"It's acute appendicitis. She needs to undergo surgery immediately, the doctor said.

pulling down his mask.

Upon hearing that it was only acute appendicitis, the tension in Sharon's heart finally eased.

The tight lines on her face gradually relaxed.

Thankfully, it wasn't an incurable disease.

Sharon finally felt as if she had come back to life.

"Doctor, please arrange the surgery for her right away" Edwin requested.

The nurse quickly brought over the informed consent form for the surgery, and Sharon signed it without hesitation.

The nurse took the form and said, "The guardian should go and make the payment first. Once the payment is made, she can proceed with the surgery

"I'll go, Edwin said.

"There's no need for or the trouble. I go Sharon declined, her tone polite as she prepared to go and make the payment

Edwin's eyebrows furrowed. "I'm also Irene's father."

Sharon was taken aback for a moment, then stared at Edwin in surprise.

This was the first time he had acknowledged bring Irene's father out of goodwill.

Edwin took out his phone. Transferring money directly will be quicker, saving the time spent in line and allowing Irene to have the surgery

Sharon didn't argue further and let him complete the payment through a mobile transfer

She stood there, her head down, and bit her lip.

The reason Sharon didn't stop him was because the thought of Irene's call for her father in her dream the previous night,

An appendectomy was a minor surgery and was completed quickly, taking about half an hour, Irene was then wheeled out.

The anesthesia hadn't worn off yet, and she lay on the bed with her eyes closed, her pretty little face still pale from the earlier pain.

Although her eyes were closed, her beautiful eyes, long eyelashes, small and delicate nose, and the small mouth she pursed were all exceptionally lovely

Edwin and Sharon, one on each side, wheeled her into the ward.

Edwin looked at the little figure on the bed, and a touch of tenderness slipped through his heart.

Irene looked very much like him, and even he could see the resemblance.

The more he noticed their similarities, the more he found the world to be amazing.

When the doctor was about to move Irene to the hospital bed. Edwin quickly stopped him. "I'll do it,"

He then bent down and carefully cradled Irene's small body in his arms

Edwin was cautious not to pull on her wound. His entire back curved down, trying to get as close as possible to her soft little body,

One hand pressed against her back, and the other on her legs. Every movement was extremely careful, and every look was extremely gentle.

When he laid her down, it was with the utmost gentleness,

Sharon watched Edwin do this silently, feeling a warmth in her heart as she looked at Irene.

If Irene knew that Ethan had been so gentle with her, she would be very happy, wouldn't she?

The doctor gave some instructions, which Sharon listened to attentively.

Edwin, on the other hand, watched without blinking as the nurse administered an IV to Irene.

When Edwin saw the n nurse's needle pierce her skin, his gaze contracted, and his brows furrowed.

Perhaps because Edwin's aura was so strong, the nurse's hand trembled, and she missed the mark.

She had to pull it out and try again.

When Edwin saw her pull the needle out, his face darkened.

The darker his face became, the more nervous the nurse got.

The second attempt also missed the vein.

She hesitated there, not daring to pull it out, only rotating the needle inside and pushing it in and out..

This method of injecting was more painful than pulling out and trying again. If Irene had been awake, she probably would have cried from the pain.

Even though Irene didn't feel it, Edwin couldn't bear to watch it

Those needles were piercing Irene's flesh, but it was his heart that felt the pain.

With each prick and pull of the needle, Edwin felt a pang of pain.

"Stop it!" he growled, grabbing the nurse's hand

The nurse was already frightened, and with his sudden grip, she thought she was about to be struck. Her face turned pale instantly.

Tears welled up in her eyes, and she looked terrified.

"Get out!" Edwin roared.

The nurse didn't dare to stay any longer and ran away, covering her face and crying.

Sharon had just seen the doctor off when she turned around to see the nurse running away with her face covered, and Edwin standing there with a face as dark as ink, which left her stunned for a moment Edwin's eyes fell on Irene's hand, and he took out his phone. "Mr. Jones, I'm sorry to trouble you, but my daughter is ill. O please!

This hospital was a high-end private facility, and Edwin was a shareholder, in fact, the largest one, so the dean was naturally very polite to him. "She needs an IV. Mr. Jones, could you please take care of it? Edwin pointed to Irene's hand.

David was taken aback for a moment.

David Jones was a renowned cardiac surgeon, and Edwin was asking him to administer an IV to a child.

This situation seemed exaggerated not only to David but also made Sharon feel a bit uncomfortable.

However, David was very smart and quickly came over, skillfully inserting the IV needle for Irene and starting the infusion.

He was so keen that he had already noticed the previous needle marks.

Although he didn't say much, he personally selected the most professional and skilled nurse to take care of Irene.

Edwin's expression eased a bit

David stayed for a moment and then left

Chapter 111

Edwin's deep-set eyes, usually as dark as a bottomless well, flickered with a rare warmth. "I had sent you a message last night."

Sharon was taken aback for a moment before she reached for her phone.

Indeed, she saw the message he had sent.

r Irene'

Edwin actually told her and Irene not to leave? He also stated that he wouldn't fight her for

This was unexpected for Sharon, and her eyebrows arched in surprise.

However, she quickly thought about Edwin's upcoming marriage to Tilda and the fact that they would soon have their own child, which made her feel at ease

Compared to Irene, who was an unwanted child, naturally, their child would be more important.

But the more she thought about this, the more certain she was that Edwin would not stay.

She would not allow Irene to experience the pain of having a biological father who did not love her but loved another child instead.

Sharon did not voice her thoughts, and a silence fell over the room.

After a while, she spoke again. "Irene is fine now, and I can take care of her. You go ahead and attend to your own matters."

It was clear that she was asking Edwin to leave.

Edwin turned to look at her.

Her face wore a polite and appropriate smile, her eyes clear and polite and her words perfect and courteous..

But the more she maintained this demeanor, the more it conveyed an unspoken distance.

This distance felt like an invisible hand, clutching at his heart, making it suddenly difficult to breathe

He didn't know what was happening to him, He had been feeling this way a lot lately.

Edwin shook off these strange thoughts with a forceful motion and, without another word, turned and walked out.

Sharon did not look at him again but instead walked to the bedside and sat down, gently caressing Irene's delicate and rosy little face, speaking in a soft tone. "Trene, you must get better quickly.

This voice.

Edwin's steps halted abruptly because of this voice.

The next moment, he spun around, strode back, and suddenly grasped Sharon's shoulders. "Who are you?"

Dumping My Billionaire Ex Chapter 112

Sharon looked up at him, bewildered by his question.

His deep-set eyes were narrowing continuously, focusing into onyx-like darkness, black and shiny.

She frowned in confusion, feeling the grip of his hand on her shoulder, so forceful it seemed like it would break her bones

"Ouch," she gasped softly.

That word burned like fire on Edwin's nerves, and he released her abruptly, though his gaze remained fixed on her face.

Her words just now were eerily familiar. The tone, the voice and even the curve of the trailing note, all were identical except for the name.

He remembered how Big Eyes used to say to him, "Cutie Homic, you must get better soon."

“Mr. Stanley, are you feeling unwell?” Sharon asked, rubbing her shoulder, her tone polite and distant

This formal tone snapped him back to reality.

Edwin came to his senses completely.

He glanced at Sharon.

It must have been a coincidence just now. Her tone and voice were nothing like Big Eyes he murmured, nodding slightly, and then he left.

Sharon watched his retreating figure silently, her heart, which had been in her throat, gradually settled.

For a moment, she had thought he had remembered her.

disappointment welled up in her heart, but it quickly dissipated.

Edwin was about to marry Tikla, and Sharon was planning to leave with Irene, so if he had truly recognized her, it would only have added complications.

She was momentarily dazed, then she looked down and gently touched Irene’s little face again.

“I will take good care of you. You will get strong, and we will then go back to find Grandpa. No need to rush,” she said, her voice returning to its natural tenderness.

This voice was an instinctive tone Sharon used when facing those closest to her heart. It was not her usual way of speaking Irene awoke two hours later.

The anesthesia had worn off, and the wound was very painful

She wanted to drink water, but the nurse said that she couldn't have any for twelve hours after the appendectomy, so Sharon could only moisten her lips with a cotton swab dipped in water.

was quite unhappy with this situation. The usually sensible child was now red-eyed, constantly crying and complaining

Sharon knew full well how much Irene was suffering and felt both frustrated and sad that she couldn't alleviate her pain in any way.

She tried her best to comfort Irene.

But even so, Irene lost it when it was time to take her medicine.

She pushed away the glass of water Sharon was holding and flung the pills far away. "I said it hurts, I don't want to take this medicine!" she cried. After speaking, Irene burst into tears.

"Ah, she's crying so badly right after surgery. If she strains her wound, it could be dangerous," the nurse said, entering the room,

Sharon had intended to let Irene vent, but upon hearing this, she became anxious and hurried to comfort her,

However, Irene's emotions had already collapsed, and no one could soothe her.

Even the experienced nurse was at a loss.

Sharon was so worried that her eyes began to redden.

"Why is Irene crying?" came a calm male voice just then.

Sharon looked up and was surprised to see the tall figure approaching the door.
"Edwin!"

She thought he wouldn't come back, but here he was

Edwin glanced at her, then strode to Irene.

He placed the lunch box he was carrying on the table and sat down beside the bed, leaning over to take Irene's hands in his. "Can you tell me why you're crying?" he asked.

Irene's face was streaked with tears, her eyes wet and her eyelashes clumped with moisture.

She had been crying with her eyes closed, but upon hearing his voice, she opened them abruptly.

Her crying stopped abruptly when she saw Edwin, and she looked at him in surprise with her wet eyes.

Then she looked down at his hands holding hers.

Ever since she could remember, Edwin had never held her hands like this, nor had he ever spoken to

She momentarily forgot about the pain, captivated by the sight of him.

Edwin pulled out a tissue and gently wiped away the tears from her face.

Despite his slightly awkward movements, he was extremely attentive and careful.

Irene didn't make a sound, watching him the whole time, not missing a single one of his actions.

Sharon was also watching him.

her so gently

His rerum and the tenderness he was showing now felt surreal to her, as if she were dreaming, lacking any sense of reality

"You haven't eaten anything, have you? Here, these are for you: a voice brought Sharon back to reality.

Sharon looked up at Edwin.

Unnoticed, Irene had already nestled into his arms, cradled by him.

Her eyes were closed, clearly asleep.

Edwin was looking at her, his chin pointing to the thermos he had brought earlier.

Sharon looked at the lunch box, and her surprise only deepened.

She never expected in n her lifetime to be able to eat a meal he had sent.

“Thank you,” Sharon said softly, holding back her astonishment. She didn’t play coy, took the lunch box, arranged the food, and began to eat.

Taking care of Irene was no easy task. It required a lot of physical strength.

After finishing her meal, Sharon helped Edwin lay Irene in the bed.

He casually took out some documents from the bag he had brought and started looking through them. “You didn’t rest last night, why don’t you take a nap for a while,” he suggested.

Sharon looked at him again, thinking to herself, ‘He’s not leaving?’

Edwin was already engrossed in his work, and Sharon silently took the lunch box to clean it.

Several times, she peeked through the bailroom door at the man outside.

He was intently flipping through the documents, his long, artistic fingers dancing on pages.

A soft ray of sunlight fell on him, casting a halo around him.

Occasionally, he would glance at Irene lying in the bed, a quiet tenderness flowing from the depths of his brows.....

In the following days, Irene’s wound healed quickly.

Irene was no longer in pain and returned to her previous self. sensible, obedient, and lively.

Edwin came by every day.

Each time Irene saw Edwin, she didn't show much of a reaction on the surface, but her eyes would crinkle and the corners of her mouth would secretly rise in a smile.

Sometimes Edwin would even feed her r meals.

She would squint her eyes and eat quickly and heartily.

Sharon, seeing Irene's joyful expression, felt a great deal of comfort inside.

In the blink of an eye, it was the fourth day.

Early in the morning, Sharon pushed Irene for the routine check-up before discharge. If everything was normal, they could leave the hospital the next day.

Irene was beaming all the way.

"Irene, are you scared of the blood test later?" the nurse asked softly, walking alongside.

Irene shook her head. "I'm not scared. Daddy said I'm a brave baby, and brave babies are afraid of nothing!"

Edwin's recent company had successfully reduced the distance between him and Irene, and it had also changed the impression he had in Irene's heart.

Sharon looked at Irene's adorable appearance and pressed her lips together.

After the examination, the nurse stayed there to wait for the results while Sharon pushed Irene back.

Irene's big eyes were sparkling with stars, glancing out the window from time to time. Although she didn't say it, Sharon knew she was waiting for Edwin.

Familial affection was really strange. They had been so distant before, but once the ice was broken, they became close.

"Hello, Irene," a voice came, gentle and sweet.

Sharon and Irene looked up together and saw the slender figure in front of them, a person with a bright and beautiful face.

It was Tilda

Tilda, wearing a loose hospital gown, stood in the middle of the corridor, looking at them with a smile that was not quite a smile.

“Madam, you’re wearing the same clothes as me. Are you sick too?” Irene, who didn’t recognize Tilda, noticed her hospital gown and asked in a clear voice

Tilda smiled elegantly. “Yes, I have a stomachache.”

She caressed her lower abdomen, her movements extremely gentle, with a special kind of meaning.

Sharon’s gaze could not help but focus on her abdomen.

Tilda seemed to notice Sharon’s gaze as well. Her hand, stroking her abdomen, grew even gentler, and her smile deepened, but her eyes remained fixed on Irene. “Your daddy has been with you these past few days, Irene. You must be very happy, right?”

“Madam, how did you know?” Irene asked with a look of surprise in her wide eyes.

Tilda’s smile was radiant. “Because I was the one who asked him to stay with you. Even though your brother and I are important, Irene, important too. I would never allow your daddy to only care for the brother and not you.”

As soon as she finished speaking. Sharon’s eyes narrowed sharply.

Dumping My Billionaire Ex Chapter 113

Her first reaction was shock at Tilda’s pregnancy, followed by a surge of anger.

“Tilda” she growled, her gaze fixed on Tilda.

Tilda then put on an expression as if she had just realized she had said something wrong. “I’m sorry. I thought Edwin had told you about my hospitalization. That day when you rushed into the hospital, and Irene was wheeled in, Edwin and I just happened to see you.

“I knew Edwin must have been worried, so I offered to let him go see you. No matter what, he is Irene’s father and should take some responsibility as a father.

“No matter what happens between u him to care for her.

us adults, Irene is innocent. Even if Edwin and I get married, Irene will always be Edwin’s child, and it’s right for

So, was the care Edwin had shown recently all at Tilda’s behest

No wonder, he had always been indifferent to Irene before, but when she fell ill, it was as if he had completely changed.

The previous words from Edwin, saying he wouldn't fight with her for Irene and would let them stay, must have been Tilda's idea too,

How obedient was Edwin to Tilda?

Sharon felt a chill throughout her body, and her grip on the wheelchair's handle tightened silently, her knuckles turning pale.

"Mommy, why did she say Daddy only wants the brother and not me?" came Irene's weak voice by her ear.

Sharon suddenly snapped back to reality,

Tilda had already turned and left, and Irene, seated in the wheelchair, looked at Sharon with lifeless, large eyes.

Those eyes were brimming with bright tears

"Irene "Sharon felt as if an invisible knife had brutally cut into her heart, causing pain and numbness.

She crouched down to comfort Irene, but Irene had already hung her head. "I understand now, Daddy doesn't like me at all. He only came to see me because that Madam forced him. Madom and Daddy have a brother. He doesn't want me anymore...

"Irene...

Sharon had intended to say something to gloss over the situation, but she hadn't expected Irene to be so perceptive.

Irene had easily understood what Tilda meant.

She nervously swallowed, feeling her mouth dry and parched, especially when she saw Irene's face, which had dimmed to the point of having no luster at all. It felt as if there was a stone stuck in her throat, preventing her from uttering a single word.

Sharon suddenly remembered that on the day Irene was admitted to the hospital. She had indeed seen both Edwin and Tilda.

Edwin had been holding Tilda at that time, radiating a protective instinct, his eyes and brows filled with the utmost caution.

She was pregnant, carrying their baby Naturally, he would be extremely careful.

The only one pitiable was Irene.

Irene had been foolishly happy for so many days under the illusion of fatherly love he had created, only to have it ruthlessly shattered in the end. At that moment, the only thing Sharon could do was to take Irene into her arms and hold her tight. "Irene, don't be afraid. You still have ne

Irene nestled silently in Sharon's embrace, nuzzling her shoulder like a kitten, not crying, shouting, or making a fuss.

She was so quiet that it was heart-wrenching-

After a long while, she extended her small hand and gently patted Sharon's back. "Mommy, I don't just have you. I also have Ms. Alanna, Mr. Blake, Mr. Silva, Mr. Jensen, and Grandpa. They all like me. Mommy, I'm not sad at all"

These words of understanding pricked Sharon's heart with a mix of warmth and sourness, causing her eyes to redden,

Worried that Edwin's reappearance might upset Irene, Sharon took care of the discharge procedures for Irene that very day.

Chapter 113

Fortunately, Irene hadn't undergone major surgery, and her wound had mostly healed.

Instead of returning to their previous residence, Sharon went to another property she owned,

She contacted Alanna and then turned off her phone.

Alanna arrived shortly after, accompanied by a doctor.

"What's going on? Why did she suddenly get appendicitis I thought you guys had already gone back to Pinevale, Alanna said, unaware of Irene's hospitalization as she had been traveling with Blake

Sharon briefly explained the situation, omitting the details about Edwin.

She was concerned that Alanna might confront Edwin and also feared it would bring up painful memories for Irene.

Sharon took care of Irene for a few more days

Until Alanna informed her that the new person they had been interested in was hesitant to sign the contract due to certain concerns.

“Help me set up a meeting with him. I go see him as Foxy Damon,” Sharon said.

Alanna couldn't think of any other solution, so she agreed and helped make the arrangements.

The next day, Sharon left Irene in Alanna's care and went to a small coffee shop to meet the young man.

The young man appeared to be in his early twenties, probably just off the construction site, dressed in worn but clean clothes, a safety helmet on his head, with tanned skin that seemed out of place in the coffee shop's environment.

Upon seeing her, the young man somewhat awkwardly drew back his hands.

Sharon greeted him politely, telling him that she too had come from a small place like Pinevale.

The young man's unease subsided, and he gradually began to converse with her.

Although shy, the young man had many unique insights, and they ended up talking for quite a while.

By the end of their meeting, knowing that she was also signed with Bisney Entertainment, he finally agreed to join Bisney Entertainment. Sharon saw him out, went over some details, and then waved goodbye.

As soon as she turned around, she saw a familiar figure, Edwin.

He was standing at a slight distance, perhaps having watched her for some time.

Even from afar, she could see the troubled look on his face, indicating he was not in a good mood.

Sharon was slightly taken aback, considering ignoring him and leaving, but he approached her.

“Why did you discharge so suddenly? Why didn't you tell me? Why did you even turn off your phone?” he asked in a series, his tone quite harsh. Sharon gave a faint smile, light yet with a hint of sarcasm.

“Mr. Stanley, Irene has recovered, and we didn't want to take up any more of your time, so we discharged early, she said politely.

The more polite her words, the more distant their relationship seemed.

Edwin rubbed his temple uncomfortably, displeased with her aloof attitude. "Don't forget. Irene is my child."

"Mr. Stanley, if you truly want a child so much, you can go back and take good care of Ms. Gill. She can give you many. As for Irene. It's enough that she loves me who cares for her, Sharon responded, then walked past him without another word.

Edwin watched her leave with a resolute turn, his brows knitting together silently.

He had a persistent feeling that something was amiss.

Just a few days ago, she was still very polite to him.

After observing her these past few days, he could see that she was not the kind of person who would disregard Irene's wishes and make decisions based on her own preferences in an overbearing manner.

Chapter 113

Could it be because of Irene!

What had gone wrong?

After leaving Edwin, Sharon glanced down at her watch.

She had promised Irene that she would be home within two hours.

Now, there was only half an hour left.

Irene, who was already more vulnerable after the surgery, had been deeply affected by Tilda's words, which had caused her invisible emotional harm. As a result, Irene had become quite clingy recently.

Sharon had no intention of blaming Irene. She understood how much Irene lacked a sense of security inside.

Unconsciously, Sharon quickened her pace.

She had only taken a few steps when a dark figure suddenly rushed out, raising a hand to slap at her.

Dumping My Billionaire Ex Chapter 114

In a split second, Sharon instinctively turned her head, managing to avoid the brunt of the impact.

However, the attacker's fingernails still grazed her cheek, leaving a stinging sensation.

Sharon focused her gaze and recognized her assailant as Tina.

"Tina, what's gotten into you she exclaimed angrily.

Tina's eyes bulged with rage. "What's gotten into me? Why don't you ask yourself what despicable things you've done? Didn't you promise? You said you wouldn't have anything to do with Edwin, so what was that just now?"

Sharon was taken aback, only then realizing that Tina had misunderstood her.

"If I say that running into Edwin was a coincidence, would you believe me?" she asked, calming down a bit.

Tina snorted derisively. "Do you believe that yourself?"

Since Tina wouldn't believe her, there was no point in Sharon saying more.

Sharon lowered her head. "If you won't believe me, you should at least trust Edwin. Why don't you go ask him and see what he says"

"How would he know what you're thinking? You secretly follow him and then pretend it's a chance encounter, a perfect alibi. Even if you have surveillance footage, it probably wouldn't be enough to pin anything on you!" Tina snorted.

No matter how Sharon explained, Tina would find a way to misinterpret

Sharon watched her retreating figure and shook her head helplessly

Sharon didn't dwell on the incident too much, but the malevolent look in Tinn's eyes as she left was etched into her mind, giving her a sense that Tina might do something.

However, nothing happened afterward, and Sharon gradually forgot about the incident.

Irene's wound finally healed

Irene expressed her desire to go to school.

"How about you just don't leave? Didn't Edwin say he wouldn't fight you for Irene! Alanna advised her. "Your career is here, and it's more convenient to live closer. Besides, this city is so big. You won't run into him if you don't go out of your way to do so."

Sharon looked at Irene and still shook her head.

The hurt Edwin had caused Irene was too profound. Even if it was unlikely they would meet, she didn't want to take the Stron bought a large house in Moorwald, near Rosaria City, and moved there with Irene.

Ethan had essentially finished up his work, and although he wasn't fond of city life, he agreed to live with Irene as she wished,

Moorwald was an hour's drive from Rosaria City, not too far away

However, it was separate from Rosaria City in terms of resources and opportunities, which reduced the risk of Irene encountering Edwin and Tilda in the future for school or other learning activities.

For Irene's sake, Sharon had thought through every detail meticulously.

With Ethan taking care of Irene, Sharon was able to balance her live streaming and key decisions at Disney Entertainment without having to be strictly on a schedule.

The day after they moved into their new home, Sharon found a kindergarten for Irene, Irene loved the environment there and was particularly happy.

Seeing the genuine smile that bloomed on Irene's rosy face, Sharon finally let out a sigh of relief.

The following day, Irene went to school with her new backpack, and Sharon started to get busy.

Sharon worked until noon and then stretched,

Most of her work was done online, and meetings were also conducted through software, which was quite convenient

To ensure that her work and life didn't interfere with each other, she had specifically bought a small duplex. The downstairs was for living, and the upstairs was converted into a studio.

As Sharon walked downstairs, she could “You’re a mom and still so attached to dad” Ethan chided, but his face was full of smiles, patting his daughter affectionately on the back.

The two of them never mentioned the four-year marriage again, as if it had never happened.

four years were not only a wound in Sharon’s heart but also a pain in Ethan’s.

Sharon suddenly felt that her past self was utterly ridiculous.

Paternal love was clearly more magnificent.

Being a broadcaster could earn her a lot of money.

Managing a company could bring her a sense of achievement

She should never have humiliated herself by marrying Elwin.

As they were eating. Sharon’s phone rang.

She picked it up and answered.

Immediately, a voice came through. “Are you you Irene’s mother? I’m Irene’s homeroom teacher. Could you come over? Irene has been in a fight”

Hearing that Irene had been in a fight, Sharon was visibly taken aback.

Although Irene’s personality had become much more lively than before, she never got into fights.

Sharon, not wanting Ethan to worry, didn’t

Irene was standing opposite them, being reprimanded by the teacher.

Irene didn't budge, her small frame was straight and tall, her eyes wide open. Although she hadn't said a word, there was a defiance about her

The mother seemed not to be appeased and pushed Irene a few times. "You're such a child, truly lacking in upbringing?"

As soon as Sharon heard this, her face turned cold, and she quickened her steps to pull Irene in front of her before the woman could push a third time. "What exactly is going on here?"

When the teacher saw her, she said with a troubled expression, "Irene's really too much. It's her first day here and she is already fighting. If she continues this, we really won't be able to take her."

Her words placed all the blame on Irene

"Perhaps you should consider having her withdraw

Sharon had intended to ask for the reason behind the incident, but upon hearing the teacher's words, a coldness immediately spread across her face as she looked at her. "Madam, my daughter may be at fault, but as a parent, shoving my child and calling her ill-bred, shouldn't she apolog

The teacher hurried to comfort h

Sharon watched the teacher silently and finally understood,

So, the teacher was intentionally biased toward that person

After consoling the woman, the teacher turned to look at Sharon. "Mrs. Cress, Irene injured Robert like that, and it's only natural for Mrs. Brown to be angry and to vent her frustration."

Sharon briefly examined the boy and noticed that aside from a shallow scratch on his arm, he didn't have any other injuries,

In contrast,

Irene's

arm was swollen, several of her fingers were injured, and there was a noticeable scrape on her knee.

Seeing Irene's injuries, Sharon felt a chill run through her.

She remained composed, nodding in agreement. "Indeed, that's inte"

Amelia Brown, seeing that Sharon had acknowledged the teacher's words, became even more arrogant. "My son has such a long scratch on his body. It will definitely have an Impact in the future. This matter must be addressed"

"Yes, it must," Sharon continued to nod. "So, you can take your revenge by making a scratch on my daughter as well."

Sharon's proposed solution surprised both the teacher and Amelia.

This solution was quite ruthless.

However, since it was Sharon who had brought it up, they didn't hesitate to act on it

The woman nodded in agreement. Very well, Robert, go ahead and make a scratch on her hand now!"

The boy named Robert Brown, hearing this, brightened up and picked up a sharp ballpoint pen, then started walking towards Irene. Sharon gently grasped Robert's hand. "But..."

Dumping My Billionaire Ex Chapter 115

"For the sake of fairness, he must also have every injury that my daughter has"

As Sharon finished speaking, she rolled up Irene's pant legs and sleeves, revealing all the injuries.

Amelia's face turned pale when she saw the injuries on Irene

It was clear to anyone who wasn't blind that Irene was more severely injured

"No, I don't want to the boy cried out in fear, dropping the ballpoint pen with a trembling hand and covering his face as he wailed.

"How could you frighten a child like that!" Amelia clutched her son to her chest, her face full of compassion, not forgetting to scold Sharon Sharon let out a cold laugh. "Why is he frightened? This method is the fairest. He was quite excited just now when I allowed him to scratch my daughter!"

"But... how could I let my son endure so many wounds? I absolutely forbid it!"

"So, Mrs. Brown, you've noticed too that my daughter has more injuries" Sharon had been waiting for this acknowledgment. "If that's the case, then why are you only criticizing my daughter and demanding that she be the one to withdraw from school? What kind of reasoning is that?"

"Well..." "This time, not only Amelia, but even the teacher's face fell, feeling very ashamed.

Amelia was a powerful figure who was not to be trifled with, and the teacher had been focused on appeasing her quickly, without checking if Irene had any injuries.

Now, the situation had escalated...

"How about we just let this matter go the teacher suggested, seeing that Sharon was not someone to be messed with

"I disagree!" Sharon crooked her finger at the child. "Come here:

"What are you doing"" Amelia clung tightly to her son, her face on guard

Sharon sneered. "Your Irene was injured, and you could demand that my daughter withdraw from school and insult her. Why can't I retaliate!" "You... want to hit my son? Do... do you want to break the law?"

Both Amelia and the teacher were taken aback by Sharon's boldness, their faces growing even darker.

Sharon looked indifferent. "Whether it's against the law or not, we'll deal with that after I've hit him!TM

"I was wrong. I shouldn't have bullied her and shouldn't have insulted her. Robert, frightened by the threat, kept admitting his mistakes. Sharon then slightly tugged at the corners of her lips and stepped back. "Did you hear that? From the beginning to the end, it was my daughter who was being bullied."

"My son only insulted her a couple of times, and she started fighting. Of course, my son had to fight back!" Amelia said indignantly.

Sharon looked down at Irene. "What did he insult you with?"

Irene bit her lip and kept her head down, not saying a word.

"I just called her a fatherless child, a bastard, and then she hit me," the boy shouted out first.

Upon hearing this, Sharon's emotions, which had just eased, turned cold again. It seems you deserved to be hit!"

Robert puffed out his eyes, feeling aggrieved but not daring to say anything in front of Sharon.

Sharon then turned her head to look at the teacher. "Madam, is it clear now!"

"It's clear now." The teacher wiped the sweat from her brow, barely able to lift her head. "It was Robert who insulted Irene, and Irene is the one who fought back."

Sharon nodded. "So, is my daughter still to be expelled?"

"Naturally, she is not."

Moreover, it was indeed Robert's fault. If this matter got out, her position as a teacher would be at risk.

"Then, I'd like both of you to listen carefully. My daughter will continue to attend this school. Starting tomorrow, if anyone speaks ill of her, insults her, or uses any other means to upset her, I will shut this school down!" Sharon said calmly.

"Ah..." The teacher was thoroughly frightened.

“You’re being too arrogant Amelia protested

“If you have any grievances, you might as well voice them now. I’ll send them to the education bureau and let the media know as well: Sharon raised her phone.

Her phone displayed a recording screen.

No one knew how much she had recorded, and some words, once released, could cause significant trouble.

Sharon looked at the people in front of her coldly. Although she didn’t have a significant background, the resources at her disposal were more than enough to ruin these people’s reputations.

“We have no grievances. It’s very fair, very just,” the teacher said first.

Amelia didn’t dare to cause any more trouble and nodded in agreement, “Fine, I have no objections. If it comes to it, my son can just transfer schools.”

It was too frightening to have a child who was so unreasonable with their parents attending the same school

After resolving the issue, Sharon led Irene out.

Irene kept her head down, and her spirits didn’t seem to improve.

Sharon hugged her, “Irene, if you don’t like it here, you can transfer schools”

Irene shook her head, saying nothing

Sharon looked at her for a moment, her brows furrowing silently.

In fact, she knew the real reason Irene was upset, not just because she was bullied, but because she was more bothered by being called a bastard. Sharon was not only angry about this but also found it very suspicious.

They had just moved here, and no one knew about their situation. She hadn’t voluntarily mentioned her family circumstances to anyone. How did Roben know about it!

After they returned home, they didn’t talk about the incident,

When Ethan asked about the injuries, Sharon simply said that Irene had fallen at school and personally applied medicine to her wounds.

“Mommy,” in the evening, as they lay in bed, Irene, who hadn’t spoken much, finally spoke, ‘During the day, I saw my aunt

“Aunt”

Tina! Sharon was taken aback.

“Aunt and Mrs. Brown seemed to have a very good relationship. They talked for a long time and even took Robert to lunch. When they came back, Robert started insulting me, saying I don’t have a dad and that I’m a bastard. As Irene spoke, she bit her lip.

Looking at her, Sharon suddenly understood what had been puzzling her before

So, it was Tina who had spread the information.

Tina, apparently feeling that Sharon had lied to her last time and feeling dissatisfied, had taken it out on Irene.

If Tina had confronted her directly, Sharon might not have been angry, but Tina had actually gone after Irene Sharon’s face suddenly turned cold as if covered in ice.

The next day, Sharon made a special trip back to Rosaria City

She found Tina in an upscale clothing store.

Tina visibly started upon seeing Sharon and quickly put on a haughty air, not even deigning to give Sharon a direct glance as she walked past as if she weren’t there.

Sharon grasped her arm firmly. “Tina, let’s get this straight. Why did you go after Irene?”

“What are you talking about! I don’t understand!” Tina feigned ignorance on purpose,

“Yesterday, Irene was insulted, and the parent who insulted Irene has admitted that it was at your instigation! What, do you want to bring her here to confront you?” Sharon said

A hint of embarrassment flashed across Tina’s face, but she quickly turned her face back, her expression defiant. “So what if it was me? What I choose to say is my freedom, and it’s none of your business to dictate what I can and cannot do”

“Irene is your niece, Do you even have a conscience?” Sharon couldn’t contain her emotions, her chest heaving with indignation.

Tina snorted. “Conscience? You dare to talk about conscience? If it weren’t for you scheming with Edwin, climbing into his bed, and giving birth to that child she wouldn’t be so unwelcome. You're the one who lacks a conscience. Even if she's been wronged, it's your fault!

"Sharon, actually I'm trying to bully you

I know. When she's wronged and bullied, it's you who feels the pain. Right now, I'm just letting her be insulted and beaten. If you dare to provoke me again. I'll make sure she disappears from your life completely, making your life unbearable!"

Crack!

The moment Tina finished speaking, Sharon slapped her.

"How dare you hit me! Tina, stunned for a moment, then clutched her face and shrieked. "Who do you think you are! Don't you want to live anymore!"

She leaped up, ready to retaliate,

Sharon looked at her coldly. "If you dare to touch Irene again, it's you who won't be living"

Her face suddenly darkened, exuding a menacing aura

Tina was frightened, her hand that had been raised to strike trembling with fear, and her face turned pale.

However, almost immediately, she spotted a savior and quickly threw herself into the person's arms. "Sharon hit me!"

Dumping My Billionaire Ex Chapter 116

Sharon turned her head and saw the man with a cold expression and a tall, handsome appearance.

"Edwin, you must help me!" Tina clung to Edwin, her eyes brimming with tears.

When Tina turned to look at Sharon, her eyes were filled with a clear challenge and self-satisfaction.

She had been ready to have a fight with Sharon, but with Edwin's arrival, there was no need for that.

"So arrogant of Sharon, I'm your sister, and she actually dared to lay a hand on me! She's trying to get the upper hand over us!" she cried.

Edwin turned his head to look at Sharon.

Sharon's face was inscrutable as if veiled by a light mist.

"Are you sure you want to take Tina's side?" she asked.

"Edwin will of course only help me. Would he side with you, an outsider? Tina, worried that Sharon might reveal the reason for her slap, hastily interjected.

Sharon glanced at her with a cold laugh and walked up to Edwin. Then let's fight.

She stood expressionless in front of him and closed her eyes.

Sharon was actually allowing Edwin to hit her.

Tina's mind was a whirlwind of accusations and slanders against Sharon, and she hadn't anticipated this move at all, leaving her momentarily stunned and speechless

Edwin gently pushed Tina aside, his gaze still fixed on Sharon "I don't hit women. However, what exactly happened?

"Who knows what happened? Sharon just came out of nowhere and hit me! Tina was eager to avoid explaining, quickly responding. "Edwin, even if you don't hit women, you can't just let her go. If you do, there's no telling what she might do in the future."

"Let's check the surveillance. Edwin suggested.

Tina was taken aback.

Sharon wasn't saying anything, and Edwin was still insisting on checking the surveillance?

Tina was frightened and stunned into silence. "Edwin, what do you mean? Don't you believe me? I'm your own sister."

Ignoring Tina's plea, Edwin found the staff.

Soon enough, the staff had the surveillance footage displayed before them.

The footage showed that it was indeed Sharon who approached Tina.

Without much exchange of words, Sharon struck Tina.

"Edwin, you see. It was Sharon who bullied me! Tina, who had been terrified, was relieved to find that the surveillance didn't have sound.

The situation immediately turned in her favor.

Tiru was overjoyed.

“Are you talking about Irene?” Edwin suddenly asked.

Thu, caught up in her glee, was taken aback by the question, her mind going blank.

She looked at Edwin with trepidation as his eyes were used on the surveillance footage of the two, reading their lips.

Their faces were clearly captured, and with Tina’s expression being particularly rude and overbearing. Edwin had already guessed quite a bit from their lip movements. Tina, did you cause trouble for Irene?

Well.... L... Tina dared not respond

Edwin turned to face her, his expression quickly becoming dent

다

Tina feared Edwin the most, and seeing his current demeanor, she was so frightened that she could only stammer in defense. “It’s all because Sharon made me uncomfortable. She bullied me, and I just Edwin had only been speculating, but Tina’s words were an admission of guilt.

“If she bullied you, you could have dealt with her directly. But why did you have to harm a child? Especially when you are Irene’s own aunt!” he asked.

Tina didn’t dare to utter a single word, so embarrassed that she couldn’t even raise her head.

“Is that all clear now? Can I leave?” Sharon, ignoring the attitudes of the two, spoke indifferently, turned, and walked away.

Just as she opened the car door, Edwin caught up to her.

“Why didn’t you say anything just now!” he asked.

Sharon looked at him with an untroubled gaze. Have you ever believed what I said?”

Edwin was embarrassed and taken aback, unable to respond for a moment you don’t believe me, why should I bother to say anything more!” Sharon continued, her tone calm.

“Since

Having said that, Sharon lowered her head and moved towards the car.

Edwin urgently grabbed her arm. “What exactly happened to Irene? How is she now?”

Sharon saw Edwin’s concerned expression for Irene and frowned, finding it both puzzling and amusing.

Why was Edwin putting on an act when Tilda wasn’t here?

“Mr. Stanley, she’s doing well, no need for your concern, Sharon said, pulling her hand away. She got into the car, closed the door in Edwin’s face with a snap, and drove off

Edwin almost got run over by the wheels and had to step back.

He watched the departing vehicle, his brows furrowed in thought.

The harmonious scenes he had shared with her and Irene kept coming to mind, and he couldn’t figure out what had caused her to become so cold

Tina had been severely reprimanded by Edwin and felt utterly humiliated,

She walked home listlessly, her mind filled with thoughts of how Sharon dared to hit her and use Edwin to get back at her. She vowed that she wouldn’t let that woman have an easy time.

Even if Edwin would help Sharon, Jasmine definitely would not.

Thinking of this, Tina quickened her pace.

Inside the house, Jasmine was sitting in the living room, sipping coffee, dressed in elegant and high–end attire, exuding an air of nobility.

Upon seeing her, Tina immediately ran over, crying, and presented her swollen face to Jasmine: “Mom, look. That bitch hit me! She’s still got her eyes on Edwin. I only criticized her a bit, and she did this to me! You must stand up for me.

“Today, Edwin even scolded me because of her. If this continues, she might just snatch Edwin away from us again!”

Tina was well aware that Jasmine could never accept the idea of Sharon still having feelings for Edwin.

Tina deliberately concealed the truth about why Sharon had hit her, directing the issue toward Edwin instead. She was certain that Jasmine would become angry and take her side

As expected, Jasmine's face showed anger, and she slammed her cup down on the table with a bang. "Absurd!"

Tina, secretly delighted, was about to add more fuel to the fire when Jasmine suddenly raised her hand and slapped Tina's face.

Crack!

The slap was crisp and loud, causing Tina to see stars.

She looked at her mother in disbelief. "Mom, have you lost your mind in anger! Why would you hit me!?"

Chapter 10

Tim was just confused by anger. "You've nearly driven me to death?" Jasmine stood up, her expression stern as she looked at her daughter.

She then took out her phone and quickly tapped on it a few times.

Immediately, a voice came out from the phone.

Tina's face was filled with disbelief as she heard the voice "Well Jasmine continued, "This is a recording Sharon sent me! She made it clear that if I don't control my own daughter, this recording will appear in all the major media outlets! An aunt instigating harm against her own niece. If such a scandal gets out, the Stanley family's reputation will be ruined!

you trying to kill me?"

Jasmine had always doted on her daughter and had never been this fierce with her before.

Tina, holding her face, was filled with grievance and embarrassment, crying uncontrollably.

Jaunine, looking at her, felt a mix of anger and disappointment. "You know that woman Sharon is shrewd, but why provoke her? You've brought such trouble upon yourself. How do you plan to resolve this?"

"It's my own fault for indulging you too much, leading you to make such a mistake! From now on, you're to stay at home and not go anywhere!" Tina ran back to her room in tears, thinking about the grievances she had suffered that day, and in her anger, swept a table full of

of cosmetics onto

Damn you, Sharon! I merely retaliated for what Sharon did wrong, yet not only did Sharon slap me, but she also got Edwin and my mother to scold me. It's just too hateful! Thus thought to herself.

The more Ima thought about it, the more upset and unwilling she became

As a daughter of the prestigious Stanley family, how could she be bullied by a powerless, insignificant woman?

"Sharon, you just wait!" After crying crying for a while, "Tina took out her phone and dialled a number...."

"Tina" In the coffee shop, Clara, left

Clara, looking uneasy, clutched the strap of her bag and stood before Tina with her head bowed, not daring to raise it

"Tina, she hadn't dared to appear before her.

Ever since Clara was caught deceiving

Clara was very frightened when Tina called her today, most afraid that Tina would settle old scores.

Tina was known for her narrow-mindedness and vicious means means of retaliation

*Come here. Have some coffee. Tina, however, was uncharacteristically magnanimous, a stark contrast to her usual pettiness.

The more Tina acted this way, the more frightened Clara became, shrinking back even more. I'm not thirsty. I'm sorry, I was wrong, Tina, please, let bygones be bygones

"Come on. I've forgotten all about it." Thus came over, pressed her into a chair, and slammed a cup of coffee down in front of her.

a jump, her hands fumbling with the coffee cup, on the verge of tears.

The small sound still made Clara jump

Tina wasn't in the mood for pretense and flicked her newly styled hair. "Clara, I was very angry when you helped Tilda deceive me last time. However, I'm willing to give you a chance to redeem yourself"

Upon hearing that Tina was willing to give i chance, Clara immediately looked up at her.

Tina's slender fingers tapped on the cup in front of her. "I previously asked you to help me find the wife of Disney Entertainment's boss. If you can find her, we'll consider our past matters settled;

"The wife of Disney Entertainment's boss? Why are you still looking for her? Clara looked surprised. "She's divorced. It's useless for you to find her." "You don't need to worry about that. Just find her!" Tina's expression was domineering

Upon hearing this, Clara's brows furrowed. "Tina, you know that I actually... don't have any connections, Where am I supposed to find her?"

"I don't care about that. If you don't bring her to me, don't even think about staying in Rosaria City! Not just you, but your parents and your brother will have to leave Rosaria City as well!" With that said, Tina abruptly stood up, "You think it over"

Sharon didn't rush back but went to Disney Entertainment instead.

Because of her relationship with Alanna, no one suspected that she was the boss. They only thought she had come to visit Alanna Alanna wasn't in, but Sharon had the password to Alanna's office.

After entering, Sharon watched the live broadcasts from various streaming rooms while waiting for Alanna.

It wasn't long before Alanna, dressed in a professional skirt, rushed back in.

Alanna

Upon seeing Sha

Sharon, Alanna tossed her mid-length curly hair and wore a face full of charm and coquetry. "Honey, do you know what I just heard? Tina is still looking for the wife of Itisney Entertainment's boss and has reduced Clara to tears in the coffee shop."

"Is that so Un

Upon hearing that "Tina was looking for the owner of Bisney Entertainment, Sharon's fingers paused slightly.

Alanna poured herself a glass of water and sat down opposite Sharon, "What do you think she's up to

Nothing new She's obviously trying to get at me, Sharon said expressionlessly, a deep meaning already curling at the corners of her lips

She briefly recounted the incident at Irene's school and the recent lesson she had given Tina Upon hearing that Tina had actually targeted Irene, Alanna was so angry that she slapped the table and sprang to her feet. "Is Tina such an asshole! Torne is her own piece. How could she do such a thing?

"In the Stanley family, Alanna's always been bullying and looking down on Irene. I'm used to it. Sharon said, not holding any hope for Tina's character. "She won't give up after being taught a lesson by you, but it's a pity that she'll never find the wife of Disney Entertainment's boss in this lifetime. Alanna chuckled at the thought of Tina's foolish hope,

Sharon merely smiled, and suddenly a mist seemed to rise in her eyes. "Since she's so eager to find the wife of Disney Entertainment's wife, let her you mean!”

Sharon tossed a number to her. “Have Clara pass it on to her.”

Alanna picked it up

it up, glanced at it, and laughed. “Sharon, you really have a knack for this, coming up with such a move!”

Three days later, under the scorching sun, Tina, dressed in a brand–new mini–skirt, walked on the mountain path in a pair of high heels, tottering and looking exaggerated and strange.

Passersby on their way up and down couldn’t help but cast strange looks at her.

Tina was tired and irritated, her legs aching as if they no longer belonged to her.

She longed to sit down right there and never move again.

But thinking of the p urpose of her visit, she gritted her teeth and continued upwards.

As she walked, Tina fanned herself and grumbled, “Doesn’t she have any sense, going to a place like this?”

In the morning, Clara found her and gave her the number for the wife of Bisney Entertainment’s boss

She immediately contacted the person and arranged a meeting

The person had given her an address.

She had thought it would be some upscale place and rushed over excitedly, only to find out when she arrived at the foot of the mountain that the place was actually on top of it

With no road access, she had to climb up the stone steps

Tina, accustomed to a life of comfort, had never suffered like this.

She attributed all her dissatisfaction to Sharon, deciding that after finding the wife of Bisney Entertainment’s boss, she would make sure that punished her doubly

Tina barely made it to the top of the mountain, gasping for breath as she collapsed to the ground.

Looking up, she saw a woman standing under a large tree on the opposite side.

The woman's head and face were completely covered, wearing sunglasses.

Even though the person was covered up, s

She ran over briskly. "Hello, my name is Tina Stanley, the sister of Edwin Stanley fr

Tina was confident that with such an introduction, the person would surely give her the respect she deserved and treat her differently.

But the woman merely gave a faint nod. "Ms. Stanley, what can I do for your Tina was taken aback, and her impression of the wife of Disney Entertainment's boss immediately soured.

The damned woman dared to look down on her.

However, thinking of the purpose of her visit, Tina quickly composed herself and spoke. "I have something very important to tell you. Your husband had an affair before divorcing you, and he even had a child with that person.

"And you know that woman. Her name is Sharon Cross, Tina said this with a secret sense of triumph in her heart.

Sharon, do you really think I'm helpless against your die wondered

Just by Tina presenting Irene as the child born from an adair Disney Entertainment's boss had during his marriage, his wife was sure to become angry

Under the sunglasses, a pair of dark, bright eyes flickered

No surprises there. Tina couldn't come up with anything new.

Dumping My Billionaire Ex Chapter 118

The person standing in front of Tina was none other than Sharon.

Sharon calmly looked at Tina.

Tina's heart was beating quickly under Sharon's gaze..

Previously, Tina had found out something. Sharon probably hadn't been in contact with the owner of Bisney Entertainment, and the rumors from before might have been fabricated by Sharon and Alanna.

Tina was so mad at Sharon that she went to Clara and forced Clara to look for the female owner of Bisney Entertainment.

Clara had actually made it, which was also beyond Tina's expectations.

"My husband and I will be together forever. Sharon said, not exposing anything else.

She was the owner, so there was nothing wrong with her words.

Tina didn't recognize Sharon, nor did she know Sharon was the owner of Bisney Entertainment. Hearing that, she thought that Sharon and the male owner weren't divorced. Her head buzzed, and she panicked for a moment.

However, soon, she realized that the current situation was m was more beneficial to her.

Tina was overjoyed, almost clapping and laughing

She held back the joy in her heart and hurriedly said. "That's even more intolerable. Do y

you know what 5

Sharon and her friend Alanna had done! Because no one had seen your husband. Alanna announced that she was your husband's girlfriend in the name of him. She even said that your husband divorced you for her"

Tina kept talking, with evil excitement flashing across her eyes. "She was also the one who said that the child was your husband's. She has no bottom line!

You should be the one with no bottom line. Sharon thought.

She felt disgusted when she saw Tina's smug

The Stanley family was a prestigious family in Rosaria City, and Edwin was n was considered a promising young man. How could he have such a sister?

Afraid that "the female owner of Bisney Entertainment" would have scruples and not dare to deal with Sharon, Tina hurriedly revealed Sharon's background. "Sharon is just the daughter of a shoemaker. She despised her family for being poor and was eager to marry into a rich family So, she schemed against my brother and had sex with him, contacting the reporters and forcing my brother to marry her. Because of that, my brother had no choice but to break up with his girlfriend, who he had been in love with for many years, and marry Sharon"

Tina's storytelling skills were truly extraordinary. Sharon looked at her and didn't interrupt her.

Tina beamed with joy. "However, my brother has divorced that indiscreet woman. I didn't expect her to hook up with your husband and intend to break you up! With the previous example, I'm sure that she will provoke you and destroy your family!"

"That's too much," Sharon echoed Tina indifferently. She felt that it was too kind of her last time. She shouldn't have asked Jasmine to deal with Tina only.

"So, we can't let her go Tina thought there was a chance when she heard Sharon's agreement.

"What do you think I should do!" Sharon asked.

Tina racked her brains, trying to think of a way to completely defeat Sharon and make Sharon regret it

*Separate her from her child. Her child is now the stepping stone for her to purry your husband. As long as her child is missing, she won't be able to do anything"

Sharon sneered in her heart.

She thought, "What a vicious

"She's clear how important a daughter to a mother is. And she's going to take advantage of my

"Actually, there's something more important that I haven't told you. Sharon did a paternity test on her daughter and your husband. It showed that your husband is her daughter's father Obviously, she has long begun planning" Tina was complacent. She believed that Sharon could never tolerant such a thing

As expected, Sharon nodded. Your suggestion is good."

Even though she was furious, she kept calm on the surface and even praised Tina.

Tina thought Sharon had accepted her suggestion and was overjoyed.

She thought, "Sharon, your retribution is coming soon!

As the daughter of a poor shoemaker, how you dared to fight with me, a daughter of the Stanley family! You're counting death

"By the way, we can't let Alanna off either. She's Sharon's accomplice and the person behind the rumors about her and your husband. She even secretly got 40 million dollars of growth funds for Sharon's daughter.

"They regard the benefits of Bisney Entertainment as their own. How shameless!"

Tina not only planned to separate Sharon from Irene, but she also wanted to harm Alanna.

Sharon no longer hid her emotions. She took off part of her mask and revealed a cold smile on the corner of her mouth

Tina was satisfied with her plan. Noticing Sharon's smile, she only thought "the owner of Bisney Entertainment was targeting Sharon and Alanna. She didn't take it to heart at all

Since she had exposed Sharon's and Alanna's true self, it was her turn to fight for some benefits.

She continued, "Although Alanna's online sales volume is high, it's all because of Bisney Entertainment. She can't do anything on her own. I applied for a job at Bisney Entertainment before. My various professional skills were outstanding, and I originally stayed there as Alanna's successor." Tina didn't even blink as she praised herself.

"But later on, Sharon was dissatisfied with my brother divorcing her. She joined hands with Alanna and asked me to be a cleaner! Now you know how presumptuous and shameless they are."

"So, you mean, if I get rid of Alanna, you can replace her? Sharon was smart enough to see through Tina's trick,

Tina was glad to hear that "Don't worry. With my status and ability, I'll only do better than Alanna. Don't forget, I'm the daughter of the family."

"How shameless you are!" Sharon removed her mask, not intending to disguise herself any longer.

Tina was secretly delighted. When she suddenly heard those words, she couldn't help but be startled.

Tiru looked up and saw Sharon taking off her sunglasses.

She pointed at Sharon and screamed, "It's you!"

Stanley

Sharon stared at her coldly. "I've long heard that you're looking for the female owner of Bisney Entertainment. I'm curious about what you plan to do. I didn't expect you to be so sinister."

Just now, Tiru was still imagining what her future would be like happily. In her opinion, after dealing with Sharon and Alanna, she could fulfill her dreams and make a name. However, Sharon's appearance destroyed her imagination.

Tina couldn't stop trembling. It was hard to tell if she was angry or disappointed.

Sharon took a step forward and grabbed Tina's collar. "You want to separate my daughter and me! And you want to chase Alanna out of Disney Entertainment and replace her! Tina, do you believe that I will push you down from here and kill you?"

Then, she pressed Tina against the railing

Below the railing was a bottomless cliff, and below the cliff was a rapid river, Tina's upper body was in mid-air. She would fall as long as Sharon let go!

Tina had never been in such a danger before. She screamed in fear and gripped the railing tightly, her face ashen.

At that moment, she no longer had any backbone and kept being “Don’t! Don’t push me down?”

A cold smile appeared on Sharon’s face. “Should keep a sinister woman like you alive!”

Dumping My Billionaire Ex Chapter 119

“Ah! I was wrong, I was wrong!”

Tina held Sharon’s hand tightly. She was trembling in fear and kept apologizing.

Only then did Sharon pull Tina back and throw her on the ground. “Irene is my bottom line. If you dare to plot against her again, I’m not sure if you’ll die under a cliff or a car!”

With that, Sharon turned around and left, ignoring Tina

Tina was scared out of her wits. She hugged her knee and trembled non-stop. Seeing Sharon walk away, she burst into tears.

An hour later, she rushed into Clara’s house and dragged Clara from the bedroom outside by Clara’s hair.

“Damn it! How dare you collude with Sharon to harm me! You must be tired of living!”

Tina gritted her teeth, and her face was distorted, looking like a lunatic.

Clara was unable to move. She could only cover her head with her hands and beg for mercy. “I didn’t, I didn’t. I don’t have Sharon’s phone number. How can I collude with her? Besides, even if I can, I don’t have the guts to target you?”

Hearing Clara’s words, Tina let go, but her expression did not change. “How did Sharon know I was looking for the female owner of Disney Entertainment? How did you get the phone number you gave me?”

Clara had long been scared by Tina’s methods. She touched her scalp, which was almost torn off, and said with lingering fear, “I didn’t know. I spent money to get the phone number from Alanna’s assistant.”

Hearing that, Tina burned with anger and hit Clara’s head hard. “Are you an idiot? Alanna and Sharon are in cahoots. You bribed her assistant? Are you counting death?”

After that, she raised her hand and wanted to hit Clara again.

Clara was so frightened that she shrank her neck, and tears streamed down her face.

“You kept urging me, and I had no choice but to take the risk. I didn’t know that person would still trick me after taking my money. I didn’t expect that!”

Clara didn’t have the guts to tell Tina the truth. She didn’t have the money to bribe Alanna’s assistant and only gave the assistant an empty promise. Tina stomped her foot angrily.

Thinking about the humiliation and intimidation she had suffered on the mountain, she felt her heart and lungs on fire, not comfortable for a second “Damn Sharon! Not only did she cheat me of my money, but she also dared to threaten me like that! Tina gritted her teeth, the hatred in her heart deepening.

However, when she thought of Sharon’s methods and words on the mountain, she could not help but shiver.

When Sharon well cra went crazy,

it was indeed terrifying!

Tina was silent for a long time. Suddenly, she snorted. “Since she warns me not to do anything to that little brat, then I’ll target her directly!

She turned to look at Clara. “Go do something for me!

Sharon left the mountain and returned to Mourwald,

It was time for school to end, so she went to pick up Irene very well in school today. No one said

Seeing Sharon, the teacher from yesterday trembled a little and took the initiative to say, “Irene is doing very anything bad about her, nor was she beaten up.”

The teacher’s attitude was quite good, and the coldness on Sharon’s face reduced a little. “My daughter doesn’t need special treatment. You just need to be fair.”

“That’s right.” The teacher hurriedly nodded, afraid to face Sharon.

Chapter 119

As a teacher, it was not proper to get along with students because of their parents' power without distinguishing between right and wrong.

She felt even more guilty as Sharon did not pursue the matter.

After dinner. Alanna made a video call.

She asked, "How is it? Did you make Tina behave today!"

at on the sofa, and her fingers gently tugged at the tassel on it. "If so, she wouldn't have caused so much trouble"

Sharon sat

"You mean, she's still up to something?" Alanna raised her voice. "Damn it! What a shameless woman! Instead of letting her hurt Irene again, why don't we make a move to deal with her first?"

"Don't worry, she won't target Irene anymore Sharon said confidently. "She's just scheming against me now"

As soon as Sharon finished her words, Alanna exclaimed, "Fuck! You guessed correctly."

She stared at the phone screen. "The latest news said that you pretended to be the female owner of Bisney Entertainment. Is Tina out of her mind? You're always in and out of Bisney Entertainment and can easily use its power. Can't she guess your identity?"

"It's not that she can't guess it. She just doesn't want to believe it."

Tina thought Sharon was the daughter of a shoemaker. Because of the stereotype in her heart, she believed Sharon wouldn't be capable at all.

"Since that's the case, let's show her something that she is willing to believe. Don't worry, leave it to me. I'm sure that she will be angry to death!" Alanna promised

Sharon naturally knew Alanna's methods, and she did not ask further,

Alanna was efficient. A few minutes after she hung up, the news Tina released was followed by a statement,

The statement read, "As long as Sharon was willing, she would always be the female owner of Bisney Entertainment."

The signature was still from the male owner of Bisney Entertainment.

Tina was waiting for her news to arouse a heated discussion so that the real female owner of Bisney Entertainment would help her punish Sharon. However, she didn't expect the male owner of Bisney Entertainment to make a statement so quickly

"Damn it! Damn in Tina kept kicking the wall furiously, imagining it to be Sharon.

"It must be Sharon and Alanna's trick!"

Even so, Tina couldn't do anything about it.

There had been so much trouble recently, but both the president of Bisney Entertainment and his wife had never appeared. It was as if they did not exist in the world.

How could that be possible!

Tina couldn't help but guess. They were overseas, and they were unable to receive the news in the country?

Even so, Biancy Entertainment was such a big company, and they should more or less pay attention to its affairs. How could they not know Alanna had spent tens of millions of dollars helping Sharon?

"Could Alanna and Sharon be Risney Entertainment's bosses?"

Tina quickly alsook her heal

"Impossible, absolutely impossible!

i thought, 'If Sharon was that capable, she wouldn't have to stay in the Stanley family and ensure me for four years.

What other reason can there bet

Tiru racked her brains but couldn't think through it

She couldn't find the lady boss of Hisney Entertainment, and she had no way to deal with Sharon either. Other than being angry, she could do nothing. She felt she was about to die of anger!

Tilda leaned against Edwin and read the news with a meaningful smile. "I didn't expect Ms. Cress relationship with the boss of Bisney Entertainment to be so good."

She looked casual and indifferent, but her eyes were fixed on Edwin. There was a hint of anxiety in the depths of her eyes,

Edwin had been watching the news for nearly ten minutes.

Did he still have affection for Sharon!

Tilda frowned subconsciously. She thought about what had happened recently and Edwin's tolerance of Sharon in terms of her daughter. The more she thought about that, the worse she felt.

She had spent so much effort to return to Edwin. How could she lose out to Sharon!

What should she do?

Dumping My Billionaire Ex Chapter 120

Although Tilda knew Sharon had moved to Moorwald, she still felt uneasy.

Edwin's tolerance for Tilda now was all for Big Eyes.

Once he knew that Sharon was the real Big Eyes, he would no longer care about Tilda.

The fact that Big Eyes was Sharon was like a time bomb. Tilda didn't know when it would explode.

On the day that it exploded, she would be mangled, and not even her bones would be left!

Tilda clenched her fists

She was terrified and broke out in cold sweat by just thinking about that Tilda said to herself. If it came true. No! I have to think of a way out.

The fact that Sharon was Big Eyes could not be changed. The only thing Tilda could do now was to worsen the relationship between Sharon and

Edwin.

As long as Edwin hurt Sharon deeply and irreparably enough, Sharon would completely cut ties with him.

Tikla wanted to see how Sharon could recover from so much pain.

At the thought of that, she said softly. "Edwin, it seems that Ms. Cress is with the president of Bisney Entertainment indeed. If that's the case, you have to consider Irene's growth carefully, Irene is a daughter of the Stanley family. After Ms Cress remarries, it's inappropriate for Irene to continue living with her. Although Ms. Cress is kind to children, she will inevitably be sandwiched between her husband and in-laws in terms of Irene.

"Although she's good at racing, she's not very skilled at getting with her mother-in-law. Not only will their poor relationship affect Irene, but it will also affect Ms. Cress' happiness."

It was as if Tilda was thinking for everyone. She tried her best to portray her virtuous and kind Image.

She did not say more, yet the implication in her words was clear

With Sharon's ways of doing things and getting along with people, after she remarried, her in-laws would make things difficult for Irene. Sharon could not protect Irene, and in the end, the only one who would be hurt would be Irene.

As expected, as soon as Tilda finished her words, Edwin's brows suddenly furrowed, and his expression became stern.

Tilda pursed her lips and did not say anything else tactfully.

Ray pushed open the door and entered. He happened to see Tilda leaning close to Edwin, and his lips curled into a barely visible smile.

From the faint smile, Tilda could sense Ray's disdain for her.

Ray was secretly mocking Tilda. Back then, when Edwin treated Tilda as a treasure, she did not cherish Edwin. Now, she could only rely on the title of Big Eyes to stay by Edwin's side with a humble attitude.

Tilda felt depressed.

Ray seemed to look down on her all along.

In his eyes, Sharon would always be better than her.

Tilda was a conceited person. She wished all the men in the world would fix their eyes on her and think she was the best,

“Bisney Entertainment will have a 7th Anniversary banquet. Would you like to go!” Ray ignored Tilda and asked Edwin

He ut opposite Edwin and added, “Maybe there will be a surprise

He threw an invitation letter in from of Edwin, with Sharon’s name on it.

Edwin tightened his grip on the invitation and stabbed his finger at Sharon’s name.

Tilda also saw Sharon’s name. What does this meant Dul the invite others in her name”

Chapter 120

“Bisney Entertainment’s boss wants to tell everyone that he is not verbally supporting Sharon.” Ray’s eyes flashed with a hint of sadness.

He originally thought that he would get a chance, but in the end, he still lost.

“Obviously, he also wants Sharon to show up in public and arrange for her to manage Bisney Entertainment, Tilda said, feeling jealous and annoyed.

She thought Edwin’s love and tolerance for her in the past was already the best

However, it was nothing compared to that Sharon had received.

Not many men dared to be reckless with their careers.

However, the president of Bisney Entertainment seemed to hand his business to Sharon as a toy,

Tilda thought, Sharon ruined my happiness back then. She does not receive retribution, and she even lives a better life than met

The jealousy and hatred in her heart tormented her one after another, and she could barely control the expression on her face. She was on the verge of collapsel

I suddenly feel unwell. I’ll be leaving,” she said,

Tilda was afraid that if she stayed any longer, she would fail to control herself and reveal her true self,

She left in a hurry and even rejected Edwin's offer to send her off

Ray looked at Tilda's back thoughtfully, and the smile on his lips became brighter.

He wandered, 'Is she frightened just like that?

What would she think if she knew Sharon was Foxy Damon! The name Foxy Damon is so famous, and even after four years of silence, she still wins huge popularity and nearly a hundred million fans in a short time.

Edwin did not say anything. Other than a few minutes of displeasure, no one could tell his emotions.

He placed the invitation on the table and looked at Ray. "Is it possible to find the girl who donated cornea to me back then?"

Ray was stunned, not expecting Edwin to ask such a question.

He was suddenly curious about that. "What do you want to do if you find her!"

Edwin lowered his head and remained silent.

He had never thought of doing anything.

He just thought he could not accept the cornea silently.

"Let's talk about it when we find her," he said at last.

Ray smiled. "Have you ever thought about why she chose to donate cornea to you secretly? She might not want to cause you trouble. Other than your family, who will be so selfless! It might be someone who loves you deeply,"

His reminder made Edwin freeze.

"You've made up with Tilda. How are you going to repay that girl?" Ray's voice sounded again.

After Kay left, Edwin sat in his seat and did not move for a long time.

Recently, he had been thinking about the matter, but he hadn't been able to figure it out.

Ray's words were like the key to the question, and everything suddenly became clear.

Edwin closed his eyes and recalled who had loved him deeply.

He kept filtering the information in his mind, and finally, he found a target.

Sharon!

Could it be her!

Edwin quickly opened his eyes. His eyes widened, and a sharp pain hit his chest for some reason.

He suddenly recalled something. When he brought Tilda to check his eyes that day, Sharon was also there.

If it was Sharon...

Edwin suddenly rushed out!

Sharon just finished showering, and only then did she find that Alanna had done something earth-shattering with the name "Sharon Cress"

"You know I don't like socializing. Why did you add my name to the invitation Sharon dried her hair and said calmly.

Alanna leaned against the computer and said to Sharon seriously, "Sharon, have you thought about it? The Stanley family dares to cause trouble for you so brazenly because you don't have a backer. I know you don't like to be in the limelight, but you have to listen to me this time.

She knocked on the table and analyzed carefully. "The position I've given you is Disney Entertainment's lady boss. Those people won't dare to offend you because they don't know the boss' true strength. In addition, you've always been the one making big decisions, and you can't put the credit on me all the time. It's time for you to show up and tell everyone about your ability. Of course, there's another point. The Stanley family will see that you are not a useless housewife at all. They're the ones who are blind!"

It was not Alanna's style to not embarrass the Stanley family

Sharon did not think there was anything wrong with Alanna taking all the credit. However, since the invitation had been sent, and Alanna was doing that for her, Sharon did not refuse again

"There are still two days until the anniversary banquet. I'll go to you tomorrow. Let's buy a few more outfits. You have to amaze everyone with your beauty!" Alanna made the final decision.

Sharon was speechless.

Alanna had to be in charge of the operations and live streaming. Her schedule was much tighter than Sharon's.

Sharon naturally could not be bothered to tire Alanna with a long journey, so she said, "I go to you?"

"Might as well.

Sharon had just hung up when she heard the doorbell ring.

She looked down at her watch. It was almost midnight.

Who could it be at such a late hour?
