

Divorcement 301

Chapter 301

"Yes." Theresa said: "I was also surprised when I first met Charlie. I didn't expect Charlie to be the father of the child. I have to say that it is really destined! So, Dad, I am now There's no way I'm going to leave the Calsis family unless I don't want these two kids."

Johnson listened to her answer and fell silent.

He originally thought about letting Theresa leave the Calsis family and completely cut ties with Charlie.

But unexpectedly, Theresa's two children turned out to be Charlie's.

This is the end of the matter, there is no way to force her anymore.

"What do you want me to say about you?"

Is this the evil fate?

Theresa looked at her father and said, "Actually, Charlie is quite a nice person. You'll know it after you get in touch with him. Dad, you just need to take care of yourself and take care of your health. Let me take care of the rest."

She knew that her father was worried about him, so she dispelled all doubts in his heart.

The point is that now, she doesn't want to talk to him at all, and won't let him into the ward, so he can only stay outside. Theresa said: "Jimmy, your child is gone, you should blame yourself. You don't accumulate virtue, this is your retribution!" Jimmy heard her words, he was so angry that he grabbed her neck directly, "What did you say?"

"Mr. Shen." Seeing this scene, Brenda also widened her eyes in surprise.

Unexpectedly, Jimmy would actually attack Theresa...

Theresa looked at him and said with a smile: "You do it, strangle me, I want to see, do you dare!"

Jimmy said: "Why don't I dare, Theresa, I have never seen such a vicious woman like you!"

She knew Rose was there and said those words on purpose.

After beating Jimmy, Pat raised his head and his gaze fell on Theresa, almost equally cold.

He opened his mouth and said meaningfully: " Miss Cameron."

Pat looked at her and smiled, "You are Charlie's wife and another woman, I won't fight with you. But... your family should Theresa had no choice but to get out of his company. She took the subway and went back to the Camerons. After getting off the subway and running all the way back, she was amazed to see the house was in a mess and all the furniture was smashed to pieces.

At this time, Robert and the maids were helping to tidy up. Johnson was sitting on the sofa with a head wound while Leah was crying to help him clean the wound on his head.

Was this the 'gift' from Pat? Thinking of this, Theresa was white and trembling with anger. She asked, "What's going on here?"

Robert said, "A group of people burst into the house and smashed all the furniture up. We have called the police. and they were taken away."

Theresa said, "It seems that I have to prepare it by myself?"

Jonathan looked at Theresa and said, "Ms. Cameron, Mr. Calsis has been waiting for your call all day long. He's a little moody, but he still cares about you."

"Shut up." Theresa interrupted Jonathan, "Do you know that I have called him several times today?"

Jonathan nodded, "Yes, I know."

"But he didn't answer!" Theresa would always remember how desperate she felt when she couldn't find him.

Charlie felt it was shameful that he could only force her not to divorce him in this way. He was sure that once he agreed to sign this agreement, she would leave decisively.

Theresa was amazed by his words and sneered, “I really didn’t expect that you are such a shameless person!”

“Yes!” Charlie simply didn’t even deny it anymore, “If I hadn’t met you, I wouldn’t have known that I could be so shameless!”

Theresa was bored talking to him, so she put down the mouse and stood up, ready to leave the study.

Roderick persuaded, “I can give you advice if you are in trouble.”

“Thanks, but I am okay.”

Roderick could sense her bad mood through the phone, but gave up persuading her into telling what happened. After talking with her for a while, he hung up the phone.

Theresa glanced at his legs on the wheelchair.

Sensing her hesitation, Charlie asked, “Is there any problem? You have told me that I can stand up one day. Is that a lie?”

She put a strand of her hair behind her ear and lay on the sofa again. "Nothing wrong. Now just keep quiet. I am taking a rest." She was not as emotional as last night. After a few seconds, she heard someone knocking at the door. Before she stood up to answer the door, she saw him going to open it in his wheelchair. 'He has always
