

Divorce Has Never Felt This Good

Chapter 106

Chapter 106 I Just Don't Like You

After Talia left, Babette became bolder. "I didn't mean whatever I said. I only said those words to get you upset. I didn't expect you to misunderstand Rory and me. Anyway, Rory feels nothing for you. He only married you to please his family."

Babette flashed a smug smile. "Rory was with someone else last night and not me. But I guess you wouldn't mind since you and Rory are divorced."

"Are you done?" Becky asked nonchalantly.

The sarcasm in Becky's tone froze Babette for a while. "I am."

"You are right; I don't care about anything about Rory since we're divorced. You shouldn't have bothered yourself saying this to me. Why don't you go and tell the two receptionists?"

In the past, Becky would have looked hurt over Babette's words. But this time was different. Becky not only found her words irrelevant but also mocked her in return.

Babette was stunned when she heard Becky's words. For a while, words failed her. When she came back to her senses, she said, "You are more confident now, Becky."

Babette looked up and saw the elevator doors open with a ding. She saw Rory coming out and looked back at Becky. "Now, let's see who Rory will believe."

After speaking, Babette raised her hand as though she wanted to slap Becky. Becky raised her eyebrow and grabbed her wrist immediately.

The next second, Babette slapped herself in the face.

Becky's jaw dropped as she saw Babette's bloodshot eyes. She thought Babette must be crazy.

If Babette had gone into acting, she would have made a good actress.

"Becky, why did you hit me?" Babette asked.

She had slapped herself so loud that it caught the attention of those around them.

Rory also heard the sound of the slap and his face went cold. He hastened his steps toward Becky and Babette. Becky was confused initially, but when she traced Babette's gaze and turned her head, she saw Rory walking toward them with a cold gaze.

Immediately, she understood why Babette slapped herself.

Becky laughed at her stupidity. When Rory arrived, Becky quickly raised her hand and slapped Babette on the other side of her cheek. She turned toward Rory afterward and said with a soft grin, "Yes, I slapped her."

After a brief silence, she added, "Are you going to slap me on her behalf?"

Rory's face was as dark as ink.

Babette, on the other hand, was dumfounded.

She couldn't believe that Becky just slapped her.

And she did it right in front of Rory.

The slap made Babette face sting, and the buzz in her ear wouldn't stop. Noticing that everyone was looking at her, she gritted her teeth and said to Rory, "Don't blame Becky. It's just a slight misunderstanding."

Becky was tired of Babette's hypocrisy. In the past, she had hoped that Rory would believe her instead of Babette, but now, she didn't give a damn about what he would think.

Becky flashed her a wicked smile. "No, Babette. I slapped you simply because I don't like you. We didn't have any misunderstandings."

After saying that, she walked away from them and headed toward Talia.
