

Edgar and His Destined Wife Chapter 13

Chapter 13 Gigi Reece Has a Pendant Too

While she hesitated for a moment, the hospital room door suddenly opened. “Jean Eyer, you have some nerve!” An already furious Gigi Reece’s thin eyebrows furrowed when she saw the pendant in Jean Eyer’s hands.

She marched forward in her heels and snatched it away, exclaiming, “Why is Edgar Royden’s pendant with you?!”

“It fell.” Jean Eyer put on her usual expression upon seeing Gigi Reece in the room. She glanced at Gigi Reece impartially, “You can return it to him since you’re here.”

“Hmph.” Gigi Reece didn’t want to let it go. She reached for a necklace around her neck and showed it to Jean Eyer. “Do you see this? It’s an identical pendant. Edgar has one half, and I have the other. This is our token of love! You were bound to lose from the beginning, Jean Eyer!”

Jean Eyer’s gaze fell on the pendant gripped tightly in Gigi Reece’s other hand. She looked at it with shock. It really was an identical pendant. How did Gigi Reece have the same pendant?

Jean Eyer’s eyes flashed as she provoked Gigi Reece, “Token of love? When did the love even begin?”

“That was twenty years ago!” Gigi Reece said without blinking, her expression unchanged. “I saved Edgar in that accident twenty years ago, so we each kept half a pendant as a token of our love!”

“You’re lying!” Jean Eyer laughed coldly. She was the one who saved Edgar Royden. How could it be Gigi Reece!

Gigi Reece’s face changed in an instant. Even she came to believe the lie for all these years, but Jean Eyer just unveiled it without mercy.

“What are you talking about? Jean Eyer, who are you to interfere between Edgar and me?” Gigi Reece asked angrily. “If it’s a lie, then why do Edgar and I have identical halves of the pendant?”

Jean Eyer did not understand this. Could it only be a coincidence?

“You’re just jealous of me!” Gigi Reece saw that Jean Eyer went silent. Thinking that Jean Eyer didn’t have a shred of proof, Gigi Reece became even more smug.

“At this moment, I’m the legitimate Mrs. Royden. Jean Eyer, I won’t let it go if you continue to hook up with my fiancé!”

At this point, the nurse could no longer tolerate it and pushed the door open. “Didn’t we make it clear? The patient just miscarried and needs to rest! Why are you making a scene here?”

The nurse closed the door impatiently after her outburst.

Gigi Reece was aghast and pointed at Jean Eyer, “You... you got pregnant? It... it’s Edgar’s?”

Jean Eyer did not answer.

“Jean Eyer! You’re such a tramp! Both of you already got a divorce but...”

“Gigi Reece, rather than take it out on me, why don’t you look after your man instead? I’ve lost my child and paid my debt in full. From here on out, please get out of my life for good!”

A tall figure stood outside the hospital room, listening to every word.

Edgar Royden’s face was hidden in the dark. He turned his head and swept his gaze from the window to the ward.

He had just returned from asking about Jean Eyer’s condition at the consultation room.

The injuries from the car accident and her miscarriage left her extremely weak.

The doctor said that it would be hard for her to ever get pregnant again.