

Divorcement 681

Chapter 681

With Ben's soft voice pulling Charlie back from out of control, he instantly regained his senses.

He told himself he was here to see the kids, not Theresa.

What did it matter to him who she was with?

They were divorced!

Sarah didn't expect Ben to defend Theresa so much.

'Theresa is so lucky to have these two kids to defend her.

Looking at Ben, she realized that if she wanted to make up with Charlie, she had to get on good terms with the two kids first.

Sarah smiled and said to Ben, "Ben, Theresa is not your mother. Don't let her fool you! If you want a mother, I can be your mother!"

Just as she finished her words, Charlie, who was still angry, spoke up, not showing her any respect at all, "You're not worthy of that."

Sarah froze and looked to Charlie. To save her dignity, she said, "Charlie, I'm just coaxing ben."

"Don't scare my son."

After saying that, Charlie walked over and drove her out, closing the door behind him.

The more he was like this, the more Theresa didn't want to make him comfortable.

She raised her eyebrows and said, "Get out of my room quickly, or else my boyfriend will be angry if he knows." After hearing her words, harlie let out a laugh. He sat on the couch, changed his position, and said, "In that case, I'm not leaving tonight and I'm going to stay here."

"What do you mean?" Theresa looked over at Charlie, not expecting him to be so shameless!

He wasn't like this before.

Charlie said, "Since you don't let my sons go with me, I'll just have to stay here with them. From now on, if Leonard and Ben don't go back to the Calsis family, I'll stay here. Your boyfriend will be looking forward to seeing another man living in your house, right?"

He was very happy to see Dick unhappy!

Looking at his shameless look, Theresa was speechless!

He was so thick-skinned!

Just then, Ben suddenly came in from outside and walked up to Theresa, "Mom."

With his head down, Leonard wiped his eyes and asked, "Mom, am I a very annoying child?"
"Of course not." Theresa said, "Why would you say that?"

Theresa looked at Leonard and said, "Do you want to go downstairs and play with them?"
She knew he wanted to!
Though he didn't say it.
"No," Leonard said, "I'll be happy with you."
He usually hated Charlie so much, so, he was embarrassed to play with him at this time.
Theresa went to change before she took Leonard downstairs.

Johnson and Cristina were in the living room, and the noise downstairs made it impossible for Cristina to concentrate on the game.

"He came over to see the kids." Theresa said, "Ben wants to see him, so just let him be here!"

After that, Theresa went to bring over some sunflower seeds to pass the time for them.

Charlie set off fireworks with the two kids until midnight before taking them back to the house.

Ben and Leonard walked ahead. Seeing Theresa, Leonard ran to Theresa at once.

Charlie noticed that while Cristina and Theresa were both there, Leonard was closer to Theresa!

Theresa turned to Charlie and said, "You sleep with Ben at night, and I'll sleep with Leonard."

Charlie raised an eyebrow, gave Leonard a look, and said, "It's a shame that he still sleeps with his mother as such a big boy?"

Hearing Charlie's words, Leonard glared at him. Being said by him like that, Leonard was naturally unhappy.

Theresa felt speechless and turned to Charlie saying, "Charlie, can you speak properly?"

"Mom, Dad can sleep with me on my bed."

Because of Charlie's words, Leonard went to his own bed to prove himself.

He always felt that Charlie was a little strange today!

Wouldn't he be taken for a pervert for staring at Theresa like that?

Charlie waved his hand, gesturing for Jonathan to stay out of his sight, and only then did he move to the side.

Although Charlie didn't say anything, Jonathan could feel that Charlie seemed to be in a good mood at the moment.

Ben came down from upstairs and ran to Charlie, "Dad."

Seeing Ben, Charlie picked Ben up in his arms.

Leonard stood aside. Watching the scene, he walked away.

Looking at his indifferent eldest son, he frowned.

Breakfast started quickly. Theresa put the food on the table, and in a few moments, everyone arrived except Cristina, who was sleeping.

Theresa looked over at Charlie, who was sitting on the sidelines eating the breakfast she had made as a matter of course.

She frowned and turned to Charlie asking, "When are you going back?"

Previously Theresa was able to take care of him as Charlie's wife when she was at Calsis Villa.

But since her divorce from Charlie, she hadn't heard from Old Mr. Calsis at all.

Thinking about Old Mr. Calsis, Theresa frowned, a little worried about him.

Before the divorce, she had heard them talking about taking Old Mr. Calsis to the hospital.

Wasn't Old Mr. Calsis still in the hospital now?

Theresa had mixed feelings when she thought that the Old Mr. Calsis, an old man with not many years to live, had to be confined in the hospital for New Year.

Her father still had some things to take care of and Cristina was still alone at home, so Theresa went back with her two children after she was done.

When she arrived home, she saw Charlie sitting on the couch in her house... looking very comfortable.

Jonathan saw them come in, "Ms. Cameron."

"Dad!" When he saw Charlie, Ben was so happy that he ran into Charlie's arms like a little rabbit.

Charlie picked him up.

"... " Charlie raised an eyebrow, and he really considered Theresa's place to be his home!
He was too speechless!
If it was before in Calsis Villa, when Leonard said such things, Charlie could still teach him a lesson.
But here, he did not know what to say!
In the end, he was just an outsider in Leonard's eyes.
Theresa stood in the doorway, "What are you guys up to?"
"Theresa, what have you taught my son?" Seeing her come in, Charlie looked at her angrily.
Theresa asked rhetorically, "What do you think I've taught him?"

When he saw Theresa coming down, Dick’s eyes fell on Theresa and he asked, “Why don’t you have a maid at home?”

Theresa said, “I was going to hire one, but now it’s New Year and I don’t want to have outsiders in the house.” “If you need it, I can have someone come over to take care of you and the kids.”

It sounded like... he was the father of the kids.

Theresa said, “No, thanks.”

Dick said, “I just think your hands are not for cooking because they have a great use!”

Without Theresa, he probably wouldn't even be able to get a good night's sleep.

So now, he was glad she had such hands.

Hearing Dick's words, Theresa said, "Thank you, Mr. White."

She was pleased to have her acupuncture skills recognized by Dick. What people feared most was that they could not find their value in life, but she had found it.

After she learned this skill under Leo, she had been working on it ever since. She felt her life was more meaningful as she watched her patients get rid of their pain with her help.

Charlie sat there watching them, eyes heavy with sarcasm.

He had long known that Theresa and Dick White are on good, or even close terms. But he still couldn't bear the sight of them being intimate with each other.

After a moment of indecision, he made a stand from his seat and left the room. Nobody would notice the unreadable look in his eyes.

Hearing that Charlie drove off huffing and puffing. Theresa stood up in some hurry as well.

"Thank you, Mr. White."

"Nothing to speak of." Dick looked at her with steady eyes.

It really is. Dick was in good mood now. Packing Charlie off was indeed something he was glad to see.

"Mr. White, I have to apologize to you for what Charlie has said. That's just hilarious nonsense about him. So, just forget it."

"What did he say?" Dick White was curious about what Charlie had said. "Did he say that you are going out with me?"

Theresa gave a helpless sigh and continued. "Yeah, he thought that we are dating since he has seen you many times here with me."

Dick White didn't leave immediately. He even spent part of the afternoon playing with two kids in their rooms. Theresa was having a chitchat with Cristina downstairs on the sofa when something that she was supposed to ask Charlie crossed her mind. Then she took out her phone texting Roderick. It was about Old Mr. Calsis actually.

Holding tightly the phone in her hand Theresa was waiting for Roderick's message distractedly, and at this time, Leonard and Ben went downstairs with the help of Dick.

"Good night and see you next time, Miss Cameron" Dick White took his leave of Theresa with a nod and a smile. "See you next time, Mr. White." Theresa stood up and was going to walk them out as she said. With only a few strides, Dick and his assistant were in the doorway. But he looked back suddenly just when Theresa was about to close the door behind them. "Well, I better let you know that I'm not coming tomorrow." His advance notice was thoughtful enough, but it sounded weird when it happened between Theresa and him.

"Thank you for telling me, but you don't have to tell me that actually."

"I think it's necessary." Said Dick White with his corner of mouth curving.

The embarrassment was growing violently between them due to the weird conversation.

Theresa had no idea of what his intention was for behaving abnormally on this day.

God Damn it! Asking her out? Is he serious?

Whatever! Theresa decided to not dwell on that. She turned her attention to Leonard then, who was still looking in Dick's direction even though he was out of his range of eyes. The look in his eyes was wistful somehow like he really hated to see him leaving.

"Come on, Leonard, let's get inside."

"Mom, is Mr. White really a bad guy?" The little boy didn't move, instead, he held Theresa's hand and asked solemnly with his head tilting.
