Chapter 0052

"Let go of me." Maisie's eyes were filled with icy determination.

"Why are you back again? Didn't I say you're not allowed in the Clarke Estate? Someone, get Maisie out of here!" Laura pointed angrily toward the door.

Maisie's focus remained entirely on Emmanuel. She was unwilling to leave. At that moment, she didn't even hear Laura's words.

Laura thought Maisie was deliberately ignoring her, and this infuriated her. If not for her elite upbringing, she would have physically thrown Maisie out.

"Do you ever listen to anyone? Do you have no manners? When the lady of the house is speaking ..."

Maisie carefully recollected the process of treating Emmanuel. She knew every acupoint was crucial.

Considering Emmanuel's frailty, she had been meticulous at every step. So where did things go wrong?

"Maisie!" Laura was too angry to articulate. She was practically exploding with rage. "You're just ..."

"What did you just say?"

Maisie's cold gaze finally shifted toward Laura. She stared at Laura, who seemed ready to burst with fury. Anger lines were etched across her face.

Laura hesitated for a moment, then snapped back to reality. She grew even more furious.

"Mom, calm down. Maisie came to help Grandpa."

"Help him?" Laura sneered, full of disdain. "What makes her qualified to help your grandfather? She only graduated from a medical high school."

"Mom ..." James was speechless. Laura's resentment toward Maisie ran deep, so she simply would not believe in Maisie.

James realized that pushing this topic further would only escalate tensions. The most effective approach was to handle Andrew first.

"How's Grandpa?" Elena rushed in, her high heels clattering on the floor.

One heel was broken, and her clothes were soaked. She looked just as disheveled as Maisie, if not worse.

Laura's heart softened after she saw this. "Elena, how did you end up like this?"

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Clarke. I lost control because I was so worried about Grandpa. I rushed here and, well, this happened accidentally." Elena seemed somewhat embarrassed.

But her concern for Emmanuel was feigned. She was more afraid of Maisie's arrival, as she feared that her secret would be exposed.

"Dr. Jones, how's Grandpa?" Elena asked, seemingly out of deep concern for Emmanuel. She slipped her hand into Laura's comfortingly.

"I don't know what went wrong. The last time we checked on Mr.

Chapter 0052

Clarke Senior, his condition had improved significantly. How could he suddenly deteriorate like this?"

Logan was completely puzzled.

"Could it be an issue with the prescription?" Laura asked worriedly.

Although Laura trusted Elena's medical skills, some other doctors who had reviewed Elena's previous prescriptions had commented that they were too potent. The prescription did help Emmanuel, but the medicine had significant side effects.

Laura was now concerned about the medication Elena had prescribed.

"It's not the medication," both Maisie and Elena said almost simultaneously.

Maisie knew that she had carefully prepared the medication exactly as prescribed, with precise measurements—neither more nor less.

There couldn't possibly be any issues unless someone had deviated from the prescription.

A trace of disdain flashed deep in Elena's eyes. Why was this wretched woman so eager to intervene? As if there would be any problem with Elena's prescription.

But it wasn't the original prescription that Maisie had given. Maisie's medicine was made from ordinary herbs. They were gentle in their effects.

After Elena's modifications, Elena was certain the new prescription would significantly speed up Emmanuel's recovery.

Elena arrogantly raised her chin. She had never doubted her own abilities.

With Maisie's methods, there would certainly be issues. Now that Emmanuel's condition had worsened again, it must have been due to Maisie's treatment.

This wretched woman shouldn't meddle carelessly. Now, she had to shoulder the blame.

With these thoughts, Elena breathed a sigh of relief. This situation proved that Maisie's medical skills weren't as exceptional as they seemed. Emmanuel's condition was the best evidence.

"Yes, I've reviewed the prescription; it's fine. That prescription definitely benefits Mr. Clarke Senior's condition," Dr. Jones affirmed sternly.

He felt compelled to support Elena when she was being questioned.

Elena frowned slightly before nodding earnestly in agreement.

"What could be the reason for this? Just tell us. Mr. Clarke Senior's condition keeps fluctuating, and we shouldn't be tormenting him like this."

Laura expressed her distress.

"Mrs. Clarke, please don't worry. I've stabilized Mr. Clarke Senior's condition, and he's not in immediate danger.

"But we haven't identified the trigger that caused his relapse. I've examined Elena's treatment plan and medication thoroughly. There doesn't seem to be any issue.

Chapter 0052

"We need to continue observing to find out the specific cause behind Mr. Clarke's relapse," Dr. Jones explained calmly, trying to reassure Laura.
