

Dungeon S 1794

Chapter 1794 King Of Bearling -Part 32

"Do you guys need help?" Page asked Tellie, Lynn, and Yinn who were still fighting the Mecha Ice Dragons, and found another massive Ice Block dropping into the city once more.

"Ehh... It is okay. I think we got the hang of it. Just did not expect the two dragons to merge." Lynn finally replied.

"They merged?" Click was surprised to hear that and afterwards, there was no communication back until a few seconds later.

"Oh, don't bring your Necro Mechanoids here," Lynn added. "It will be more painful for us."

"Yeah, we asked Yinn not to come as well," Tellie reported and Click was confused. Didn't Yinn acknowledge that she would assist Lynn and Tellie once Page requested her to move to that area?

"Are you asking where am I?" Yinn questioned as she removed her invisibility cloak that was exclusive only to her and her Fortress Golem, revealing herself right beside Click.

"Oh my god, do not scare me." Click said and Yinn chuckled.

"So, all this time, Tellie and Lynn were fighting the same dragon? Or Should I say two headed dragon?"

"Yeah, exactly. Why am I here then?" Yinn asked as she got out of the Fortress Golem for a breather.

"Then what were you doing the entire time?" Click questioned as she too came out from her cockpit.

"Watching the two of you fight. I thought the Mecha Lightning Dragons would be a pain in the ass. Did not expect Page's monster ability to be that strong even if it's just a temporary paralysation of the dragons."

"Well, maybe if I am strong enough, I could have control of the Mecha Dragons." Page said as she hovered on top of Click's Necro Titan and checked on the battlefield that Lynn and Tellie were fighting. "The entire place turned to ice... Even their Fortress Golems were not spared."

"Maybe that's why they told me not to bring the Necro Mechanoids in. I am guessing that's just more debris for them to avoid and hit." Click remarked as she too climbed up the Fortress Golem to see if she could have a better view of the area suddenly another Ice block came out once more but this time it shattered before it could reach the ground.

After which, a huge blast of energy came out from a building, presumably that was Tellie who had done that, destroying one of the wings of the two headed dragon and not allowing it to ascend any further.

"Are you sure we do not go in? They looked like they needed help if they were fighting this long already." Click asked once more and Yinn shook her head.

"If they say they can handle it then let them be. Let us aid the rest and kill the remaining Dragonlings that were left by the Mecha Dragons. Once that is done, we should prepare for a possible phase with the Gigant Dragon. Assuming Jin did not kill it when the time of his dungeon instance ends."

"Oh, I heard from the System that Jin had some upgrade to his dungeon instance. Apparently, he can spend points to get it run even longer." Page said as she pressed a few buttons on her holographic console to call her Fortress Golem to return to her.

"Wow, then that means Jin must have been spamming his points if he wished to defeat that big ass spiky dragon. Necro Titan, you return to the power core first and rest. If our commander did fail then perhaps I need you out along with the rest." Click said and the Necro Titan deactivated itself and disintegrated right in front of them. The glowing power core on Click had subsided as she returned to the Fortress Golem to assist with the remaining part of the sweep.

But as they were about to move out, there was a huge sudden earthquake and a gigantic ice crystal emerged from the ground that could be seen from where Lynn and Tellie were fighting. "You guys sure, you all are okay?" Click asked once more and this time, there was really no reply until the System intervened.

"Tellie and Lynn's vital signs are still online. They had muted all communications as Mechanoid Click had been very annoying to them." The System reported which made Page laugh.

"Argh it's not fun at all. Where's Diaz when you need her? She is not responding as well."

"The System is also glad to report that Diaz is online at the South East region where she had eliminated the Mecha Rock Dragons. Unfortunately, before its demise, those Rock Dragons had released more than a hundred Dragonlings. Thus, she and the rest of the Pandarens within that vicinity were trying their best to eliminate the threat before they escaped. The Royal Guards in the area are also creating a blockade to ensure that none of those Dragonlings can make it out alive from their perimeter." The System concluded and Click decided to move towards Diaz's direction.

Yinn agreed to it and requested Page to follow her to clear up the mess. As for Lynn and Tellie, their foe for some reason kept getting stronger despite their element.

"So if two 2nd tiers Mecha Dragons were to merge, would that make them a 4th tier Mecha Dragon?" Lynn asked Tellie and she did not have the answer to that.

"It seems like that though, Maybe... They are considered a 2.5 tier? They do not look as big as that spiky dragon Jin had to handle. But their previous attacks were not as strong as they were not compared to the time they had merged together." Tellie said as she could breathe out cold air from her mouth. "We have to hurry, the temperature is dropping drastically and this time it's faster with that big ice crystal at the side."

"Yea, I know. And sorry for trying to keep my strength and not going full out against it. I thought we could win against it but it seemed like we have played with it too much."

"Nah, not your fault. I was conserving my strength too since Jin asked the both of us to handle these two ice dragons." Tellie said and wondered if Jin had already foreseen that they might be a threat and asked two of his Mechanoids to handle it instead.
