

Divorce Has Never Felt This Good

Chapter 104

Chapter 104 Young And Stupid

Talia had figured out that Denise used to bully Becky a lot. So when Talia saw Denise in their company, her expression darkened. Talia was actually glad to hear that Becky didn't want to see Denise.

"Okay, Miss Ramos." Talia nodded and went to deal with Denise.

Denise had been waiting in the lobby of Fairway Group for about half an hour. When she arrived, Becky's secretary told her that Becky was in a meeting, so she had no choice but to wait.

In all her years on this earth, she had never waited for anyone.

So, in her eyes, waiting for Becky meant that she was being sincere.

The elevator doors slid open and Talia, Becky's secretary, came out.

Denise stood up and sauntered over to Talia with an arrogant air. "Where is Becky?"

Talia looked at her expressionlessly and said in a flat voice, "I'm sorry but Miss Ramos has a full schedule today and can't spare the time to see you."

Indignant, Denise's eyes went as wide as saucers. She snapped, "I just need five minutes of her damn time. Can't she give me that?"

Talia remained unfazed. "I'm sorry."

If it was in the past, Denise would've bypassed Talia and gone to see Becky regardless.

But now, everyone knew that Becky was Steve's daughter and that the Ramos family was even more powerful than the Casper family. Before Denise came here, Elmore repeatedly warned her to swallow her pride and apologize to Becky.

Standing there, Denise gritted her teeth and Talia could see the shifting emotions in her eyes. Finally, she could do nothing but ask, "Then when is Becky free? This evening? I can invite her have dinner with me."

But Talia still shook her head. "I'm sorry."

Hearing Talia's fake apology, Denise almost cursed her on the spot. Swallowing her anger, she hissed through gritted teeth, "Then I'll get going."

Without waiting for a response, she turned around and left in a huff, her high heels clacking against the floor.

After she left, Becky came downstairs. She had a lunch appointment to go to.

Talia briefly told her what just happened, which made Becky smile. "Okay, leave her alone."

It was high time Denise knew what it felt like to be given the cold shoulder.

After Becky had married into the Casper family, she had wanted to get along with Denise, but the latter had always been cold and made things difficult for Becky again.

Talia nodded. "Copy, Miss Ramos."

The two of them shrugged the matter regarding Denise off and headed to the car.

The driver was already waiting for them, with the car parked at the entrance of the Fairway Group building. As soon as the two walked out, they saw the car and the driver.

But they didn't expect to see Denise.

Denise was about to call her bestie to rant about Becky, but when she picked up her phone, she saw Becky coming out of the building. With a guilty conscience, she put away her phone and ran towards her. "Becky!"

Becky glanced at her indifferently. "What?"

"I'm here to apologize. I was young and stupid. Please forgive me," Denise said as she handed several gift bags to Becky.

Young and stupid?

If Becky's memory served her right, Denise was around the same age as her.

Becky couldn't help but burst into laughter. "Weren't you born in February? I was born in September."

In fact, Becky was younger than Denise by half a year!

Becky chuckled. Ridiculous!
