

Dungeon S 1111

Chapter 1111 - The Big Shots

"It's still working! Continue to wither down its hit points before the next wave of Bone Spirit Demons comes forth! Mortar focus your attack on the Bone Spirit Demons and halt their advance as much as possible. Artillery Team focus on the Boss except for those assigned to aid the mortars and Pandarens below! Tanks, maintain your distance away from the Bone Spirit Demons and aim for the bigger ones!" Xiong Da ordered as he continued to coordinate the next batch of elemental artillery shells to wreck the Ooofpa Loopas.

Despite the initial shabby coordination, it was rather surprising that they had managed to drop both of the Ooofpa Loopas' health down to 55% and thankfully, there had yet to be any retaliation from the boss monsters from either side. However, the Pandarens had noticed that both were inching closer to the Demopolis walls and that they had started to spawn even stronger Bone Spirits to slaughter them. (Although they were unsure if they became stronger with them, or if it was because of the Boss Monster's falling health pool)

The average Pandaren had managed to handle between five to ten per encounter during the first initial wave. During the second wave, the same competent level of Pandarens had been able to stand against two Bone Spirit Demons and would struggle against a third. Starting with the third wave onwards, the tides had changed.

The Bone Spirit Demons like the gorilla variant had emerged out in the open, causing the fight to be skewed towards the monsters. It took approximately three to five Pandarens to take down a Bone Spirit Gorilla.

But because of the reinforcement of the Royal Snake Battalion and their tanks, the statistics were somewhat biased as the soldiers took on the harder demons based on their experience while the Pandarens cleared the remaining weaker Bone Spirit Demons. That being said, the soldiers did not have an easier time despite having some knowledge of them.

Whenever they did not know how to defeat a certain Bone Spirit type, all they did was spam explosive shells with the help of the tanks against the demons. The constant bombardment barrage was sufficient to slow the Bone Spirits though they could see that it was getting less effective as newer waves of monsters emerged from the orifices of the Ooofpa Loopa.

"Tank 1-3, move backwards for quick refuelling. Snake Alpha Company Platoon 1 will assist with the defence. Platoon 2-4 charge forward while Platoon 5 will assist you from your flanks until the next wave of reinforcements arrives." One of the Royal Snake Captains ordered and Sergeant Rochor acknowledged the orders along with the rest of the sergeants.

"You heard the man, we have to rush forth." Sergeant Rochor repeated the order for his Platoon 2.

"Sarge, can't we use our official techniques?" Zhang Mon complained as he wanted to slay these monsters as fast as possible with the least amount of effort but with the orders restrained to not reveal their techniques, they were bound to withhold their true strength.

This was because they were still one of the Royal Zodiac Military Battalions and showing their hand to the public would only undermine their capabilities, especially when there might be enemy eyes surveilling them.

"If you want to do that, be my guest. Forward my greetings to the general when he calls you in for a 'coffee talk', will you?" Sergeant Rochor replied through the channel and Zhang Min sighed.

"Forget it, bro. I shall treat this as a handicap and learn to grow from it. Besides, we got all these funky inscriptions charms to help us." Meng Ruo sneered as he assisted his pal by grappling the Bone Spirit Demon, allowing Zhang Min to stab and slash it multiple times while seeing it burning up in smoke because of the charms.

"Honestly speaking, you guys need more dungeon fighting. At this rate, the Pandarens will start to regard you as just some pathetic soldiers." The voice alone was able to strike a chord through the platoon's channel since they immediately recognised who it belonged to.

At that point, a high level intensive aura could be felt coming from the top of the Demopolis Wall and it was sufficient to stop the current wave of Bone Spirit Demons in their tracks. In a blink of an eye, that heavy aura could be felt moving down across the Demopolis Walls and crashing into the battlefield, killing a bunch of Bone Spirit Demons simultaneously.

"Sir! It's you who gave us that order to not to show our true skills!" Zhang Min shouted and the figure merely laughed.

"That is true, but I did not say you could not use your grade's brute strength, Corporal." The figure shook off the dust cloud from the initial impact. It was none other than Hou Fei, the Royal Zodiac Snake Battalion's General.

And that was not all, just as he was about to kill a Bone Spirit Demon with his hands, yet another powerful aura came about heading in his direction. His presence was not ignored by Hou Fei but instead of helping him, the figure took the opportunity to use Hou Fei's head as a stepping stone.

The kinetic waves from the impact were sufficient to paralyse the surrounding horde momentarily and that gave the rest an opening which they did not hesitate to utilise to the best of their abilities.

"Act like a general, you dumbass." The figure's fiery aura slowly dissipated and those in the upper echelons identified him as Royal Tiger General, San Ya Bai. At his behest, a new Tiger platoon came rushing down the Demopolis Walls and reinforced the current line against the Bone Spirit Demons.

A few of the Royal Snake Platoons instantly recognised them and even shook hands for a moment before placing their focus back on the Bone Spirit Demons. Meanwhile, the remaining Pandarens were in awe to see two Royal Zodiac Generals working hand in hand since it was not a common sight for such a thing to happen, let alone for the average citizen to have a chance to fight beside them. (even if it was 'only' in a dungeon instance.) To some military buffs, it was basically a dream come true.

There were no rules in the military preventing the Royal Battalions' soldiers (or their higher ranking officers for that matter) from participating in a dungeon instance so when it happened, the streamers all went nuts with their reactions.

Their presence alone had basically increased the credibility of Jin's Dungeon and Pandas store by at least two fold and that was enough to entice the prying eyes from both the public and the other Royal Zodiac Clans to tune in.

"Yeah, yeah. I understand the situation that we need to control ourselves but it would be a shame if we failed to defeat this particular Boss Monster in a dungeon instance, right?" Hou Fei argued and Ya Bai sighed.

Technically, Hou Fei hadn't done anything wrong by merely using his cultivation strength since there was indeed an ambiguity in the rules set by the military council based on their military conduct in public. Thus, Ya Bai merely shook his reply off and joined him to punch the shit out of a Bone Spirit Demon into oblivion.

"Wait, why don't you go kill the one in the south? Why are you stealing my prey? I want to earn some raid points too!" Hou Fei complained and Ya Bai chuckled.

"My entire battalion is still in the queue. They won't be coming in that quickly. Besides, we Tigers know that you Snakes cannot do it without us." Ya Bai reasoned as he smashed a Bone Spirit Gorillas's skull into pieces which the Royal Snake Soldiers had trouble fighting one on one. "Plus, we got to give the Pandarens participating some fighting chance, right? I heard they might have some special weapon incoming."

"Alright then, then let's see if we can clear this wave in record time and kill the stupid Ooof--GAH this fat a.s.s monster first!" Hou Fei accidentally bit on his tongue when he evaded a quick strike from Bone Spirit Elephant and somehow the entire battle eventually became all about them. The rest of the soldiers under them sighed but most of them understood that the Generals did not really have many opportunities to clear some steam, something they desperately needed after 'that' incident.

And since this was a dungeon instance, they were finally able to let loose and go crazy while their subordinates sympathetically supported them from the back.

Chapter 1112 - The Fall of the Southern Wall

With the advent of the two Royal Zodiac Battalions, dominated by their respective Royal Zodiac Generals, a majority of the Pandarens were subsequently redeployed to the Southern Walls since the Pandawans trusted the army to handle the situation in the North on their own.

The Pandawans felt that the Royal Zodiac soldiers would function better with their own troops and that random cultivators with no military discipline might just hinder them. This also gave the inexperienced Pandawans leading the rest of the cultivators to focus on one area, lessening their burden, since the South so far had only been able to use its advantage of elemental ammunition and equipment they could find within Demopolis.

Hence a major portion of the main Battle Tanks was also deployed to the Southern shores, leaving the Royal Zodiac soldiers with just a set number of tanks they felt would be sufficient for their own purposes. All these changes in the battle order worked wonders in aiding with the morale of the Pandarens while being used to slow the horde down.

Those tanks' interfaces were the same as what Xiong Da and the rest had used before in the Goblin War. As long as the Pandarens remained calm and had a sound mind, they were able to handle the controls of the tanks rather easily by following the instructions via their half masks.

In addition, the System had dramatically increased the ease of interface, allowing simpler handling of the tanks comparable to the other military equipment that were in Demopolis. However, having good equipment was useless if the Pandarens were not able to handle the stress of the ever increasing difficulty of the Bone Spirit Sea Demon Horde.

Thus, without the expertise of the Royal Zodiac soldiers, there were multiple situations where Pandarens had to retreat because the Demons started to overwhelm them, leaving the shoreline empty for the Horde to move forth.

Thankfully, that did not mean the Horde had it easy. There were still Pandarens assigned on the Demopolis Walls who were tasked to remote denoting the partially destroyed tanks to further delay the advance of the Southern Horde whenever necessary.

Unfortunately, they could only do so much before the Horde reached the Demopolis Walls, causing Pandawan Bin Yong and Bu Dong who were in charge of the Southern front to call for the retreat of the Southern Demopolis Wall.

Nevertheless, that was not the end of the fight as mentioned earlier. The Pandarens as usual were able to arm their discarded equipment with explosives before they moved to their secondary line of defence.

The Suburban areas.

If the Bone Spirit Sea Demon Horde were going to advance, they were not going to make it easy for them at all. Sadly, this also meant that their primary way of attacking the Ooofpa Loopa was disrupted since their artillery guns had to be discarded as an accessory for the explosions to temporarily halt the Bone Spirit Sea Demon Horde climbing on the walls.

Yet, Xiong Da had a fairly shrewd idea in his mind. He told the Pandarens to aim and load their artillery guns before abandoning them. Apparently, there was a Pandaren within their midst that was able to wire all the artillery guns to a remote control button, allowing the Southern Walls to give one last offensive volley against the Ooofpa Loopa before they destroyed the artillery guns. (Lest the few that had been trampled by the Bone Spirit Sea Demons.)

Some of the Pandarens thought that the loss of their wall meant that they had lost the raid instance, and their despair almost drove them to have no hope.

"Do not waver! The North is under control by the Royal Zodiac Battalions!! The best our country has to offer! All we need to do is to concentrate on the Southern side, reducing the collateral damage!" Xiong Da reinforced through the announcements and reiterated to them that the needed manpower is still coming in from the airstrip as well as the Pandarens from the North being redeployed to the South.

All they had to do was to hold their ground until the Royal Zodiac Battalions managed to stop the Northern side.

And just as the two Generals were plummeting the Bone Spirit Demon Horde in the North, they did not notice that there was something brewing within the fog at the base of the Northern Ooofpa Loopa.

Neither did the Pandarens in the South notice anything as the two Boss Monsters were being held at bay with roughly the same amount of hit points. Still because of the forceful takeover of the Southern Demopolis Wall, it seemed that the Southern Ooofpa Loopa was about to cause more chaos compared to the Northern one.

And with the sea no longer in check by the Pandarens, the Southern Ooofpa Loopa had full reign to do what it pleased without much counter... or that was what it thought until it sensed multiple incoming missiles from the centre of the city heading towards it.

Similar to the procurement of tanks, the Pandarens had invested enough in the war efforts that they had acquired rocket trucks. The fairly iconic Russian Katyusha rocket launchers were at their disposal and Xiong Da did not hesitate to bring what they could find in the Demopolis bas.e.m.e.nt to the battlefield. Once a centrepiece in the Russian military during the second world war, the ones the Pandarens possessed had been tuned with far better rocket navigation and aiming systems. The artillery guns might have been disposed of after the remote activation of the final volley of attacks but the Pandarens still had a way to fight back.

The only problem was that the delay between each volley of missiles from the rocket trucks was rather immense due to the slow reloading of missiles done by a few Pandarens. It made it unviable for the rocket trucks to do as much damage as they had been able to do before the Southern Ooofpa Loopa got immune to the elemental attacks.

Yet, every bit counted until the Pandawans on the surface got a mysterious transmission from Shi Zuo and Luo Bo that they might have potentially found a way to fight toe to toe with the Southern Ooofpa Loopa.

Chapter 1113 - The Secret Weapon

"Actuators normal. Engine valves patent, all limbs have power. Basic Weapon Systems are online. Just a little more stuff..." Shi Zuo was looking through the checklist thoroughly to ensure that they had activated everything in the c.o.c.kpit.

"Are we done yet? Can't we just fire off at the speed of light?" Luo Bo was yawning as she relaxed on the inclined seat, waiting for her dear boyfriend to finish looking through the manual. "Every second lost here means a more dire situation up on the surface. This is just a raid instance, you do not have to be too particular with all the specifics."

"Way to 'not' put me under pressure! Would you prefer that we just crash and burn the moment we lock on to the enemy?" Shi Zuo questioned her as he flipped a few switches on. "If we do not know what this baby can do, how are we going to win this? In case you forgot, there are TWO Raid Boss Monsters waiting for us up there! I, for one, don't want to be remembered as 'that one Pandawan who ruined the secret weapon to succeed in the Demopolis City Raid Instance' !"

"Then why is this even more difficult than the tanks and artillery guns we previously operated?" Luo Bo questioned but Shi Zuo did not even bother replying as he was too occupied with the remaining items on the checklist but eventually gave in. Although he knew that if he ignored her, he could activate the c.o.c.kpit faster for operational use, but he was afraid a bored Luo Bo might do something rash.

"You would have to ask Boss Jin. Maybe it had always been programmed like this? Maybe the bonus we missed out on, would have made things easier. Could even be some sort of penalty for us kinda cheating the dice game back then." Shi Zuo answered as he continued to keep his face buried deep in a physical manual book.

That reply of course made Luo Bo even more bored since she was not exactly listening to the things he said. And thus, she decided to do it her own way, after all, this was really just a raid instance. There was no need to be so uptight in her opinion. (She lied. Luo Bo wanted to fight in the big giant robot as quickly as possible.)

"AHHHHH WHATEVER, I AM TURNING IT ON!" Luo Bo commented as she sat properly at the front console and pressed the ignition button. The interfaces immediately lit up right in front of them and the dark metal surfaces in front of them instantly boot up to show the surroundings. The hangar outside of the c.o.c.kpit was poorly lit when they entered it previously but when the ignition button was pressed, the hangar bay automatically raised its alarm to red alert. Flash lights were lit up and various autonomous equipment started to move around them.

"Arghhh!! Luo Bo, dear. Can you please be a bit more patient?! I'm not done with it!! If there is something to happen before we-" Shi Zuo tried to talk some sense into his girlfriend, but she was no longer listening. The Rabbit Pandawan was going to be selfish as she grabbed the joystick consoles towards her and put on her seatbelt.

"I believe in you! No one else but you can find out along the way when we are fighting the boss monster." Luo Bo encouraged the Mad Monkey Cultivator as she pressed a button on the System interface indicating 'Launch'. Despite it being a flat panel with some interactive holographic buttons, there was actually some pressure feedback when she pressed the 'Launch' button.

Originally, Shi Zuo had wanted Bu Dong or Deng Long to pilot the Supa Robot as those two were veterans in the Supa Robot War mini game. However, Luo Bo did not care about Shi Zuo's 'logic' plus the sight of a Taurus Supa Robot felt awfully familiar to her that Luo Bo said she had to ride it no matter what. (She remembered seeing it somewhere but she could not recall it on the spot since she was preoccupied to know that they were vital in those fights or maybe there was just too much crazy stuff happening.)

Most importantly, she wanted the raid points. Initially, she did not care about the Boss Monster as it had been pretty apparent that it was designed with team effort in mind. But right now, she saw the opportunity to not only earn raid points but be the best person to earn the raid points.

How could she hand over such a precious fighting equipment to Bu Dong and Deng Long when it could potentially defeat not one but two Ooofpa Loopas?! That would definitely mean that she would be the MVP of the raid if she managed to pull it off and she would show that Hippo what it means to be the best raid cultivator in Jin's Dungeons and Pandas. (Not to mention it could mean getting a special sort of PLUSHIE!!!)

"F.u.c.k f.u.c.k f.u.c.k! Screw it! Why did I even bother to try and reason with her?!" Shi Zuo cursed their situation in his mind as he was forced to watch Luo Bo not giving a damn about his explanations. He quickly strapped on his seatbelt and began to ensure that all the robot's parameters were within range for the launch.

At that point, he could feel the Supa Robot was slowly being shifted around within the hangar, a corner where a large heavy metal door slowly rose up. As the front monitor was something similar to a panel with 270 degrees of vision, he was able to have a bird's eye view of the hangar because of the connection between the robot and the hangar.

"Luo Bo. Wear this. It should help you with the fight since you are piloting the robot. This will lighten the load for you while I provide the necessary support." Shi Zuo said as he threw a helmet towards her direction and she did not hesitate to wear it. This caused a series of brain shockwaves transmitting to her head and she could feel a phantom interaction between her and the robot.

Lights also began to lit up the route of the launch tube as the movement came to a halt. The tubes that were initially stuck to the Supa Robot were finally disengaged after Shi Zuo cleared them via his own interface.

"All Systems green. You are good to-"

"MECHATAUR LAUNCHHHHHHHH!!!!!!" Luo Bo shouted excitedly as she stepped on the throttle and slammed the accelerator joystick to the maximum.

Chapter 1114 - The Royal Zodiac Battalions' Need To Win

"HEEEEEEEEEEE HIIIIIII YIIIIIIIIIIII~!" The Southern Ooofpa Loopa's screeches caused an incoming barrage of Katyusha elemental rockets to be diverted away from it and they exploded midway as the screeching sound waves were enough to cause an impact.

The Pandarens who saw the sudden change of development started to feel extremely nervous since this was the first time that the Southern Ooofpa Loopa had directly taken any action. So far it had merely spent its time spawning the eggs from which the Bone Spirit Sea Demons would emerge to fight against the Pandarens and slowly approached their location.

Despite the Big Boss starting its counterattack, the Bone Spirit Sea Demons were not letting up with their attacks too. A few of the Royal Tiger Soldiers who had been stationed at the Southern area to give their Tiger General Ya Bai constant updates met with pretty hefty resistance.

"The Southern Ooofpa Loopa just sent out another wave and this time, it seems that we might not have enough firepower to match against." One of the Tiger Scouts reported.

"Is it some Giant Squid or Octopus?" Ya Bai asked as they also saw several new additions to the Northern Bone Spirit Demon Horde which he had never seen during his fight against the real one weeks ago. Bone Spirit Velociraptors were emerging out of the fog and they were two times faster than the current wave of Demons, breaking the Royal Zodiac Battalions accumulated momentum.

While the Pandarens manning the artillery guns on the Demopolis Wall were independent of the Royal Zodiac Battalions, Pandawans Deng Long and Se Lang were constantly exchanging information with the soldiers to provide necessary support on the ground. They had dedicated four to five artillery guns to aid as the ground support and the rest were used to combat against the Northern Ooofpa Loopa.

As of now, they had managed to reduce the Northern Ooofpa Loopa down to 30% of its hit points but the Southern Ooofpa Loopa was still around the 50% mark. However, unlike its Southern cousin, the Northern Ooofpa Loopa had still not launched any counter attacks and merely continued to send out batches of stronger and stronger Bone Spirit Demons against the cultivators.

It was still difficult but manageable for the Royal Zodiac Battalions to hold the ground in the open space. And yet the streamers who were watching the fight were finally able to see their Royal Zodiac Cultivators fight to the best of their 'public' limits. Some might have incurred serious injuries but the inscriptions and potions which the Battalions poured their money tremendously into had allowed them to stay alive.

Both of the Generals were aware that the public must be watching them through various streaming platforms and it would be pathetic if their Battalions were to fall in battle because they had ordered them to restrain themselves. They would also felt responsible if their actions would lead to the Pandarens failing in this raid instance. Thus, Hou Fei and Ya Bai had allowed the unlimited spending of the necessary raid supplies to ensure that they would survive and triumph against the Ooofpa Loopa.

Yet, that was not all they had in mind. The newspapers had painted them as the saviours of the previous event despite it not being the case. Even though they were the 'scapegoats', the two Royal Zodiac Battalions could not wash the shame that they were assisted by a small name Dungeon Supplier. Although there had been State Agents in the area, Kong Rong and Ryuli had admitted in their reports that they did not need to unleash their abilities since the Dungeon Supplier's team had been able to clear the entire incident without their help.

Initially, they had only wanted to test Jin's strength but it had subsequently turned into his debut when both he and his people had banished the Loopa Ooofpa into oblivion. The two Generals, while relieved to know that they were only doing clean-ups and assisting with the redevelopment of the land once more (as requested by Jin since the Spirit of the Lands had a deal with the System), they were not satisfied with the reported outcome... until now.

They had never expected to ever see the Loopa Ooofpa again. Even Hou Fei, who was one of the associates for the Dungeon Supplier store, had been completely baffled when he got news about the Final Boss being that accursed monster.

So, since the opportunity to redeem their failures in the raid instance had appeared, they intended to not only reinforce to the public that they were indeed capable of clearing the raid instances, but they also wanted to let the public see that it was indeed the 'Royal Zodiac Battalions' who had defeated the abomination and properly hide the rumours that it was some random cultivator that did it.

To Hou Fei, it was all about damage control for his battalion while promoting Jin's Dungeons and Pandas AND keeping Jin's involvement with the real Loopa Ooofpa a low profile.

"There's a short interval where the Ooofpa Loopa changed its immunity by vibrating its entire body, as if he is shaking it off. We should use that time to hit as hard as possible." General Ya Bai pointed out as he grabbed one of the Bone Spirit Velociraptors and crushed its head like an orange squash.

"So far, it's all elemental projectiles, if we hit it with our fists with pure chi energy, it should be counted as a non elemental attack." General Hou Fei mentioned as he literally cooked the head of a raptor with pure chi while it was being pinned down. The Bone Spirit Velociraptor was unable to perform any counterattack despite trying to sway its body weight around away from Hou Fei.

However as the two were discussing their next move which could potentially end the fight for the Northern Ooofpa Loopa, it suddenly started to screech the same way as its Southern counterpart.

A large b.u.t.t was seen emerging out from the magical portal and everyone feared the worst.

"A THIRD Ooofpa Loopa?! In the middle of the city?! You have to shitting me!!!" Xiong Da cursed as he could go insane from the absurdity of the current situation. However, they were unable to verify the monster emerging out of it since they had never seen the entirety of an Ooofpa Loopa before. (Maybe it had small little legs too...? Who knows!)

At that point, Pandarens also reported a few Bone Spirit Demons dropping out of the magical portal, dropping from the sky. But because of the height, most of the Bone Spirits Demons merely fell to their death. Yet, that was enough to scare the Pandarens since it was akin to projectiles falling out of the sky, damaging their defence barriers and equipment.

"Shit. We have to kill our Ooofpa Loopa fast before it summons another one!" Hou Fei shouted but Ya Bai stopped him for a moment to think.

"Remember what the previous Ooofpa Loopa did? It screeched too but nothing happened. What if that screech was actually his summoning rather than the one we are fighting?"

"You mean..." Hou Fei could understand the dilemma Ya Bai was facing. If Ya Bai was correct then it would mean they had to defeat the Southern one to stop its casting. However, if they stopped attacking the Northern boss, it might also summon a replacement...

But when all hope seemed to disappear, there was one thing they could count on. Flying through the air, was it a bird? Was it a plane? Nope, it was a Supa Robot to save the day!

Chapter 1115 - The Arrival of Mechataur

Just as the Pandarens were feeling despair from the sudden emergence of the magical portal, they heard a loud booming sound from the north eastern direction of Demopolis. All of them assumed that there was something as sinister as the appearance of the third Ooofpa Loopa and even the Generals believed that it could be the summoning of a fourth Ooofpa Loopa.

But it was not until the Royal Zodiac Battalions saw that the booming sound came into 'sight'.

"Boombayah!!!!!" Luo Bo shouted in the loud speaker and everyone in the Northern Demopolis Wall was shocked to see a Supa Robot smash itself into the Northern Ooofpa Loopa. The Boss' hit points drastically dropped by 10% making everyone stare in disbelief before cheering at the top of their voice.

Ya Bai could not believe his eyes seeing a deus ex machina come in to save them from this seemingly futile fight. However, Hou Fei had seen Mechataur in action before so he smirked and slapped Ya Bai's back.

"Might as well finish the job before the Ooofpa Loopa gets immune to physical attack." Hou Fei advised as the slap woke Ya Bai out of his state of shock. Afterwards, he grabbed him to throw the Royal Snake General into the air. At the same time, he had transferred some of his chi into Ya Bai, allowing him to gather some momentum in Chi gathering when he was in mid air.

"Is this revenge for stepping on you?!" Ya Bai shouted but Hou Fei merely shrugged his shoulders, before enveloping himself with even more chi to jump towards the Ooofpa Loopa too.

Simultaneously, the Mechataur uncoiled his right arm so it could send a devastating punch right after smashing against the Big Boss. However, the Ooofpa Loopa was surprisingly agile and sent out a tentacle from its orifices to block the attack. It even shot out hardened spikes as tough as steel from its main c.h.e.s.t and into Mechataur's torso, yet Co-Pilot Shi Zuo was able to detect the abnormalities quickly and told Luo Bo to take care of it.

"Yes, Sir!" Luo Bo replied as she turned the joystick hard enough to swirl the body while using her thought to control the interface helmet she was wearing to deploy additional defensive platings at the torso area in case the spikes managed to hit her.

Thankfully only two of those spikes ended up grazing the Mechataur due to the aid of the additional steel plates protecting it. However, the graze was sufficient for the System to alert Shi Zuo to purge those platings. He did not hesitate to follow the system's control's command and subsequently realised that the spikes were covered with some sort of corroding poison that was capable of burning through the defensive plating.

Perhaps the system control was afraid that the poison and melted metal could damage Mechataur's torso and recommended the purging of the metal plates.

"Thank you for taking its attention off of us!" Ya Bai shouted as he sent a flying punch towards the Ooofpa Loopa and behind him, the embodiment of his Tiger aura was overflowing. At that point when the punch impacted the Ooofpa Loopa, the bright bluish tiger silhouette materialised into a metaphysical form as it widened its mouth to plunge its fangs into the Ooofpa Loopa. The metaphysical tiger's attack continued as Tiger General Ya Bai continuously sent his punches towards the body of the Ooofpa Loopa, causing internal injury to its organs.

In retaliation, the Ooofpa Loopa screeched in pain and the Bone Spirit Velociraptors that had been harassing the frontliners turned around to assault Ya Bai.

However, it seems as if they had forgotten the second powerhouse on the battlefield. Hou Fei's presence was not felt throughout the exchange of blows despite the fact that he had displayed an overwhelming aura at the start.

By the time all the members in the fight remembered about his presence, Hou Fei was already standing at the top of the Ooofpa Loopa and exuded an aura that was suffocating not only to the monsters but the entire battlefield.

A snake silhouette gracefully emerged in the open and its metaphysical form was already binding the Ooofpa Loopa despite its attempt to remove it with its tentacles.

"This is a skill I can still show the public." Hou Fei mumbled to himself as he clasped his fingers and shouted his technique.

"Advanced Snake Technique. Binding Burn of the Royal Snake." Hou Fei called out and the metaphysical snake chi energy turned even more blinding bright. Even those at the Southern portion of Demopolis could see it happening from afar.

Yet when all this was happening, Ya Bai did not stop and also initiated his technique. Since Hou Fei was going with the light elemental chi energy, he decided to follow the same and even instructed the pilots of Mechataur to do the same if they had any.

"Light?" Shi Zuo panicked for a moment, trying to search for the right attack option but Luo Bo did not think much and went ahead of him again.

"Taurus Horn Beam!" Luo Bo shouted as the horns of Mechataur raised to temperature got enough to turn its energy into a pair of laser beams, blasting away any tentacles and heading towards the main body of the Ooofpa Loopa.

Ya Bai also gathered his energy to the middle of his palms and sent them towards the main body of Ooofpa Loopa. The resultant blast caused a bright shining blue light to mix with the Mechataur and Hou Fei's attack, causing the last blow to the Ooofpa Loopa to be a fantastic light show.

The hit points drastically dropped and both the soldiers and Pandarens cheered on as the Northern Ooofpa Loopa's health bar bottomed out. The System visually broke it to show off that it had lost, while sending out an area wide announcement that it had been defeated.

All the Bone Spirit Demons that had been summoned by the Northern Ooofpa Loopa instantly dropped dead to the ground regardless of their variant and size. In fact, the latest variants were the first to fall out of action and the fighting on the northern side ceased immediately.

Still, the people stationed on Northern Demopolis knew that they had won a battle, but they had yet to win the war!

Chapter 1116 - Extra -Krafty Auditor

"They aren't doing too bad for a big group of low to mid grade cultivators. Didn't expect Hou Fei to enter, but hey who am I to prevent anyone who can afford to spend a shitload of money from entering? With their presence, it should mean that there is a good chance they might be able to win this without too many casualties. ... Well, I did program it in such a way that a couple of nasty surprises are only waiting to be activated if they don't clear it anytime soon. Hmmm... or should I tweak up the difficulty....or should I leave them alone?" Kraft talked to 'himself' as he watched the progress through his phone. He could feel both adrenaline and reluctance coursing through his veins at the same time.

Regardless of the current outcome of the raid instance, it was of little concern to the fox as the operation to mobilise the stomach flu pandemic was currently underway. The Night Foxes had already been dispatched to the various cities and Kraft had decided to tag along to visit Aljun City, even though he claimed his direct interaction with the sabotage mission would be overkill.

No, he had come for a different reason. He was intrigued by the crystal technology they had to offer after Rex and Starry Mood managed to procure the entire Flying Fortress.

The preliminary analysis of the mothership had already been processed by the System and the report was eye catching not just to Kraft but to Jin's research team as well. Ayse and particularly Rei were dying to get their hands on it after Rex had brought it back to Demopolis for processing. They found it being accompanied by the Devil Dragons and Goblin Wyvern Knights who had taken turns guarding the Flying Fortress on its way back since it got damaged during their dogfights in order to obtain it. (Despite Kraft's earlier threats of damaging the Flying Fortress, the System 'absolved' them of their 'crimes' because it was unrealistic for it to come unharmed in an intensive bout of air to air combat.)

"Anyways consider yourselves lucky, that I find my current predicament to be more fun than messing with you all in the raid instance. I can always watch the chaos in subsequent fights. Time to grab the Crystal Tech before the Churchies managed to do anything with it. Don't want them to have an added advantage against us." Kraft ultimately decided to obtain the Crystal Tech but the System queried whether he was assuming too much that there were blueprints about the Crystal Tech in the first place.

"Aljun City is considered to be the most advanced city around the neighbourhood, so the possibility of it having a stash of physical blueprints should be extremely low. Besides, with the Church of the Afterlife's connections, the possibility of them obtaining them even after Original Bellator Kraft steals them is very high." The System stated the obvious that Kraft wondered if he should even reply back his opinion at such a dumb report. (Eventually, he caved in since his mouth was itchy.)

"Well, duh. Since they have advanced their Crystal Tech, obviously their storage method would have to be something Crystal Tech-ish. I don't believe they don't have any copies of their stuff. We just gotta make it harder for the Church to find it or... Hmmm, Hmmm, Hehehehehe!"

"Or better yet make them suffer by manipulating the backup blueprints and change them to have the wrong dimensions, adding a screw or something within the build that will create a weakness. Something like that Moon Wars Saga where the Death Moon could be destroyed entirely by simply destroying one of their pipelines. Hahahah!"

"Oh, that will be a fun thing to do, sabotaging them without them realising it. For now, we have to find a person to get into the base for us." Kraft commented as he was already strolling around the outskirts of the city's main air base compound, Geylan Air Base. And it so happened that someone had recently come out of the air base in a fairly modern motorized carriage powered by crystals.

"This guy should work well enough." Kraft thought as he typed in his own group chat that the Dark Elves continued their pandemic operation while he went off to have a little fun. After which, he raised his hand and snapped his fingers, immediately casting a spell towards the direction of the carriage while he continued to stroll out of sight of the guards who were looking at him from a distance. Seeing a suspicious person wearing a trench coat, the on duty guard leader was getting a bad vibe and decided to confront him head on.

Not long later, the carriage returned back to Kraft and the driver even lowered its window to speak to him. From afar, the guard leader noticed that the driver had gone all the way out to open the door for the mysterious person in that long trench coat. After which, the driver drove back to the Geylan Air Base front gates, prompting the Guard Leader to hurry back.

"Why did you let him go back in without checking his credentials??" The Guard Leader questioned the guards that opened the gates for them to enter.

"Sir, that person in the trench coat is THAT somebody." The guards replied in a very hushed tone, implying that was the reason why they opened the gates for him.

"That somebody?" The Guard Leader took some time to understand until the guards added that the carriage was under Major Thicket. It then started to click in his brain. The person in the trench coat must be the rumoured mysterious Air Force auditor who had come today in for an inspection. (Of course, no one knew that Kraft had already altered the memories of everyone in the vicinity.)

And with Kraft assuming that particular identity, upon brainwashing Major Thicket, he managed to enter without a hitch. "Oh, lucky me! To get the right person on the first try... There must be some unseen force guiding the hand of my fate. Hehehe!" Kraft commented loudly, while Major Thicket nodded his head profusely as if Kraft had shared something very profound with him. (It was apparent the Major had been brainwashed.)

As the carriage went further into the base's compound, Kraft touched his face a couple of times, allowing him to change his facial features into someone that was totally unrecognisable to Jin and his minions. He even secretly transformed his shirt beneath his trenchcoat to suit the Air Force's attire. All of these preparations were taken based on the memories of Major Thicket since he had to act as that mysterious auditor.

"Since I am going around questioning everything that requires rigorous inspection, I might as well enjoy the grand tour of this place and check out everything I deem as essential for my 'audit'." Kraft smiled as he crossed his legs and enjoyed the rest of the ride as his driver was in extreme distress from the current situation.

Chapter 1117 - Destruction Of The Air Strip

There was no impact on the progression of the Southern Ooofpa Loopa when its Northern counterpart fell in battle. Without any continuous artillery to hold it back, the Southern Ooofpa Loopa continued to approach Demopolis through the seas slowly.

The Bone Spirit Sea Demons started to seep through the defences of the Suburban area since there were as many leaks to its defences as the number of offensive opportunities to attack them. Urban warfare was not as easy as the Pandarens had initially thought it to be.

Because of the strength of the monsters, the ability to defeat multiple Pandarens with just one swipe of their tentacle arms, the Bone Spirit Sea Demons were actually overpowering the Pandarens in the fight. Their makeshift barricades were not doing much in the way of stopping the rampaging Horde, rather it provided only a moment of respite for the Pandarens to regroup until they could no longer hold the place.

Most, if not all of the Pandawans that were present in the raid dungeon had already stationed in the area to assist with the fight but since they were mere mid grade cultivators, there was only so much they could do.

However, the Northern Ooofpa Loopa's announced defeat was music to their ears, a message to boost the down-stricken morale of the current band of Pandarens to keep on fighting. Yet, there were still two issues to contend with.

The first issue was the Southern Ooofpa Loopa coming forth inland. As much as they disliked it, the Pandawans believed it was a good opportunity to fight the giant abomination without worrying too much about the terrain.

Thus, they had decided to take all possible cause of action to keep the Bone Spirit Sea Demons at bay until the Southern Ooofpa Loopa entered the Suburban area so they could use the explosives they had prepared to drop some high rise buildings on the fellow.

The other issue was that the b.u.t.t of the third Ooofpa Loopa. The emergence of its posterior caused several severe logistical problems though the Pandawans' only major concern was the runway strip that allowed their steady reinforcements to come in. Those Pandarens who were killed were forcefully teleported back to the Shop Instance as usual and if they wished to enter again, they needed to buy the ticket and wait for their turn on the plane.

While Jin and the System had previously contemplated creating a premium ticket to allow people to skip the queue for a price, they believed it was unfair for the common folk who wanted to try their hands on the raid instance. There was no issue transporting the entire bunch of Pandarens into the raid instance but overcrowding would cause the blind to lead the blind. Also, this would create an artificial sense of demand and supply to the entire customer base, making them worry they would miss out on the raid points.

That was why there were all these fanciful buffers of entry to prevent the Pandarens from spamming and rushing the raid instance. Unlike the past where they needed every single cultivator available for their raid instance, Dungeons and Pandas had seen its customer base to be growing at a rather terrifying pace. So, with the increasing popularity of the Dungeon Supplier store, limiting them was the only choice as much as they wanted to get more money from the cultivators.

Still, they did not think it was a bad idea to implement the premium ticket as part of the raid points system. Upon reaching a certain amount of raid points, the Pandamonium App would give the Pandarens a free premium ticket to jump the queue as well as enter into the fray by teleporting into the safest zone of the raid instance.

Thus, to some Pandarens, it did not really matter if the runway strip was destroyed. But in the grand scheme of things, the Pandawans believed that they needed to protect it as much as possible to prevent the loss of reinforcements. However, some Pandarens believed that Jin would not be so stupid to cut off the reinforcements entirely, and rather slow it down even further so that the Pandarens in the raid instance would be of a sufficient number.

This inadvertently allowed the Bone Spirit Demons to destroy the runway landing strip and even damage the plane's wings upon landing. In turn, this forced the NPC Panda pilot to make a crash landing on the runway strip rendering it to be useless. Thankfully, all of the cultivators within the plane had survived the experience and they proceeded outside with the help of the existing Pandarens who had been fighting the Demons.

The overall in charge of the Pandawans, Xiong Da was informed of this particular change in development and he felt perplexed how the subsequent reinforcements were supposed to enter. Until a beep sound emerged from his phone and there was an announcement that the reinforcements would be arriving from the extreme North of Demopolis, beyond its walls since it was now clear from any large threats.

"So...the new batch of cultivators will need much more time to come in to assist with the war effort." Xiong Da scratched his head as he managed to pulverise a falling Bone Spirit Demon before checking on his phone.

"Hey yo!!!!" Luo Bo shouted as she carried two tanks in working condition with Mechataur's palms for a quicker transport to the South.

"We finally get to see the saviour of this raid instance, huh? Now I understand why you messaged us saying you found a special weapon and wanted to keep it a secret until you arrived!" Xiong Da said, which caused Luo Bo to giggle.

Bu Dong who finally saw the special weapon in his two eyes, he was shouting in the Pandawan's channel. "Can I ride it? Can I ride it?!" Deng Long who saw it also raised his voice and wanted to pilot it too.

"Nahh! Not a chance!" Luo Bo replied as she slowly placed the tanks Mechataur had been holding onto the ground.

"Pleeeeeaaaasssse!!! I know how to operate it too! I saw its model in the Supa Robot Wars instance but I am still trying to progress to obtain it." Bu Dong pleaded in the channel.

"Babe, let them have it. They probably know how to use this better than us." Shi Zuo remarked as he was already weary from the constant surveillance of the Supa Robot's system parameters.

"Alright, since I had my fun bashing the first boss, I'll let you have it." Luo Bo was surprisingly amicable instead of her usual stubbornness. The Rabbit Cultivator could already hear the weariness in Shi Zuo's voice and she didn't want to strain her boyfriend even more.

Bu Dong and Deng Long shouted in joy as they both looked forward to their chance to shine!

Chapter 1118 - Boot Up, Mechataur!

Even with all the commotion inside Demopolis, the exchange of pilots for the Mechataur had proceeded smoothly. Apart from Luo Bo having hesitated a bit when the time came to leave Mechatur, Shi Zuo had decidedly pulled her away, reminding her that enough was enough.

"I'd rather fight with the Bone Spirit Sea Demons toe to toe than having to read all those vital parameters to keep the Mechataur working properly! That hasty boot up of Mechataur made me nearly go mad." Shi Zuo continued to distance Luo Bo away from the Mechataur while bidding the Supa Robot Veterans duo good luck.

The two pilots nodded their heads in unison and chose their seats instinctively. It was as if this was not the first time they had been piloting a Supa Robot, but this was indeed their maiden voyage on the Mechataur.

As the c.o.c.kpit closed, the duo immediately raised their storage rings up and a set of items immediately came out of it. The very same helmet that Luo Bo had been using to control the Mechataur with her thoughts, a key card that had been engraved with their name and rank used for the Supa Robot Wars as well as a cosmetic inscription charm.

"Two Star Ensign Deng Long, signing in." Deng Long said as he finally found a suitable card slot on the seat where Shi Zuo was controlling the console.

"Three Star Ensign Bu Dong, signing in." Bu Dong subsequently inserted his key card too after he wore his helmet. Unlike the one Luo Bo wore, Bu Dong had a customised helmet made out of carbon fibre and the aesthetic was more pleasant looking compared to the dull looking one Luo Bo had. However, his helmet and the current outfit he was wearing did not match at all and that was where the cosmetic charm came into play.

With a quick chi activation, both Deng Long and Bu Dong changed their current battle outfit into tight skin suits made out of nanofiber material. They even had an insignia of an Astronaut Panda at their shoulder, displaying their affiliations to the Space Pandas, a Supa Robot Wars' guild which Bu Dong and Deng Long had created exclusively for the most skilled space pilots. It was built in hopes to tackle the Supa Robot Wars' future dungeon and raid contents when Jin would finally update the mini game.

Unbeknownst to Shi Zuo, he had made the right decision to pass the piloting to the veteran space pilots mainly because of one thing.

To inexperienced pilots like Shi Zuo and Luo Bo, they had to manually input their options to use Mechataur and that was the restriction that Jin had placed before he was caged into oblivion to do his work. But all of that changed when one had played Supa Robot Wars for a lengthy period of time. The key cards Bu Dong and Deng Long had, were a set of presets they had saved from the various fights they encountered in the Supa Robot Wars.

So, when they inserted their key cards, the control consoles in front of them instantly changed to suit them rather than the pilots adjusting themselves to the control consoles. The buttons, pulleys and joysticks had been reconfigured to the setting that Deng Long and Bu Dong had been playing with. All the parameters of the Supa Robot were automatically regulated without any input from the pilots.

What took Shi Zuo ages to boot up the Mechataur was merely seconds for the space pilot duo. And not only that, the key card had something special which Shi Zuo and Luo Bo would not have been able to utilise.

The ability to summon various attachments and weapons for the Mechataur to use.

And that was actually the bonus that Captain Hei and Bai had prepared to reward Shi Zuo and Luo Bo if they would have managed to get a 12 in their dice game. (Or you know, beat them up until both of them were rendered incapable of fighting if they had actually duelled.)

Usually in the mini game, Bu Dong and Deng Long had to prepare the attachments and weapons in the hangar bay. Once they launched out of the hangar bay, they would either have to work with what they had or return back to the hangar bay for refuelling and reattachment of their weapons. But that caused time and delay, eating up precious seconds of their mission time and possibly their rewards too.

Thus, when they saw the alert where the system control is allowing them to summon any attachments instantly for this entire raid, Bu Dong and Deng Long literally screamed in excitement.

"This Mechataur Mk 3 is a heavy class Supa Robot. We should be able to field the extensive equipment!" Deng Long shouted in excitement as he was checking out all the possible options with lightning fast reflexes. He already knew what weapons both Bu Dong and he would love to use in this current situation and they were solely browsing for those particular options.

"We saw how the missiles were useless when he screeched, lasers might be an option, but what is the battery capacity of Mechataur? How about its heat ventilation threshold?" Bu Dong asked as he did a prep warm up with all the pedals and joysticks to make sure the controls were the same as he was used to.

"There is the railgun cannon option. But that is one of the few things we have yet to unlock. We would need to pay a lot more than usual to use it here." Deng Long mentioned and Bu Dong looked back at him.

"THAT railgun?" Bu Dong queried with his eyes filled with stars.

"Aye, the same one in the mission where we had to protect the base from those super carriers diving down from space and into the atmosphere." Deng Long's comment made them simultaneously recall the one crazy mission.

"How much is it? Do we have enough Supa Medals for it or do we need to top it up with Panda Coins?" Bu Dong asked and Deng Long took his phone out to calculate.

"Seems like we can exchange our current Heavy Weapons discount voucher to top up the remainder without using any Panda Coins."

"Hmmm but those Heavy Weapon vouchers are hard to come by. We can either exchange it for 10,000 Supa Medals or unlock a new weapon." Bu Dong was in a dilemma since they were one Heavy Weapon voucher short of unlocking the railgun but Bu Dong knew the value of those vouchers since they did not have any expiry date on them.

"Use my Panda Coins. We should save those vouchers for another time." Bu Dong made a snap decision to use his money. "If Jin had introduced a Supa Robot in this raid, I can imagine he will do so for the future raids and dungeon content, making our voucher even more valuable!"

"Understood." Deng Long immediately cashed in the duo's Supa Medals while topping up with Panda Coins. The purchase was made instantly and the current console unlocked that particular option for them.

"Shall we use it now as an opening attack? Or later? Its specs say that we only have one shot since we do not have additional battery packs to spare." Deng Long asked and Bu Dong already knew what to do.

"We will use it after we get close to it. For now, Weapon Set Delta." Bu Dong ordered and Deng Long acknowledged his higher ranked buddy.

Chapter 1119 - Mechataur Barrage

As the Pandarens were doing their best to fend off the Bone Spirit Sea Demons in the Suburban area, the sound of the boosters from the Supa Robot had the effect of an indirect morale boost from the desperation of their endless fight.

It was perfect as a sign that there was some actual hope to cling on.

And that hope became even more reassuring when Mechataur's imposing form hovered above the Suburban area holding on to two huge metal boxes on its back. "Before we deal with the boss, let's give the Pandarens some time to regroup. Otherwise, they might get caught in the middle of our firefight." Bu Dong exclaimed as he used his helmet to the utmost capabilities it could exert.

The control interface on Deng Long's side suddenly emerged with alert pings on multiple Bone Spirit Sea Demon targets when Bu Dong scanned the Suburban area for enemies. While it would be ideal to catch every single Bone Spirit Sea Demon in its sight, the number of missiles on their giant toy was unfortunately limited despite their temporary ability to summon any weapon set that they owned.

"64 targets locked on and ready to be obliterated." Deng Long informed Bu Dong that they had reached the maximum number of monsters they could hit.

"Entering some chi for maximum effect!" Bu Dong confirmed as he portrayed his cultivation aura and the Mechataur in turn glowed slightly with an orange hue before it grabbed onto the two metal boxes on its shoulders and aimed it downwards.

A few of the Pandarens noticed this and quickly called to their companions to retreat, hoping that the monsters they had engaged could be killed off by the Supa Robot's fury. The Mechataur let out a stream of steam through its nostrils and its entire body vibrated a little from the knockback as the missiles from the two metal boxes flew out in a rush to annihilate its targets.

The missile barrage was a sight to behold for everyone outside the zone of fire, especially Luo Bo who had been unaware that the Mechataur was even able to perform such a feat, despite having been in control of it. "Why are they able to do that? We were the ones who first found it, but I'm sure it wasn't capable of that yet!" Luo Bo complained as she pulled Shi Zuo's sleeve, trying to grab his attention.

"Who knows? It just proves that it was the right choice to leave it to the experts! They are able to make it fly and shoot missiles whereas I could barely keep it operational! That is the difference between us and them."

"If I were to take a guess, it must be that Supa Robot War mini game they've been playing that allowed them to pilot it. Make it give them some extra bonuses." Shi Zuo replied, unaware that he had forgotten to mute the Pandawan Channel, allowing the rest of the Pandawans to hear what he was saying as well.

"Yep, the controls are exactly the same in Supa Robot Wars! That is why we can pilot this rather easily." Deng Long confirmed as he engaged Mechataur's thrusters once more while throwing the leftover metal boxes against an injured Bone Spirit Demon to finish it off.

"That display of force makes me seriously want to try out the Supa Robot minigame." Xiong Da commented, impressed by the fight. It might be every boy's dream to pilot a giant mecha, and at least the lawyer was no exception to this.

"Go forth, although I have to warn you, the start is kinda sucky with that useless basic robot that you'll be given. But trust me, it gets better and will definitely be worth your time." Bu Dong didn't miss the chance to promote this awesome mini game that most of the Pandawans had been ignoring.

However, Bu Dong believed in Boss Jin and that the Dungeon Supplier always looked into the future, so the things that he had provided in his Dungeons and Panda should never be deemed useless.

"Lol, does that mean our digital pets might be useful in future dungeon instances too?" Bin Yong questioned and Bu Dong commented that it might be a possible feature in the future. After all, hadn't they already experienced riding on their cultivation styles as mounts?

"Looks like we have more things to look forward to. For now, Bu Dong. You have a guest coming into the city that requires some of your... welcomings." Xiong Da interrupted and both the Supa Robot Pilots focused back on their current predicament, only to realise a tentacle was flying straight towards them.

"This is nothing!" Deng Long exclaimed as he pressed his finger on the control console and quickly swiped it upwards. As the tentacle approached the Mechataur, an energy shield immediately enveloped the Supa Robot, providing the required defence since it caught the pilots slightly off guard for them to dodge in time.

But as much as Deng Long wanted to brag it was nothing, the tentacle was surprisingly tenacious, enough so to pierce through the energy shield damaging the upper c.h.e.s.t portion of the Mechataur. Thankfully, the energy shield lessened the impact pierce of the tentacle's strike, causing only a hole through its armour without damaging any vital components that could affect the mobility of the Supa Robot.

Still, that was enough to get Bu Dong angry.

"Bloody Ooofpa Loopa! I will make sure that you are going down hard!" Bu Dong shouted as he controlled the robot to pull out the tentacle while crushing it so that it would not be returning back to the main body. Afterwards, Bu Dong resummoned Weapon Set Delta which was comprised of the two boxes of missiles that they had been handling previously.

This time, it was aimed at the Ooofpa Loopa which had finally approached the shores with a bunch of Bone Spirit Sea Demons at its side.

"Are you sure we should be using those missiles against the Ooofpa Loopa? It should already be immune to the fire element." Deng Long asked for a confirmation and it acted as a reminder to Bu Dong that the Ooofpa Loopa had its own boss mechanics that they had to handle.

"Yeap. I am sure." Bu Dong replied and started to aim his sights at the Boss abomination. However, from Deng Long's perspective, it seems as if Bu Dong was not attacking the boss but the air spaces around it.

"What are you aiming at, bro?" Deng Long questioned but since Bu Dong was in charge of the fire control, he already released the missiles before replying to his co-pilot.

Chapter 1120: The Missiles

The missiles zoomed past the target as indicated on the control console Deng Long was commanding but he later realised what Bu Dong was actually doing and laughed at the current situation.

"How did you come up with this idea? No, first tell me how did you manage to coordinate all of this?" Deng Long questioned as he saw the missiles explode in mid air, causing blue purplish smoke to appear all around the Ooofpa Loopa.

"What do you mean? There's the Pandaren Channel. I merely asked and they responded." Bu Dong answered as he let go of the emptied missile boxes once more and launched the Mechataur towards the Ooofpa Loopa.

Some of the Pandarens and even the live stream spectators initially thought that Mechataur had missed all its shots against the Ooofpa Loopa and called it an enormous scale of blunder. However, some of the more observant live streamers noticed that those explosions were placed at almost equal distance away from each other and suspected there was something more to the attack.

This was indeed not the ordinary explosions they had seen so far.

"And here I thought I needed to run from one end of the map to another!" A punch filled with incredible chi slammed onto the Ooofpa Loopa when Royal Snake General Hou Fei emerged from the explosions, causing it to be knocked sideways and the impact could be seen vibrating on the abomination's muscles. Those wiggly waves of kinetic energy spread outwards and eventually to the entire body, making the Ooofpa Loopa to have loped sideways. I At that point, he regretted making that punch as he realised he could have used more strength against it since the abomination was caught off guard. Still, this was the first time he used this tactic proposed by Bu Dong and regardless of the regret, it was a very hefty punch to drop the Ooofpa Loopa's hitpoint.

"Must say, it sure is a rather convenient tactic despite it being unorthodox in nature," A slash strike was made from the opposite of the Ooofpa Loopa as Royal Tiger General Ya Bai came out of the explosions and a silhouette of a blue gigantic Tiger silhouette pounced onto the abomination, performing the very same attack it had done against its Northern counterpart, incidentally allowing it to return to its original position after Hou Fei's punch.

Subsequently, even more soldiers appeared from the blue purplish explosion, to be exact a total of sixty four of them ambushed the Southern Ooofpa Loopa from all angles. They were already all charged up with their very own chi energy and blasting them simultaneously against it. If their theory was correct, it was actually vulnerable to physical attacks despite having resistance against elemental energies due to the fight experience they had against the Northern counterpart.

Although their chi combined were multi elemental, the boss' immunity had yet to set in and the power they emanated was indeed sufficient to create a damage log in their visors, indicating a drop of hit points in the monster's health bar. In the meantime, the biggest hitter of all was coming at max speed from the Suburban area with a spear in its hand.

"YAAAAAAAAAAAAA" Bu Dong and Deng Long shouted as they attempted to crush the spear into the Ooofpa Loopa stomach. Because of the sudden teleportation missile attack that Bu Dong had made, the Ooofpa Loopa was not able to retaliate Mechataur's flying lance charge, allowing it to pierce it right into its stomach.

"THIS IS NOT THE END YET!" Bu Dong shouted as he pulled the joysticks upwards, enabling Mechataur to imitate Bu Dong's actions by driving the spear in an angled position. It stuck further into the abomination which irritated the Ooofpa Loopa and finally forced it to send a load of tentacles spiralling out of the ground.

Those tentacles pierced Mechataur's legs and torso area and at the same time aimed at the cultivators like General Ya Bai, Hou Fei and their soldiers. The Generals did not have a problem dodging them mid air but the same could not be said about all of their underlings. A few of them shared the same fate as what the Ooofpa Loopa was suffering from, a hole in their stomach. Yet that did not deter the rest as they continued to attack the tentacles and the main body as much as possible.

It should go without saying that Mechataur continued to do the same as well.

"Purchase completed! Go rampage all you like!" Deng Long shouted as he had purchased a few cash shop items on the fly such as attack and repair drones. The attack drones were shooting out laser beams to break the tentacle's grip from the Mechataur while the repair drones were performing emergency repairs on the vital components by spraying nanobots (Their costly equivalent to a health potion for the robots) to keep them operational.

"Heh! Let's show the streamers how powerful Supa Robot veterans like us can be in such a toy!" Bu Dong shouted as he once again pulled the joysticks on his console once more. The lance that was stuck within the body of Ooofpa Loopa suddenly clicked and released the outer layer of metal, revealing an inner layer of explosives hidden within it.

Bu Dong triggered the explosives with the layer of metal as the shrapnel against the Ooofpa Loopa, damaging its innards and its ability to reproduce any more Bone Spirit Sea Demons. Incidentally, that also caused some of the already birthed Bone Spirits to suffer from a series of muscle spasms, allowing the Pandarens fighting with them to get an upper hand in the situation.

That goes the same to the Bone Spirit Sea Demons on the shore along the Ooofpa Loopa. However, there were still many unaffected and they were ready to pounce on the remaining soldiers that had flash teleported into the area. However, they did not know that Xiong Da had already ordered a batch of Pandarens to fire a fresh barrage of missiles from the katyusha rocket launcher trucks, creating a scorching hellscape on the shores of Demopolis City.

"And now for our final trick!!" Bu Dong shouted as the Exploding Lance suddenly disappeared from Mechataur's hand and a new weapon appeared to replace it. Mechataur handled the new weapon roughly as it tried to poke through the innards of Ooofpa Loopa even further before pressing on the trigger.

"If you can survive this, I have no idea what else could actually kill you. So PLEASE DIE!" Bu Dong requested as Deng Long reported that the energy levels on the weapon had reached critical mass. The Southern Ooofpa Loopa seemed to understand that its life was in danger and even more tentacles shot out of the burning sand caused by Xiong Da's barrage of missiles and all of them reached Mechataur instead.

Deng Long erected an additional energy shield but they were repeatedly broken by the influx of tentacles piercing into them, causing extensive damage to the Mechataur. The Pandarens and live streamers could see the desperation the last Ooofpa Loopa was making since it was at its last stretch.

But it eventually did not matter.

Bu Dong still managed to send a command for the Mechataur to fire the trigger on its weapon. The Rail Gun..