Su Wanwan lowered her head and her gaze fell on her lower abdomen. Her hand clenched tightly and finally, it slowly fell on her stomach.

In the dead of night, she placed her hand on her stomach as if she could feel the movement inside. Was her child greeting her?

Su Wanwan closed her eyes, and the bottom of her eyes was stained with a touch of moisture.

The voice in her dream still echoed in her ears, beating her heart over and over again. She didn't have a strong wall in her heart, so it was slowly crumbling.

Could she really give birth to him? However, she really wasn't confident that Yingluo could give him happiness.

Perhaps it was late at night, perhaps it was this dream, or perhaps it was sadness, but it made her feel very fragile at this moment. Her hand unconsciously picked up her phone and entered PEI Munian's phone number. Then, she subconsciously pressed the call button.

The du du du sound rang and echoed in this quiet space. Su Wan suddenly came back to her senses. She was shocked and quickly hung up the phone.

She wondered what she was doing. She actually called PEI Munian? Was she going to tell him that she had a child?

He hated her so much, but even if she had a child, he wouldn't want it. If she told him, she would only humiliate herself. Did she not do such things often? Why can't you remember the lesson!

But, but PEI Munian was still the child's father. He had the right to know.

She didn't want this child at first, but now that she was upset by this dream, she didn't know what to do. She wanted to continue to be cruel, but she couldn't. All his plans had been ruined by this child who had appeared out of nowhere.

She was now in a daze, lost, and at a loss.

Her gaze unconsciously fell on the phone again. If ... If PEI Munian saw the call she made, if he could call back and ask her what was going on, could she also ask him what he wanted to do with her child?

She had already decided to forget him, to divorce him, and to live her life well. However, plans could not keep up with changes. At such a fragile and lost time, the only person she wanted to rely on and the only person she could rely on seemed to be this man who hated her to the core.

It was not that she wanted to use this child to get back anything. It was just that she really needed someone to give her advice and point her in the right direction. PEI Munian, be it as a man or a father, was the person who had the most right to speak.

Su Wanwan was still letting her imagination run wild when her mobile phone suddenly rang.

Su Wanwan was shocked and her thoughts were pulled back in an instant. Her black eyes fell on the phone screen. PEI Munian's name was jumping on it. Su Wanwan's heart skipped a beat and her breathing stopped.

PEI Munian's call came back.

Su Wanwan's hand trembled. She swallowed hard, took a deep breath, and tried to calm herself down. Then, she pressed the button.

She placed the phone to her ear and was about to call out to PEI Munian. However, just as she was about to say the word 'PEI', the other party spoke before her. It was a female voice. Hello.

Just one word had crushed all the courage she had mustered up, as well as her temporary weakness.

Two days later, su Wanwan drove to the hospital.

Yu Jia looked at su Wan, who was sitting opposite him and was unusually calm. He was silent for a moment and lightly opened his mouth, " have you thought about it? "
