

Desperation 110

Chapter 110

Hearing it, Jaden was stunned for a moment before he became overjoyed. "Thank goodness! You've finally decided not to help the Ramos Group. anymore! Because you wanted to help the Ramos Group, you made their inferior clothing brand a part of the Millein Fashion Association last year. But this is an association that consists of reputable international brands. from all over the world, so what you did has entirely lowered the association's standard! I was really devastated!"

Ashley pressed her lips.

At that time, she had wanted to do her best to help the Ramos Group, but in the end, she realized she had been too naive.

Still unconvinced, Jaden asked again to make sure, "Have you thought it through? If the most distinguished association in the fashion industry. officially and publicly removed the Ramos Group, it would be equivalent. to sending a message to the whole industry that the Ramos Group's brand has been sanctioned. Will you regret it?"

'Regret?'"

Ashley said expressionlessly, "The Ramos Group is the one being sanctioned."

Once Ashley hung up the phone, she began to think about the Ramos Group's entertainment company.

Previously, the most popular and renowned artist of the Ramos Group's entertainment company was Matthew

Now that Matthew's stardom was ruined, Frankie would definitely find way to bring fame to the other artists in the company, let them take ove Matthew's position, and make the Ramos Group's entertainment. company rise again.

Ashley sneered in her heart, 'Let it rise again? In your dreams.

Ashley searched online and found that among the artists in the Ramos. Group's entertainment company, one with the biggest potential to become famous was a five-member boy band.

Frankie must have placed his hope on those five people.

Meanwhile, Frankie was sitting in front of the computer in the Ramos. Villa's study with a deep frown.

The Internet was flooded with unpleasant news about him being jailed. and the Ramos Group.

He thought in puzzlement, 'What's going on? Hasn't all the unpleasant news been suppressed? Why is it all over the Internet again?"

Suddenly, the phone beside him rang, and Frankie answered the call.

"Mr. Ramos, this is bad!"

Frankie furrowed his brows even deeper. "What's wrong?"

The person on the other end of the phone said urgently, "The Millein Fashion Association has just issued a formal stent that it will remove the Ramos Group's clothing brand from the list!"

Frankie abruptly stood up from his chair. "How did it happen?!"

Back then, the Ramos Group was somehow lucky enough to join the Millein Fashion Association, the most distinguished association in the fashion industry.

Because of this, the grade of the Ramos Group's clothing brand had increased a lot, and the brand became a mid to high-end brand.

But why was it suddenly removed from the list today?

The person on the other end of the phone said, "Mr. Ramos, after we were removed from the Millein Fashion Association, the Millein Fashion Week, an event to which we received the invitation last month, also ser an official letter saying...we are no longer allowed to participate."

In short, it seemed that the Ramos Group's clothing brand had been sanctioned.

Therefore, they could no longer participate in fashion weeks or fashion design competitions. From now on, the Ramos Group would have no chance of having anything to do with fashion anymore.

If this continued, the Ramos Group's clothing brand would be unable to develop.

It would be just the same as waiting to die.

Frankie slammed his fist on the table and cursed inwardly, 'Damn it, how did it come to this?"

Suddenly, yet another call came in. Once Frankie picked up, the person on the other end shouted, "Mr. Ramos, bad news!"

That sentence was what Frankie hated to hear the most right now. His face livid, he asked, "What happened?"

The person on the other end said anxiously. "Something happened to the most popular artists in our entertainment company.

Please come over!"

Thirty minutes later, in the backstage lounge of a music competition show.

Frankie looked at the five boys before him coldly.

They were the members of a five-member boy band. Although they were only C-list stars, they were already the most famous artists in the company.

Frankie said sternly, "Haven't we talked about this? As the largest investor, I can decide for you to get first place in this music competition. Once you become the champion, you will gain more fame, and offers for endorsement ads will also come afterward."

It would help the company earn more money, as what the Ramos Group lacked the most now was the circulating capital.

The eldest member of the five-member boy band said timidly. "But there were seniors who are more talented and capable than us in this music competition. If we were decided to get the first place, the audience would definitely bash us."

Besides, they didn't want to get a fake first place at all.

Frankie didn't care, as he was only interested in profit. "So what if you get bashed? Only the first place will become the winner.

Also, your management contracts are about to expire. As long as you get the first place, the company will renew your contracts as soon as possible."

Suddenly, the door to the lounge opened, and the show director walked in.

He cheerfully said, "I'm sorry, Mr. Ramos, but allow me to introduce you. This is the newest and also the largest investor of our show."

Once the director finished speaking, he stepped aside.

Frankie looked over with a frown.

Then, he saw Ashley, who was wearing a smart suit, walking in on her high heels with Joseph beside her.

Upon seeing Ashley, the look of hatred and disgust suddenly appeared on Frankie's face.

It was all Ashley's fault that he was jailed and that the Ramos Group also fell even more.

However, what Frankie minded about the most now was the new investor the director had just mentioned. Had the director meant Joseph?

Yet, the next second, the director introduced to Frankie, "Mr. Ramos, Ms. Ashley Ramos is now the largest investor in our show."

Startled, Frankie widened his eyes in disbelief.

How was it possible?

"Ashley, you..."

Unlike Frankie's flustered look, Ashley smiled charmingly with those red lips and said, "Can't accept that I'm richer than you?"

Joseph finally realized that everything Ashley did was clearly to make the Ramos Group go bankrupt.

Ashley casually glanced over the five-member boy band before finally looking at the director standing on the side. "You just said that you had no choice but to designate this boy band to get the first place due to the pressure of a certain investor. So what about now?"

The director immediately smiled and said, "Since you are our largest investor now, of course, you have the final say."

Ashley said, "Then compete as how it should be. Winners that have been decided internally will never be able to win the first place."

Frankie glared intently at Ashley.

Frankie thought bitterly, 'Did she come here intentionally to ruin everything?'

Damn it! I need these boys to win this competition and become a huge hit! They're the only hope to bring my entertainment company back to life, yet Ashley chose to interfere!

"Why is Ashley suddenly targeting the Ramos Group?"