

Divorce Has Never Felt This Good

Chapter 296

Chapter 296 Don't Make The Same Mistake

*As much as she tried to, Becky couldn't hold back the tears that threatened to fall out. She was not a sentimental person. She seldom cried since childhood. Even after her divorce from Rory, Becky didn't shed a single tear. How did Devin succeed in making her cry with just a few words? The way Rory and his family treated her during the three years she was married to him robbed her of her self-confidence even long after the marriage was over. She had never been able to figure out where she had done wrong for Rory, a warm and kind-hearted young man, to treat her so indifferently and show her no sign of affection throughout their three years of marriage. So when Rory confessed to loving her last night, she was surprised and confused. She had loved Rory all through her youth, but after what happened between them, she regained her senses and was no longer the love-sick puppy she used to be. She was so vulnerable that she got drunk and broke down last night. She was confused, yes, but she wasn't going to make the same mistake twice. As the adage said, once bitten twice shy. She had made a horrible mistake all those years ago. She had brought that suffering upon herself, and then endured it for three whole years. If she went back with Rory now, it would mean she didn't love her life. Suddenly, a plane flew by, the noise pulling Becky out of her thoughts. She sighed, wiped away her tears, and folded the note. This was one of the best gifts she had received, and she was going to treasure it. Love wasn't the only thing that life rotated around. There was also career and family to think about. While she was drunk last night, Becky had a lot of conflicting thoughts in her mind. She chose to believe that it was the alcohol talking, because now that she was sober, she knew exactly what she wanted, and Rory wasn't in the picture. She had other important and big projects to focus on. Rory's late and ridiculous love wasn't going to do her much good. All she could rely on right now was money. *When they completed these projects, Fairway Group would be earning millions of dollars more every day.

She was very proud and happy about it, and that was all she needed. "Miss Ramos," a voice said from outside the office. "Come in, Talia," Becky said. Talia walked in and placed something on the table. "This is the video of Betsy that was recorded that night." Becky nodded in appreciation. She liked having something on people. Just in case of anything, she had asked Talia to install surveillance cameras in the hotel room that day. "Keep it well for now. We might need it one day," Becky said to Talia. She wasn't interested in prying into other people's sex life. With a curt nod, Talia took back the U disk, but she didn't leave immediately. After hesitating for a while, she said, "There is one more thing." Becky couldn't help but laugh at Talia's hesitation. It was uncharacteristic of her to look so reluctant to say or do something. "What's wrong, Talia? Just say whatever you want to say and stop hovering." Talia shook her head. She didn't know how to express it. "Well... I heard that Elmore went to Bluepond. He's prepared gifts and is going to visit your parents." "Really? He can do whatever he wants. My parents will never agree with him." Did Elmore think her parents were stupid? Talia nodded. Elmore was really annoying, but they could do nothing to stop him from visiting Stevie. Becky's face folded into a small frown as she thought of the annoying old man. She didn't know how she was going to do it, but she needed to deal with him accordingly. annoying old man. She didn't know how she was going to do it, but she needed to deal with him accordingly.
