it fluttered in the air. She sat and seemed to have blended with nature. She was silent not saying a word when she suddenly opened her small mouth and sighed.

"That foolish sister of mine didn't make use of this opportunity. Who knows how strong he would have become if she took the initiative."

If Silveria were to hear her sister's words she would have flipped over and fought Nyx even if she couldn't win.

Only Nyx know what she was planning by saying those words.

1364 Chapter 1364

Let's head back to Gracier's group location for a moment.

In another location was a man who was observing the fight through the monster's eyes and when he saw how they died he froze, it was then Luna's voice reached his ears.

"Found you!"

'Oh! No!'

The man's heart tightened and a chill went down his back as cold sweat covered his hands and feet; a feeling of a certain clawed at his heart. He knew he was done for. He had to do everything possible to escape so he threw something on the ground which exploded, and the thing contained inside turned into countless monsters.

Using this as a cover the man disappeared but he didn't notice a small white ball following him as he teleported.

Shortly after Luna arrived at the place the man previously stood she smiled looking in a certain direction before focusing on the monsters summoned by the man.

"Well, I'll never say no to a free Exp! You better run fast as you can little rabbit."

Even though the monsters couldn't understand what she was saying they flinched feeling fear and the next instant they hailed like pigs being slaughtered.

While Luna was chasing after the enemy she intentionally let go of Gracier who was about to join her receive an emergency call from one of her brother's men stationed not too far away she went in the direction of the call, it was in another place. A city covered in the middle of the sea surrounded by glaciers.

As soon as she arrived Gracier witnessed something amazing.

Boom— — —!

A deep sonic boom erupted and all of a sudden, an enormous, pitch-black shadow appeared out of thin air. It was a giant octopus that was over eight meters long, suspended in the air, while its huge body descended slowly as though it were being lowered into the deep sea. At the same time, the giant octopus waved its tentacles, lashing out at a group of beings near it. The group of beings wasn't just ordinary creatures. And although they were standing quite a distance away from Gracier, it only took an instant before she saw who they were. A group of adventurers had surrounded the giant octopus, wielding various weapons mostly trident, and were wrestling with the giant octopus bravely.

Narrowing her eyes at the battlefield in front of her, Gracier canceled her dragon mode, she used this mode to move faster in order to arrive quickly.

Only a dozen adventurers were encircling the giant octopus, and they didn't stand a chance against it. In the blink of an eye, two of them were struck away by the giant octopus. Although the remaining adventurers were grasping at straws, raising their tridents to attack the giant octopus, it was a pity that their attacks inflicted little to no damage.

This can't go on.

Gracier thought and understood why she received the emergency call. She quickly scanned the surrounding searching for her brother's subordinate but was unable to find Zwei, he must have gone somewhere she thought.

'I'll search for him later, for now, let's focus on rescuing this group of adventurers.' She moved after mumbling those words.

By the time Gracier arrived on the battlefield, the zdven9 seemed to have completely run out of gas. Facing the tentacles that whipped at them, they could only summon an ice barrier to resist it. Just as Gracier arrived, she heard a loud whoosh and the giant octopus's tentacle crushed the ice barrier effortlessly in a loud bang!

Not only that, but the tentacle also grabbed one of the adventurers, bound her tightly, and dragged her toward it. At the same time, the giant octopus opened its mouth which was full of trembling razor-sharp teeth, which were as though they were telling their owner that they were famished!

"———! ———"I think you should take a look at

The B-rank adventurer warrior caught in the tentacle struggled hard and let out a clear, miserable scream like a lark captured by an eagle. At that moment, the other adventurers below charged ahead to rescue their companion. But unfortunately, none of them were able to save their companion as they were forced to retreat by the giant octopus attack. The adventurers at the bottom watched grudgingly as their companion was about to turn into food for the giant octopus, disappearing entirely into its huge mouth.

Swoosh!

But at that moment, a burst of flames lit up the menacing tentacles. In the face of this sudden agony, the giant octopus screeched. It instinctively loosened its grip around that female adventurer and waved its tentacles around unceasingly in an attempt to extinguish the flames. But unfortunately, its movements weren't able to eliminate the flames that were entwined and blazing on the tentacles. On the contrary, sparks and flares scattered from the burning flames due to its flustered movements, as though a heavenly maiden were sprinkling sparks at it.

Flames were the natural enemy of water elemental creatures, and this giant octopus was naturally no exception. Although ordinary flames were unable to burn it, it depended on who was releasing the flames.

"Well, I wonder if this huge octopus tastes good roasted."

Gracier chuckled and floated in midair. She stared at the giant octopus in pain before her but didn't have the slightest intention of stopping. Instead, she stretched out her arm and pointed forward. And with this action, hundreds of fireballs erupted from behind her all at once, enfolding and overwhelming the giant octopus.

Boom! Boom! Boom!

Along with a series of explosions, the giant octopus shuddered in the sizzling flames that it was so terrified of. The kind of pain was literally like acid dripping onto its skin and eating away at its flesh without any mercy. Under Gracier's attack, the giant octopus retreated. But even so, it didn't seem willing to give up the delicious meal it almost devoured earlier. After letting out another bellow, the giant octopus shot out its tentacles at the mermaid warrior who was thrown out by it earlier.

"...!"

Staring at the deadly tentacle headed straight for her again, the frightened adventurer turned ashen. Just when she saw the rows of suction cups on the inside of the tentacle and thought she could no longer escape, all of a sudden, she felt an arm pulling her by the waist and dragging her out of the tentacle's attacking range. Immediately after, from the corner of her eyes, the female adventurer witnessed a bright, dazzling blade ray that sliced the tentacle into two like it was made of paper.

"———!"

The traumatized octopus finally gave up its intention to attack, forced itself to give up the delicious treat, and shrank its entire body instantly. Shortly after, it spewed out a dense cloud of black ink from its mouth that enveloped its enormous body. There was an instant where even the sky and surroundings dimmed at this move. Taking advantage of this opportunity, the giant octopus turned around in a hurry, flew backward, and fled. It was very simple-minded. As long as it could leave this place alive, it would be a victory!

But... Would Zwei let it leave so easily?

Since it has already shown up, it could forget about leaving.

Gracier frowned upon seeing Zwei's appearance. To think his concealment skill have progressed this much she was unable to detect him. She shook her head and decided to follow Zwei's plan as she understood his intention. She couldn't defeat this thing alone so he needs her help hence the emergency call. After all, they couldn't waste this valuable group of adventurers that could play a role in the future fight.

Meanwhile, Zwei's expression was cold as ice. It was exactly as Gracier guessed.

Gazing at the barrier of pitch-black ink, a glint flashed in Zwei's eyes. At the next moment, in the blink of an eye, the sword in his hand metamorphosed into a lightning bolt that penetrated the middle of the dark cloud of pitch-black ink. The mighty impact along with whirling gales erupted, wiping out the black ink instantly. And now, along with another miserable shriek, the giant octopus's body was punctured thoroughly, leaving a huge round hole in the middle. Blood sprayed everywhere from the wound, spreading, mixed with black ink. The giant octopus shuddered uncontrollably, but that was just its deathbed struggle.

"My final touch !"

Along with Gracier's hearty laughter, a sudden burst of flames instantly engulfed the octopus's body.

The adventurers on the side were dumbfounded, completely unresponsive to the scene before them. After all, just a moment ago, they were trying to stop and defeat that terrifying monster with the belief that they would die. But they didn't expect the situation to turn around in just a split second. As these two strange beings showed up, the battle situation turned around drastically. The deep sea octopus was a creature that even a powerful group of mermaid elites had a hard time eliminating. Despite that, those two actually killed it so effortlessly.

Most of the group was curious about their identity.

But they didn't expect the situation to turn around in just a split second. As these two strange beings showed up, the battle situation turned around drastically. The deep sea octopus was a creature that even a powerful group of mermaid elites had a hard time eliminating. Despite that, those two actually killed it so effortlessly.

Most of the group was curious about their identity.

"Thank you for saving us!" The one seemed like the leader approached Zwei and thanked them. Gracier had arrived by then.

Zwei nodded before saying.

"Don't worry I saved you because I need your help to get rid of another monster, a bigger one."

One of the adventurers frowned wanting to say something but the leader stopped him.

"I understand, we will cooperate."

Zwei nodded before turning to face Gracier and explained things to her. According to his explanation the chaos organization seemed to be trying to turning this area in a dungeon, they even created abnormal monsters, the octopus they fought was one of them but there's one left, Le final boss.

Gracier nodded in understanding and together with the rest of the group of adventurers they went deeper where the Big octopus was located.

Quickly they encountered a group of weird monsters, a mix between goblin and kobold. Their level was high around 120 but they numbered, Zwei ordered some the adventurers to take care of the weird monsters.

Meanwhile the rest arrived before a seven meters tall octopus and quickly engaged it. This monster level almost hit 182.

Gracier extended her arms and along with this action, a burning scarlet card appeared between her slender fingers.

Then, flames erupted.

"Red Lotus!"

Rumble!

In the sound of explosive thunderclaps, the crowd in battle couldn't help but look at the sky curiously. Shortly after, they witnessed thick layers of white clouds emerging from the horizon and shrouding the battlefield.

Wait... Those aren't clouds!

"Ssss...!"

Along with this odd sound, a scarlet radiance poured out from the clouds, splashing onto the giant octopus like a waterfall crashing from above. At first glance, it looked like a stream of scarlet blood, but the boiling white steam that evaporated the heat around the waterfall clearly told everyone that it wasn't blood, but lava instead!

Boom!

The giant octopus also seemed to realize the danger. It loosened its tentacles for the first time to evade this attack from Gracier. However, it was one step too late. Perhaps because it was too focused on trying to eat the others, it didn't notice the hot lava and water vapor that jetted from above. It was caught off guard and splashed in the face by the scorching lava. In an instant, bursts of white steam rushed skyward as if they were nuclear explosions.

The giant octopus couldn't hold on any longer to this deadly attack from Gracier. It waved its tentacles in rage, at the same time shrouding itself in clouds of dark, cold, and damp mist that erupted from its body. Along with this bone-piercing chilliness, the lava flowing down in waves finally seemed to be resisted. At that moment, the giant octopus withdrew its body swiftly, intending to escape.

At that moment, the giant octopus hesitated whether to continue the battle. But shortly after, it made its decision.

Shing———!

An eye-catching, silver blade ray struck like a bolt of lightning in the night sky, ripping apart the mist enfolding the giant octopus. Zwei, who disappeared from the battlefield earlier, showed up behind the giant octopus like a ghost, blocking its retreat. Not only that, but the blade ray he struck also revealed the giant octopus to the crowd again. I think you should take a look at

At that moment, the giant octopus's body could be said to look rather nasty. After having lava poured on it, the surface of its otherwise smooth, moist body was now covered in disgusting, ghastly burn wounds that oozed deep blue liquid. Not only that, but its flesh was also ripped from its body, which was an appalling view. The giant octopus that was under attack once again blew its top. Earlier on, it almost went crazy after being battered by Gracier and some of the strongest adventurers in the group Gracier rescued. Gracier was also a cunning one. She cast her skills from far away and whenever the giant octopus extended its tentacles at her, the B-rank female was there to cut them off. After losing two to three tentacles, the giant octopus no longer dared to retaliate and could only focus on attacking the ice crystal barrier. And now, another group of people actually arrived to bully it further!

Ssss———!

Upon hearing Zwei's voice, the giant octopus enormous eyes glinted in a ferocious and brutal flash.

I can't hit those damn bast*rds who are far away. But what makes you think I can't hit those who are near?'

At this thought, the giant octopus hesitated no more. It roared, raised its tentacles, and grabbed at Zwei!

Three enormous tentacles sealed off his retreat. As Zwei charged ahead and sliced off the mist surrounding the giant octopus, the three tentacles arrived by his side. Almost in the blink of an eye, he was about to be caught and squashed into bits. But it was a pity that there was always a difference between imagination and reality.

Swish!

The moment the three tentacles were about to seize Zwei, he dove, evaded the attacks, and brushed passed the huge suction cups under the tentacles. Shortly after, not only did he not flee, but he also turned around immediately and slashed a dazzling blade ray from the tip of one of the tentacles.

Slash!

In a swift sound, the thick tentacle was sliced into two from the middle. Upon sensing the immense pain, the giant octopus bellowed. This time, it couldn't tolerate it any longer!

Swish———!

Along with the snarls, ice-cold, chilly winds blustered in all directions. Everyone including Zwei came to a standstill right away as the air seemingly froze at that moment. Everything seemed to be covered in countless layers of ice. At the same time, the crowd felt as if an enormous boulder were weighing them down.

The giant octopus zoomed past swiftly as if it were swimming in water, showing up before Zwei and widening its mouth to reveal its terrifying, razor-sharp teeth. It pounced on him, attempting to devour him entirely.

However, the giant octopus didn't notice that at that moment, a petite figure with red flashed by its eyes. Her dragonified arm penetrated through the soft flesh of the eyeball.

"-----!"

The giant octopus couldn't even cry before with a sadistic smile Gracier declared.

"The end!"

From her arm inside the giant octopus eyeball a flame was born and turned into a Red lotus which expended along with the giant octopus body.

The huge, round eyes ruptured in this ruthless attack by Gracier. Putrid blood spurting out from the wound and sprayed into the sky.

At that moment, the giant octopus could no longer handle the pain. Its massive body shivered, while its tentacles fluttered aimlessly. The immense pain stripped its ability to think. It instinctively wanted to leave this battlefield.

But it was a pity that Gracier wouldn't let it off so easily.

The giant octopus's massive body swayed like a battleship struck by cannon fire. It struggled to flee, but eventually, in an unwilling shriek accepted its approaching death.

Finally Gracier increased the mana input making the Red lotus bigger so the giant octopus body grew in size before suddenly exploding into a gory mess of flesh and charred remain.

Boom!

Gracier had erected a barrier to protect herself, those who were slowly got showered in the giant octopus's remain.

It was a frightening sight to behold yet at the same time it held a certain beauty as the red blood drifting in the air matched Gracier's hair perfectly.

Gracier's lips curved ever slightly to form a beautiful smile and those who saw this couldn't help but tremble.

A terrifying chill swept through Zwei's entire body. His spine was cold, and his scalp felt like it was going to explode. He knew Gracier was ruthless but not to this extent. Better never anger the little miss he thought.

"I'm going back, don't forget to send me my share of the spoil," Gracier said before vanishing.

Zwei was dumbfounded for a long time before shaking his head and mumbling.

"Of course, I won't forget because I don't want to be beaten up."

Meanwhile, Luna keep following the fish she purposely let escape the net, she thought he would bring it to their stronghold but where the man went there were only two people in there.

The furious Luna quickly eliminated and reached the final room where the man was ready to take a teleportation portal.

"You! How?"

When the man saw Luna standing there with a smile he froze unable to believe that he had been followed even when he did sure he was not. He finally understood that she had purposely let him go.

This realization hit him hard. It was as if his skull had been ripped open, and cold water poured directly into his body. An even more frightening cold air swept through his four limbs, almost causing his entire body to feel cold, and he stood there in a daze.

Swoosh!

In the next instant, Luna who should be at the entrance of the room had arrived before him. His soul almost escaped out of his body.

Bang!

Luna's kick connected with his head sending him flying.

Bam!

He landed on the other side of the room and tried desperately to stand up.

Blood seeped from his wound and sweat dripped down his forehead. The man felt a dull pain, but it was surely numbed by the adrenaline pumping through his veins. He desired relief no matter what form it came in. For a moment he even contemplated giving up completely, there didn't seem to be an end in sight. With the passing of each moment, the pain only seemed to get worse and worse. For a moment he feared it would never stop.

He tried their hardest to ignore the pain and focus on both continuing with what he was doing while still allowing the injuries to heal. He knew he had to escape or else he could lose his life here.

The next moment Luna disappeared again and reappeared behind him with one of her legs whistling through the air.

With a shrill shriek, this leg tore through the air and heavily slammed into the man's back, giving him no time to dodge.

BANG!

The impact sent him crashing on the upper floor. The floor caved in, and the glass panels exploded into tinkling shards. I think you should take a look at

"Cough!"

He coughed up a mouthful of blood. His chest and hands ripped open, and hot blood splashed out.

He ignored the pain as the impact sent him flying. He put his feet on the ground forcefully and stopped himself from dragging back any further.

"This is so much fun!"

"But now is the time we bring this to an end!"

Luna who appeared said those words she then lifted her bloody hand towards the crevice in the sky before abruptly bringing it down.

"!"

The man's body tensed as he feared the worst but nothing happened in the next moment Luna was already before him with her fist connected to his chin.

"Just kidding, just go to sleep for a moment."

It was a perfect uppercut that put him out cold.

....

Ten hours later, somewhere in the Foxia Empire.

Splash!!

At this moment, in a damp and dark dungeon, a young man was lying on the ground in a coma, covered with blood.

Then, as a basin of cold water was suddenly poured on him, he shivered. He opened his eyes abruptly. They were bloodshot, but there was still anger and hatred in them.

"You're awake?"

The jailer next to him said with a cold smile. He put down the basin of cold water he had been about to pour on him.

The man gradually woke up from his daze. He got to his feet with difficulty.

At this moment, he felt a sharp pain all over his body. He didn't know how many of his bones were broken. All of his internal organs were ruptured. After being slapped by the old man who looked like a butler, he felt a hundred times worse than being crushed by a mountain.

If he didn't have the body of Demigod he would have suffered more serious injuries.

"Where am I?"

Then the man looked around to size up his surroundings. He noticed there were many bloodstains and scratches on the walls, as well as a cold chain that pierced through his shoulder blades.

This was some dark dungeon.

Then he noticed the black-clothed beauty standing in front of him.

He shivered. He couldn't hide the humiliation, anger, and hatred in his eyes.

"This damned woman with the face of an angel!"

Staring at him, he almost squeezed these three words out of his teeth. His hatred for Luna soared through the roof after all she was the one that put him into his current state.

'You wouldn't get anything out of me.'

"That is probably what you're thinking, right?" Luna said those words as if she could read the man's thoughts.

"What?"

A terrifying chill swept through his entire body. His spine was cold, and his scalp felt like it was going to explode.

He did not dare to look into those beautiful golden eyes as it could intensify his fear, his body started to tremble and he limped back until his back hit the wall, then he remembered one of the safety measures on him just in case he was caught. He couldn't spill anything here therefore he wanted to crush the poison hidden in his molar but unfortunately it was missing.

"Is this what you're searching for?" Luna's voice rang out in the man's ear prompting him to raise his head and as his eyes landed on the thing Luna was holding he couldn't help but shudder.

She still had that warm smile even when holding a bloody tooth, it was the missing molar.

Boom!

There was a sudden illusionary explosion in the man's mind. It was as if his skull had been ripped open, and cold water poured directly into his body. An even more frightening cold air swept through his four limbs, almost causing his entire body to feel cold, and he sat there in a daze.

"Come on you don't have to be that shocked. Why did you think that I knocked you out with an uppercut?" Luna's head was tilted to the side as she raised this question.

The man shuddered again and his face turned pale, he couldn't help but stutter.

"D-don't tell me it was because you were aiming for this?"

"Bingo! 80pts. Last but not least it's the time to start. I hope you are a tight-lipped one. Like this, I'll have much fun."

The man felt a chill run up his spine when he saw Luna's evil smile. That smile gave off an ominous feeling.

"D-do not come closer!" He was scared beyond words but Luna simply smiled upon seeing this.

"Let heal you for you not to easily break." Luna declared before casting a healing spell on the man.

"2nd Tier Holy Magic: Blessings!"

A white ball flew from Luna's extended palm covering the injured man and he was healed in an instant as if his body had never been injured. I think you should take a look at

The man wasn't happy even after being healed. He was scared of Luna's dazzling appearance.

At the moment Luna looked like a true Saintess, an angel sent down to save humanity and protect it, everything about her seemed holy but this illusion was shattered by her next sentence.

"Shall we start the beating in earnest?"

"Eiek!" The man's body convulsed and the next thing he knew was already up with Luna beating the hell out of him.

Bam! Bam! Bam!

He couldn't properly defend because of the fear engraved deeper into his soul, he was one-sidedly beaten by Luna. His body was in a terrible state.

Half his body felt numb while the other half screamed in agony. The sharp, burning sensation was all he could focus on. Desperate for some form of relief he sought out every solution except for giving in. Ignoring it, working through it, using it to fuel strength. But nothing seemed to work. He held his fingers against his temples and gently massaged them. One deep breath followed another, surely this pain could be ignored if he tried he was trained for this, still, his entire body was trembling now. Weak and exhausted it cost him all his remaining strength to keep fighting. However, he felt like there wasn't much that could be done either way, so the best course of action was to simply deal with it and get on with this until the pain subsided.

"2nd Tier Holy Magic: Blessings!"

Luna threw another healing spell at the man, instantly healing him before doing the following thing.

Bam!

She thrashed the man's face into the ground, bursting it with pieces of stones and concrete. Before he could release a cry, she pulled him out and tossed him into the air as the ceiling of the prison was pretty high. Luna immediately followed him in the air, her knee crashing into his belly.

His mouth fell open, and blood sprayed out.

He tumbled to the ground, his body convulsing with pain.

"Ple...please spare me!" The man begged. The pain had wiped out all of his previous bravado, replacing it with the sensation of approaching death.

"And why would I do such a thing?"

Luna asked as she slowly approached the convulsing man like the grim reaper.

Right now she might not be wielding a scythe, but that only made her appear far more menacing with that evil smile still hung on his face.

"2nd Tier Holy Magic: Blessings!" She healed him again but this time threw a sword at the man's face, the latter picked it up and immediately rushed at Luna in desperation.

"Die!" He howled as he swung his sword with all his might despite already knowing the result.

Luna calmly defended by punching forward.

There was a bang sound when the fist and sword clashed and the result was the man's defeat. The difference in strength broke his wrist, and he dislocated his ankle while trying to withstand the force of Luna's enhanced strength. He was flung a few meters in the air before landing face down on the ground. His sword was broken, and he felt a burning pain from the bloodied hand gripping the hilt.

"Please don't admit defeat easily as it would be pretty boring. Let me slowly carve the word fear into your bones."

A chill crawled up the man's spine as he realized what Luna meant, what her true intention was, he could only curse his bad luck and suffer endlessly before spitting what he knew, he was just a small fry anyway.

1368 Chapter 1368

The city of Melbourne was built at the base of a rugged mountain and is truly a classic city. Its wonder is matched by the backdrop of snowy mountains which have helped shape the city into what it is today.

The riches these mountains brought were of great importance, but they were also influential when it came to architectural designs as the vast majority of buildings mimic the broad slopes and steep peaks of the mountains.

The skyline is crowded with tall skyscrapers and they seem to be reaching higher and higher each year. Trade is at an all-time high in Melbourne and it has attracted a lot of attention. Many new cultures have left their mark not just on the city's cuisine, but also upon the city's identity. What historically was a city of predictability has grown into a large melting pot and it's this that unites the 700 thousand people to this day.

It's this multicultural identity that has truly left its mark. Hundreds of concession stands, take-outs, and bars offer a plethora of culinary choices, and those who feel hungry for something else can enjoy water sports, musea, tours, or one of the many other recreational venues.

In the slum, in an area not many dare to come, Luna appeared and walked toward a certain tavern, she was dressed in a gray robe with a hood covering her head.

Clik~ Clak~

The sound of her high heels could be heard as she sauntered toward this particular tavern and stopped before it.

From the outside, it looks ugly, broken, and horrible. Softwooden planks and huge, stone beams make up most of the building's outer structure.

It was difficult to see through the small, stained glass windows, but the silence from within could be felt outside.

As Luna pushed and entered the tavern through the worn, wooden door, she was welcomed by the tinkle of the doorbell and thick air.

The bartender was coughing into a dirty napkin and made no effort to acknowledge her presence.

Luna frowned under her hood.

It was as disgusting inside as it is on the outside. Rounded, stone beams support the upper floor and the broken fans attached to them. The walls were decorated with sports memorabilia, though it looks like it hasn't been maintained or cleaned for years.

Luna's golden eyes under the hood took everything in, there were eight people including the bartender and their level was around 105, the strongest was closer to the Demigod realm.

"Indeed it is the right place," Luna mumbled before removing her hood.

Everyone present felt a chill down their spine as they recognized Luna.

"9th Tier Holy Magic: Sanctuary"

Luna activated her sanctuary and the next moment this place turned into hell.

In the meantime elsewhere, night had arrived. I think you should take a look at

In the dark night, one could barely tell where the darkness began and where it ended.

There are silver gems dotting the night sky. The soft glow of the moon also rained down on the imperial city. Like a faint silver sash, the moonlight enveloped the city, particularly a certain house, it was one of Kuina's houses, the one she liked the most.

From the outside, this house looks magnificent. It has been built with white stones and has fire wooden decorations. Large, octagon windows allow enough light to enter the home and have been added to the house in a fairly symmetrical pattern.

The house is equipped with an average kitchen and one small bathroom, it also has a fairly small living room, four bedrooms, a large dining room, a library, and a cozy storage room.

The building is square-shaped. The house is partially surrounded by overgrown wooden overhanging panels on two sides.

The second floor is the same size as the first, which has been built exactly on top of the floor below it. This floor has a slightly different style than the floor below.

The roof is low and triangular and is covered with brown ceramic tiles. Two small chimneys poke out of the center of the roof. Several long, thin windows let in plenty of light to the rooms below the roof.

The house itself is surrounded by grass, a huge tree in the center, and bushes on the borders of the plot.

In the master bedroom was Kuina. The bedroom was just tidy enough to show that she cared about the space and just messy enough to show that she was able to let her creativity roam free. It was her Goldilocks zone, perfect for how she was.

Currently, Kuina was sleeping, she was like a princess in a fairytale waiting for the prince to come wake up.

She was having a dream and in this dream, she was sitting in what seemed to be a meadow. The meadow was a glorious expanse of grass and meadow flowers, grass rustling gently in the breeze. There was a narrow brook flowing through it choked with weeds. Tall water mint with pale lilac flowers, like dozens of tiny bells, was growing at the edge of the brook.

In the near distance stood a little girl, she was dressed in a golden piece princess dress, and the little girl was dancing.

The little girl was like a snapshot of time. she can see her cerulean hair blowing in the spring breeze, her youthful face turned toward the sun. The girl danced, danced like the joy of life within her cannot be tamed. In that one-piece princess dress, she could be anyone, yet no one at the same time.

She had that feeling that to her the little girl was the world itself and without her, she cannot enjoy a simple flower or the rising sun. There was nothing she wouldn't do to keep her safe from harm, but she cannot protect her forever. She can only be there when she falls and stand back while she reaches for the stars.

Yes! She was sure the little girl can, she was her girl after all. She had that sudden feeling and as though to confirm her feeling the little girl turned her head in her direction for the first time since the start, no words can't be used to describe the little girl's beauty, she was like a doll, she had heterochromia eyes, her left eye was golden, strangely this eye remains her of her own and as for her right eye, it was purple a beautiful green eye.

The little girl opened her mouth and said,

"Mom, it's the time to go back, see you soon."

It was like an electric shock passed through her body, she couldn't talk and finally when she was about to speak everything started melting, becoming blurry and before the little girl disappeared she mumbled something and reading her lips movement she was able to comprehend her words,

In reality Kuina snapped her eyes open, finally after many months she woke up.

Her eyes were muddy as she took in her surrounding. A shadow immediately materialized and bowed.

"Welcome back princess, should I call your mother?" The shadow asked.

At the moment Kuina had regained most of her senses shook her head and raised a question instead.

"Where is she?"

"In the garden." The shadow responded before Kuina dismissed her saying she'd go there herself later if she finished taking a bath.

After the shadow vanished Kuina sighed.

"I miss you, my husband." She couldn't hide the longing in her voice. She knew Alex couldn't be here as by now he would be in that place as they planned. Nevertheless, a part of her had hoped he would be by her side when she woke up, how good that would have been.

"Forget it, let's take a bath and go see Mother." Kuina rose to her feet while caressing her tummy, her face when she did this was the epitome of gentleness. If someone were to see the current Kuina they would say she looks like a caring mother proud of her child.

Half of an hour later, Kuina had finished and was already dressed.

Her majestic dress flows from top to bottom and has a semi-sweetheart neckline, which delicately reveals the delicate dress worn below it. The flowing, buttoned-up fabric of her dress covers her stomach where the continuous flow is broken up by a simple leather belt worn quite low around her waist.

Below the leather belt, the dress flows down and hides the dress below. The front of the top dress is shorter at the front and curves outwards, the back continues to flow a fair length behind her and ends in a broad tip.

Her sleeves are incredibly long and a little wide, their flow is broken up below the shoulder where they're divided by thick, modest bands, these are the same fabric and color used to outline the bottom of the dress.

"This is not bad. I feel alive. I miss everyone."

Kuina then leaves the bedroom heading to the garden.

A neatly trimmed plot of grass is surrounded by luscious hedges and climbing plants. A pond's built in the front left of the garden, home to many frogs, bugs, and other creatures. I think you should take a look at

The flower beds are pretty much overgrown, taken over by the other, bigger plants; they're a unique, miniature world. The hedges and climbing plants reach 1m/3ft high, but this is deliberate, as they grow far bigger in the wild. Various stones hint at paths around the garden, almost taking people by the hand in order to show them the best sights. Roots are starting to reclaim even all pieces of land, eager to expand their dominion.

The pond can be admired even from every side of the garden. The flower beds certainly attract attention too, and the hedges and climbing plants make sure they're paid attention to as well, but everything will always be overshadowed by the pond.

The afternoon sunlight dappled through the trees and the flowers onto an attractive duo who were sitting across from each other at a porcelain-white table on the lawn. With a maid waiting on the side, the two took sips from their teacups in a refined manner and engaged in conversation that was every bit as pleasing to their palates as the tea.

It was Kuina's mother and her female attendant. They were talking about important things.

When suddenly Kuina's mother smiled as she felt her daughter's presence. Her female attendant felt it too.

"Congratulation the princess woke up after months in the coma." She said with a smile while at the same time standing to give the mother-daughter pair some space to discuss.

"Greetings princess, glad to see you back."

"I'm happy to see you too Aunt," Kuina responded while staring at the fox lady before her.

Black, long hair tight in a ponytail reveals a fresh, time-worn face. Smart amber eyes, set handsomely within their sockets as she stared lovingly at Kuina.

Camila Foxia is her name, she is Kuina's aunt, the youngest of her mother's sisters.

After Camila left, Kuina sat across from her mother. The two didn't say anything other than simply staring at each other as if it was a staring contest and after what seemed to be an eternity Kuina's mother was the first to break the silence.

A slow smile worked its way across her face and into her eyes.

"I'm glad that you are back my sweetheart." Her mother said before adding.

"I miss you too much my sweetheart."

"I miss you too mother," Kuina responded and a smile of joy and satisfaction lit up her eager face.

Indeed she missed her mother she couldn't deny this truth but the two weren't the type to go too emotional, therefore she moved toward the topic she wished to discuss with her mother, it was why she sought her as soon as she woke up.

Immediately after the smile on Kuina's face faded and her expression became ardent.

Staring straight into her mother's golden eyes which were like the blazing sun, Kuina hesitated for a while before finally opening those scarlet lips and dropping a bomb.

"Mother you know I'm pregnant."

Time seemed to have stopped at those words.
