The helper walked to the balcony in the living room. After making sure that the conversation could not be heard in the room, she quickly made a phone call.

The phone only rang twice before it was connected. The auntie's expression became serious and respectful as she said, "Sir, miss su has moved into the apartment."

"Yes." A deep and pleasant voice came from the other end of the phone. how's her health? Do you look better?"

his face is still a little pale, but he seems to be in good spirits.

take care of her health. Make her some nutritious food and make her soup every day. Even if she doesn't have an appetite, you have to persuade her to eat more. Also, if her headache comes back, remember to help her to rest immediately. Don't let her fall. If she forgets, just pretend that you don't know. Don't remind her and don't make her sad.

The helper listened to the long-winded speech on the other end of the phone and couldn't help but be stunned. She had seen this man once. After miss su chose her, she was invited to a luxurious private room by someone who looked like an assistant and met him there.

It was a handsome and quiet man. He sat quietly on the sofa, exuding a cold aura that made people feel awed. He only sized her up a few times and said a few words. The rest of the things were given to her by the assistant.

She did not expect him to be so gentle, attentive, and considerate when it came to miss su.

The middle-aged woman's heart was about to melt.

"Alright, Sir, I'll remember everything," she nodded and said softly.

The man was silent for a moment, then lowered his voice and said, "if Yingluo's headache attacks frequently, or if she can't remember things, or if she has other symptoms, you must tell me immediately.

"Understood."

After hanging up the phone, PEI Munian put down her phone and looked up at the computer screen in front of her. On the big screen, a small picture was displayed. It was the scene of su Wanwan's new apartment.

PEI Munian's long fingers slid over the touch area and clicked on it. One of the images enlarged and su Wanwan was sitting on the bed. Perhaps she was tired from packing her things just now, she closed her eyes and fell asleep.

PEI Munian's Black eyes were fixed on her. She slowly reached out and touched her cheek gently through the screen.

He had never thought of giving up on su Wan, but Wanwan changed her way of protecting her.

Su Wanwan chose a suitable person to take care of the company's Affairs for her temporarily. After she handed over all the work, she didn't go to the company again but stayed in the apartment to take care of her baby.

She had used up too much energy in her body, so she had to take good care of it. Otherwise, she was afraid that her body wouldn't be able to support her until she gave birth to the child safely.

In the beginning, su Wanwan was worried that PEI Munian would suddenly go back on his word, drag her out again, and force her to abort the child. Occasionally, she would wake up in the middle of the night because of nightmares. But fortunately, PEI Munian did not appear again. As the days passed, her worries slowly relaxed. She thought that she was no longer an insignificant person to PEI Munian. He probably would not spend his time on her anymore. His thoughts should be on Xi Zhiwei now. After all, they were preparing to get married. He had to be busy with Xi Zhiwei's grand wedding.

However, there was one thing that was particularly strange.
