

Eight Uncles 1121

Eight Uncles' Beloved Treasure (Lily)

Chapter 1121

After Lilly left her house, Alban couldn't hold himself in the same spot, and walked around the perimeter of the Crawford Manor.

Through the iron gate of the back garden, he could vaguely see the old man of the Crawford family, that is Hugh, practicing some Tai Chi. As Alban was just about to turn around and leave, he stopped suddenly, and stared at the ink bamboo painting behind Hugh.

It was something out of the ordinary!

Alban was astonished by what he saw. The painting glistened in fractured rays under the sunlight. The light rays were like layers of magical haloes, shrouding around Hugh's body.

Hugh, despite his age, was full of energy and had rosy cheeks. That was not normal for the average old man!

Alban pursed his lips. It seemed like this painting was brought back from the underworld by Lilly.

Other people would be afraid of the underworld, but Alban was not one of them. He realized that the underworld is just another realm that was similar to the one he was in, just in a different style. Where Earth was short of resources, the underworld was abundant of treasures.

Treasures just like this painting. If he could train under its powers, it would make his life so much easier...

Alban clenched his fists, and felt unhealthy thoughts coming to his head. But after thinking about it, his powers were indeed just so, that Lilly was much stronger than him. It was normal for him to feel inferior to her.

And so, with that thought, Alban left.

Instead, he decided to go to Lilly's school and wait for her there.

She already knew that he was waiting for her. All he had to do was just to express his sincerity.

Lilly went straight to her teacher's office after getting to school.

Without a doubt, it was always the most stressful during exams and competitions. Time always flew by the fastest then.

Lilly and the other student went to participate in the mathematics competition. And in a blink of an eye, it was Wednesday already, and they were already back in school.

The other student was from a different class. Lilly was in the first class of the third grade, and he was in the seventh. He had full admiration for Lilly after the competition.

"Lilly is such an amazing and smart person! I've never seen someone with such a quick brain as her!"

"You know the rapid fire question rounds right? When we were all still trying to read the question, she's already gotten the answer right!"

“Haha, you weren’t there to see it, but the opponents from other schools were defeated to tears...”

The student was telling the story of the whole competition with much enthusiasm. He was so eloquent to the point as though they went to participate in a wrestling match instead.

By midday, Lilly’s great reputation had already spread all over the school. All seven classes in her grade had already knew about how amazing she did in the competition.

Cheryl had overheard about it, and seeing how everyone else was amazed by Lilly, she couldn’t help but think that the other student was Lilly’s lapdog.

Eliana thought the same way too. “I think the true brainiac was the other guy. The Crawford family is so wealthy, he must want to suck up to them too.” She argued.

Cheryl had her eyes buried in the book she was reading, and said softly: “That may not be the case... Maybe Lilly is really that good.”

“But you didn’t think that way this morning though,” Eliana looked at Cheryl with confusion.

Those who spoke satirically were none other than the male students in Cheryl's class.

Hearing what they said, more people soon knew about a contrived girl in the 6th grade. When Cheryl saw Lilly take first place, she cried and said that Lilly bought first place.

Cheryl cried again because of the sarcasm. After this incident, she became famous.

She never wanted this kind of fame. She became a contrived person known throughout the school.

The Miller family also found out about Cheryl's death. Cheryl received a harsh reprimand from her father instead of comfort.

Since then, everyone had looked at her with disdain and sarcasm.

Her reputation even followed her to junior high school. In high school, more young ladies learned to intrigue and also used this matter to ridicule Cheryl.

Cheryl spent half her life in such a state of embarrassment. She failed to get into Clodston University. To avoid gossip, she had to go to a university in a remote area to escape from her black history.

She was the eldest daughter of a small family in Clodston. No matter how bad the Miller family was, the social relationships she could connect with were relationships that ordinary people could not approach in their lifetime.

However, she made herself out of this circle and could no longer blend into those social relationships.

She never imagined that the fate of her life would be changed when she was in elementary school.

Alban wanted to pretend that the previous events had never happened.
Lilly sneered when she heard that. "Rude?"
She sat on a chair and looked at Alban with a frown. She showed a sacred and inviolable power invisibly.
Alban said sincerely, "Yes, I was rude before. When I saw you all for the first time, I regarded you as idle rich kids and thought that everything you got didn't require your efforts but from the elders."
Alban remembered when he stood outside the school auditorium and watched the video of her math competition. Only then did he realize how seriously he had misunderstood. Lilly was not only talented and mighty but also had a high IQ.
"Now I know you're not idle. You've been working so hard..."
Lilly interrupted him, "Stop!" She did not want to hear any kind words from him.
"What you said is only the prejudice of people toward people. You don't know me, so the prejudices are understandable. But do you think we don't like you and won't be friends with you just because of prejudice?"
Alban was stunned when he heard that. "Otherwise?"
Suddenly, he remembered that he had hurt Ivan once in the Abyss of Ghosts.

Lilly looked at him coldly. "Even if

Chapter 1125

Alban never believed that Lilly did not love Ivan.

She was unfair to him because of Ivan, or she would understand his situation and agree with his words. They were different from mortals. Everything they would face would depend on strength and power.

She knew she could not be holy but was still hostile to him because she fell in love with Ivan.

Alban was disappointed in Lilly, but she was powerful. He still wanted to use her mirror to travel between the two worlds.

So Alban said, "Forget it. We can't reach a consensus. I only want to tell you that I'm not that bad. Can you get to know me again? I have a younger sister who needs to be taken care of. So I want to use your shuttle mirror to go back and forth between the two worlds. If possible, I'm even willing to be your subordinate. You can treat me as a servant."

Lilly left without looking back. "We're not on the same path."

Servant? I dare not.

Since Alban's concept was so, he might frame her when they were both in danger.

After all, he wanted to stand at the top and prevent anyone from hurting him and his sister. He used everything he could to pave the way for himself. There was nothing wrong with it.

Everyone saw that Bettany was the same as before. She sat quietly by the window and looked outside. No one dared to disturb her.

Josh ran back to the room with Zachary and Hannah. When Hannah returned to her room, she took out her automatic writing pen and started studying hard.

After all, according to Lilly's description, digging through the two worlds was more difficult than digging a well.

Bettany sat in disappointment for a while and finally felt a little better, then slowly stood up and murmured, "I'll go up to lock the door. The weather forecast says it'll be sunny tomorrow. I'll wash Lilly's bed sheet and quilt cover..."

Hugh comforted her by saying, "It's been sunny for the past few days. You can rest for two days before washing."

Bettany muttered, "You know nothing!"

Hugh rubbed his nose. No matter what I say, I'll get scolded.

When Bettany walked to Lilly's room, she could not help but stop. She felt sad as she might not see Lilly for a few years.

However, when she opened the door, she froze.

In the room, Lilly sat cross-legged on the carpet quietly. There was a faint golden light on her body, and her expression was calm. It was a scene Bettany had never seen before.

In Bettany's imagination, Lilly always slept in the open when she went out, ate poorly, and was tired every day.

The World Mirror answered, "Ms. Hades, you've been cultivating for two months. It's 5.30 a.m. now. The sky will soon be bright!"

Lilly was surprised. "What?" She had been cultivating for more than two months!

Moreover, Lilly keenly sensed that the name the World Mirror called her had changed. She used to be called Little Hades. Now it called her Ms. Hades.

"I'm officially on my way, right?"

The World Mirror did not expect Lilly to find the truth in one sentence.

"Yes, Ms. Hades!" A cute emoji appeared in the World Mirror.

Lilly made the calculations in her mind. She studied and participated in a competition within two weeks. Then she cultivated for two months.

So she stayed in the mortal world for almost three months.

Blake and Jean had not been in the underworld for a month yet, but they were almost there. Lilly would stay with Bettany for a few more days and return to the underworld.

Bettany got up early in the morning to make breakfast.

Hugh went to exercise refreshed. He did not know if it was an illusion but felt his physical fitness had returned to that of youth.

Then he wanted to take Bettany with him, but Bettany was busy making breakfast and ignored him.

"Lilly is at home. If she's hungry and comes out to find food, it's not too late for you to make it!"

Hugh felt distressed that Bettany had to get up early every morning to cook. He was a little worried.

Bettany snorted. "You know nothing."

So Hugh shut up. Bettany had been getting too lazy to talk to him lately.

Bettany made millet cereal and then told Margaret to take it aside to keep it at about 30 degrees, so it would not be too hot or cold. Lilly could eat it right after she woke up. Then Bettany made some sandwiches.

She also made fried chicken. She washed the chicken and started frying it. Although it was only fried chicken, Bettany made preparations before 6 a.m.

Margaret said, "Mrs. Crawford, I can make fried chicken. You don't need to wake up so early."

Bettany responded, "I want to make it myself."

did not know Lilly was in the room. After all, it was too bizarre not to go out for room because of her poor health. Bettany only entered the room once, and no one else was allowed to enter the room at other times, so Margaret and the other maids thought Lilly comforted herself, saying, "Maybe Little Miss will come back today. You'd better time, It would be one or two years. They did not ask about the details, as they knew they should not ask about some matters in the Margaret made breakfast as usual one after another. Speaking of which, even Hugh looked over. Anthony looked at Lilly and said, "The baby has grown." Bettany was shocked. "What? Has Lisa's belly finally gotten bigger? Why didn't you tell us?" Anthony said, "I'm afraid you'll be worried." Bettany had already cared about Lilly. If she cared about Lisa, he was worried that Bettany's body would not be able to bear the hard work. Bettany asked, "How is she now? Tell her not to climb the mountain or go to the forest alone. In case something happens and no one knows..."

Lilly did a divination and said, "Granny, don't worry! Aunt Lisa will always be safe! Nothing will happen!"

Bettany let out a sigh of relief. "That's good."

Lilly would be leaving. Although Bettany would no longer be as worried and frightened as before, she would still feel empty.

Now Bettany had something else to do. She would start preparing things and the room for the newborn.

She did not know if Lisa could breastfeed or rest. Could Lisa raise the child until kindergarten?

If not, Bettany had to start thinking about how to care for the newborn and how to breastfeed. In short, she would be busy.

Her life would not become so tormented only when she was busy.

Alban felt something different about Lisa. Alban felt Lisa should be the same as him. She was also a cultivator.

Alban looked at Lisa's belly. She's even pregnant.

He suddenly felt a little disdainful. There were many talented people in the world. Although he could not tell how many cultivators like him were in this world, he thought there would be no more than a hundred.

With such a rare qualification, she doesn't cultivate, but falls in love and gets pregnant. She's wasting her talent.

Of course, he would not say anything. After all, it was Lisa's business. He only looked down on her.

Lisa frowned at Alban and asked displeasely, "What are you trying to do? Don't force me to hit you."

She would have slapped him if Alban were not the same age as Drake. No one dared stop her before.

Alban also saw Lisa's impatience. So he asked, "Are you a cultivator too? Where did you find the cultivated resources?"

Lisa was surprised and suddenly understood. "You're Alban Knox."

Alban shuddered and immediately became more defensive.

Lisa sneered. "Lilly is right. I must stay away from you!"

She snorted and walked faster this time. Alban chased her all the way but failed to catch up.
