Chapter 321 The Quarrel Between Jimmy and Theresa

“Jonathan, this is Theresa. Could you ask Charlie whether I can continue to look after the kids?” Theresa was worried because she had been responsible to pick up her sons, but this time Mrs. Calsis did that in place of her.

Jonathan said, “Madam, Mr. Calsis said that you should take a good rest in the Camerons since you are not quite happy recently. It is also convenient for you to look after Mr. Cameron. As for the kids, he has arranged for others to take care of them, so don’t worry.”

Charlie didn’t know that the kids were Theresa’s natural sons, so after the quarrel, he didn’t want her to look after them.

Theresa was irritated, feeling it was kind of difficult to breathe. ‘What the hell is he talking about? They are my Cristina was busy with work when her boss came over.

Her boss said, "Cristina."

She raised her head. "Yes?"

"Someone needs your help. Go and pack your purse."

"Who is it?"

"Just go."

"So I don't need to work now? I haven't finished my work today." As a white-collar, she was used to working long hours. So she was unwilling to leave her work and went to see someone. But at last, her boss pushed her out of the company. When she came out of the building, she saw a man from the Calsis.

Seeing her, the man said, "Hello, Ms. Lagarde."

Leonard and Ben looked up immediately. When they saw Cristina, their faces fell. Leonard looked away poker face. Both of them were still unhappy even though Cristina showed up. They wanted to see Theresa.

Jonathan was dazed by the scene. 'What's going on? Cristina is their natural mother. Why are they so cold?'

Cristina was afraid that Jonathan sensed something strange, so she walked into the room and said, "Hey, my good boys. Aren't you happy to see me? I came here without having dinner. So you just show me your cold faces? Do you dislike me because I have left you long?"

Jonathan breathed a sigh of relief. 'Maybe they are cranky because Cristina hasn't come to see them long.'

Cristina looked back at Jonathan. "Hey, prepare some food for me and my sons. We are all hungry." "My godsons are like my natural sons.' She thought.

Jonathan nodded and walked away.

Cristina stood up and locked the door. After that, she stared at the kids who were

Theresa hadn't expected that Cristina would guess it right so quickly. She said, "I will talk with you later." Cristina knew that Theresa didn't want her kids to get worried so she avoided talking about it when the kids were around. Cristina then nodded. "Okay. Just talk with Leonard and Ben. They must be hungry now. But they keep refusing to eat."

"Listen, Leonard, Ben." Theresa tried to persuade them into staying in the Calsis and obeying Cristina.

Finally, the kids were willing to have dinner.

Jonathan asked the servants to bring some food to the kids' bedroom. After the servants put the dishes on the table, Cristina and the kids began to have their dinner.

Standing at the door, Mrs. Calsis and Jonathan both heaved a sigh of relief. Then they left.

Keith was also in the Calsis because Roderick asked him to give Charlie the acupuncture treatment. After he finished, he was ready to leave.

Hearing Johnson's words, Theresa was dazed for a few seconds. Then she asked, "You want to see them?" Johnson said, "I haven't had a meal with them." Since he met the kids in the car, he had had dreams about them.

“Okay.” Theresa smiled. She had heard of her kids from her father frequently these days. “I will bring them here.” “Is it so hard for me to see my grandsons?” Sensing Theresa’s hesitation, he asked, “Is there anything wrong between you and Charlie? Doesn’t he allow you to see the kids?” He was clear that Theresa wouldn’t leave her kids for so long, so he had some guesses.

Theresa looked at him. “I am going to divorce him. It won’t take long to finish all the relevant procedures. After I get divorced, I can stay with the kids.”

“But you told me that you wouldn’t divorce him in such a hurry,” said he. “What’s going on?” He was sure that something went wrong.

Theresa gave a little cough to draw their attention.

When Jimmy saw her, his face fell. ‘Shit. Why is she here? Is she a stalker? Does she want me to go to hell?’ When Rose saw her, her eyes turned red with fires of anger. She had forgotten Theresa these days since Theresa was not in the Calsis. But now she became angry at her again. She took back her hand from Jimmy’s and said, “Jimmy, I know why you are here. You must be waiting for her.”

“No! That’s not possible.” Jimmy felt helpless. ‘I don’t want to see her.’ Thinking for a while, he pointed at Theresa and said, “Honey, she must follow me secretly. Trust me, I don’t know she is here too.” Then he glared at Theresa fiercely. “Theresa, is it funny? I am fed up with your little tricks. Could you please stop? Even Charlie doesn’t want you. I think you should reflect on yourself.”

“My little tricks? What?”

“Charlie doesn’t want you anymore, so you turn to me so cheekily. I can see you through. Listen, Rose is the only

Theresa was still angry at Pat because although Charlie had said sorry to her for Pat, Pat didn’t apologize. ‘It’s he that crossed the line first. It’s reasonable for me to revenge.

Looking at Theresa, Jimmy laughed. “You are mad, Theresa.”

“No, you are mad. I am just an ordinary person.” She said in her heart. ‘You are the most shameless one in the world.’

Rose was so outraged that she even felt out of breath.

Suddenly. Theresa’s phone rang. It was Ronald’s assistant calling. After Theresa answered the phone, soon a woman walked over and asked, “Are you Theresa?”

Theresa nodded and immediately stood up. “Yes, nice to meet you.”

Rose looked at the assistant for a while and said, “Hi, Annie.”

Staring at them, Theresa said, "Well, well. Jimmy, you are like a dog in front of Rose." Then she stood up and walked away.

Jimmy looked back at Rose. "She is so arrogant. I will never fall in love with her, trust me, honey."

Rose just gave him a glance and said, "I've got to leave. My friend is waiting for me.

"Let me accompany you, please."

"No."

"Okay, I will wait for you outside the restaurant," said Jimmy. But at last, he followed her in.

Theresa got back in the car and called Cristina. She was going to see her children. Cristina also promised to bring the children out to see her.

At this time, the mobile phone rang. It was Annie. “Ms. Cameron.”

Theresa said, “What can I do for you?”

Theresa knew it was Annie who refused her because of Rose.

Theresa knew that Annie just tried to please Rose.

This is the real world.

Only when you have your status can others think highly of you.

Annie said, “Have you gone? I’m waiting for you at the hotel. It was my fault. I’m so sorry, but please help

Theresa was a little surprised. Why did Annie suddenly change her attitude?

“I’m busy now. I’m on my way back.”

Theresa was still in the hotel parking lot, but she did not want to go back. After all, Annie did not care about her Unexpectedly, Jimmy saw Theresa come in with Annie.

To his surprise, Annie was polite to Theresa.

Jimmy stared at them in surprise.

When Annie entered the restaurant, Rose saw her immediately, “Annie.”

Rose waved because she thought Annie came to find her. However, she soon found that Theresa came in with Annie.

Rose looked at them vigilantly. “Why is she here?”

Annie said, “I treat Theresa to lunch here. Excuse me.”

Annie glanced at Rose and asked Theresa to sit down on the other side.

Rose looked at Annie and frowned. What's the matter?

Did she make a mistake in her memory?

She clearly remembered that Theresa left with anger.
