891 Chapter 891

After their little exercise, Alex sat on a chair while the girls, Maria and Sakuya, were sleeping.

Some might complain that lately, he does nothing but indulge in sex; At the same time, this assumption was not wrong; there was another reason besides simply enjoying himself, making his women unable to live without him. That reason was because of his unique ability. He was trying to see if he could increase the synchronization rates of his women by having a lot of sex with them. This might sound ridiculous, but it was the only solution he could think of at the moment.

Now it was time to see if his little experience worked.

Taking a deep breath, his face filled with hope, he called out his status window.

"Eh?" Alex was surprised that new names were added.

"What the hell why there is also Incursio in this list?" He mumbled, facing something he didn't expect.

〔What? How could how names are put into the list as we have never copulated with master, nor are we planning to do that. I don't understand. Your unique ability is retard above being a perverted ability.
〕 Silveria began throwing tantrums when she found their name on the list.

Alex rolled his eyes at her antics; for the safety of his mind, he refused to retort.

Like her, he wished to know more about this unique ability. He was curious about the conditions to be put on that list; for example, Saeko was not on the list. For example, his sister was not on the list previously, but now she was in, and she had the highest synchronization rate.

Alex was totally helpless to increase the synchro rate besides his perverted method, which seemed to have worked as Maria, Sakuya, Luna, Artemia, and Sera's synchro rates increased after their sessions. However, he had the feeling that sex was not the only thing that made their synchro rates increase; maybe it was their feelings toward him that increased. This should explain his sister's synchro percentage.

〔Take it slow; you will eventually find the answer soon.〕 Like a good mother, Nyx, comforted Alex, who was feeling down.

'Thank you, Nyx, you are the best. I love you.' Alex declared, but the only thing he got in return was silence from Nyx while Silveria giggled, seeming to make fun of him.

Alex ignored him and took a communication stone out of his item box to contact Sera, and after confirming that everything was alright and Lucifer was killed, he heaved a sigh of relief.

While leaning into his chair, he became lost in thoughts. He must start raiding dungeons to increase his strength and prepare for what would happen soon. This unique ability might become his trump card later; he couldn't wait to taste this amazing ability.

Lilith was the strongest of the group as her level was beyond the Demigod realm. Artemia was catching up, so he must hurry. He must become stronger to protect his loved ones.

Once the girls woke up, they would leave. This time the dungeons they would be raiding are high-level ones, commonly called dungeons.

A named dungeon is different from a normal dungeon. It can have many more floors or a few deadly floors; the environment is harsher. For example, there was a dungeon in this empire with the coldest temperature in all Mysthia, the Ice land it is called.

"Let's go there." Alex decided to visit the Ice land. The only thing left was to decide with who he would raid that dungeon. The conditions inside this dungeon are said to be extreme; only extremely powerful Saint and Demigod could raid this dungeon.

Naturally, Gracier and Saeko wouldn't be participating in this raid which leaves Artemia, Luna, Sakuya, and Alex. Maria would go because she was an Ice element user; the same goes for Artemia.

"Hmh! Let's do this. I'll go with those two while the other four will form another team to raid a different dungeon, maybe the one Leon and his fiancée will raid." Alex contemplated before finally deciding to go for that option. Together with Artemia and Maria, they would raid the Ice land while Sakuya and the others would follow Leon or choose another dungeon.

Alex closed his eyes to rest for a moment before they would begin.

Two hours later he woke up but Maria and Sakuya were not present. He saw them outside in the garden playing with Leandra. Leon was also present with a pretty unusual guest.

Ariel, dressed in a golden robe, had followed them.

"Alex, my friend, you're here." Leon welcomed him with a smile.

892 Chapter 892

"Alex, my friend, you're finally here." Leon welcomed Alex with a bear hug, and he responded with a smile.

"Is this your famous fiancée you always talk about?" Alex said while staring at Ariel.

Leon immediately let go of him, and with a face full of a smile, he introduced his fiancée to his friend.

"Alex, this is my beautiful fiancée Ariel Kefira Tiaret."

"Ariel, this is my good friend Alexander Kael Touch; he is the third man I respected."

"Nice to meet you." Ariel said; her words were short, without expression behind them.

"Nice to meet you too!" Alex said, asking for a handshake. Ariel responded.

The three moved to join the others.

"When are we leaving?" Gracier asked; she was rather impatient to go explode some monsters.

"We will be leaving immediately," Alex said.

"Yay!!"

Gracier and Leandra jumped at the same time.

"Lea, you're not going; it's too dangerous." Leon rebuked his sister, who was already planning to follow them sneakily.

"Tch!" Leandra clicked her tongue and started pouting, but Leon ignored her.

The group stayed together for half an hour before leaving.

Alex, Maria, and Artemia formed one group, while Gracier, Luna, Saeko, and Sakuya formed another group which followed Leon and Ariel to another dungeon.

p As Alex's group stepped into the Ice Land, they were met with a beautiful white world; the cold here almost reached a dangerous degree.

The group appeared in what seemed to be a forest; a forest made entirely of ice trees.

ROAR!

At the same time, hundreds of Ice wolves howled and charged forward. The ground trembled, and the air vibrated.

Alex eyed them, and his aura billowed out.

The creatures quivered, and before they could react, the aura exploded through their bodies, plastering the ground with their blood.

"!!!!"

Their leader, a level 100 Ice wolf, trembled visibly, afraid of Alex; the aura of Demi-God was not a joke.

Alex aimed his gun at the leader, and a bullet shot out.

BANG!

The leader exploded into gore.

"This is going to be fun," Alex said as his eyes shone with different colors.

In another location, a man was surrounded by countless corpses. It was Leonardo but different from the normal Leonardo; the current one had an expressionless face. His blond hair had turned dark, and he had a pair of new arms.

Leonardo continued to bask in the sunlight. The smell of blood and gore didn't affect him the slightest.

A few minutes later.

Ten blurry shadows appeared some hundred meters away from him. They were connected to the woman and others who died not so long ago.

Like the woman and her group, they were also trying to find Leonardo on their leader's order. When the smoke swept from this area, they rushed here.

They were startled to see the headless corpse of their comrades.

"She is dead?"

The group looked at Leonardo, whose attention was still on the sky. He found the bright, clear sky really attractive, and his eyes were unfocused

"You killed my companions?" The leader named Lazare asked.

Lazare has pale skin upon which bubbles constantly popped and reform. When a bubble popped, a blackish fog would surge out and wrap around his body. He was a poison-type user, a Dark Elementalist.

The fog carried a lethal poison that could not only kill but also disrupts the senses.

Leonardo didn't answer; it was like he didn't hear the question or sensed the presence of newly arrived. He continued to enjoy the bright sunlight and the fresh winds.

"Answer him!" Another mutant demanded, his hands flaring with yellowish bolts.

As the team shouted at him for an answer, a loud bang sound came from behind. Surprised, they looked around and noticed another team that had arrived. This new team had arrived with the same goal, which was to kill Leonardo.

"Let's join hands and kill him." The new team suggested, and Lazare saw no need to refuse this proposal as he was not sure to kill Leonardo with his team; the man had killed a team of ten men filled with level 100.

"What?!"

Suddenly, everyone was greatly alarmed and looked in front with shocked expressions.

A frightening power erupted from Leonardo's silent body like a violent sun. His dark aura hair danced in the tempest of his raging aura while his eyes flashed with a sharp glint.

"Such powerful aura!" One of the females inside the team felt a chill crawl up her spine. It was like a sharp metal was piercing her heart, making it difficult for her to breathe.

Fierce winds swept out while cracks snaked out over the ground that targetted the trees nearby. The titanic trees instantly collapsed and crumbled to pieces.

Every part of Leonardo radiated its dominance through his stifling aura.

The fierce aura swept over thirty subordinates of the three two teams. They were sent tumbling backward, crashing far away even with their level 100.

Even the Saint Realm experts of the two teams were not spared; they couldn't believe what they were experiencing.

When have they ever met opponents who could push them back just by virtue of aura? That was not something possible, at least not from a normal opponent.

One of the women of the two teams named Claire stretched her arms and slammed her white hands toward him. The air sliced open as explosive force surged forward, creating visible sonic booms.

The second team leader shouted domain, and the region transformed into an ice block. The entire crystalline mass was his ammunition! With a single command, crystalline shards and spikes shot out.

Every single bubble on Lazare's body popped, and poisonous fog surged. The fog was like a vicious spirit as it pounced on Leonardo.

The members of the two teams immediately launched their abilities and weapons on Leonardo.

All attacks were launched at a single moment. The entire area was engulfed in extraordinary radiance like fireworks.

It was beautiful and yet deadly.

In front of these deathly attacks, Leonardo didn't show any emotions. Time seemed to be at a standstill as hundreds of strikes came at him, ready to kill him.

"Annoying ants."

Leonardo stretched his right hand in the air. On the tip of his index finger, a dark golden glow flashed.

As soon as the glow appeared, the sky instantly dimmed, as if every source of light in this region had been blocked.

The second team's leader's expression turned unsightly, and his eyes nearly popped out. Claire's face turned as white as a paper as her very idea of reality was snatched away.

Lazare broke out in a cold sweat. The total lack of light and the golden glow left his heart pounding and his mind spinning. He instantly realized he and the others had made the greatest mistake they ever could!

At the same time, outside of the forest, the observers trembled under Leonardo's strength.

"Purgatory - Doomsday."

Leonardo said coldly. The moment he spoke, every sound disappeared.

The winds stopped flowing, the air froze, and living beings stopped moving. Temporarily, people even lost the right to breathe.

Within the tiny crack, multicolored energy stripes were visible. It was like myriad patterns when seen through a kaleidoscope tube

Bottomless depth with countless colors flowing in a twisted manner.

Yet, they were no simple colors.

The colors fluctuated with chaotic and turbulent mass. Vague shadows floated in this chaotic mass like demons. Howling winds swept out as if they contained screaming ghosts, inviting the living.

People and monsters from all around were looking at the crack. Thousands of them instantly lost their eyesight. The patterns in the crack imprinted on their eyes, and their eyeballs instantly imploded.

"What's going on?!" This was the only question running through their minds.

Everything took a long time to describe, but in fact, it has been only a second since the golden streak appeared.

Lazare and others were frozen alongside their attacks. Their pupils dilated while their hearts thumped violently as they felt an intense sense of crisis.

Their scalps turned numb from fright, and every single part of their body pained as if they had been sliced.

If they could go back in time and change things, they would leave the forest when they learned about this monster. Alas, it was too late for regrets.

Neither they nor their deadly attacks have any might left. The flashy attacks were not even emitting colors, much less their former radiance.

The golden streak was superimposed on their bodies, even though the streak was in the sky while they were on the ground.

It was like the very concept of space around them was twisted, and even before they could blink or scream, they vanished.

Their large bodies were sucked into the tiny crack alongside their vicious attacks. There was no trace of their existence left, not even their aura.

Two teams disappeared behind those tiny cracks as if they got sucked into the abyss; well it was really an abyss.

"Boring!" Leonardo mumbled before suddenly crouching down while holding his head, feeling an intense headache.

"Wh...Who ... I...am..??"

He seemed lost; he didn't even remember how he arrived here; however, suddenly, his body was wrapped in dark purple light, and he disappeared.

893 Chapter 893

Wolfgang's Empire, Eris's Villa.

The Crown princess stood in front of a large mirror as she combed her long white hair. She kept two locks hanging down, one on either side of her head, running past her shoulders.

The dark rob with golden linings covered her long hair from behind. She adjusted the earrings on her earlobes before clamping her boots.

The white, cross-shaped earrings gleamed brightly on her ivory skin. The red runic engravings on them flashed with a soft glow that was mesmerizing to the soul.

Some distance away, her maid, who was like a second mother to her, observed the earrings carefully and couldn't help but ask the princess a question.

p "Is this a new piece?"

As someone who has taken care of Eris since she was born and as the head maid, this maid knew everything about the princess's clothes and accessories; however, it was her first time seeing these earrings. The way the princess carefully put on these earrings herself showed that it was a gift, a gift from someone dear to her.

Eris's following words confirmed her intuition.

"Yes, it's a gift from a good friend."

"I see. I shall thank that friend when I see him." Sella said with a wink.

Eris blushed but didn't correct Sella as she knew she would be further teased if she tried to deny it was a man who gifted these earrings to her. As a woman herself, she knows how scary their intuition could be. Sella's intuition was whispering to her something, and if Eris were to deny that the earrings didn't come from a man, she would be falling into Sella's trap and would end up spilling everything.

"Let's go; she must have arrived by now," Eris said, cutting any question Sella might have.

Sella nodded while Eris turned around. She slowly left the room without saying anything further. Sella followed the princess. She was secretly happy that Eris had become lively after that tragedy; knowing how much Eris loved her brother; Sella was afraid she might never be able to recover; fortunately her fears were never realized.

Outside of the room, they met another maid who happened to be running in their direction. The maid bowed her head as soon as she saw Eris.

"Greetings, princess."

"Olly, where is the guest?" Eris asked after coming to a stop.

"Princess Kuina is waiting for you in the first garden, your highness," Olly responded.

There were two gardens inside the villa; one was for Ferris; he personally created it, while the second garden was created by the architect who built this villa.

"Ok, I'll see her. I'll call you when I need you." Eris said before disappearing.

*****

An emerald bed of grass is flanked by a sundry of flower bushes. A greenhouse stands to the right of the garden, offering a garden within a garden.

The flower beds are trying to take all the attention in this garden, and succeeding to a large extent, too; they're like a cloud of color. The flower bushes reach 1.5m/5ft high, but they won't grow much taller than this. A couple of benches are carefully placed in specific locations of the garden, leading people through the garden and making sure all the best spots are marked. Grass and roots work together almost harmoniously to claim more land for themselves.

The greenhouse is definitely the main attraction within this garden. The flower beds usually look amazing, and the flower bushes do their best to take some of the attention, but there's no way to win when the garden is designed with a focus on the greenhouse.

Sitting in this greenhouse was a beautiful woman dressed in a golden robe.

"Nice to see you, Eris. I hope you are doing fine." Kuina said as soon as her friend walked in.

"I'm fine. It has been five days since we last met." Eris said as she sat across from Kuina.

"Indeed, but I still came today because we need to talk," Kuina responded with a smile before her face changed, becoming serious.

Clap! Clap!

Upon seeing her friend's serious face, the corners of Eris's mouth lifted into a smile. She extended her hands, clapped twice, and soon after, a maid's drifted toward them.

"I know, I know, but first, let's drink some tea, shall we?"

Kuina didn't refuse the offer, and soon the maid returned with a fragrant tea. The fragrance drifted into the air and mixed with the flower's scent, it created an atmosphere where one mind was calm and at peace.

Fifteen minutes later, Kuina was looking at her friend.

"So, what do you want to say?" Eris asked her, not beating around the bush.

"Well, you love him, don't you?" Kuina's abrupt question left the wolf's princess lost for words. It took a few seconds for her to register what her friend meant, and as one would have expected, Eris immediately blushed, trying to hide her face.

All of this was within Kuina's expectations. And with her personality, there was no way she wouldn't have prepared a few ways to tease her friend.

However, just as Kuina was about to tease Eris, as she was sure knowing the latter personality, she wouldn't admit to having feelings for Alex; Eris went beyond Kuina's expectation and declared her love.

"Yes, I will admit that Alexander is always in my mind for a few months already. I guess that I can say I have feelings for him. There is no need to pretend as we are between women who have feelings for the same man. Yes! I like him, and I will gladly give our story a chance to blossom. I don't know whether this will work in the future or not, but I will still give us a chance nonetheless because when I think of a possible man with whom I'll spend the rest of my life, only Alex comes to my mind."

Kuina's chin almost hit the floor as what was happening was completely out of her expectation. Still, what Eris said was right; there was no denying that they felt something for the man named Alex.

"I see. I'm glad that you admitted to having feelings for Alex, and as you said, I also have feelings for him. Let's discuss a plan to make him fall in love with us once he comes to our empires. Sera has succeeded recently from what I heard; we must not fall behind, don't forget there is a new girl beside him."

Kuina's warning made Eris nod her head; they must do something.

"What do we do then?" She asked.

Kuina stayed silent for a moment before recounting what happened recently to Alex's group; she even knew they were currently raiding high-level dungeons as they spoke.

"So you want us to let Alex's group use the high-level dungeons in our respective empire?" Eris asked as soon as Kuina's words ended.

Sometimes one does need to be explicit for the person you are conversing with to understand the underlying meaning of your words. Eris perfectly understands what Kuina is trying to say by recounting everything Alex's group went through.

Indirectly, Kuina was saying they should do more than Leon. Its truth was that Leon was not a woman; normally, there was no way to go to that extent, but as superpowers (empires), they were doing everything possible to have a connection with Alex in some way or another.

The Foxia empire and the Wolfgang Empire must do the same, more particularly when they had an advantage over the Lionheart Empire. They had women who wished to be tied to Alex; they must use this to their advantage.

Kuina was a fox; a fox is cunning by nature; there was no way she would lose when she had all cards under her sleeves. She would do better than the others, especially when a new rival was in the race.

Saeko might appear harmless to some, she might have never met her, but her intuition was telling her that if she, no, if they didn't hurry up, the little girl would surpass them, and in a harem, places were important.

"I want you to talk to your father to give you access to the Forbidden dungeon only a pair can raid. I have started the negotiation with my mother, and I believe it will soon yield a favorite result."

Kuina's proposal made Eris almost drop her cup. It couldn't be helped because the Forbidden dungeon is the ultimate secret of any empire; they are named dungeons; the royal family kept absolute control over it, and only a selected few could raid them, namely the future emperor or empress. So when she heard Kuina suggesting to let Alex raid this dungeon, she was shocked; as she mused over it, she finally understood what goal the fox princess was trying to achieve. Doing something none of the other women (Well, namely Artemia hadn't done) was sure to yield a different result.

"Sure, let's follow your suggestion." Eris accepted Kuina's suggestion. She knew to have her father accept her demand as the latter wished to be connected to Alex more than anything; there was a way he would refuse this offer.

"Fufufu! Good, let's discuss the plan." Kuina declared happy to get Eris's approval.

After killing their first wave of monsters, Alex's group continued their journey.

During the journey, they meet another wave of monsters who attacked them after believing they were easy prey. Sadly for the poor beasts, they couldn't be more wrong.

Alex killed them with his gun. The girls didn't have the time to shine as their man acted faster.

"He is like a child," Maria commented, and Artemia nodded.

The group continued but soon was forced to stop because in front of them was a thick fog.

As far as his eyes could see, everything was covered in a thick blanket of white.

Their senses were blocked, unable to reach beyond the fog. The trio exchanged glances and simultaneously grinned. They had the same thought running through their minds.

'Whatever is on the other side, it would be fun.'

Armed with the burning desire to fight stronger opponents, the trio entered the fog.

Immediately, the orange sky sparkled on the land of ice while chilling wind swept past, carrying snow. The snowflakes danced in the air as if under the instructions of mother nature.

Snow rested upon the trees and ground as if it was a cushion, soft and warm, inviting one in its embrace.

"As I thought this is beautiful, white will always be beautiful," Alex commented as he took slow steps and watched the footprints he created on the snowy path. Another gentle breeze blew past his face, and this time, the delicate snowflakes landed on his face.

It was as if the previous scenery was not worth anything, and only the current scenery was the only thing that mattered, the true Ice land, the beginning.

The group was alert, expecting to encounter some strong monsters, but strangely they didn't encounter any.

"Strange why there is any monster showing since we walked in?" Alex questioned, turning toward the girls.

"Indeed it's true," Maria said, trying to spread her sense to check if there was any monster nearby. Still, unfortunately, her presence detection skill could not detect past five meters, and further detection was impossible.

"Let's continue," Artemia suggested, and the other two could only nod as they continued to explore the world beyond the fog. Like this, five hours passed, but strangely they didn't encounter any monster, and night arrived.

The frost energy in the domain of ice and snow was obviously higher at night compared to the day. This also meant the night was not the best time to continue walking. They may be strong they were still far from having an indestructible body.

"Let's a camp here for tonight." Alex proposed, and the girls nodded.

Alex flicked his fingers like he was performing magic; immediately in front of him was a large cubic tent.

The cubic tent opened up in a blinding flash. When the flash subsided, instead of the cube on the ground, there was a camping house.

Alex and the two stepped into the house and walked to the kitchen section. The kitchen was advanced, filled with modern equipment and amenities.

Alex was the one that was going to cook; he took out vegetables from a drawer and washed them under a tap in the sink. He then opened something that looked like a refrigerator where meat was stored, and other consumable foods had been put. Earlier during their journey, he has hunted for wild monsters and beasts that could be eaten. Now, they would serve as their meal.

Behind, Maria took a seat across a table. She was not a good cook; no, she was no cook at all. She didn't even know how to peel an onion, much less the actual cooking. It was not surprising as she was a princess, a real princess from earth; she didn't need to do anything, so she didn't know how to cook. Among the three, only Luna was the best cook, Sakuya could also cook, but she was not that great when it came to ethnic cuisine, only good at cooking some Japanese foods.

Artemia was not like that; as a previous goddess of the humans set on exploring the worlds (dungeons and other things), naturally, she knew how to cook.

The princess sat on Alex's right, and silently, they began eating. It was salad and simple Italian food.

After the dinner was completed, Ashlyn cleaned the table and placed the plates in the dishwasher. She felt this was the least she could do.

Kiba was amused, and he allowed her to do as she pleased.

"Good night," Alex said as he stepped inside his bedroom.

Artemia and Maria nodded as they walked to the room opposite to his.

They decided to sleep separately as the two girls had told him beforehand that they wished to stay between women to speak, and Alex needed some privacy.

Inside the room, Alex opened the window and looked outside. Snow continued to pour heavily while a strong breeze swept forward, carrying chilling air.

"The night here is more beautiful. In this lonely white world, you will leave a trace no matter where you go." He mumbled before shaking his head. He latched the window close and, after ensuring the security arrangements were working, lay down on the bed.

He looked at the ceiling, and in a few minutes, the sleep embraced him, and a dream engulfed his consciousness. His original plan was to go to either two worlds to train, increase his skills, and test something, but somehow, the sleep took over his consciousness as soon as his body kissed the bed.

Four hours later, Alex woke up because he had a bad dream. He couldn't remember much of the nightmare he had; only the only thing he remembered was the sensation of darkness shrouding everything.

His nightmare was serious as he even felt in his throat the hot, wet, and metallic taste of blood appearing. He swallowed it down.

"Strange, I seem unable to remember anything. Let's focus on my original goal, to begin with." Alex declared finally decided to train. He had done playing around for now.

"I'll be in your care Nyx." He said before closing his eyes.

[[I'm waiting for you.]] Surprisingly, Nyx responded, making Alex smile.

.....

The sky was dark and gloomy as snowflakes continued to pour. Cold winds glided through the air and struck against the windows of a camping house below.

The windows shook and made noises while snow struck on the glass panels, covering them with a blanket of snow.

Through one of the windows, a bedroom came into sight. On the bed, Alex, in a deep sleep, was clutching his fists tightly as sweat dripped out of his pores. From the look, his body seemed to be in great pain; this pain came from his soul, who had traveled to Nyx's world to train.

Tonight, Nyx decided to teach him personally, and the result was complete destruction. He couldn't even lay a finger on her despite the handicap she gave him.

She was too strong; his fastest bullets were reduced to normal speed before Nyx would crush them barehand.

Nyx stopped Alex, who was about to attack her, and asked him a simple question.

"Do you know the goal behind this training?"

Alex mused over for a minute before lifting his head trying to match those beautiful yet deadly ice-blue eyes; even if her right eye was dimmer than the left one, it was still dangerous nonetheless.

"It is because you wished for me to discover more abilities for my Time element." Alex finally explained the reason behind tonight's training.

Nyx nodded, not denying that it was exactly as he said, but there was something more she had in mind, and even Alex was not aware of the many changes his body underwent.

"Check your status by focalizing more on your attribute," Nyx suggested.

Alex knew she must be talking about the elements he could use.

"Eh? Since when did I have those elements?" Alex was befuddled as he saw a new element added to his original element.

895 Chapter 895

"You only saw it now because your body has finally assimilated the girl's elements," Nyx explained to the confused Alex, and he could immediately connect the dots.

"I see. So it means I can use those elements, right?" Alex asked with his eyes threatening to burst into flame; he was so excited that Nyx had to put some distance between them, afraid that his current state might be contagious.

Nyx's lips curved upward ever slightly to form a grin as she declared.

"Yes and no!"

Alex, who was about to jump and cry with joy, was frozen in place.

It took him a few minutes to come back to his sense. He heaved a long sigh.

"Do explain." He asked her.

Nyx nodded, but instead of explaining directly with words, she asked him to do something.

"Trying using the surrounding wind to boost your speed temporarily." She said, and Alex immediately gathered the wind under his feet and shot forward like a rocket.

Without borrowing Sleipnir's unique ability, he could use the Wind element, and he saw his speed increasing by twenty points.

"Wow! It feels nice." Alex was feeling happy. He understood what Nyx was trying to say with her previous sentence; he could only use those elements to some extent, but he could not use them like Maria and others.

"You might have awakened the unique ability that lets you borrow your companion's elements, maybe abilities, but you can use those elements like they do because, at the core, you are still a gun user. You don't need elements like others; you can convert them into special bullets instead capable of dealing more damage than special bullets acquired from killing rare species." Nyx gave a lengthy explanation to let him know about his unique ability.

"I understand. I can try new things with this ability. I knew my unique ability was exceptional, but not to this extent. I wonder how far this ability will go?" Alex wondered, imagining a bright future ahead. He was happier that he had this unique ability, which belonged solely to him.

It was true that he was the master of the Death guns, but he was not the first master; it felt like he was walking in his predecessor's shadow. He felt like he was being compared to his predecessor, unconsciously or not; however things would be different now as he had something the other didn't have.

Suddenly, Alex grinned because he got an insane idea.

Nyx didn't say anything; having already spent years with him, she knew that when he made that kind of expression, he would always try something crazy. She decided to just observe like a bystander and only step when things would become dangerous.

Soon Alex became busy trying various combinations to create a new type of art, and after countless trials and errors, he succeeded. He even saw his stats increasing with his XP bar finally moving. The dry well had started to get filled slowly. Nyx explained that starting from the Demigod realm; you would need a certain amount of XP before it would be displayed in the status bar.

And when Alex asked if this status system existed in her era, she only said it was more advanced, that he would soon understand.

He spent his unused BP on his Def's stat while the other stats except for his MP and luck's stat had increased. His INT stats have increased because he used his brain to create an excellent skill, the Gunslinger Art. This skill is related to special bullets, and he couldn't wait to test them.

"Nyx, can you-

Before Alex could finish his request, Nyx sent him away.

Alex opened his eyes after the blinding light engulfed him, and he was in the middle of the mountain; giant trees surrounded him.

Suddenly, two men appeared and launched an attack on him without hesitation.

Alex didn't care about the men's identity; the only thing that mattered to him was the men would do fine guinea pigs. There was no doubt they were strong, at least above level 100, but this didn't matter as he would still kill them.

The Black prince created another gun using Xerox; he used this gun to fire a wind bullet that knocked backward the opponent on the left ax. Because he could directly create special bullets without using his magic bullet ability, it became possible to use the special bullets with the copy of the silver gun created through Xerox.

"What?" The man who pushed back, his prided weapon almost hitting the ground. Before he could understand what happened, Alex's leg, enhanced with the wind element, arrived at his neck like a hurricane.

Bang! Crack!

There was a bang sound followed by a cracking sound, the poor man's neck was broken before he was even aware of it. A weak Saint Realm expert just died like that.

It had been a long time since they last had a visitor. They mistakenly thought this visitor would be their ticket to be freed from this hellish prison; however, the enemy had proven not to be a soft bone as they had initially thought, and consequently, one of them died.

The second man, the strongest, immediately unleashed his domain; wind stirred before forming two mini cyclones that tried to swallow Alex. There were many sharp wind blades inside those small cyclones capable of shredding anything ordinary, but Alex was unfazed; he didn't even try to defend.

The man smiled, thinking his enemy was overconfident and would die because of his arrogance; however, just as the tornados were about to tear Alex apart, he mumbled.

"Asura's form!"

A crimson aura burst out of Alex's body, rippling outward, clashing with the two tornadoes, and something astonishing happened; Alex used his body to clash directly against the tornados. Surprisingly there were unable to leave even a scratch on Alex's body.

"What the hell?" The man was left speechless, mouth agape, he thought this would be the end, but as soon as Alex activated his domain, he learned that his misery had just begun.

"Infinity Space!"

BOOM!

The man was forced to his knees because a lot of information rushed to his mind. His senses were overwhelmed; he felt like his head would burst, unable to process so much information. His body became frozen. He could feel everything but could not move; it was like time had been stopped for his cells, only leaving the necessary function.

"Forgive me, I'm at the beginning. My new domain is little bit rough on the edge but doesn't worry; you will enjoy it." Alex declared as he slowly approached the man whose eyes kept moving around; it was the only thing remaining unfrozen by Alex's domain.

Finally, Alex arrived before the man and touched his forehead with his finger.

"Compress!"

Immediately after he gave that command, space was twisted around the man, and his body was shredded into many pieces, forever disappearing beyond the void.

"Huff! Huff!" Alex was left breathless as his new domain, created from mixing the time and space elements, consumed too much mana.

Not even two minutes had passed since he activated it, but he was left with only a portion of his mana; only two thousand mana was left.

"Nice domain. Finally, you have a domain worthy of my ability. It's still at its full potential, but I'm sure that once you manage to develop it fully, it will be something amazing." Nyx appeared like a shadow and complimented rare Alex, she also added.

"You did great. You are awesome. Keep up."

She even showed a rare smile to complement her words; it was a genuine smile.

"Thank you!" Alex responded.

896 Chapter 896

Meanwhile, as Alex was training under Nyx in another location, in a forest at the edge of the Far East Empire, there was a medium village, but this village got destroyed recently by a horde of monsters; the adventurers sent had almost been wiped out.

BANG

A female adventurer in her early forty but still looked like being in her late twenties collided against a tree, her head dripping with blood. Some distance away from her, five wolves were moving toward her.

"Xera!" A male in his mid-thirties called out. He swung his giant sword killing two wolves.

BOOM!

Xera aimed a hand toward one of the remaining two wolves and fired a fireball.

"Anoir, watch out!" Xera shouted as she saw a giant monster almost six meters waving its big hands. It was an Earth Ape.

Anoir used his extreme reflex to dodge. His body flew above in the air, and he tried to launch his giant sword at the monster, hoping to slay it in one blow.

The remaining wolves pounced on Anoir, but Xera intervened; she leaped up and threw more fireballs at the wolves.

"Damn," Anoir broke free after defeating the Earth ape. "This is the 17th beast I have fought today. They might be low level, but I'm exhausted."

"More are coming," Xera looked in the distance to observe a herd of wild beasts.

In ordinary times, they could easily handle a group of such weak monsters, but a horde was an entirely different story. The chances of being cornered from all around were high, and a single strike might prove fatal. So if possible, they wanted to avoid the fight and save their energy for future battles.

"Fuck! Why does this keep happening so frequently?" Anoir mumbled as he gasped for air.

Recently monsters kept attacking villages. It was unknown how monsters became so aggressive; normally, monsters didn't work together unless it was during hordes, but monsters' horde shouldn't happen here. However, suddenly, the weak monsters that rarely left the forest attacked and destroyed this village in less than twenty hours.

"Let's get out of here," Xera said as she dashed in another direction. Anoir followed alongside her, and in the same direction, four more team members were speeding through.

Much to their horror, more monsters scuttled out from the trees and sprinted in their direction.

"Shit!" Xera cursed as she evaded the claws of a white wolf and counter-attacked with her dagger.

"We will die out of exhaustion if this continues."

"We have to open a path if have to a path if have to escape with our lives," A male colleague said as he fired a black mist from his palm at an attacking monster.

The mist enveloped a Level 70 cheetah, and its body eroded at a rate visible to the naked eye.

Anoir looked around, and his eyes brightened as he saw a feminine figure some two hundred meters away, surrounded by monsters from all sides.

The girl seemed to be in her early twenties, clad in a black suit, marking a striking difference with her creamy-white skin. Blessed with a fit little frame, long legs, and gorgeous face, her body was as perfect as a human could ever get.

Her eyes were beautiful, dark as stars, while her hairs were crystalline dark. Her beauty was truly breathtaking.

Any normal man who sees her face even once would want to keep her for himself. But if they saw her mesmerizing eyes, they would feel as if they were stuck in an ice cave. Her eyes were devoid of any warmth; all they had was incomparable coldness.

"Lady Noire!" Anoir loudly shouted to bring her attention.

"Please cut a path for us!"

Noire brought her vision on him and then nodded. She was surrounded by earth apes, wolves, and panthers, but there was no trace of worry on her face.

On both her wrists, dark discs were floating. The discs resembled chakram with their sharpened outer edge.

The discs moved above her hand as she opened her palm. She gripped them tightly and closed her eyes.

The monsters pounced towards her, claws and jaws moving ahead to rip her to shreds.

The discs started spinning in a chopping manner, their sharp edges gleaming like a blade.

Noire opened her eyes and leaped high in the air before throwing the discs with powerful force.

Swoosh.

The discs penetrated the air and transformed into blurry light streams as they shot explosively towards the monsters.

As the discs moved forward, they created an ear-piercing sound, making the eardrums of everyone in the vicinity tremble.

Slash!

An Earth Ape, whose tail was sneakily moving towards Noire's leg, fell to the ground. Its neck was pierced through by a disc, tearing its body into two.

The discs continued to rush ahead, cutting through every monster in its path. The monsters resentfully growled as their bodies were ripped apart by the discs.

Tap.

Just as Noire landed back on the ground, there was no single sign of any living monster near her.

The discs moved back in her hands as she turned towards Anoir and others who were surrounded by monsters. She speeded towards them, and the sharp edges on the discs rotated.

The discs shot out from her hands. Terrifying dark ripples emanated out of the discs and struck the monsters. Blood and gore spurted out of the monsters as the ripples and discs swept right through them.

"Yes! Finally!" Anoir and others were pleasantly surprised as more monsters died and the path opened up.

They couldn't help but marvel at her might. The males gave her glances as they dashed ahead, despite it being a battlefield.

Her expression was cold, just like her eyes and how she killed the monsters. But this didn't stop the male members from desiring her, even though the desire was suppressed after witnessing the battle.

A few minutes later, the six members escaped the assault of the monsters.

"Lady Noire, thanks," Anoir said as her discs killed a final group of beasts. "We will give you 90% of this mission reward."

Noire ignored him and made a grasping motion in the air.

The discs made a curve in the air and flew back towards her. She clenched her fists, and the discs moved through them, without harming her the least bit, and cladding themselves on her wrists like bracelets. It was a gift from her master; it was a weapon created by Smith. He put all his heart into creating this; he even called it one of his masterpieces, and Noire wouldn't lie; they were amazing. She could use them without going into her original form.

Previously, Alex had ordered her to follow and help Sera, but because of what happened recently, he changed his order, telling her to pretend to be an adventurer that goes around to help people in need. It was like Tres and Pandora (A/N: Formerly known as Meera, she was in the rank-up test together with Alex and Gracier back in Eris's city.)

Noire still used her real name but concealed her tail and ears not to draw too much attention.

Suddenly, she felt something coming toward her at extreme speed.

"You should leave," Noire said to Anoir and others. They were confused at first, but everything changed when the beast appeared.

Bang!

The ground trembled as the monster, a gigantic Earth Ape, landed.

One of the male adventurers fired a black mist at the twelve-meter-tall Earth Ape filled with explosive muscles.

The mist seethed in the air, releasing a corrosive force, and flew towards the eyes of the beast.

Swoosh!

The monster moved one of its arms and swiped the mist away. The mist landed on the ground, creating charred ground.

The swiping action even resulted in a strong gale, removing trees in the vicinity from the ground.

"Shit," Anoir leaped back. "This is really bad. Let's leave as Lady Noire has said."

The others nodded and escaped after Noire glared at them. Although they this was their first time cooperating, they were afraid of Noire because of the rumors about her; she was dangerous, most people said to them. It's better to listen to her when doing a mission if you wish to survive, a senior had told them. It was why Anoir and the others listened to Noire's advice.

Meanwhile, the beast raised one of its gigantic feet in the air before ruthlessly bringing it down on Noire, trying to flatten her.

BANG

Terrifying shockwaves rippled out as the foot landed on the ground.

Even the land outside the perimeter of the foot caved into a giant crater, sending debris and dust in the air.

Anoir and the others kept running without stopping.

At the same time, the rare species eyes were filled with astonishment as it felt a strong force against the foot, pushing it.

Alarmed and bewildered, the beast saw its foot shoved away from its original spot. Noire was standing there completely fine without any scratch on her body.

"!!!"

The beast tried to escape after understanding he was not Noire match immediately.

"Stay still!" Noire ordered while releasing her aura; the mutated Earth Ape could not move.

"Why won't you come out?"

897 Chapter 897

"Why won't you come out?" Noire said with an expressionless face, and it didn't take long before space was wrapped, and someone walked out from it.

A man dressed in a black robe with the Chaos organization symbol on it.

"Gyahahaha! You're sure interesting for you to be able to see through my camouflage." The man laughed, and for some unknown reason, Noire, who hadn't felt so irritated in a long time, was annoyed.

"Puny trick." She said with an expressionless face.

The man stopped laughing altogether; he was furious because he got looked down on. His pride got hurt; he was the new number two from the Numbers. It was to say he had taken Incursio's place; while he was not powerful as that monster, she was unique. The new number two was not a weakling. Five of the ten cities destroyed were his doing, so naturally, when he was looked down upon like this, he couldn't help but become angry.

"What with that face? Did I hit the nail? You are a pussy, hiding in the shadow like a coward." Noire provoked the man. She wanted to crush him not because of some holy reason like saving the world; she didn't give a damn about something like that. It was simply because she didn't like the man's face, and also, by getting rid of this man, she would be at the same time completing her master's order.

Number 2 was so angry that he started laughing.

"Gyahahaha! Good, extremely good. Now you have angered me, don't expect to have a nice death." He said before snapping his fingers.

"My lovely minions attack her, tear her apart."

Number released a portion of his mana to control more monsters; he even regained control over the frozen mutated Earth Ape.

Noire was calm, even facing an early Demigod realm expert. She learned something new; the new numbers were strong, and the first three numbers were probably all Demigods.

The mutated Earth Ape punched the air; its fist cut through the air like a missile; Noire seemed extremely petite in front of such a gigantic fist. One would think she would be squashed like a bug, but on the contrary to that, the opposite happened; when her fist clashed against the ape fist, it got blown away with half of his body.

Even Number 2 was shocked upon seeing this; still, he was not afraid; how could a demigod like him be afraid of a measly Saint Realm expert even though the latter possessed terrific physics. At the end of the day, physics was not everything; he would overwhelm her with skills and magic.

The other monsters who had stopped in their track after witnessing the mutated Earth Ape dying resumed their attack. Most of the monsters were lizards capable of camouflage like their master; however, in front of Noire, who was a divine beast, this advantage was nothing. She retracted her bracelets, turning them into discs that cut through the air like a guillotine.

The discs rushed ahead, leaving behind a trail of the dark blaze; they bisected the lizards into two without difficulty; it was like a knife cutting through butter.

If previous Number 2 had not thought too much of Noire despite her out-of-norm physics, this time, it was different. She was dangerous; he must take care of her even if she was an ant.

It was why Number 2 used one of his strongest abilities.

"Chaos Blade!" He declared while releasing all of his strength.

Noire, who had recovered her weapons, turning them back into bracelets again, wavered for a second as she heard Number 2 voice followed by a sound. She looked towards the Anoir and others direction and saw one of them on the ground, his stomach with a hole.

She brought her eyes to a further distance and noticed Anoir struck on the ground.

"Ahhhh!" He cried in pain. His limbs were stretching as if he was about to be dismembered.

Xera, on the other hand, flew past like a kite with its strings cut and collided against a tree.

'Do you made some kind of contract with trees?' Noire wondered before something changed.

Swoosh.

"?" Noire raised her head.

In the sky, a dark blood-red blade appeared from out of nowhere. The blade was hundreds of meters in size, its edges sharp like a true blade.

As soon as the blade appeared, Anoir, Xera, and others escaping felt their blood flow turning chaotic. Blood dripped out of their orifices, turning into beads of blood and flowing towards the blade as if to nourish it. Only one result awaited Anoir, and the others; they would soon turn into a dry corpses after everything had been sucked away from their blood.

Noire's eyes narrowed as she looked at the blade and then her own body.

She was clad in a tight black suit, the fabric of her suit covering every part of her body from neck to feet. In the suit, thin lines of glowing dark red passed through.

She didn't feel anything strange in her blood flow, but she sensed a devouring force from the blade. The force tried to enter her body but dissipated before it could even touch her skin.

Swoosh!

The dark blood-red blade swept downwards at Noire like a grim reaper's scythe.

She opened her hands, and the bracelets turned into discs that moved to her side to block the incoming blade.

Clangs!

There was a short stalemate before an explosion occurred.

BOOM!

A dark red energy tried to swallow her; it was the result of the explosion.

Bang!

Number 2 appeared behind Noire and tried to kick her, but strangely her body turned into smoke and vanished.

He hid his surprise and directed all his aura on Noire, temporarily stopping her movement. He caught the floating blade and tried to slice her apart, but she was only flung away.

Noire's mouth tasted iron, but she smiled and then closed her eyes before letting out a soft sigh from her lips.

"Unseal!"

She temporarily got rid of the seals shackling her power.

BOOM!

There was a terrible explosion that rang out from Noire's body, destroying everything around her. Number 2, who wanted to attack her, was forced back.

"What the hell?" Number 2 was gobsmacked. The previous status he had seen vanished as if it was an illusion.

Number 2 was scared beyond words facing something incomprehensible; like a quote says, the best attack is a defense. Therefore he attacked.

In the sky, the dark blood-red blade sliced through the air as it descended downwards like a blade of execution. A flurry of dust and smoke flew behind.

Finally, Noire opened her eyes as one of the seals broke off. Dark streams of light covered her black suit while her black eyes radiated ominous currents of energy.

Some distance away from her, Anoir and others had their hearts filled with dread. Even though they were still far from the two, they could still feel how dreadful the current Noire was.

She simply caught the dark red blood blade between her fingers and squeezed it. Immediately there was a change. While the dark blood-red blade remained intact, its corners emanating heart-wrenching wails like ghosts as if the blade's soul was passing through a guillotine.

"Break!" Noire ordered with a smile that froze one's soul.

'Crack!

Number 2 didn't have the time to be shocked before someone struck him in the stomach, sending him flying two kilometers before stopping. His defense was broken like a piece of fragile glass.

"Void's Punch!"

Noire punched the air; her fist disappeared, and reappeared before Number 2, not giving him any time to dodge.

BANG!

Terrifying energy waves swept outwards as Noire's punch knocked Number 2 flying.

"Cough!" His mouth fell open, and he vomited blood as his body collided against a giant, breaking it into half.

"Purgatory!"

Ohhhhhh!

Countless ghosts' cries were heard, and Number 2 saw himself in a dark world surrounded by malevolent energy.

"Aiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiii!"

Even Number 2, who had experienced many things in his life, couldn't stop the madness from temporarily taking over his consciousness.

Noire's Purgatory was different from what he knew; he tried to use his own purgatory to escape, but for some unknown, he was unable to use it, nor he could muster any strength; it was a desolate world.

Like the grim reaper, Noire appeared and said.

"Oblivion!"

A sinister dark hole swallowed everything; even the purgatory appeared, and Number 2 disappeared before he could use his full strength.

"Boring! I want to use my full strength. Sigh! I wonder when it would happen." Noire lamented, obviously unhappy with her limited strength.

898 Chapter 898

After complimenting Alex for his new domain, Nyx decided to stop tonight's session to let Alex rest.

"Let's me continue for a while. I've got a new idea." Alex requested, obviously not planning to end his training, at least not yet.

Nyx nodded before leaving Alex alone to train.

.....

The following day the group woke up and departed after their breakfast.

"Somehow, you have become stronger." Sakuya noticed that something was different about their man.

"You are right. His aura has become more refined and powerful." Maria said while observing Alex's body.

"Well, it's because of training." He responded. He was about to go into the details when he felt an ominous feeling. It was coming from a dangerous monster ahead.

"As expected, there was no way this place wouldn't have a monster," Maria said, already summoning her Gift; Artemia also did the same thing.

The group soon came face to face with the monster. A giant snake coiled on itself. Pure white scales like the snow itself and a glowing gray horn.

"It would have been beautiful cutie if it was not extremely long." Artemia, who had a soft spot for exotic animals, said, looking at the monster.

Right after that comment, the giant snake opened its eyes there, beautiful blue like the sky above them.

"Welcome my meals." The snake's eyes were filled with sinisterness.

"You are going to help me further by becoming my food." The monster added like a King talking to its subject.

As the white snake said this, the entire area was suddenly filled with an intensely oppressive feeling. Its aura was shockingly at level 145, a Demi-God monster.

Oh?" Alex raised his eyebrows.

"For years, I have not consumed any good meal that could provide me the energy I need to get stronger." The snake's tongue flicked as it eyed its new prey. "But you three arrived, and I've been observing you. Once I consume you three, I'll without a break free from this accursed place and soar, becoming a dragon that will dominate the world."

"A snake with a delusion of grandeur. It's not every time you see one. He even wants to eat us." Alex's lips curved up in a mocking smile. "This makes me feel s that I want to murder you."

Swoosh.

The air around him flickered, and dark blue energy shot out of his body explosively. The oppressive pressure from the white snake was ripped apart and disappeared into thin air.

Artemia and Maria were surprised by the intensity of his aura. The ground below their feet cracked into cobwebs while stone and dust flew in the air. They knew his strength had increased but not to this extent.

"Leave this one to me, girls," Alex said as he tapped his right foot on the ground.

Without waiting for their responses, he shot straight at the serpent at an explosive speed. The snake's body flickered, and it pounced at Alex.

As they crashed into each other, a destructive force surged out like tidal waves. The ground completely split apart while the trees exploded in a chain reaction.

BOOM!

A loud sound rang throughout the area, shattering the silence in the region, and almost causing an avalanche.

The serpent and Alex backed off from each other as the first clash ended.

"As a mortal, your physics is not bad." The white snake commented. It was like he was complimenting Alex, but he was obviously mocking him.

"Yeah! Yeah! And as immortal, your physics is so-so." Alex fired back.

The snake was not pleased with his comment, so he attacked. The snake was enormous, and his tail was as thick as two tree trunks. Yet its speed was so fast that it left a trail of afterimages as it swept past.

In just a moment, the tail fiercely smashed into Alex, who did nothing to dodge.

Alex was sent flying before he forcefully stopped in midair. He raised his hand and wiped his lips. A drop of blood was visible on the back of his hand.

"Well. It's hurt. Let's me give it back." Alex, who had done testing his physical against the monster, mumbled before attacking in turn.

"Ethereal-"

He gripped his hand into a fist and vanished from the sight.

"What? Teleportation?" The snake was startled. He quickly turned around as the air behind twisted and churned.

But as the snake turned, his eyes flickered with surprise as there was nothing but plain air. Behind its back, a terrifying tide of energy surged out and landed on his head.

The white scales were ripped apart to expose green flesh. The monster was alarmed, and he backed away, looking at Alex in amazement. It was his fist that hit him but an condensed form of energy.

"Bullet!"

Finally, Alex finished calling the name of his new bullet.

The snake felt formless energy trying to run amok inside his body, but he quickly got it under control.

A few distances away, Maria and Artemia were watching the fight. They were shocked by the mysterious new bullet.

"I've got the feeling that this bullet had a space ability." Maria arrived at this conclusion.

"You are right. It's a mix of Time and space elements if not wrong." Artemia added.

"Let's ask for more details later," Maria said, ending the discussion. They continued to watch the fight. Not once do they think their man would lose. Demigod monster or not, he would not lose even if the fight was tough.

Meanwhile, Alex, who had tested his new bullet, was not completely pleased; there were still a few things to correct. Like Artemia said, this special bullet was a mix of two elements: Time and Space. Time to make it faster while space to teleport it from point A to point B.

He would use this snake as a guinea pig; he was sturdy after all.

Speaking of how sturdy the monster was, the scales on his back regenerated in no time, and it once again pounced at Alex, furious to have been injured.

Alex summoned Razor, his customer-made knife, and enveloped it with Wind element. He raised his knife high in the air before lowering it in a slashing movement. The wind concentrated and turned into an invisible blade that swept right at the snake with terrifying momentum.

"Human, what happened just now was a fluke," The snake rolled its tail at the wind blade, destroying it like a piece of glass. "Don't expect such luck now."

The monster opened its mouth and spat an arrow of dark venom. The air buzzed with an acidic sound as the arrow shot out.

Swoosh!

The arrow rushed forward with explosive speed, but just as it was about to touch Alex, he evaded it by taking a step to the right.

The arrow continued to travel ahead, and it struck a giant tree at his back. The tree started melting like heated wax and decayed in an instant.

Alex felt his scalp turning numb; no matter how confident he was in his physics, he would never come out unscathed if that thing touched him.

"You sure have a killer breath," Alex brought his eyes to the monster and said in an amused tone.

"How does your female partner survive while copulating with you? Or you don't-"

"Human, you have a sharp tongue," The snake cut him off, but still didn't fall his trick at such a crucial moment. It was sure the human was trying to provoke through words and make it commit a mistake. He would be a fool if he fell for such a trick. He must end this fight, or else the more prolonged this battle becomes, the more furious he would become and would eventually make a mistake.

The snake burst out and increased his speed as he charged straight at Alex like a beam of light.

Alex was startled by the explosive increase in speed. Before he could dodge, the serpent coiled its tail on his feet like rattan vines.

"Asura's Form!"

BOOM!

The crimson aura that burst out of his body when he activated his Asura's Form managed to push away the tail coiled around his feet.

BANG!

The snake's body was violently smashed against a cave a few meters away, completely crushing it. However, he immediately attacked by launching his ultimate ability.

"Kaleidoscope!"

The world turned black and white.

"Close your eyes," Alex shouted at the girls as he knew what type of domain this was. Silveria had warned him. A mental type domain.

Artemia and Maria immediately closed their eyes.

The snake was sure Alex would be affected, but then his right eye shone, destroying the illusion he was about to be put under.

"What?"

The white snake was shocked; this had never happened before. His domain should have worked, but strangely it didn't happen.

Just as he wondered why, another explosive aura burst out of Alex's body, and an enormous amount of mana gathered around him.

"Gun Art Ultimate Form: Monarch of Guns!"

Shua! Shua!

From behind him, many gun muzzles appeared, aiming at the giant snake.

"Ethereal bullets!"

BOOM!

"What?"

The white snake was shocked; this had never happened before. His domain should have worked, but strangely it didn't happen.

"Gun Art Ultimate Form: Monarch of Guns!"

Shua! Shua!

From behind him, many gun muzzles appeared, aiming at the giant snake.

"Ethereal bullets!"

BOOM!

Bullets coming from everywhere swallowed the white snake; it created a big explosion compared to that of a nuke.

Curious about what was happening, the girls tried opening their eyes, but it was soon proven to be a big mistake.

"Don't!" Alex, who had discovered that the enemy hadn't died in that explosion, warned, but it was already too late.

There was a tiny white snake, not even one meter jumping at the girls, especially Maria, who had the weakest mental defense among the three.

Maria, who knew something was not right, acted, she tried to swing her dagger, but just then, the eyes of the serpent locked on her.

The slit pupils swirled like a whirlpool, and Maria's body entered a state of paralysis.

"Spirit possession !"

The tiny snake vanished and entered Maria's body. Everything happened too fast, not giving the other two the time to intervene; not even Artemia close by could react before Maria, possessed by the snake, sent her flying.

BOOM!

Artemia's body traveled across five kilometers before stopping; if she hadn't covered her body in both lightning and ice armor, she would have suffered more damage. She stood up and wiped away the blood falling from her mouth.

"Wow! That hurts; I won't forget this." Artemia said, possessed or not, Maria's punch hurts like hell, and she would not forget it, especially when this punch made her taste blood in a while.

"Now, what to do? Should I help? No, seeing how calm Alex is, I should let him handle it. He looked pissed off right now." Artemia decided to remain as a bystander and watch until the end; she could have stepped in but seeing her man's state, she didn't dare because she would be getting in her way.

The monster might have thought it was a smart move, but it was the dumbest mistake he had made. He shouldn't have done that.

"Fufufu! You have a wonderful fiancée; even I'm jealous of." The white snake possessing Maria's body laughed. When he possessed her body, some of the ice empress's memories, obviously, he learned that Alex and the girls were engaged.

He was shocked, but what shocked him more was this girl's potential. When it came to the Ice element, he could say without hesitation that she would be unrivaled; it was as if she was born solely to wield this element, and she could never use another element.

The white snake was glad to have possessed this body, it would help him more than anything, and he would make Alex pay for what he had done. It was true that he switched bodies, but it was because he had been forced. Alex destroyed his previous body (A/N: almost), which forced him to use that form he despises the most. As a last resort, he possessed Maria's body, and he loved this decision because he found something unexpected; he was also sure Alex would be extremely pissed about what would make him commit a mistake.

The snake was right about one point; Alex was indeed pissed off; as proof of the anger that he was feeling at the moment, his lips curved upward slightly, and a slight smile escaped from his mouth. Just like what happened to many people when their anger reached a certain level, Alex began to laugh softly as he took a step forward.

"Hehehehe! You thought you got? Unfortunately, you made a big mistake." He said as he void stepped and reappeared before Maria and drove his fist right into her stomach.

BANG!

By then, Alex's punch had brutally pounded onto her stomach.

Her chest caved in, and her back arched out while his body slammed into the tree behind her.

"From your point of view, you have made the right choice; I can't blame you for this but have you thought I've never expected something like this to happen again?" Alex declared as he slowly walked toward Maria, who was vomiting blood.

"What?" The snake controlling Maria's body was shocked; from Alex's words, he inferred that it was not the first time one of his women got possessed; therefore, he came up with a solution.

Alex used this opportunity to appraise Maria, who was under the enemy's control.

He signed it was true that possessing Maria's body was the best solution in the current situation, but only if he was not the enemy.

Maria (the white snake) stood up and glared at Alex; she gathered all her mana to use her strongest ability, the Absolute Zero; even without using the Ice empress mode, the snake could use that ability because they were in a cold environment.

"Absolute Zero!"

Everything started freezing, even time itself, but Alex was calm; he was still using mana's body, and he still had plenty of mana left.

"Gun Art Ultimate Form: Monarch of Guns-"

This time a single gun appeared, a big black gun with a silver tattoo on it.

"-The End!"

Bang!

A bullet knocked Maria's head back; not even her strongest ability could stop that bullet.

Thud!

She fell on the snow right after.

A bullet knocked Maria's head back; not even her strongest ability could stop that bullet.

Thud!

She fell on the snow right after that.

"Wow! You know something, you are really scary." Artemia declared as she appeared behind Alex and acted as a support.

After simultaneously using the Asura's Form and Mana's body on top of using a new ability, Alex was completely exhausted; he had trouble walking forward. He did his best not to fall unconscious. He had combined both sisters' abilities, with were normally incompatible as they don't use the same system.

He achieved the impossible by combining the two abilities; not only was he able to cancel Maria's strongest ability, he was able to kill her, not her for real, but the thing inside her. He killed the snake possessing her body without paying any price as he usually does. This meant he would get all the XP resulting in him killing the enemy, a Demi-God monster whose original level was 145, but it increased after possessing Maria's body.

The only price Alex paid after combining the sister's abilities was extreme fatigue.

The biggest surprise was his level shooting up like a star.

He gained three levels; it was unexpected. Once you step into the Demigod realm, it becomes hard to easily level up, especially with the curse put on Mysthia by the king of dragons, Bahamut.

"I will let you take care of the rest." Alex declared before separating from Artemia and picking up Maria, and leaving.

Artemia sighed before her lips curled up to form a smile.

"Come out before I force you out." She declared, but there was only silence.

Artemia was not angry; on the contrary, she was smiling.

Suddenly, she stopped smiling as her aura burst out.

The former human goddess slowly recovered her strength after her curse was erased. She would have already regained all of her strength if she actively raided dungeons, but she didn't do that.

Artemia's Demigod aura forced the monster hiding to come out.

It was another white snake, but this one was smaller than the one Alex killed. It was the other snake mate. She was not present, she had just arrived, and most importantly, she was injured. Her level was above her husband's; she was level 146.

The new snake with broken didn't dare wait to know what was happening if she were to let this blue-haired girl attack. Without hesitation, she thrust the sharp end of its tail at Artemia like a divine spear.

Swoosh!

Space was torn apart, and even the reality itself seemed to suffer the same fate. It was a godly attack.

Artemia did almost nothing other than whistling.

Just then, something happened.

As the tail was about to impale her in her heart, a loud screeching sound reverberated in the air, followed by the rustling of the wind.

A giant Ice scythe appeared, shredding the air and producing sparks. Blue lightning surrounded the Ice scythe created by the surrounding snow and Ice element.

In less than a second, the Ice scythe was as large as a wheel, and arrived in front of the female snake.

"What's going on?" The female snake has lived for a long, and she sensed an intense sense of crisis from the ice scythe.

Without thinking much, the female snake backed off and retraced her tail from Artemia. Alas, for the snake, it was far too late despite her unbelievable speed.

The Ice scythe chopped right through her enormous tail and severed it in half. Green blood splattered in the air.

"Sii!"

Ice and lightning seeped through the injury making the monster lose control of her body for a second.

Artemia vanished and reappeared before the frozen female snake with her hand raised high.

"Nineteen Layered Lightning: Judgement Spear!"

Kabooooom!

The golden lightning judgment spear descended upon the snake and impaled it before her body was blown up into a gory mist.
