

The Desires of the King

The Sensual and scary bath in the River

Rajvardhan POV

"I am a Princess, I don't need anyone's permission to meet anyone. And I think you forgot that you came running to marry me and I am just fulfilling my duties. She is your sister and Maa saheb is like my mother. And for your kind information, I am the Wedded Princess of this Royal Now. I can meet whoever I want to"

Her powerful words brought a smirk to my lips. "Ohh Really, So you accept that you are my wife?"

"You asked me before putting vermilion on my head? This question doesn't matter now." She replied looking into my eyes with a little hurt.

Why was she so much challenging and difficult to control. She was better at sleep. I thought she should sleep more than roaming around.

"By the way, why you wore Red? You know I love red and told you that it attracts me. Do you want to seduce me?" I asked her flirtily.

Her face turned shy and she looked around not meeting my eyes. And replied softly.

"I think you didn't look closely. It's not Red it's Blue. And let me remind you again. I will wear whatever I want, I don't need anyone's permission." She replied without looking into my eyes but without any fear. But there was no anger only a reply to my questions.

"Your skirt is Red," I said looking at her plain skirt. The plain cotton clothes were revealing much of her. She was just wearing bangles and simple nosering.

She felt shied instantly and the realization hit me. The conversation was going to the wrong side and left her hand instantly. I ran fingers through my hair while saying.

"We have to go"

I moved out and we both were ready in simple and plainclothes like normal people without royals, jewelry, and anything else.

After taking blessings of the Royal teachers, father and mother I sat on the horse and looked at her sitting in the carriage.

I signaled the servants and other people to move and we started our journey to the Temple of our Family lord.

The sun was shining brightly and we were moving slowly with around fifty peoples. everything was simple.

We moved through the rocky paths of forests, roads, and sun that almost came to set after the full-day journey.

The temple was still a few days ago and we had to stop to rest at night. Moving during the night was a risky idea and we were not carrying any weapons for safety.

I looked around for a better location and my sight fell on the place nearby the river. The place was beautiful and I announced.

"We will stay here for the night, Fix the tents here" Everyone stopped nearby the river and started fixing the tents for stay. I looked at Abhishree's carriage as she stepped out. She was smiling beautifully looking around.

I walked to her as she looking at the orange and red clouds near sunset. "It's beautiful," she said excitedly with a smile.

She playfully walked near the river and laughed "It's a River"

I wondered why she was behaving strangely and I couldn't stop myself from asking.

"Haven't you see it before"

She looked at me in embarrassment and answered "No, Bhai Saheb never allowed me to be outside the Palace. He was so protective of me," she said softly and her face turned sad as she discussed her brother.

My curiosity in his brother was getting intense with each and every new knowledge. What type of brother he was who didn't allow her own sister to go out. Strange...

We both stood in silence there and looked at the sunset until the Tents were fixed. I looked around and the servants already started making meals after collecting thin woods and dry leaves as fuel.

The darkness started to climb and cold breezes started hitting the skin through our thin cotton clothes.

I looked at her as she throws her long braid behind and still smiling and looking around. She fixed her blue-colored dupatta which was trying to blow away with the air and I was trying to ignore looking at the beauty standing with me.

I was tired with the journey and the Bath in the river was the best option before dinner. I looked around and everyone was busy with their works. The tent's entrance was opposite side and everyone was there too making a meal and helping each other.

There was no one to watch. I pulled the hem of the Kurta and in one swift took it out letting the cold breezes hit my body. I ran fingers through my hairs and almost ready to dive in chilling water.

"What are you doing?" She asked looking at me with big eyes in shock.

"I am going inside the water," I replied with a smirk and without any more glare run and dived in the water.

I went inside and came over the water level. It was cold and chilling and my body took a few moments to adjust to the cold. But I feel so relaxed and fresh. The water was awesome and so deep. I had to move my feet a little to stay above.

I heard her laughing and I smiled. she was laughing looking at me.

"Are you enjoying it?" She asked like a child and I replied.

I didn't know what bond we started to share but I liked her laughing. Monstrous laughter...

"Very much, It's awesome" I replied running fingers through my hairs and going inside and coming out of the water once again.

"I want to come inside too," She said like a child and a shiver ran through my spine.

My smile vanished all of sudden. I looked at her but before I could say or do anything she jumped in the water. Shit...

She jumped and went inside the water, I waited for her to come above the water but she took a few minutes and my stomach started twisting differently. I swam to her as she jumped far away from me and tensely went inside the water. I tried to look for her but I couldn't catch her. She was so stupid. She would get a punishment for this for sure.

I still couldn't find her and my heart started beating madly. i scared to death. Where the hell she went? I came over the water level to breathe. I placed my hand on the heart and wondered why it's beating that madly.

Ignoring it I went inside once again. I wanted her back. Please...

I ran my hands here and there to catch and then suddenly my hand touched something soft. I grabbed her waist by pulling closer and brought us above water level.

She was breathing hard with an open mouth and started coughing, choking the water out. Something hurt in me looking at her but anger took over me.

I tighter my grip around her waist and pulled her closer. She placed her hands on my shoulder still struggling to breathe. Her cheeks turned pink and lip Red.

"Are you mad? Don't you know swimming?" I roared on her and she closed her eyes trying to catch her breath. Her breast was doing up down in a red blouse and my sight fell on the water that was dripping through her neck and mixing in the water of the river.

I started patting her back in the water pulling her a more closer and she snaked her hand under my arm tightening the grip.

I took her in my embrace and stroked on her back with my palm to calm her down and she placed her head on my shoulder feeling weak all of sudden.

"Why you jumped if you don't know swimming," I asked her calmly and she opened her eyes looking at me.

"I don't know a lot of things" She inhaled a breath and continued. "But that doesn't mean that I will never learn"

A smirk appeared on my face. Tigress... And I didn't know why I felt her words so damn sexy.

"Are you okay now?" I asked her calmly.

She nodded and we both looked at each other.

We both sank into each other eyes in the cold and chilling water with the breezes making it colder.

I wondered why she was so stubborn and wild all the time. Her hair was dripping the water and she was looking like a beautiful goddess in water under dim light coming from the heading moon.

The realization hit me when she protested a little and I loosened my grip.

"By the way, you should have remembered your vows before catching me." She said sarcastically and moved away swimming perfectly to the bank of the river.

I was so stunned. She knew swimming.

What the hell was happening?