Chapter 151 Little Lilly Looking for Mommy

Gemma carried a box of drinks and walked towards the parking lot with a dumbfounded expression.

She had been very lucky these days, as though she was a lucky charm herself...

She was so lucky that she would definitely get a free drink every time she bought one, she would be able to toss her trash right into the trash can no matter how far it was, and she would get a double yolk even just by cracking a random egg...

Gemma put away the box of drinks and drove away.

Behind her, the ghost Jean opened her eyes and looked at herself – covered in golden light, like a koi.

“How did I get on this girl?” Jean felt so strange, she wanted to try to leave, but found that she could not.

“That is strange...”

Jean did not believe it, so she tried hard, but bumped into the steering wheel.

At this moment, a large truck rushed over uncontrollably with a harsh horn sound.

The car screeched and swerved due to the sudden brake.

Before Gemma could react, her steering wheel turned around inexplicably, narrowly avoiding the big truck!

With a series of loud noises, the big truck pushed several small cars out, and then stopped after five hundred meters away...

Gemma was so frightened that her face turned pale, and she hurriedly stopped on the side of the road.

Passers-by were stunned.

This person was so lucky!

She managed to dodge the out-of-control truck!

“Oh my god, I thought she was going to be crushed just now, and if she didn’t die, the damage would also be fatal... I didn’t expect her to be able to survive it!”

Not even a scrap of paint off the car!

“What kind of immortal human is this...”

Passers-by were all amazed and ran to the front to watch the scene of the car accident.

Gemma also took a look, several cars were horribly hit, only she was unscathed.

“Oh my god...” She patted her chest with lingering fear, and drove away quickly.

Back at her residence, something even more incredible happened.

The proprietress of the lottery shop craned her neck to see Gemma, and hurriedly came to her.

She lowered her voice, looked left and right, and asked, "Hey, Gemma! Look at the lottery ticket you bought last night, did you win a prize! Five million dollars! I remember the string of numbers you chose..."

Lilly searched for two days, but could not find her mother.
Soon it was time for her to resume school.
Lilly could only keep the matter of searching for her mother at the back of her mind, and could not help but zoned out during class.
"Lilly..." Miss Flora was doing the roll call, but she saw Lilly zoning out, she could not help but shout,
"Lilly Crawford?"
The little cutie who used to always immediately responded loudly to the roll call was a little quiet today.
Miss Flora assumed that she was still affected by the cyberbullying, and felt a little uneasy.

Lilly immediately raised her hand and said, "Here!"

Miss Flora was slightly startled, and said with a smile, "Very good, Lilly finally came to school!"

Even the adults could not handle cyber violence well. Miss Flora had been worried that the little girl would not be able to get out of it unscathed.

Fortunately, looking at her right now, it still seemed that she was still gentle and cute.

Lilly apologized very sensibly, "I'm sorry~ I made the teacher worry!"

Miss Flora touched her little head and said, "It's okay. Just as long as you're fine!"

"Okay, sit down, kids! Today we have a very important class, which is taught by the father of a kid in our class. Guess who it is?"

The children chattered instantly, and Lilly was also curious, whose father came to class?

Then Miss Flora said, "Then I will not keep you guys hanging anymore. Today our entire kindergarten will participate in a drill called an explosion-proof drill..."

She explained what an explosion-proof drill was and what everyone needed to do, and then revealed—

"This anti-explosion drill would be conducted by the father of our classmate Lilly. Lilly's father is a very great soldier. He will teach us how to escape when we encounter gangsters, and finally show us how to subdue the gangsters!"

Miss Flora only mentioned Blake's identity and nothing else, but the identity of a soldier is already very remarkable in the eyes of the children.

The children immediately wowed, and looked at Lilly with sparkling eyes.

Lilly suddenly felt her heart bulging, so proud!

It was chaos, some children were crying, and some were so startled that they did not know what to do.

Blake dropped the microphone and said coldly, "Remember the escape procedure just now!"

This cold announcement scared everyone back to their senses.

A few school policemen rushed over, holding big weapons to kill the gangster.

The gangster held a 'kitchen knife' made of a cardboard box and waved it while screaming.

The children screamed, and it took half a minute before the teachers managed to control the scene and led the children to escape along the planned route.

Blake glanced again, and went upstream, while the school policemen were still fighting the gangster with their weapon, he grabbed the gangster's arm with his bare hands, and threw him to the ground!

Boom!

The gangster suddenly screamed, "Ah..."

"Blake, you are not human..."

Edward's head was buzzing with pain, darn it. When he found out that Blake had 'screwed' his sister, he always wanted to beat him up.

Although he found out later that he was a good person, he still could not accept him from the bottom of his heart. After all, Jean was the sister they had loved for more than 20 years.

To have her being 'hooked' by Blake in this way, the older brother must feel somewhat uncomfortable.

When he learned that the kindergarten was going to have a drill, Edward signed up to be a gangster without saying a word.

Edward decided to take advantage of the opportunity of the drill to knock Blake over... and then pretend to be subdued.

Let him know who was the boss of the family.

He did not expect that he was the one thrown by Blake...

Blake snorted coldly, picked up the microphone and said lightly, "Okay, the first round of the drill is over, everyone get back."

The children were all stunned.

Lilly was also shocked.

The gangster lying on the ground was none other than Uncle Edward!

With a black hood on, she could not even recognize him!

At the end of the first drill, everyone's hearts were beating wildly, and the principal's face turned pale.

Seeing Lilly proudly saying to the children, "This was my father", Edward felt envious.

He snorted coldly, raised his hand and said, "I'll come!"

Uncle Edward could not believe it – he had been on the construction site all year round, and he was physically strong, but he could not fight Blake?

When the children saw the 'gangster' coming again, they shouted even more excitedly, "Instructor MacNeil, come on! Instructor MacNeil, come on!"

"Defeat the gangster! Beat him up!"

Lilly looked at his father, then at her Uncle Edward.

Uncle Edward had no one to help.

So the little girl shouted at the top of her lungs, "Instructor MacNeil, come on! Gangster, come on!"

When Lilly yelled, Hannah also yelled, "Come on! Come on! You got this!"

The kids were stunned again, what was going on?

Lilly pointed to Edward and explained, "He is not a real gangster! He is my Uncle Edward!"

The children suddenly understood.

Edward automatically ignored the first half of Lilly's sentence, and only heard the sentence "Gangster, come on." He immediately beamed with joy, feeling that he was full of strength, and now he can overturn a cow without any problem!

“Bring it on!”

Edward hooked his fingers, full of provocation.

That look was utterly him playing it cool.

In the next second, Blake suddenly grabbed his wrist and fell over his shoulder to the ground with a bang!

Blake moved so fast that no one could see clearly, and the gangster was defeated.

The children cheered and applauded, the little girls looked at Blake as if they saw a great hero, and the little girls looked at Blake as if they saw Ultraman.

Edward blushed and said loudly, “Do it again! This guy’s sneak attack doesn’t count!”

Blake raised his eyebrows, “Okay.”

Edward got up and saw Blake turned to look at Lilly—

Soldiers are not afraid to deceive!

Edward rushed forward quickly, ready to take Blake down while he was not paying attention!

Next to the colorful ice cream truck, there were one big and two small ones standing.

Lilly laid on the transparent glass cabinet, holding back her saliva, "Auntie, I want a yogurt ball, a strawberry ball, and a mango ball!"

The ice cream lady scooped out scoops of ice cream, according to the taste she ordered. Each scoop was scooped round and big. The ice cream cup was filled with three ice cream balls of different colors.

When Lilly took it, she took a bite first, then handed it out to Hannah.

Hannah was staring at the ice cream in the ice cream truck with bright eyes, waved his hands and said, "No, no, I want to choose by myself!"

Lilly held up the ice cream again, "Instructor MacNeil, hey!"

Blake was amused, bent down and took a small bite, and tapped her nose with his finger, "Call me daddy."

Lilly, "Daddy!"

Blake could not help but beamed, the more he looked at his little girl, the more he liked her.

Pablo floated by the side, wondering, "What's so delicious about ice cream?"

Lilly squinted at him, "Master, have you ever had one? The ice cream is super delicious."

Pablo curled his lips and said, "What's delicious, isn't it just ice slag."

Not envious at all.

While thinking, he quickly glanced at the ice cream in Lilly's hand.

After Blake paid the money, he still leaned against the flower bed, but this time it was one big and two small ones.

A young lady turned her head while walking, only to hear the door slammed against the door again.

Hannah, "Hahaha! Young lady must have been looking at my ice cream, she was hungry!"

Lilly, "I think she might be looking at my father."

Blake, "Heh... she's looking at you."

The three foodies chit-chatted as they enjoyed the ice creams.

Seeing them eating with gusto, Pablo turned around speechlessly, sat cross-legged on the edge of the flower bed, and resigned himself to flipping through the books.

What was so delicious about ice cream, he'd better read the brochure!

In the past few days, he almost dug out the booklet, but he still could not find Jean's whereabouts.

"Where did she go? I could not find her together with Lilly. So strange..." Pablo muttered.

At this time, a girl's voice came from the ice cream truck behind, "Boss, an ice cream please."

Chapter 156 The New Sister

On the car ride home, Lilly was very happy.

She murmured to Jean that after she came to Crawford family, her grandmother treated her very well, and her uncle treated her very well.

She was very good, Tortoise was very good, Polly was also very good...

Jean's eyes were empty and bewildered, but she was inexplicably sad.

She could not remember anything, and she did not know why she possessed Gemma.

Could it be... She really had a daughter before when she was still alive, and it was the little girl in front of her?

Gemma looked at Lilly who was talking to herself, and sighed inwardly.

This child really missed her mother too much, right? There seemed to be something wrong with the spirit...

She could not help but pat Lilly's head, and said, "Little cutie, sister can't be your mother anymore, but we can ask for help, how about we form a mini sorority?"

Lilly let out a bewildered cry, apparently just reacting, and asked, "What does that mean?"

Gemma said, "It means friends who hit it off right away, and become brothers or sisters! From now on, you will be my younger sister and I will be your older sister. This means that our relationship will be closer!"

Lilly nodded and suddenly realized, "Okay, okay!"

Gemma held up the ice cream, "Come on, after eating this ice cream, we will be good sisters!"

Lilly held the ice cream high, "Cheers!"

The two of them took a big bite of the ice cream, and then gasped from the ice together.

Pablo, "....."

Blake, "..."

Gemma was happy from the bottom of her heart when she saw Lilly's cute expressions.

Finally not her daughter anymore. She thought she could not pursue her secret crush anymore if she kept being called a mother by a little girl.

She could not help but pinch Lilly's little face, and said, "From now on, you will be my sister, come on, call me sister!"

Lilly, "Sister!"

Chapter 157 Jean Returns to the Crawford Family

Jean flew out with a whoosh and hung on the top of an osmanthus tree.

A little bird was frightened and flew away with a screech, dropping a pile of poop.

Jean, "..."

She took back the thought just now!

This was not a heart-warming padded jacket, this was an air leak... Wait a second, did she just leave Gemma's body?

Jean floated up quickly, and found that she was inseparable from the host no matter how hard she struggled before, but now she was free.

She flew towards Lilly with a wow, "I never thought you would be so powerful!"

Lilly had an expression of 'of course'.

The delighted two did not notice that there was an evil energy approaching...

Pablo frowned and looked around, only to see a dozen to twenty ghosts gradually gathered outside the Crawford family mansion.

These ghosts stared at the shining golden Jean, their eyes sparkling.

Pablo thought to himself, this better not be like what he imagined it to be...

Jean's scattered soul fragments must have been 'divided' by the surrounding ghosts by accident...

Lilly did not notice the ghosts in the distance, she pulled Jean, and quickly ran toward old Mrs. Crawford

"Grandma, we're back!" The little girl threw herself into old Mrs. Crawford's arms.

Jean was also pulled into old Mrs. Crawford's arms.

Old Mrs. Crawford stretched out her arms to hug Lilly, and Jean also felt as if she was being hugged.

"Baby, you're back!" The inexplicable vicissitudes and loneliness disappeared from her just now, and there was a kind smile on her face.

Jean did not know why, but her nostrils were warm, and tears streamed down.

"Strange, why am I still crying..." Jean hurriedly wiped away her tears, but the golden light rolled—

As a ghost, whether it was crying tears or bleeding, both were typically evil in nature.

However, Jean was amazing, the tears she shed were not evil spirits but blessings.

Lilly took Gemma with one hand and her mother with the other, and said, “Sister, sit down quickly, let’s eat!” Then she served her with another plate full of dishes, asked the butler to get a stick of incense, lit the incense and put it at the side. The Crawford family looked at Lilly in bewilderment. “Lilly, what are you...?” Lilly stuck her cutlery straight into the food and explained, “After lighting the incense, and sticking the fork into food, mother will be able to eat.” Old Mrs. Crawford was in shock. The little girl never did this before! She should not have behaved this way even if she missed her mother... The old lady was suddenly worried, and secretly pinched her husband, telling him to think of a solution quickly. Old Mr. Crawford, “Why are you pinching me?” Old Mrs. Crawford, “...”

The family wanted to say something but dared not say it.

Only Anthony remained silent, picked up the spicy fried chicken wings that Jean loved most but could not eat, and put them on the bowl.

Jean looked at the fried chicken wings, then at Anthony, old Mrs. Crawford, old Mr. Crawford, Edward...

She felt an inexplicable sense of familiarity, and could not help but want to burst into tears.

"Thank you..." She said softly.

Lilly patted the chair beside her, "Mom sit here!"

The little girl was very happy. Grandpa and grandma were here for dinner, mom and dad were here, and uncles and brothers were also here.

Edward and Gilbert were shocked, their brains were buzzing, and they could not believe what they saw.
Everything was beyond them!

Lilly explained, "My mother became a ghost after she died. Master said that a few days ago, my mother was going to be reincarnated, but an accident happened, she turned into fragments and disappeared, and then she returned after possessing the young lady."

Jean could not remember anything, and said with a headache, "Is that so... I can't remember anything..."

Lilly nodded, "Yeah, because the soul had been broken into pieces, it's normal that mom can't remember now!"

Anthony had always been calm, his lips were tightly pursed, and his back was straight.

It was really Jean!

It was their sister who died alone in South City before they had time to say goodbye...

"Jean..." Anthony said in a dull voice, "It's Big Brother's fault... Big Brother didn't protect you well."

Edward was startled, still unable to believe it, "Brother, such nonsense...you, do you really believe it?"

Anthony said firmly, "I believe it."

As long as Lilly said it, as long as Jean came back...he would believe it.

Gilbert looked at everything in front of him with an extreme sense of absurdity.

Edward took Josh's video recorder even more irritably, "Did this thing have footage recorded in advance? The one in the white robe inside, who looks like a dead person, had been recorded by an actor long ago. Right?!"

"And Jean, did you make some kind of AI? And play a prank on us?"

Josh saw that he was rudely grabbing the video recorder and replaying it over and over again, and even wanted to pull out the few magnetic signal bars at the top, so he quickly snatched the video recorder away.

"Uncle Edward, it's true! It's true!" Josh was speechless, his precious camera!

Gilbert pressed Edward's shoulder deeply, "Fifth brother, don't worry, listen to Lilly."

Edward suppressed the irritability in his heart and looked at Lilly.

Lilly continued, "Mom's soul fragments were gone, but as long as I help mother find the soul fragments, mother will be able to remember and go to reincarnation!"

Anthony narrowed his eyes slightly, he caught what Lilly said twice—accident, turned into pieces.

"Why did it break into pieces?" he asked.

Lilly was stunned. Right, Master just said it was an accident, what kind of accident was that?

She looked at Pablo.

Pablo coughed and said, "Lilly, do you remember that Master went down to a meeting some time ago? At that time, Master brought your mother here... and then..."

He told everything that happened that day.

Chapter 160 Josh Bewitched

In Lilly’s room, since everyone was silent, Josh raised his hand hesitantly, “I still have a question...”

Everyone looked at him.

Josh asked, “Uh, why were there so many ghosts by Jean’s side?”

Edward and Gilbert’s brains buzzed, a lot of ghosts? ?

They quickly looked at the camera – no?

Then Pablo said, “Because Jean was blessed with golden light, these were all blessings, and it can also be said to be full of merits and virtue.”

“If the ghosts had these golden lights, they will be rich and powerful in their next life if they reincarnate, so they all want it.”

Lilly followed up and said, "They're not only following mother, they're also following Sister Gemma, that's why Master said not to let Sister Gemma go back."

Everyone suddenly realized that this was the case.

Josh then probed, "Then, where are they now?"

Pablo said, "They should all be wandering around the mansion now. They were thirsty for golden light. I want to see if they can find Jean's soul fragment."

"Attracted by the golden light, there will only be more and more ghosts."

"But don't worry, I've set up a soul-absorbing streamer in the house, and they won't be able to get in."

"I'll go to the underworld later to see if I can find anything."

Edward and the others, "... " was this all right?

In the middle of the night, it was already very late, and Lilly had already fallen asleep.

Josh was also sent to sleep, but his camera was left behind.

Gilbert was in the room.

Edward came over with a big box and opened it.

Jean asked curiously, "What is this?"

Anthony took out a doll from the box, and said softly, "This was your favorite doll when you were three years old, remember?"

Jean shook his head.
