

Chapter 0018

The next day, Maisie woke up early to prepare breakfast for her children. By then, Elio and June had already washed up and dressed themselves.

After breakfast, Maisie brought them both over to the kindergarten. June was very excited about her first day of kindergarten. Elio was curious about it too.

In the beginning, Maisie had been a bit worried. After all, she'd seen other people sending their kids to kindergarten. It usually ended up with lots of crying and not letting go of their parents.

But when they got to the kindergarten, Maisie was sure she worried for nothing. The kids were excited and even took the initiative to say hi to the other kids and the teachers. Once they went in, they were surrounded by people.

"Aww, aren't you two adorable? I want to keep you for myself!"

"I know, right? Looking at them gives me baby fever as well!"

"Ah, you're too cute! When I look at the two rascals I have at home, I seriously think other people's kids are better behaved!"

"What should I do? I really want to take these kids home with me!"

June said in a childish voice, "Hi there. My name is June Bardot. You can call me Junie. But please don't take me away because I belong to Mommy."

"My name is Elio Bardot. You can call me El."

"Oh, my! These two are too cute! I can't take it anymore! Help, they're really too adorable!"

"Oh, look. You must be these kids' mom. Wow, you're so pretty. No wonder your kids are so adorable, too."

After talking with the teachers, Maisie walked over to find her kids surrounded by other parents. The parents were showering them with praise.

Maisie smiled. Her kids had always been very friendly. She had no clue where they'd inherited that personality trait from.

"Alright, El, Junie. You should head inside with the teachers."

Elio and June were brought into the building by the teachers. Even so, they kept looking back at Maisie every once in a while.

Maisie waved at them, watching as they skipped away merrily. They didn't cry, but Maisie felt like crying herself.

Her kids had really grown up.

After sending the children to kindergarten, Maisie started work at the hospital. Today was her first official day at work, so she went to the hospital director's office first.

When she got there, Maisie heard a shout coming from inside. "What is wrong with you? How could you make such a basic mistake?"

Maisie carefully knocked on the door.

"Come in."

Maisie's eyebrows raised. She wouldn't be walking into trouble on her first day, would she?

She braced herself and went inside. There was a lot of tension inside the office.

Keith Lutz was standing in front of his desk. Before him were several doctors with their heads down. It looked like they were being told off after making a mistake.

Keith was so angry that his cheeks had turned red.

When he saw the person coming in, he was stunned for a moment.

Maisie was also a bit taken aback upon seeing Keith's expression.

After a second, Keith's initially furious expression became excited. "Cyn ... Maisie, you're finally here. Hurry, come take a seat."

Maisie nodded slightly. She smiled politely at him. "Thank you, Dr. Lutz. Please don't mind me and settle your matters first."

"All of you, leave right now. Don't make such a basic mistake again, do you hear me?"

"Noted, Dr. Lutz."

Keith went and poured Maisie a cup of coffee.

Maisie was stunned by the gesture. She said, "Dr. Lutz, there's no need to go through all that trouble. I can do it myself."

The doctors were walking out dejectedly after being told off. They looked up and began to size up Maisie.

Who was this woman, and what was her background? How could she make a stern and furious Dr. Lutz have such a complete change in attitude? And he'd even poured her coffee, too.

"Maisie, it's great that you're finally here. I was afraid that you wouldn't want to come." Keith was so moved that tears sprang to his eyes.

Seeing Keith's reaction, Maisie couldn't help but laugh. "Do you think I'm the kind of person who doesn't keep her promises, Dr. Lutz?"

Keith waved his hand and smiled. "Of course I don't. It's just that the competition to hire you is too fierce. I was afraid that someone snatched you up after you delayed starting work by a day."

"Don't worry, sir. Since I've agreed to work for you, I won't go back on my word."

"Good, good." Keith was smiling brightly.

He continued, "We'll be having a meeting later. We can go together. I'll be able to introduce you to the other doctors, too."

"Alright. But Dr. Lutz, I won't go by 'Cynthia' at the hospital. Just treat me like any other doctor."

Cynthia's reputation was too well-known. Besides, the way Keith treated her was a bit much. Keith himself knew the pros and cons of this as well.

The meeting was at 9 am. At this moment, many doctors had already arrived in the huge conference
