Su Wanwan's entire body was almost completely soaked by the rain. Her clothes stuck to her body and she felt cold. Her arms couldn't help but wrap around her body, trying to give herself a little warmth.

She also kept stomping her feet or jumping up and down to dispel the chill in her body.

PEI Munian took the elevator all the way down and walked out of the company's Gate. He saw su Wanwan standing on the opposite side of the road. She was already drenched and her face seemed to be cold to the point of turning white, but she still stood in the same place stubbornly.

PEI Munian stood in the same place and stared at her pale face. Her thin lips were tightly pursed, but the expression on her face was darker than the dark night. He took long strides and walked over. Then, he grabbed su Wanwan's wrist and dragged her away.

Su Wanwan was already a little dazed from being drenched in the rain. Her wrist was suddenly grabbed and su Wanwan was stunned for a moment. She didn't react for a moment and was already taken away by a force. It was only when she was brought into the company by PEI Munian and into his office that he threw her onto the sofa with force that she suddenly quivered and regained her consciousness.

The man standing in front of her was also drenched in the rain. His hair was wet and water droplets kept dripping down onto the floor. In this quiet space, the sound made her inexplicably nervous.

PEI Munian's Black eyes were deep and serene, as if she couldn't see the bottom. Her whole body was shrouded in an extremely dangerous aura, which pressed directly on su Wan's heart, making her unconsciously shrink her body.

PEI Munian looked at her for a few seconds and coldly curled her lips. Her voice seemed to be even colder than the rain. su Wanwan, what exactly do you have to say so urgently? Do I need you to wait here in the rain? Who are you putting on a show for?"

PEI Munian's words made su Wan's heart unconsciously tremble again. Immediately after, she secretly despised herself for being useless. Clearly, there was no relationship of interest between them. Now they were equal, but she still maintained her cowardice in front of him.

Su Wanwan's hands clenched hard, her nails piercing into her palms. She forced herself to calm down. Only by being calm could she talk to PEI Munian better.

PEI Munian looked at su Wanwan sitting on the sofa in a daze. Her body was still trembling unconsciously. It was too dark just now, so she could only see that her face was a little pale. Now that the lights were on, her face was as pale as paper, without a trace of blood, and her lips were so cold that they were purple.

PEI Munian closed his eyes and took a deep breath. He turned around and walked to the cabinet at the side. He reached out and was about to take the folded towels down.

Before his hand could touch the towel, su Wanwan had already stood up. She looked up at PEI Munian, took a light breath, and said word by word, " PEI Munian, let's get a divorce.

She had brought up divorce with him many times, but this was the only time she was sure, sincere, and without any hesitation!

She knew that without love, their marriage would not have lasted long. However, at that time, she was trapped in her own extravagant hope. Even though she knew everything in her heart, she still tried to find a possibility. However, this time, that phone call had completely let her out of it. She had been trapped in herself for so long, and it was time for her to learn to let go of herself.

Su Wanwan pursed her lips and opened her mouth again. She repeated it seriously, " let's get a divorce.
