Chapter 701 - Dragone's City

Leon and Leonardo were shocked by the majestic sight before them. The carriage stopped by a tall wall, around forty meters. Giant dragon statues were in front of the gate, while on a golden plate was carved the words 'Dragone's city'

"Is this some kind of joke?" Leonardo wondered, this city; even before entering it, he was sure that it was majestic. More than any city he ever visited, only the capital Avalon was better than this city. Judged by how heavily this city was guarded and how tall the walls were, it could be mistaken as a fortress.

For a moment, Leon wondered if they were on another floor, it was how majestic this city before them was.

"It's lieutenant Garan, open the door." A voice came from the other side after noticing Garan.

Ga~ Ga~

The door produced a sound upon opening; Garan jumped from the carriage and went somewhere while his second drove the carriage forward. The two prisoners were in awe once they entered the city. Tall buildings everywhere with people walking in the streets. Most of them cast a strange glance on the duo; they sneered upon seeing Leonardo while they frowned upon seeing Leon.

From their reaction, the two inferred that humans were considered less than ants while beastman such as Leon was not really welcomed. The carriage continued until it stopped before in front of a black building. This building was emitting such a vicious aura that it sent a spike of nervousness down their spines. The two exchanged a look seeing worries in them. Both had schedules to respect some goals to complete, but at this rate, they were good as dead. They thought of the only option they had left, which was killing themselves, but they couldn't bring themselves to do that because it would be like they had failed; it was why they chose that option.

Just as they were about to be escorted into the black building, they heard an interesting conversation.

"Have you heard it?"

"Heard what?"

"It has been decided, in two weeks, the prince will marry that lady."

"You mean, the beautiful fox lady? The one with five tails?"

"Yes, it's her. A grand ceremony will be held to celebrate their union. The prince is overjoyed; he could not wait for his father to come back from his expedition at the front line."

This conversation was happening between three ladies passing by.

Leon and Leonardo had a weird look as they were sent into the black building.

'It's her.' They had the same thought; this made them question where they were?

"Is this still the Ares Dungeon?"

"Ares, what?" The guards guiding them to their cells tilted his head in confusion.

Meanwhile, in one of the highest buildings in the city, on the highest floor, stood a young woman. She lay lazily on a couch eating a strawberry while her tails danced behind her. This woman was of extreme beauty, capable of enchanting anyone's soul.

"Hah! Boring. I thought I would play before darling came here, but I'm getting bored. I hope that old man did not lie to me."

The fox lady mumbled; those standing behind her didn't react as though under hypnosis, it was exactly the case. She hypnotized them; the same happened to the so-called prince; while he was indeed strong, a Saint, his mental strength was too weak. Kuina rapidly put him under her control; as for his father coming back in two weeks, it was unlikely because, well, Kuina shook her head and finished the strawberry.

Suddenly, the room darkened; Kuina's expression didn't change as she knew who was the culprit behind this sudden darkness.

"Sera, you are already back?" Kuina asked while taking out another strawberry from the golden cup on the table before her.

Sera sighed upon seeing how lazy Kuina was. The two encountered each other two floors below, after a fierce fight against a strong monster, they almost died it was when an old man showed up and rescued them, he told them to head to this city through a dungeon that acted as a portal to this realm located on the fifteen floors, the name of that dungeon was Area's dungeon. The duo followed the old man's suggestion; they did not have the choice because the strength of this older man was unfathomable; Sera's instinct warned her to comply; the same goes for Kuina, they complied, even eagerly after hearing that Alex's group would be guided here.

While Kuina proposed to take this city, Sera's mission was to assassinate the strongest man in the city who went on the frontline.

"How was your mission?" Kuina sat after seeing Sera's pale complexion.

"I could not because the thing they are fighting I don't believe we two can't kill it. It is four-headed hydra. Even the peak Saint half-dragon could not kill that thing; it was too powerful. On the battlefield, I saw people from the other races joining hands, werewolves and golden harpies, but they were still not winning; they lost too many men. They decided to seal the beast, and even this solution, I'm not sure if it could work."

Kuina frowned, she thought she could take over this city wait for Alex's group before going to the next floor, but things would not go as planned. This left her feeling frustrated.

"I bet the old man sent us here to wait for Alex to defeat that monster in order to retrieve something."

Sera's words made Kuina's eyes widen; she had forgotten that there must be a genuine reason for the old man to choose this floor especially.

"I see. I hope Alex and the others will arrive soon." She said before tilting her head to the side upon seeing Sera smile, which she rarely does.

"What is it?" Kuina asked curiously.

"Well, on my way here, I heard the news that your people caught two males."

Kuina frowned upon hearing Sera say, your people, but she let it pass.

"What strange about it? They were probably caught to be used as a meat shield in the frontline."

"Well, you are not wrong, but it was the identity of those two that caught my attention." Sera declared with a smile.

"Oh?" Kuina became more curious.

"Leon and Leonardo." Sera did not keep Kuina waiting anymore and told her, and as expected, her jaw almost hit the floor at the mention of those two.

"Ehh?!"

At the same time, Alex, Eri, and Eris had entered the fog and were finally closer to Dragone's City.. Maria and the others were experiencing something similar; a big surprise awaited them like the duo.

Chapter 702 - Unexpected Meeting

After walking inside the thick fog for almost an hour, Alex finally arrived before the majestic city of Dragone. They were shocked; they immediately refuted that this was still the Ares Dungeon.

"Maybe, the Ares Dungeon is the portal toward this floor?" Eris speculated; Alex and Eri could only nod their heads sharing the same idea.

"Well, I don't mind appearing on another floor, but this city is tightly guarded. From what my instinct is telling, humans are not welcomed. It has been a few minutes we stood here observing, but no single human could be seen, only half dragon."

Alex's words, the girls double check again, after a few minutes, they could only nod. Eris being a beast woman, possessed sharper senses; her hearing was the strongest between the trio; making use of this, she overheard a conversation going between two guards, she felt their loathing toward the other races, but strangely their prince was about to marry a fox, she was beautiful with five beautiful tails. The moment she heard this, she immediately thought of her friend; it must be her; Eris was sure of this.

Turning around, she recounted what she had heard to the others.

"I see. The fiancée is probably Kuina." Alex said, but for an unknown reason, hearing that Kuina was getting married to another man did not please him. He was uncomfortable that she would be marrying another man while he didn't love her; maybe unconsciously, he had seen her as one of his women. Either way, his current mood was not a pleasant one.

"Knowing her, she must be playing around or was being threatened. If not, she would never do something like this." Unexpectedly Eris said those words.

Relief washed over Alex instantly; his lips couldn't help but curl up.

"It is that so?"

Eri was watching everything from the side; she didn't say a word as she felt like her opinion was unneeded, she might have a low EQ, but she was sensitive enough to know that the current conversation had nothing to do with her.

Meanwhile, Eris was trying to calm Alex as she could, his emotions bubbling even when he was trying to hide how he felt upon hearing news about Kuina. Suddenly, Eris had a strange thought.

'How would he react if one day he learned, I'm getting married to another man? Would his emotions become reckless?'

This thought disappeared as fast it appeared in Eris' mind; she shook her head, trying to hypnotize herself with the thought that it was because of her father's suggestion, and yet this argument could not completely convince the wolf princess; there was something else, something she had yet to acknowledge.

Unknowingly Eris's green eyes were fixed on Alex's handsome face; she remembered everything that happened between them, their first encounter, her brother's death, the words he said to her after returning from the demon's continent. Everything was still vivid inside the princess's mind, as if it happened yesterday. Her gaze softened, her eyes turned misty while her heartbeat accelerated.

Eri became annoyed; she was about to shout, go flirt somewhere else, you assholes, but Alex acted faster.

"Hahaha! I know that I'm handsome, but if you keep staring at me like that, even I can blush, you know?"

Alex's words awoke Eris from her trance, and she immediately rolled her eyes; Eri did the same. The thick-skinned Alex chuckled.

"Joke aside, let's infiltrate the city. I guess by now, the girls must have reached their destination. We must be inside before they come. Like this, it will be easy for them to sneak in."

The two girls nodded their heads. The trio had no way knowing that currently Maria and others were experiencing something similar. Standing before them was another majestic city, not grandiose as Dragone but not too far. The city's name is Wolfgang. What shocked Maria and the others was that just as they arrived, a beautiful carriage left the city escorted by three hundred guards.

"Protect the Priestess until we reach the frontline." The strongest werewolf shouted; he was the head guards.

It was not the most shocking thing; the most shocking thing was the priestess's identity. It was someone they knew, the Holy Daughter of the Holy Crux empire, Cecilia Adelia Crux.

"What the fuck? Isn't it that bitch who is trying to kidnap my sister-in-law Luna?" Gracier couldn't help but swear.

"Kids shouldn't swear." Maria rebuked Gracier before cursing in turn.

"Indeed, it's that bitch. That bitch is up to no good. Let's follow her." Maria aborted their initial mission.

Lilith massaged her temple; she almost shouted, 'You refused that child shouldn't swear yet you are doing exactly what you refused to the other not to do. You two are children in my eyes.'

But she refrained from saying that as she was afraid of being called old lady if she were to say those words.

Having changed their initial plan of killing every single werewolf, but after seeing the majestic city, they knew they could not accomplish their goal; fortunately for them, Cecilia appeared to become their target.

Inside the carriage, Cecilia had no idea of being followed. She was busy thinking of a plan to succeed in her mission. She had lost all hope, but unexpectedly heaven didn't forget her and offered her another opportunity. She appeared in this city by coincidence, and at the same time, she happened to stumble upon an opportunity she could not miss out, an evil spirit was possessing the werewolves creating havoc, as someone from the Holy Crux empire; naturally, she knew a lot of skills effective against the evil spirit. In no time, she killed the evil spirit freeing the werewolf who coincidentally happened to be the crown prince.

The werewolves were grateful; their initial dislike for humans vanished, at least in Cecilia's case w they felt like it was their God that sent her over. She became their priest; it was then she learned about the frontline and Luna's whereabouts. She would use this chance to capture her.

"This time, I will not fail," Cecilia vowed with her fist clenched tightly.

While Maria and others began following Cecilia's carriage wanting to know what she was up to. Alex's group, which had no idea about this, were preparing to sneak into the city, but because the sun was still high, they could not immediately attack. They decided to wait for the night to arrive before acting.

The trio found a quiet place to rest. Alex pretended to be resting while, in fact, he was trying. Although Nyx had shoved in out of her training ground, Alex was not discouraged ; he remembered that there was still Silveria there. He hadn't visited the Illusionnary Battlefield for a long time now.

Immediately after entering the Illusionnary Battlefield, he rushed toward the tall tower in the distance, on the third level.

He restarted the trial from the beginning. He lost all his strength and was back to being a normal mortal. Facing him was his alter ego wielding two knives. The moment the two eyes met, the alter ego rushed toward Alex; arriving before him, he executed a double-cross slash; however, Alex, who had spent thousand years training inside Nyx's space, was not normal even after turning into a normal human. His reaction exceeded that of a normal human; he calmly responded by sliding his knife into his alter ego gap; he couldn't react in time before.

Puff !

Blood sprayed out from his mouth; his eyes widened in disbelief, not believing what had just happened. Alex's knife pierced his neck, with the end of the knife protruding from the other side. The alter ego's body turned limp as he slumped onto the ground before vanishing into light particles that entered Alex's body. Alex felt no real difference, but he was sure that something had changed or there would be no meaning behind setting up such a tower.

Alex walked calmly toward the next floor; he arrived in no time. On this floor, he faced two alter egos, but the result was still the same; armed with his knives he easily dealt with them, killing them in less than twenty minutes. Then he moved to the next floor, where this time, he faced three alter egos. He prevailed, but with difficulty; on the next floor, the difficulty skyrocketed; instead of four, he faced five, and even with his thousand years of training, facing five men with just knives and limited strength, it was proven to be hard. He won but at the cost of one arm, and a wounded body.

"Hah! Hah! I think I should stop for now. I have spent seven days fighting against those five; the most frustrating thing was that they had different type weapons, as though mocking me that I can only use guns and knives." Alex mumbled with a dark face.

"Forget it, let's leave." Alex shook his head and dragged his tired body out of the tower. Next time he would begin from floor six. After waiting for his injuries to heal, Alex departed.. Outside night came; it was time for infiltration.

Chapter 703 - I Lost

Night came, darkness embraced the earth as though wishing to swallow until the city lights chased it away.

Alex's group had chosen this hour to infiltrate the city. Eri would launch a few fireballs in the form of arrows while Eris would do the same thing; she would shoot wind arrows instead. When the two arrows collide, it will create a beautiful firework that momentarily draws the guards' attention; the trio under Alex's vanishing bullet would sneak into the city. They could have chosen to fly above the city wall, but they would be most exposed; even under the vanishing bullet effect, it was unsure if others on the ground could not notice them therefore, the option of sneaking in through the door was the most dangerous one, at the moment the door was being opened to let carriages pass through, this provided the best chance.

Alex exchanged glances with the girls, and they understood what needed to be done immediately. Eri acted by shooting two flame arrows. Eris waited for one second before also shooting; the arrows combined before exploding.

Fii! Boom!

"What is that?"

The guards were startled; they hurriedly looked into the sky, wondering if it was an enemy's attack; all of them looked, even a few people in the city also looked.

The diversion was perfect; Alex, Eri, and Eris sneaked in passed through the carriages nimbly as cats; before entering the city, they immediately found a dark alley and waited.

"Hum?"

"What is it?" A guard asked his companion after noticing he was frowning.

"I just felt like someone just passed me."

"Relax, you must be overthinking. I don't know what they are doing, but these fireworks look beautiful. Maybe our King will come back tomorrow."

"Maybe." The other guard replied, clearly not in the mood like the other guard. His instinct was telling him that the fireworks had nothing to do with their city; someone outside must have intentionally done that; he searched for any presence nearby but found nothing. He could only sigh and focus on guarding the entrance.

'Maybe I'm overthinking.' He thought.

Meanwhile, Leon and Leonardo, who had no idea that someone had just infiltrated the city, leaned against the cold wall. Except for stone beds and a dirty bathroom, there was nothing else in this prison.

"Shit! I want to eat a burger."

Leonardo's voice suddenly echoed through the prison. Leon frowned but said nothing; although he didn't know what burger meant, he was sure that it was some kind of food. To think this man would think of food in a situation like this. How irresponsible.

"What? What with that fac? If you have something to sa,y say it. Worse I'll kill you." Leonardo glared at Leon after he noticed the weird look on his face.

Leon ignored him and continued to think of a plan to escape. He wouldn't put his hope on that fox because he knew how playful she could be. If she knew he was caught, she wouldn't immediately rescue him; she would first play with him before rescuing him. Beside, she must be enjoying herself, she wouldn't have his time, so he better find a solution on his own.

Just as Leonardo was about tease Leon to kill time, they heard the sound of someone knocking on the cell's door.

"Maggots, you have a visitor." One of the guards outside shouted.

"She is here," Leonardo mumbled excitedly while Leon sighed, ready to watch a good show.

The guards opened the door bowed to the visitor before living. The respect in their eyes couldn't be hidden; after all, the other party is the future wife of their prince.

Kuina strolled into the prison, but upon entering, she couldn't help but cover her nose with one of her tails, frowning in disgust.

Leonardo's eyes shone upon seeing that it was the fox, they hadn't seen each other in a while, but her beauty had increased yet again. She had become mature.

"It's good to see you-"

Before Leonardo could finish what he wanted to say, Kuina bypassed him, not taking his taking his hand, and stopped before Leon, who didn't stand up. He was still sitting, but his head was held high as he stared into Kuina's eyes.

For a moment the two said nothing, just staring at each other before Kuina chuckled.

"Oh! My! You look pathetic." She teased.

"Thank you for the compliment. You look gorgeous as usual." Leon responded calmly.

"Good, I want you to say it." Kuina didn't bit around the bush.

Leon sighed; now that it came to this, he didn't really have the choice. Gritting his teeth, he announced.

"I lost, please help me."

Kuina smiled sweetly; it was as if she had taken the sweetest honey. Seeing Leon admit defeat and asking for her help brought her immense joy; it was almost intoxicating; she wished for more situations like this to happen, she would obtain easy victory; who said easy victory is not sweet? It is delightful; it gives you a feeling of joy.

Leonardo just stood there dumbfounded, not understanding what was happening.

Kuina ignored him and took out a notepad and inscribed something on it. The notepad looked extremely old. Upon seeing the old notepad, Leon sighed; he had something similar; they used it to record their victory against each other.

"With this, it makes 205-198, I'm right?" Kuina asked, and Leon nodded with a pained face.

If previously he did not understand what was going on, from what they said right now, Leonardo finally understood.

"You must be fucking kidding me."

Kuina ignored him and closed her notepad, and stored it away.

"Guard!" She shouted, and a guard came running in; he immediately kneeled.

"Your order, mistress." The guard said without lifting his head.

"I will bring this one with me. He is robust; he will be good at doing physical labor."

"As you wish, mistress." The guard nodded, Leon's face darkened, but he said nothing.

"What about me?" Leonardo asked, seeing that things were going as he expected.

Kuina only gave him a passing glance before leaving with Leon.

Chapter 704 - Never Mess With A Fox

Leonardo stood there dumbfounded. He had imagined many scenarios after hearing about Kuina; despite not being sure if it was truly her, he still pinned his hope that it must be the fox lady he knew. Then he just had to wait, he was not conceited enough to think she would come for him, but he was certain that after hearing that there was a lion beastman caught as a prisoner, she would visit them. He would then be taken away together with Leon, but currently, it was not what happened. In none of the scenarios he was left behind, he thought they would be able to put their feud behind them and work together in a foreign land, normally it was should have happened.

Unable to take it anymore, Leonardo shouted.

"Kuina, what are you doing? Weren't from the same world? I'm your ally, but now you forsook me."

Kuina, who was walking toward the exit, stopped; Leonardo was overjoyed while Leon massaged his temple, thinking what a fool.

There was one reason why Leonardo shouted those words; it was to force Kuina to help him; he was not going to sit and let her only save Leon. If the guards hear his words, Kuina would have no other choice but to save him. While he didn't know the real reason for her to end up as the prince's future wife, she wouldn't want anything to tarnish her reputation.

While from Leonardo's point of view, his strategy seemed brilliant, it was nothing but a foolish thought; he had forgotten who he was dealing with. To his horror, the guards didn't even turn in his direction, nor did they look at Kuina with strange gazes. It was then Leonardo remembered what kind of magic Kuina was good at, illusion magic.

"Shit!"

Immediately upon realizing this truth, Leonardo swore she had them wrapped under her palms; maybe that prince, even the higher-ups were already under her control. Just this thought sent shivers down his spine; he shuddered and unconsciously stepped back.

Kuina slowly turned her face in his direction and smiled, a smile so beautiful that it was blossoming like a brilliant flower in bloom.

The guards were smitten; Leon sighed while Leonardo felt a chill run down his back. He dared not to look into Kuina's eyes, lowering his eyes. A grown man lowered his eyes like a child that done something bad and was afraid of being beaten.

"Guard," Kuina called out, and the head guards responded.

"Yes, mistress"

"Don't feed this human for three days and throw him in the isolation cell," Kuina ordered with a sweet smile.

"Certainly, my lady." the head guards responded before ordering his subordinates to move Leonardo out of his cell. In the blink of an eye, he disappeared, Leonardo's last words were.

"I'm going to kill you."

"Feel free to try," Kuina responded before leaving the black building.

Outside, Leon breathed in a fresh air before asking.

"Why did you do that?"

Leon did not believe that Kuina did that out of enmity with Leonardo; to begin with, there was no enmity between them unless...

"You will know soon," Kuina responded, not adding anything more, however to Leon, those words were more than enough to arrive at a certain conclusion.

"He is coming, isn't he?"

The face of a certain handsome man flashed through his mind, the face of his friend.

Kuina giggled, not answering; instead, she dropped another hint.

"Let's hurry up; she must have finished by now."

Leon said nothing but concluded that it was not only her who was here; there was another girl beside her, Alex's acquaintance, as for whom it was, he could not say, but there was no need to heat his brain as soon he would know anyway. Silently Leon followed Kuina; whenever they passed someone, gender didn't matter; they would bow, showing respect to Kuina. Once again, Leon was reminded that this girl was dangerous; better not mess up with her. He could only pray his dear friend whose luck was good with women to manage to subdue this dangerous fox; endless benefits were awaiting him if he were to succeed, as for him he had never once considered making Kuina his woman, they were incompatible, being friends, rivals was enough. He would leave the troublesome woman to his friend; he was a good friend after all.

At the same time, in another location, Alex, who had no idea that his good friend was pushing Kuina inside his arms, was slowly moving in the shadow; behind him were Eri and Eris silently following him.

Just then, Alex's sixth vanishing bullet happened to lose its effect; Eri was about to ask him to produce another one when she felt extreme danger.

Alex was faster; he pushed them to the side and blocked a deadly sword aimed at them.

Clangs!

Although he managed to block the blow, Alex was pushed a couple of steps. Alex disappeared, not giving the other the time to dodge as he executed a knife dance; just in a second, dozen of phantom knives surrounded the person in black, and yet she nimbly dodged all the phantom knives.

"What are you doing, Sera?" Alex stored his knives away and asked the masked figure before him.

Removing her mask, her beautiful brown hair fell on her shoulders as her brown eyes zeroed on Alex; both stared at each other for a moment before she opened her mouth and said.

"It's good to see you."

"Indeed, I'm happy to see you, Sera; I missed you."

Alex became emotional; he indeed missed her a lot.

Sera said nothing but disappeared, and the next moment she was hugging Alex; he was surprised at first but soon reciprocated; they hugged each other for a few seconds before getting separated.

"Girls, it's good to see you too." Sera waved at the girls who joined the two together the group left. They took a secret passage to arrive before a tall building.

"So, it is her?" Eris couldn't help but ask, knowing she would see her friend.

"Yes, you will see her soon. As always, she did whatever she wanted.." Sera sighed and brought the group up.

Chapter 705 - Toward The Frontline

Sera brought Alex and the girls to the highest floor, where Kuina was waiting on the sofa.

"Welcome back!" Kuina greeted them the moment they walked in.

Alex and Eris smiled and greeted her back.

"It's good to see you, Kuina."

Only Eri stood there dumbfounded; this woman had changed yet again; it was not only because Kuina was more beautiful than her exuding mature charm but also because she gave her feeling of danger. Eri felt a single misstep would result in her losing very badly. Therefore Eri was wary of this fox lady. She didn't like her in the past, but this feeling intensified now that Kuina had grown stronger; Eri couldn't see through her at all, making the redhead frown deeply.

"Eri, I hope you are fine; it's good to see you too."

Finally, Kuina said a few words to Eri, who harrumphed, not saying anything.

Kuina only chuckled; seeing Eri's reaction, she teased her.

"You have grown up, physically and on a level. It's a pity that area is still undeveloped."

Alex frowned and glared at Kuina to tell her not to stir up trouble; however, Kuina stuck out her tongue before falling silent.

On the other side, Eri, who had secretly vowed not to lose her composure, couldn't keep after Kuina's merciless words; those words stabbed where it hurts the most.

Just as she was about to burst, Eri unexpectedly managed to reign in her emotions; taking a deep breath, she calmed down.

Eri's reaction was beyond everyone's expectation, Kuina even more, she felt defeated, she couldn't only sigh after shaking her head.

Suddenly, Alex's voice rang out, allowing her to relieve some stress.

"Where is your future husband?" Alex asked with a smile yet not a smile. Eris and Sera exchanged a look but said nothing.

Meanwhile, Kuina laughed upon hearing Alex's question; she could feel a bit of jealousy mixed in Alex's voice; she was elated, she decided to tease him with her next question.

"He is a busy man. Why do you ask? Are you perhaps jealous?"

She expected Alex to deny this fact; the usual Alex would have done that. There was no way he would admit that he was jealous because admitting it would be equivalent to admitting that he held some feeling toward the fox lady. Everyone except Eri thought it would happen until Alex opened his mouth and said.

"Yes, I'm jealous. I'm going to make you mine."

Silence, extreme silence.

Kuina was so shocked that her jaw nearly fell onto the ground; she had expected many things but not this kind of response; she was completely caught off guard. The same goes for Sera and Eris, the former thought that Alex was indeed a womanizer while the latter was jealous of Kuina.

The reason why Sera wasn't jealous was that she had faith in herself; she was the first woman Alex decided to go after; other girls might have gained a head start, she was not really afraid. There is a saying that vengeance is the best dish served cold; Sera believed that love was the best dish when gradually built. Once she officially became Alex's woman, she would have a solid foothold, a solid foundation than most women in the harem; it was sincerely what she believed.

Sera may not talk most of the time and remain as an observer, but deep down, she was a calculative woman; assassins are calculative beings, to begin with, be it is on the battlefield, on a mission, or in love, you better be calculative.

Unaware of all of this, Alex chuckled, seeing Kuina's reaction; it was priceless. Women like Kuina loved to control everything, and they rarely lost composure, so seeing her losing composure after his response, Alex couldn't help but praise himself. What he said was no joke; he became conscious of this woman; he didn't want to let another woman have it; he would make her his.

While in a normal situation, most males would have said, you are mine; Alex didn't say that because Kuina was not a property, she was not his woman yet. It would be arrogance saying otherwise.

"Fufufufu!"

Suddenly, Kuina, who had managed to control her emotions, burst into laughter; she laughed for a while before admitting that Alex got her good.

"You got me good. Okay, I'm looking forward to how you will subdue me in the future; know that I will not be easy."

"Don't worry, I will succeed. I'm already in your heart. I to completely make you fall for me while I learn to love you."

Alex's reply was like a bolt of lightning striking Kuina's mind; she trembled many. Remembering something, she shook her head.

When a woman was curious about a man, it was only a matter of time before she fell in love with that man.

Just as Kuina was about to say something, she felt a human-looking arrow shoot toward Alex at extreme speed.

Alex didn't even look back before throwing a punch above his head; his punch was powerful, forcing the surrounding space to vibrate.

BANG!

When two fists collided, it generated a small explosion whose shockwaves sent both men staggering on their feet.

"Hahahaha! As usual, your body is tough, more than Beastmen. I wonder how it became like this?"

Alex ignored Leon's question before giving him a bear hug.

"It's good to meet my friend after so long."

"Yeah! It is good to see you too, Alex." Leon responded; after getting separated from Alex, he sat beside him while his gaze swept on the others, momentarily stopping on Eri before moving.

"There is your classmate, Leonardo, in a cell. We got caught together until Kuina rescued me." Leon explained, his voice as he said those words sounded bitter, and Alex was smart enough not to probe.

Upon hearing that Leonardo was here, Alex's eyes turned complicated but only for a moment before he declared.

"Let's wait to see how we can use him."

The room turned silent again, except for Eri and Eris, who had no idea what was going on, Kuina, Sera and Leon exchanged looks; it was unknown what they were thinking. Alex acted as though he hadn't seen the weird look they gave him.

To change the subject, he said.

"I heard about something called the frontline. Can you tell me more about it?"

As he was saying those words, his eyes were locked on Sera, who among them was more fit for collecting information if it was not her, a top-level assassin?

Sera sighed before recounting what happened, and after hearing the whole story, the frontline, the hydra aside, the old man that suggested them to head into the Ares Dungeon was probably the same old man he encountered in the unusual realm. This could mean only one thing; their expedition was about to come to an end, the reason why he came to Exodus into this tower would be revealed soon.

Instead of being elated, Alex frowned deeply; the feeling of dancing under someone else tune doesn't leave a good aftertaste in his mouth, but currently, there was nothing he could do apart from submitting. In the grand scheme of things, he was nothing, at least not now; one day, he would become the one that decides everything, the chess player with his own rules but for better lay low and continue to use the plot armors those in the background were sending him.

"So, to leave this floor, we must join other forces on the frontline and kill or seal that beast?"

Leon asked to be sure if anyone shared the same thought as him.

"Well, it's exactly what we will do. However, I don't know if the other party would welcome us. We have been guided here." Alex said.

Leon nodded, thinking that Alex did make sense.

"Where are Maria and the others?" Leon could not help but ask this after remembering the girls.

"Maria, Gracier, and Lilith are on another mission while I don't know where Luna is. I sent one of my subordinates together with Alice search her and you; however, I have encountered you, guess they would search for her." Alex explained.

Upon hearing that Maria was nearby, Kuina's complexion changed; she and Maria were like fire and oil. They dislike each other for no reason, it was just instinctual, but now that Alex openly declared he would be going after her, the conflict would escalate, so Kuina believed. She had no idea knowing that since a long time ago, Maria had already known that she would end up becoming Alex's woman, if not because of that, she would have never left Kuina to attend the gathering where they discussed Alex's harem, it was just that Maria wouldn't have expected to be this soon.

"Let's rest for today and depart toward the frontline tomorrow with Leonardo shackled. At least he could serve as a meat shield." Alex said before disappearing.

His words were merciless, but no one said anything; only Eri was curious about what kind of hatred was between them for things to grow to this extent? In the past, it was not like this.. Shaking her head, Eri also left, leaving the others to discuss among themselves.

Chapter 706 - On The Frontline

The following morning, the sun rose, announcing the start of a new day.

Alex woke up faster than the other; he did his morning exercise before eating breakfast together with the others. Just as they were about to finish, a young man barged in. His eyes were filled with panic but finally calmed down as his eyes settled on Kuina's figure.

No introduction was needed for Alex and the others to immediately identify this young man as the prince, the so-called Kuina's future husband.

"My life, it's good that you are fine." The young man mumbled with a passionate smile.

"Puff!"

Alex couldn't help spat the juice he was drinking; he felt goosebumps rose all over his body; he was not the only one, though; Leon and the girls, except for Kuina and Sera, were speechless, unable to close their mouth for a long time.

Kuina was used to this; she waved her hand as though chasing away an annoying fly.

"Raven, go back and prepare; we will set off in two hours. We must assist father in law."

"Certainly, I will follow your arrangements; I will protect you with my life." Raven declared with his chest held high; without appraising him, Alex was sure he was Saint Realm expert but a sheltered Saint Realm expert.

'Well, he is totally under her control.' Alex thought while watching Raven leave. Since the moment he appeared, his eyes were only on Kuina; those who were together with her didn't count, weren't worthy of his attention.

Two hours later, the group had departed from Dragone's City toward the frontline. The frontline was a hundred kilometers from the city. With their fast carriages, they arrived in less than 3 hours.

The moment they arrived, the sun was high in the sky; normally, this period of the year could be considered summer; however, the temperature was chilling, and even before passing through the mountain range, the sound of weapons clashing could be heard, followed by monster's howl. The ground was shaking.

Suddenly, the group said the sky above the tallest mountain darkening before bolts of black lightning descended from the sky and rained down on the ground.

Zizi! Zizi! KABOOOOOM!

Those bolts of black lightning were so powerful that the mountain facing the group began showing signs of breaking apart.

Alex exchanged a look with Leon, both of them could see the tension inside their eyes; they were at the other edge of the frontline, and yet they could feel how dangerous the frontline was, at the same time, this made curious, curious how strong that monster was to be able to create such a scene, to know the answer there was a need to go over there.

"Let's go." Alex declared before kicking the ground jumping into the sky, bringing Leonardo with him.

"At least remove the mana shackles first," Leonardo complained, but Alex ignored him. By jumping from tree to tree Alex rapidly climbed up the mountain before jumping down.

While free-falling, he could this opportunity to check the frontline; as expected, the battlefield was still far; he thought after jumping from the mountain, he would directly arrive on frontline, but he would first walk past the dead forest.

Soon the others joined him together; they passed through the dead forest where occasionally they would encounter monsters, but they easily killed those monsters until they arrived at the frontline.

Only one word could describe what the group saw, massacre, absolute massacre. A group of half-dragons mixed with harpy and werewolves fighting desperately against a monster that could only be described as huge, over 30 meters, possessing five heads, each head was capable of emitting different elements, ice, water, fire, lightning, and poison.

Thousands of dead bodies littered the ground; some corpses had complete bodies while some did not, some had been turned into nothing but bones, the scene could be called hell.

The remaining survivors didn't even reach a thousand. When Alex's group arrived, they drew the monster's attention, but the monster soon shifted its gaze on the small dragon spitting fire on him.

"Father!" Raven cried out the moment he saw this small dragon; his voice was loud; naturally, it reached the small dragon's ears; the latter paused because the owner of this voice shouldn't have been here.

"You fool!" Alex shouted, slapping Raven flying. The latter couldn't understand why he got slapped, but when he was about to say something, he saw a scene he would never forget until his death.

Because of his earliest action, his father got distracted, and in a fight, it was a terrible mistake; this pause gave the five-headed head to free its body from the twelve meters long werewolf and bite the small dragon to death, the latter noticed his mistake when it was already too late, his body was torn

The sky rumbled as a mighty aura descended upon everything trying to force them to kneel; those weak-willed were forced to kneel, breaking their kneecaps in the process.

Alex and the others resisted with all their might; it was when they saw the werewolf pointing at the area behind the Hydra there was the remnant of a big temple, black lightning bolts crackled above the temple while it emitted a terrific aura.

The moment Alex led his eyes on this temple, even though it was still pretty far away, something changed within him; he heard a call, his blood began to boil so violently that his heartbeat accelerated.

Ba-dump! Ba-dump! Ba-dump!

[[So this the final destination?]]

Unexpectedly Silveria's voice echoed inside Alex's mind, but he was not in the mood to answer; the moment he saw that temple, he understood what he must do, he must acquire whatever was inside but to do that, he first must kill a monster thousands failed to kill, a demigod existence, a monster beyond anything he had faced until now, nevertheless the black prince was smiling, a crazy smile.

"You must have gone nut. I'm leaving-" Leonardo had not finished his words before feeling a cold sensation on his neck.

"I dare you to leave without doing what have been assigned to you." Sera's cold voice reached his ears.

Unprecedented feelings of fear arose and Leonardo felt his scalp blistering. He had goosebumps all over his body. He had never faced this girl before; therefore, he was unaware of how scary Sera could be; today was his first time experiencing Sera's murderous aura. There was only one thing he had in mind. 'Better not mess with this woman; she is the second most dangerous woman I ever faced.'

The first one would be Incursio; if Sera knew she had received such high praise, she would be happy.

Meanwhile, Eri, Eris, Kuina had readied their respective weapons, ready to fight, when suddenly there was a blinding light forcing them to close their eyes for a second. The next moment they were shocked by what they saw; hundreds of strong monsters appeared in front of the hydra; she was like their queen, those monsters glared at Alex's group before charging toward them.

"Attack!" Kuina shouted before charging toward the monster; the others except Alex followed her. Leon was secretly shocked because Kuina immediately summoned her Gift, and soon the sound of a bell ringing echoed through the battlefield. For an unknown reason, Eri, Leonardo, Sera, and the remaining survivors felt immense strength w they felt like they could fight for three days and three nights without rest.

Meanwhile, Alex observed everything from the back; he couldn't help but praise Kuina's gift, to think it would have such an effect, increasing allies' morale and stamina, what a great support skill.

The reason why Alex didn't join them was that his opponent was the big monster; the big werewolf was going to sacrifice his life with an ultimate skill while Silveria gave him a suggestion.

Boom! Boom! Boom!

The battlefield was filled with the sound of multiple explosions, but Alex stood at the back motionless; in reality, he traveled to Nyx's world. At first, he couldn't enter, but finally, Nyx let him in.

Alex immediately appeared in a black room; the only thing present in this room was a black throne on which Nyx was chained; seeing this, Alex's face contorted in anger, he wished to tear apart those damn black chains immediately but knew that he couldn't help given his current strength.

Two pairs of beautiful ice-blue eyes lock onto Alex making him freeze; the pressure coming from the frail girl was ten times that of the five-headed hydra with full power. Alex couldn't help but wonder how strong Nyx was in the past? An answer he would not know in a long time.

"I know what you want to do. I can't stop you." Nyx's cold voice brought Alex back to reality.

He smiled; he was not surprised that Nyx knew what they were about to do. Those black chains restraining Nyx's body could be considered magic chains; while he was unable to erase them, he could temporarily seal them using erase; this would have Nyx for a minute, thus making it possible for Alex to use the black. It was a gamble but judging from Nyx's reaction; it was worth trying.

Alex didn't hesitate; he immediately summoned the silver gun; the moment the silver gun appeared, the black chains seemed to have sensed something, their numbers immediately increased.

Nyx's face was unchanging, even with several chains increasing and squeezing her body tightly. Alex's eyes turned cold, pushing all his mana into the silver gun, a beautiful silver bullet was created.

Click! BANG!

The beautiful silver bullet left the muzzle spinning at extreme speed; time seemed to have stopped, the black chain's number increased, seemingly afraid of this silver bullet.

The silver bullet arrived before the black chains and,

Bam! Boom!

The sound of something cracking apart followed after the explosion; those black chains were cracking, it started with a small fixture, but soon it grew larger until all the black chains broke apart, setting Nyx.

She stood up; the moment she did, the pressure Alex was feeling increased twofold, making him almost kneel; if not because Nyx happened to control her power, he would have kneeled.

"Let's go," Nyx called out; she knew she had a best one or two minutes of freedom, but it was more than enough.

Back in the real world, not even a minute had passed since Alex's immersion, when suddenly there was a huge explosion coming from Alex's body, causing everyone's eyes to fall on him. They witnessed black light bursting from his body; a chill ran down everyone's spine.. The hydra eyes narrowed dangerously; she understood that she must get rid of this human or else endless trouble awaited her.

Chapter 708 - The Death Gun's Reappearance

Inside the temple, a fierce fight was taking place; Luna's group was fighting against a group of werewolves, the fight was fierce.

Suddenly, another group of werewolves arrived from behind, making Luna's group feel immense pressure; just as Luna thought about what to do, Maria's group barged in.

"It's Cecilia's doing," Maria informed Luna after entering.

Luna's eyes turned cold; she became merciless; she would not forgive her.

Outside of the temple, the fight was raging.

The hydra understood that she must kill Alex if not endless trouble awaited her; she must finish these bugs and go into that temple.

"This man is a fucking freak," Leonardo commented while dodging an attack coming toward his head.

One of the hydra's tails moved in Alex's direction; it was extremely fast, not giving the latter not time to completely dodge.

Bang!

A loud explosion rang in the air as Alex was swatted away by that tail. Alex flipped in the air and nearly lost his footing when he landed. The gun, his hand was still buzzing from the impact, and his arm was numb!

If not at the last moment he fired a bullet after slowing down the tail using his time ability, he would have suffered a grievous wound.

BOOM!

Because of a moment of distraction, the hydra momentarily let go of the werewolf, the big werewolf blew himself up to deal serious damage to the monster. Still, all he did was leave a small wound that began regenerating almost immediately.

Meanwhile, Alex drank a mana recovery potion and checked his status.

Suddenly, Alex accel-ed dodging a deadly poison shot by the hydra, she immediately attacked with another head breathing crimson flame where Alex's appeared.

"Erase!"

Alex did not hesitate and fired a silver bullet at the incoming crimson flame; it was immediately erased.

Not expecting something like that, the hydra paused momentarily. Alex used this opportunity to use Time Annihilation Bullet.

One of the hydra's heads was gone, and she couldn't regenerate it this time.

"Roarrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrr!"

The hydra lifted her remaining heads to roar toward heaven.

BOOOOM! BOOOOM! BOOOOM!

Alex and the others were forced to cover their ears to protect them from exploding.

The hydra wanted to use this opportunity to attack Alex. Still, suddenly out of nowhere, unprecedented feelings of fear arose inside her core, and the hydra had goosebumps all over her body. It was a kind of primal fear engraved deep within its soul.

Alex had summoned the black gun; it was this black gun giving the hydra the scare of her life; she was not the only one feeling afraid; even Alex's allies were feeling it too. They couldn't understand why a gift could possess such pressure.

Finally, the hydra managed to overcome her fear; she opened all her jaws and roared; this time, her roar would cause a lot of damage; unfortunately, Alex would not let her have things her way.

"Golden Hour Five Seconds Time Stop!"

Alex accel-ed before the hydra and stopped time. Although time had stopped, the hydra was still struggling to break free from time's restraints with her enormous strength.

Alex knew he must hurry. He was already talking with Nyx.

'Nyx, who many levels do I need to sacrifice?'

『120 levels』 She responded calmly, and Alex was shocked not because of the amount of level needed but because he had expected to lose all his levels to be able to kill the hydra, but after hearing Nyx's reply, not all his levels would be sacrificed.

Just after Nyx was done talking, Silveria said next.

『It's a good thing you succeeded in freeing my sister; once you kill this monster, not only will you recover your lost levels, but they will increase further, getting you closer to the Demi-God level and you better hurry up your women are in danger.』

'What do you mean?' Alex immediately fired a question at her; he didn't panic because, judging from Silveria's words, they must still some time before those she spoke of would be in real danger.

『Luna and Maria are inside the temple fighting that Holy Daughter.』 Silveria did not dare to hide anything and told Alex everything. Even if she did not, Nyx would have told Alex everything soon.

'I see.' Alex said, but inwardly he was quite shocked; he didn't expect Luna to be this closer; it meant that Noire and Alice would have traveled for nothing. As for Cecilia fighting against them, he was not too much worried as Lilith, Gracier, and Maria were together with Luna; whatever Cecilia might be scheming, it would be hard for her to complete her goal; besides, he would be joining them as soon he was done here.

Having decided what to do, Alex immediately aimed the black gun toward the hydra. The latter happened to break free. The feeling of fear the hydra previously felt intensified; she knew she was going to die if she did nothing.

Alex also understood what the hydra wanted to do, but he would not let her escape; well, she couldn't escape anyway.

Chapter 709 - Almost..

The hydra was at her wits' end when suddenly she remembered something. Because Alex could be seen as their leader judging by the way the others were looking at him, she could use this against him but first, to do this, she must clean up the remnants of her previous enemies, meaning the surviving werewolves and harpies. Who knows, Alex might stop attacking to save them; humans are compassionate creatures, to begin with.

The Hydra controlled the remaining monsters like a heavenly maiden scattering blossoms. In just a blink of an eye, she took out several survivors. It was as though a flood had just washed over the area.

The sound of people screaming rang in the air.

The remaining survivors retreated further away with pale faces; however, the monsters under the hydra control were more coordinated stronger; they pressed the survivors forward, killing more and more.

Leon and the others did their best to kill more monsters faster to alleviate the pressure the survivors were feeling. Meanwhile, the hydra observed Alex's reaction, thinking maybe he would stop; unfortunately, his appearance remained the same. His expression was unchanging, as if those dying had nothing to do with him; his face didn't even twitch for a second. He wielded the silver in his left hand while the black gun was in his right hand, aiming at the hydra.

Not to drag things further, Alex declared.

"The end!"

It was like a heavenly decree; the moment the hydra heard those words, she did not doubt that she would die if she spent one second more here. Therefore the monster did one thing she had never done since hundred years; she fell onto this floor after losing a battle against another divine beast's child, flee.

Four pairs of wings sprouted on the gigantic hydra back as she took the sky; it was at that moment a gunshot rang out on the battlefield.

BANG!

Alex's felt strength draining away from his body the moment the gunshot rang out; if he had not waited for a while to recover a bit of stamina as he didn't possess any more stamina recovery potion, Alex was sure he would have lost consciousness the moment he tried to unleash the death bullet.

The black bullet tore through the air; the sky rumbled before darkening it was like an eclipse day, the hydra was a hundred meters away, just as she was about to flap her enormous wings again she froze, it was unknown since when but the black bullet had already arrived before her and penetrated her chest, its speed was akin to teleportation.

The hydra's body remained standing in the air as though someone had pushed on the pause button before it shot downward like a meteor.

BAM! Kabooooom!

The dead hydra body created a giant crater upon landing ground, flattening a small mountain. The summoned monsters died one after another.

Silence permeated the battlefield.

Alex staggered back, almost falling, but suddenly his body became frozen. A huge amount of energy was gathering around him before entering his body through his seven orifices; he was like a huge vortex swallowing the nearby energy.

Finally, Leon and others regained their calm and were shocked by the phenomenon happening; they could see Alex in the middle of a huge vortex made of energy. It was their first time seeing this, so they could not understand what was happening.

Fortunately, there were still some people who knew what this phenomenon meant.

"He is gathering the world energy to step into the Demigod realm." One of the survivors, a beautiful harpy, explained.

"Eh?" Eris and Eri were shocked upon hearing this; their jaws almost fell onto the ground. Leon was also shocked, but he managed to keep his composure while Kuina and Sera exchanged a look, trying to conceal the shock they felt. If the harpy words were true, then the gap between them had widened once again, and this time, it was too big.

The most shocked of all was none other than Leonardo; he closed and opened his mouth repeatedly, unable to form any word, complicated emotions swirled his heart. For a long moment, he could not think of anything; in the end, he could only sigh and close his eyes; nobody knew what he was thinking about.

Meanwhile, Alex at the center of the vortex kept swallowing energy; he was like a bottomless pit.

"Huh?!"

Suddenly, the same harpy that explained what Alex was going through frowned.

"What is it? Is there any problem?" Sera asked worriedly.

The harpy didn't immediately answer; she observed Alex for a moment before saying.

"He is almost there, but it seems that he is missing something."

Just after she said those words, an explosion sent them flying. Fortunately, none of them was weak; they quickly controlled their body to land safely.

When the group looked at the front, they saw a floating Alex; the current Alex seemed majestic, dressed in black clothes, two weapons floating beside him, the death guns. The silver gun emitted majesty while the black gun emitted chillness, absolute chillness. Nobody could stare two seconds straight at the black weapon for fear of losing their soul; it was dangerous the black weapon was.

Suddenly, for a second, an avatar of Alex appeared behind him; this avatar was fifteen meters tall, clad in red and black; there was a spinning wheel behind him, he held two giant guns, the black and silver guns.

Everyone present felt the fine hairs on their back stand on end. Even though he only appeared for a second, the feeling he made them feel was unforgivable; Leonardo was the one that suffered the most; Alex's avatar eyes locked onto him; in that instant, he was forced to kneel, he felt tremendous pressure. He almost choked on his breath. He'd sensed a sudden spike of alarm, afraid that the avatar might kill him for real; fortunately, nothing happened; he breathed in a sigh of relief. His palms were drenched in sweat.

Finally, Alex descended onto the ground; he was not completely happy.

"Sigh! Almost there."

Chapter 710 - Unsealing 1

Alex was too happy because he was only missing a level to truly step into that realm.

"Status." He called out.

[Mana Convergence : Ability to convert mana into a different types of bullets.

Cost: 500 MP

Available elements: Ice, Flame, Water, Wind, Lightning, Void.

Additional mana cost might be needed depending on the type of element used.]

Alex was pleasantly surprised because with this ability meant there was no need to kill rare species in order to acquire special bullets. As for why he had access to so many elements, it probably because of the girl, the ice element must be because of Maria, flame element because of his contract with his sister, the water element because of Luna, Sakuya for the wind element, the lightning element because of Artemia and lastly the Void element because of Noire. Either way, he was happy to acquire this ability; he was one step closer to his goal with this overpowered skill.

Alex took a deep breath to calm down his excitation before looking at his friends and Leonardo; the latter did not dare to look at him in the eyes; somehow, his body was trembling; Alex chuckled upon seeing this. He had no idea that it was his avatar that scared the shit out of Leonardo.

"Gather beside me!" Alex ordered, and they followed his order and gathered around him; after bowing to the survivors, Alex used void steps. Now that he was a quasi demigod, he could take a lot of people with him while traveling through the void, especially when it was on short distance.

As they were traveling through the void, Alex spread his Divine Sens; it covered a radius of two kilometers. He was able to see what was happening inside the temple; the temple was wide, extremely wide, weapon clashing against weapon could be heard, Luna, Gracier, Maria and Lilith were injured, the enemies seemed endless, Cecilia was also injured, two strong werewolves stood beside him, one of them was demigod level. Alex was curious how she managed to make such being work for her.

But now wasn't the time that Demigod was about to make a move, the only one that could temporarily fight him was Lilith, but currently, she was fighting against two other enemies.

Alex's face turned cold, and he decided that no matter what would happen, he would personally kill that woman; she was too dangerous. Previously she didn't give him any reason to kill her, but now he had a perfect reason to go after her life.

"Once we arrive, you will immediately assist Luna and the others," Alex ordered, and the others nodded, only Leonardo seemed reluctant, but Alex glared at him.

"If you don't wish to die, do as I say." Alex's voice was so cold that everyone felt a shiver run their spines. Although Leonardo wished to rebel, he knew he was at a disadvantage; if everyone present were to gang up on him, he would die without knowing how so he could only swallow his grievance; he secretly vowed to make them pay.

Alex's group arrived when the demigod was about to make a move.

The temple turned silent, ignoring this, Alex ordered.

"Go!"

"Alex?" Luna was shocked; Maria smiled; Gracier was overjoyed while Cecilia frowned; she seemed to be thinking about something.

"Go Wolf king, he is the heretic king, kill him." Cecilia's voice was cold as she said those words.

The Demi-God nodded; he had just stepped into the Demigod realm; thanks to Cecilia's assistance, it was why he would listen to her command coupled with the fact that she was their priestess.

The wolf king was, in fact, the previous wolf king's son; he inherited his father's title upon his death.

The wolf king exhaled slowly.

He doesn't know why but Alex was giving him a dangerous feeling of power; one thing was sure, Alex isn't someone he could take lightly.

If he didn't go all out, dying was a genuine possibility.

He must use his full power!

Slap!

The Wolf King clapped his hands, and he unleashed a wave of miasma.

Roarr

The wolf King howled as he roared reverberated throughout the temple. It sounded like thousands upon thousands of wolves howling at the same time. The aura came crashing down upon Alex in dust and shockwaves.

The soundwave ruptured the ground. It clipped the boulders near the temple's walls. Everything turned to dust when struck by this attack.

A demigod's power was terrifying.

If Alex were in Rank 13, he would have been reduced to dust, just like the boulders around him.

But he was almost demigod himself; he was unfazed by this sound attack. A silver gun appeared in his left hand, and he fired a bullet; nobody saw anything.

Bang!

Only the sound of a gunshot rang out inside the temple.

The soundwave stopped mid-air. It was like time itself got halted. Then, the wave disappeared without a trace.

The wolf king's eyes almost popped out of their sockets; he couldn't believe what just happened; if he had not seen it himself, he would have said it was a lie.
