

Divorcement 3

Chapter 003 Jerk in Calsis's Residence

Charlie Calsis saw the acupuncturist standing at the door blankly and he broke the silence, "What's your name?" His voice was attractive but also reverential and dignified. Theresa lowered her head. She thought that she was being impolite when she stared blankly at him. She answered, "I am Theresa Cameron. It is my name card."

"Dr. Cameron, you may begin." Said Charlie in a low and calm voice. He took her name card but he didn't read it. Theresa cast him a glance and put her kit on the ground. She wasn't an acupuncturist at first. When she was pregnant with Leonard and Ben, she quit her job and planned to take care of the children at home whole-heartedly. After the boys were born, she apprenticed herself with Leo, who was the grandfather of a friend of Cristina.

Later, Leo found Theresa talented in acupuncture and passed on all his knowledge on acupuncture to her. Leo could be considered as an authority on acupuncture. Many people trusted in his skills.

But he was getting older and didn't have that much of energy to treat as many people. It wasn't the first time that Theresa had done acupuncture, but she was extremely nervous today, especially when Charlie's assistant Jonathan was still staring at her as if she was to hurt Charlie. Fortunately, the treatment rounded off. Theresa finally breathed a sigh of relief. While putting away her things, she said, "It's best to keep the length of one acupuncture around half an hour. I will come again in the evening. When I inserted the needle in, I found Mr. Calsis's muscle is very taut. It is probably because the muscle has not yet completely recovered from its injuries caused by the car accident. Keep the acupuncture for a week, and it should get better."

"Get better?" Said Jonathan who was standing aside. He looked at Theresa in disbelief and doubted whether she was talking nonsense.

asked in confusion, "Didn't you ask joy on his face. He cast Master Calsis a glance surprisingly and continued to speak to Theresa, "If Mr. cure Master Calsis. But he didn't expect that luck actually came to them. He just hoped that this Dr. Careron wasn't boasting for better asked, "Have you had breakfast? You can have some before leaving." "I'm good." Said Theresa, "Cristina is waiting for me. I gotta go. I'll

the traffic

place. The taxi driver dropped her at the backdoor and now only regretted that she didn't get the ownership of the house when she divorced him. She had just given birth to two children at that time. She was in and his wife Rose were visiting Rose's grandfather. He didn't expect to run into Theresa at this place. After seeing Theresa, his face darkened. What is this woman doing here? Is she taking her revenge after she knew I am marrying Rose? His new wife had a great family background. If Theresa dared to ruin his marriage, he would also make her young lady from a wealthy family.