387 The worst case scenario (7)

During this period of time, PEI Munian had been recuperating in the hospital. Initially, his injuries were not that serious, but because he had run out for a night, it caused his wound to be infected, so he could only lie on the bed and recuperate.

Although he couldn't always be by su Wanwan's side like usual, he still watched su Wanwan's every move through the camera and aunt Zhang would report her situation to him at a fixed time every day.

PEI Munian looked at su Wanwan's peaceful and quiet face through the screen. The corners of her lips couldn't help but curve up, and her heart also calmed down. Being by su Wanwan's side, no matter what method he used, he would always have a kind of peaceful and good feeling.

Her phone rang, but PEI Munian still looked at it longingly for a while before she clicked to exit the screen and opened the message.

The text message was sent by Auntie Zhang, reminding him that tomorrow was the day of su Wan's three-month pregnancy test.

The smile on PEI Munian's lips slowly faded. Time had passed so quickly. In the blink of an eye, three months had passed, and the time he could endure had come to an end.

PEI Munian closed her eyes and opened them again. Her eyes were so dark that they seemed bottomless.

His fingers moved and he dialed a number. After the call connected, he opened his mouth and said in a cold voice, pausing after each word, "are you ready?"

"I'm ready."

The next day, Auntie Zhang accompanied su Wanwan to do a pregnancy test.

Su Wanwan cooperated and did all kinds of examinations. When she lay on the bed and saw the computer screen showing the scene of the child in her stomach, her beautiful eyes opened wide and stared fixedly, her heart thumping.

That was her child, Yingluo.

The doctor looked at su Wanwan's appearance and was also used to it. Basically, all parents who saw this scene would feel that it was magical and emotional, and then they would look at it without taking their eyes off it.

The doctor pushed the device on su Wan's stomach. Su Wanwan could see the embryonic form of her child. The head, body, limbs, curled up together, a small ball.

Su Wanwan looked at it and her heart softened like a pool of water. Her black eyes were bright and full of energy.

Even though she could only see a vague outline, her mind was already automatically filled with the child's appearance. Her child would definitely be the most beautiful child in the world.

PEI Munian stood at the door and looked inside through the crack. He saw su Wanwan's happy face and her eyes that were full of anticipation. He subconsciously wanted to look at the computer screen.

However, in less than a second, he suddenly lowered his eyes and stopped himself from looking. However, the restlessness in his heart continued to urge him and beat him.

The hands hanging by his sides slowly clenched. The light in his eyes was hesitant and struggling. In the end, he turned around resolutely and cut off his thoughts.

After su Wanwan finished her B-scan, she thought that all the tests were over. However, the doctor said, "miss su, you still need to do another test."

Su Wanwan got up from the bed. She first tidied up her dress and then said in surprise, "Doctor, isn't the examination already done? What else do you need to do?"

"Oh, it's like this. Didn't you have a threatened miscarriage before? Also, when I did the examination just now, I found that the child seemed to have some problems, so I need to do a more detailed examination."

The doctor said, then added a medical term.
