

Divorcement 521

Chapter 521

Since the Calsis family wouldn't let him go to the company, he could go to their rival company.

It just so happened that a senior had hopped from the company to White's Group before and was doing well there.

When drinking with the senior last night, the senior told Jimmy that Dick was Charlie's arch rival. If he worked for Dick, even Charlie couldn't do anything to him.

He also thought it was good because then he wouldn't have to go to Nandlall's to take Charlie's wrath. Yes, he was Rose's husband and Pat's son-in-law, but Charlie and Pat were brothers growing up together. Eric was about to say something else when Jimmy said, "That's it!"

Rosales glanced at her son, Jimmy. Since he had made up his mind, she didn't want to say more, and they just accept the fact.

When they finished eating, everyone stood up. Seeing Rosales ready to put away the bowls, Rose followed her and stood up, saying, "Mom, let me help you!"

Usually, Rosales would never let her do this, always saying that her hands should not do this kind of rough

"Just what?" Jimmy stared at her closely.

She suddenly felt a little aggrieved, "I've never done it, and thought it was easy. And I didn't expect it to end up like this either."

"Forget it!" Jimmy got angry when he looked at her like that, "Do you have any idea how important that suit is Rose said, "I'll go buy you a new one.

"How?" Jimmy said, "That suit has a special meaning to me and when I had my first interview, I wore it. Every time I wear that suit, it will make me good luck."

Speaking of that, Jimmy froze for a moment, remembering that it was Theresa who had bought him.

Charlie probably had just woken up, so he sounded pretty clingy.

Theresa was baffled and felt her eyes watery.

She was actually not quite sure herself. Was this what a couple about to get divorced should look like?

Theresa looked down at his hands around her waist. Charlie had very nice hands with well-defined slender fingers and perfectly trimmed nails, which were her favorite type.

She lowered her head. Since she had promised him yesterday, she had no choice and said, "I'm going to wash up now."

She got out of his arms, stood up, and went into the bathroom.

Charlie watched her back and sighed helplessly.

He was quite sad, thinking that he had only a short time left with her.

The two of them finished washing up and went downstairs for breakfast. The two kids were still sleeping, so it was exceptionally quiet at the breakfast table.

Theresa was eating when Charlie handed her an egg, which was partly shelled so that she could hold it easily. Theresa couldn't refuse his kindness and took it. "Thank you.

Of course, she wouldn't tell him that her patient was Dick, his nemesis. It would be difficult to explain to him.

Charlie frowned at this explanation. She thought he found out that she was lying, but the next second she heard him say, "You don't have to do this next time. You can ask the driver to make more detours, so you don't have to walk over there."

She simply didn't want to cause him any trouble.

However, he would like to do anything for her.

After all, he wouldn't have the chance to do that in the future!

Hearing his words, Theresa nodded her head. "Okay."

Theresa walked into the building of the White's Group when she saw Charlie leave in his car.

She had gone to Dick's home yesterday, but Rawlins told her that Dick had slept at the office last night and asked her to come directly to the office today. That was why she was here.

Theresa entered. They had already started working at this hour. She saw Jimmy sitting in a chair cup of coffee in his hand. It

Jimmy watched how indignant she was and heard her mention how he was beaten last time. "I didn't say anything about you. Why are you so angry when I said that about her? She wouldn't speak up for you."

Theresa didn't bother to talk to this scumbag anymore.

The elevator stopped and someone stepped out. Jimmy took a look at the floor number and stepped out too.

When he got out, he thought Theresa would follow him out, only to find that he was wrong.

Theresa was still in the elevator. She closed it and went straight to the floor where Dick's office was.

Rawlins met her at the door.

He was excited to see her. "Dr. Cameron, I've been waiting for you. It's so cold in the morning. Thank you for coming."

Theresa was a little embarrassed. "You're welcome. It's my job."

Coming down from upstairs, Theresa was ready to leave. She had only stepped out the door when she was stopped. “Theresa.”

She looked up and saw Jimmy standing right there. This guy... Was there something wrong with him?

She looked at him warily. “Yes?”

Jimmy walked over. “I got a new job.”

Theresa wanted to laugh at his words. “So what?”

Damn it. Had he forgotten about her relationship with him now?

They were enemies who hated each other and wanted to put each other to death.

Jimmy said, “What I can get here is no worse than what I got at the Nandlall’s Group. Even if Charlie kicked me out, there are still plenty of people who want me.”

“Then you’re really good,” Theresa said in a scornful voice.

She could see that Jimmy was here to show off.

Jimmy had met Rawlins before and knew that he was Dick's assistant. He heard that Dick had grown up without his parents around and it was this assistant who had brought Dick up. Therefore, Dick was close to his assistant.

Seeing Rawlins now, Jimmy stopped his sarcasm.

Rawlins had walked over. He looked at Theresa and said, "Why don't I get someone to drive you?"

Jimmy looked at Theresa. She actually knew Rawlins?

Theresa said, "No, thanks. I hailed a taxi online. It's already on the way."

She had come here in Charlie's car and now... she had to take a taxi back on her own.

Rawlins was gracious. "I'll have someone drive you."

After that, he called his secretary to come over and arrange a car for Theresa.

While they waited for the car, Jimmy looked at Rawlins and said, "Hello, Mr. Garson. I'm Jimmy Watson. I just joined the company today."

His friend had recommended him, so the interview went well. They were especially happy to take him on when they heard he was from the Nandlall's Group.

"Why would she do that? If you hadn't done anything wrong to her, why would she have a problem with you? As they say, you can't dump a woman who married you when you had nothing. You left a woman who had shared the hardships with you, so how can I believe that you'll stay when the company goes wrong in the future?"

Thinking how pitiful Theresa looked just now, Rawlins had already deemed Jimmy as a scum.

Jimmy explained, "She was just talking nonsense! I divorced her because she cheated on me and had children with someone else. Later, I refused when she tried to get back together with me, so she holds a grudge against me. After marrying Charlie, she targeted me at every turn. You know what Charlie was like before. He was lucky to get a wife. Now that Charlie is well, he wants to dump her, so she tries to be with me again. I am a married man. How can I say yes to her? As a result, she got angry and said those things just now. If you don't believe me, you can have someone investigate it."

Many people knew that Theresa had cheated on Jimmy. Rawlins would find it out if he had it investigated, so Jimmy wasn't afraid at all.

Rawlins gave him a look and went in the door without saying anything.

Jimmy followed him and asked, "When can I meet Mr. White? I'm a newcomer, so I would like to say hello to him."

He heard that Dick preferred people who Charlie hated!

Therefore, he was looking forward to meeting Dick. If he had Dick as a backer, it would be much easier for him to do things in the future.

Rawlins said, "I'm not sure. I'll let you know when he has time."

The more Sarah was not allowed to do something, the more she would do it. Theresa had a feeling... If Sarah kept running the company, she would ruin it sooner or later!

Johnson said, "I've talked to her, too. She wouldn't listen to me either. I'll go back to the company in a couple of days."

"Okay."

Theresa had just finished talking to her father on the phone when Sarah sent her a message.

After the official announcement of their cooperation with Lloyd, the Cameron's Group's brands were associated with Lloyd at once.

Lloyd was one of the most popular stars right now. His fans were so enthusiastic that the company's brands became a trending topic as well.

Sarah bragged, "Didn't you say Lloyd couldn't do it? Do you know how many fans he has? After the official announcement, our sales have started to go up and our followers have increased."

Seeing how smug she was, Theresa didn't say anything.

Sarah was now on a roll. She would not listen to Theresa.

"She's too busy." Ben stood at the door. The short little boy talked fluently to Charlie. "Dad, what are you doing? Are you at work?"

"Yes."

"I want to see your office." The two kids were usually at home when they didn't go to kindergarten. They had never been to Charlie's office.

Charlie listened to his son's voice and said, "Well, I'll show you in the video."

He opened the video and saw the little face that looked extremely similar to his appearance on the screen.

Charlie looked at his son, smiled, and turned the camera around to show him his office.

"Wow, it's huge!" Ben exclaimed. "It's even bigger than my classroom."

Charlie heard him and said, "Do you want to come and see it?"

"Uh-huh."

Leonard was eating grapes in his chair. Hearing Ben's words, he stopped chewing and looked at Ben who was holding the phone.
