Don't Try to Escape, My Wife!

Chapter 1281 We Just Got Lost

Amelia hung on to Nicole tightly during the falling. She tried to act as a cushion to protect Nicole when they landed. Yet Nicole saw through her and directly pulled Amelia into her embrace.

"You..."

Amelia was very surprised.

"You are Jarrod's woman," Nicole whispered. "We promised him to take good care of you. You are bearing his child now, so I'm afraid you'll get hurt if you fall."

After saying that, Nicole pushed Amelia on top and acted as a cushion for Amelia herself.

Due to intense pain and the fast speed of falling, Nicole felt like her ribs were about to break.

A trace of grateful flashed through Amelia's eyes.

Ever since she became Jarrod's woman, Amelia was told to protect Jarrod under all circumstances. Even if it was at the cost of her own life, Amelia could not get Jarrod hurt.

Nicole and Samuel were the people Jarrod cared about the most. Amelia naturally felt that she should protect them. Otherwise, Jarrod would be sad. However, she did not expect that she was the most important one in Nicole's eyes.

For more than ten years, Amelia had been a shadow, a secret guard, and a pawn that could be discarded at will. Yet, at this moment, she felt that she was a human being, a woman that was cared about and respected by others.

Apart from Jarrod, Nicole was the second person who gave Amelia such a feeling.

"Thank you, Nicole," she said with a sore nose.

"You're welcome, but I think you should pull me up. I'm in great pain."

Nicole felt like she was about to fall into pieces, and it hurt so much.

Amelia helped her up at once. Just as they picked themselves up, a cold pistol was aimed at their heads.

"Freeze! Turn around!"

The indifferent voice stunned Nicole and Amelia. Their hearts lurched, and they guessed that their fear had become reality.

Did these guys work for Aaron?

Nicole lowered her head and saw them wear military boots but mercenary trousers. Her heart got sunk.

She tried to secretly take out her gun, but a guy saw through her.

"I told you. Freeze! Or I'll shoot you in the head."

These words were absolutely threatening.

Even if Nicole tried to take a risk, she dared not to act rashly, as Amelia was beside her.

One of those guys quickly snatched Nicole's gun.

At this moment, Nicole was extremely anxious as she didn't know where Samuel was.

"Who are you? We just got lost."

"Shut up! Follow us!"

"This is?"
"Gold mine."
Emory looked at the ore vein in front of him and said with a heavy tone, "Back then, Aaron was a geologist. He discovered the gold ore vein here, so he paid much attention to the Harper Town and caused that tragedy."

"Ore vein? Throughout the entire mountain?"

Samuel owned a diamond mine in Africa, so he understood Emory's words.

Emory nodded and said, "Yes. Its source was in the Harper Town. Every master knew about it, and their mission was to protect the ore veins. To them, gold was not wealth, but earth energy, which could protect their town. Thanks to the veins, the bugs in the mountains were exceptionally good, and the refined bugs were even better. As you know, the Harper Town passed down that tradition from ancient times. This ore vein was the foundation for the Harper Town's existence. Once they were destroyed, the quality of bugs would drop. It was said that only one Golden Bug could be refined in a few hundred years, but people in the Harper Town refined three ones in excellent quality, only in ten decades. Therefore, they definitely wouldn't allow any outsider to get close to the ore vein. To protect this secret, the people of the Harper Town never intermarry with others outside the town. They want to keep this secret forever."

Hearing this, Samuel paused for a moment.

Three Golden Bugs, for sure?

One was in his body. Where were the other two?

"William came here for the veins?"

"No, he was here for the Golden Bug."

Emory sighed and shook his head, "He is a love struck man. Back then, he had a crush on Sally, and he thought that his big brother also fell in love with her. After being tricked out of the country by Sally, he suffered misfortune. Afterwards, he discovered the secret of Sally and Audrey. But at that time, Sally was the king's lady. He was disheartened, so he planned to leave that sad place, but he accidentally found out that Sally had been poisoned with the bug. To dispel the bug, she needed the Golden Bug from the Harper Town. In order to save Sally, he came here."

Samuel did not expect William to come here because of this.

He frowned and thought of something. Then he asked, "William came here, so did Mr. Morty's auntie. Their coming attracted the attention of Lindo, who has been keeping an eye on the ore veins. He thought William and Mr. Morty's auntie knew the secret, so he tried to kill them?"

"Probably. But William did find a Golden Bug and sent it to Sally, but his whereabouts were revealed. From then on, he was missing. Sally has been looking for him for years, but he seemed to have disappeared. Mr. Morty's auntie was also gone after William left."

Emory frowned. He was puzzled for this enigma.

Samuel recalled Jarrod's words and whispered, "Jarrod said that William is in the mountains."

"In the mountains?"

Emory was a little surprised.

"He's right."

Samuel was not calm.

Aaron came to the Harper Town for the ore vein. But outsiders were forbidden to enter, right? Why could Aaron make it? And he even stayed there for long. Also, Zama is

However, something weird happened. All the people who participated in the burial operation died at their homes without rhyme or reason. This incident caused a panic in the town. And Aaron was detecting the geology nearby. The old master thought that Aaron was an expert in this field, so he broke

"Alright, don't be too sad. The higher-ups have given Jarrod a chance. It's up to him to decide. Chill out. After we finish this task, you can also retire if you want to, and you'll still get paid."

Samuel knew what it meant to retire with pay.

Normally, people would retire after the age of sixty, and the Special Forces would retire at the age of thirty-five. However, with his military rank, even if he retired, he could still keep it, and even get paid. But he would not participate in military operations.

This was the life that Samuel wanted.

He nodded, smoked a cigarette with Emory, and then whispered, "I need to go check on Nicole. By the way, what's going on with the formation outside? Is it really the ancient Eight Trigrams Formation?"

"Speaking of which, the girl beside you is not an ordinary person. She is able to crack this formation. That's something."

Emory found Amelia impressive.

When Samuel heard this, he knew that Amelia was right, and he couldn't help but have some doubts about her identity.

"Amelia works for Aaron."

Hearing what Samuel said, Emory was surprised.

"Amelia? Is her surname Conley?"

"I don't know. I just know that her name is Amelia. She is Jarrod's 18-year-old present from Aaron, but Jarrod seems to care about her very much."

Samuel told Emory what he knew.

Emory whispered, "This woman should be the descendant of the formation. This ore vein has been here for many years. The Harper Town has been located here for several hundred years. The entire mountain is covered with the formation. Without it, this ore vein wouldn't have been so well hidden, and perhaps would have been discovered long ago. You don't know how many experts we hired to crack this formation, and how many months we spent drawing and searching for information. But Amelia cracked it at once. She is a talent. You should think of a way to keep her around. "

"I don't know. Amelia is an independent woman and she only listens to Jarrod. If you want Amelia to stay, you have to protect Jarrod."

Hearing that, Emory felt somewhat embarrassed.

"Samuel, you're making things difficult for me."

"I'm telling the truth. Amelia likes Jarrod and she is even carrying Jarrod's child. I know you are in short of talents. But no matter what, you can't force her or overwork her. I promised Jarrod that I would protect Amelia and their child."

This was Samuel's promise to Jarrod.

Chapter 1284 There's Nothing I Can Do

When Samuel went out, Nicole just glanced at him and did not follow. She stayed there with Amelia. After all, Amelia was pregnant and her mood was unstable now.

Nicole knew that Samuel would definitely help Jarrod. Although it was dangerous, he had to face Aaron sooner or later.

Samuel went straight to Emory's place.

"How's the signal here?"

The formation might have blocked the signal and he couldn't contact others.

Emory asked in a low voice, "You want to communicate with the outside world?"

"Yes. I need to do something. I want to get Jarrod out of there."

Samuel did not conceal it from Emory, who would know about it anyway.

Emory lowered his head and pondered for a moment, then he said, "I think it would be better for him to stay with Aaron. He can give us some information."

"It's cruel to let a son go against his father. Besides, Jarrod is not our soldier. We don't know whether he has the same faith as us. I am just his half-brother. Do you think he will break up with his father for me? I know we have Amelia. But will Jarrod do as we say for her sake? He hates to be controlled by others. Emory, we should get him out of there. If we force Jarrod, he may change his mind and to cooperate with Aaron. And we may lose. "

Emory frowned.

He didn't say anything and seemed to be thinking.

Samuel also knew that it was inappropriate to let Emory consider his personal relationship with Jarrod at this moment. Emory was the commander so he had to consider the overall situation for everyone.

This was where Samuel couldn't compare to Emory.

Emory had obtained his position because he was as loyal and upright as his father and grandfather. He had strong faith and determination. He would not fail his mission due to personal stuff. And he placed righteousness above family. But Samuel could not do it.

Samuel knew that he would not be able to remain calm if Aaron caught Nicole. He had faith too. But he would not give up on Nicole if he had to choose.

This was why Emory was now a lieutenant general while Samuel was just a major general.

Samuel did not urge Emory to decide. He just waited quietly.

Emory's eyebrows were still knitted as time passed.

When Samuel took out the third cigarette, Emory finally opened his mouth.

"If you insist on doing this, I can give you ten people. Samuel, I didn't have many soldiers this time. But they are the best. I don't want them to get hurt. You know, good steel should be used to make quality guns. But Jarrod is not that important to us."

"I understand. I don't need them. Just get the signal back or give me a phone that can contact the outside world."

Emory was surprised.

"You are going to save him by yourself?"

"No. I have my own people."

Samuel smiled with confidence.

Chapter 1285 I Just Want Him to Stay Alive

Tears fell down from the corner of Jarrod's eyes. But no one saw it.

What did his father just do?

How ridiculous!

Jarrod was in great pain as if his body was falling apart. He felt that he might die in the next moment. However, the pain just kept tormenting him. He couldn't speak or move, like a corpse on the ground.

He didn't expect to end up being like this when he ate the Golden Bug. He thought that he could withstand the gnawing of the bugs and cleanse his body of the bug poison. He would no longer be manipulated and controlled by Aaron if he succeeded.

He also knew that the Golden Bug was extremely violent. He would die if he failed to endure it.

Jarrold made up his mind after Samuel and others left. He didn't have any back-up plan. Now, at the gate of death, he finally realized that Aaron was indifferent and ruthless towards him.

Aaron had raised him for thirty years. Although Jarrold didn't feel much warmth from Aaron, he still regarded Aaron as his father.

But Aaron disappointed him.

He was Aaron's son!

It had been 30 years. People would have developed a close relationship with their pets as time passed, not to mention human.

But Aaron treated him like a rag that could be thrown away at any time. He didn't even give Jarrold a coffin. Instead, Aaron asked people to throw him into the bugs' vat to stay with his mother, who had died long ago.

Was Aaron really his father?

What was he to Aaron?

Jarrold was heartbroken, but he also felt a bit relieved.

Aaron had left so Jarrold had no anticipation now.

The relationship between him and Aaron had come to an end.

He would repay Aaron's caring with his death today.

Jarrold closed his eyes and tears flowed down his cheeks.

There were no other people here so no one would see him being vulnerable and upset. Jarrold didn't need to hide his emotions here. He could finally cry.

Jarrold felt pain and coldness all over his body as if he was in an ice cellar.

If he couldn't make it through, he would die here. He wondered how Amelia was now. Was she worried about him?

"Samuel, how are you?"

When Nicole saw Samuel suddenly kneel on the ground, she couldn't help but feel a little worried.

Samuel felt that his chest was burning, as if something was about to burst out yet was unable to break free due to an obstacle. His entire body convulsed at the feeling of tearing.

"Samuel!"

Because of the pain, Samuel looked awful, and he almost threw Jarrod away.

Amelia hurriedly supported Jarrod, while Nicole held Samuel's arm.

"Are you alright? Is there something wrong?"

Samuel's face was extremely pale, and beads of sweat continuously dripped onto the ground. In the pain, he felt that the Golden Bug in his body seemed to have some sort of connection with Jarrod.

'Could it be...?'

A doubt flashed in his mind.

Almost subconsciously, Samuel used a dagger to cut his wrist, and drops of red blood dripped into Jarrod's mouth.

The smell of blood stimulated Jarrod, who subconsciously opened his mouth and drank Samuel's blood. He looked like someone who had been thirsty for a long time.

This scene was a bit bloody and strange, but no one spoke. Nicole only looked at Samuel with great concern. As his blood dripped into Jarrod's mouth, Samuel seemed to have an even paler face.

After Jarrod drank for a while, Samuel couldn't hold on any longer. Nicole quickly pressed down on Jarrod's neck, causing him to faint while his expression was slightly better. Samuel, however, was on the verge of collapse.

Amelia quickly carried Jarrod from Samuel's embrace, while Nicole supported Samuel.

"How is it? Are you alright?"

"Not bad. Let's go."

Samuel nodded.

He glanced at Jarrod and found that Jarrod's complexion became a little rosy. He then whispered, "If my guess is correct, there should be a Golden Bug in his body. When two Golden Bugs meet, it is like two men riding on a horse, which will lead to some reaction. I used my blood to suppress the poisonous bug inside him and temporarily relieve him a little, but we still need to find Joseph to really relieve it. We don't know when the people outside will be able to enter, so hurry back."

"Alright."

Nicole nodded.

Amelia glanced at Samuel and then at Jarrod, then she silently helped Jarrod out.

Along the way, the four of them did not say anything. After leaving the secret passage, they returned to Emory's barracks. Joseph and Zoe had been brought over.

Juliana also followed them over.

"Quick, have a look at Jarrod."

Samuel was a little anxious.

Nicole was worried about Samuel's health, though. She asked the other doctors to prescribe some hematinic for Samuel.

Joseph quickly rushed over.

Seeing Jarrod's situation, he said with seriousness, "It should be a Golden Bug. I don't know much about the Golden Bug. He needs my master."

Samuel's face turned gloomy.

"Who are we going to see?"

Nicole didn't hear it clearly.

Seeing her red eyes, Samuel felt heartbroken and hugged her even more tightly.

"We're going to see your second uncle. Sally said that Morgan would take her to see William."

Leaning on Samuel's chest, she listened to his powerful heartbeat in a state of shock.

"Sally is also here?"

"I don't know how they made up, but I know it was Sally who had ordered Morgan to defend the Harper Town. I used to think that the Harper Town was very important to Morgan, but now I don't think so."

A trace of doubt flashed across Samuel's eyes.

Nicole pulled herself out of his embrace. She looked at him and asked, "What's wrong? Are you suspicious of Morgan? She knew where Elvis was but didn't tell us."

"Don't you think so?"

Samuel frowned because he thought Nicole was too calm.

Nicole shook her head, got up, and walked to the window.

The people outside were busy covering what Emory had done, because they didn't want outsiders to know. Although Zoe and Juliana had left, the atmosphere here was still tense. It didn't change much after Aaron was captured,

Nicole felt an increasing tension in the air. She didn't know whether it was brought by the well-trained bodyguards of the Green family or it was her illusion.

Samuel walked over and hugged her from behind.

He enjoyed doing this. When Nicole's soft body leaned against him, he felt like he had the whole world. Wealth and power could never bring this kind of satisfaction.

"I think you have a different opinion on Morgan,"

Samuel said gently with a fatigue and hoarse voice.

Nicole's heart aches for him. She caressed the back of his hand and whispered, "No matter who she is, she is a woman, who lost her son, and it might be the most regrettable thing in her life. If she was an ordinary woman, she might have gone crazy, but she didn't even have the right to do that since she's a woman on mission. She's responsible for the survival of the Harper Town. I think her son was the eternal pain in her heart. However, she accepted Joseph and even treated Joseph as her own son. I believe her love for Joseph is true. "

"I have never doubted her love for Joseph, but does this have anything to do with her current behavior?"

As a man, Samuel didn't understand women's thoughts.

"Of course," said Nicole with a smile. If Morgan really cares about Joseph, she will put the safety of Joseph ahead of the Harper Town. And her burden has reduced since you are in the Harper Town now. In such a situation, she will protect Joseph as a mother does. I think there must be someone watching Joseph."

Samuel was surprised at Nicole's words.

"How do you know it?"

"If Joseph isn't spied on and his safety isn't threatened, then Morgan has no reason to hide the whereabouts of my second uncle from us. I think she used the whereabouts of my uncle as a bargaining chip to get Sally's cooperation when she was cornered by you. Have you noticed that members of this organization only follow Sally's order and they ignore Morgan? Morgan has been with Sally for more than ten years, and Sally has entrusted many things to her. Even if there are factions within this organization, how could Morgan not be able to have her own henchmen for all these years? I think these members are the secret force of Sally. The only explanation for Sally to use her secret force for Morgan is that Morgan knew where my second uncle is, and she used this message as the bargaining chip. Sally helped her, not for their friendship, but for the message.

Samuel was shocked at her orderly analysis.

Morgan was slightly stunned by the sudden entrance of Nicole. Then she recalled Nicole's identity. Although she didn't want to do that, she still called Nicole "Mrs. Green".

In the past, Morgan had never called Nicole like this, even after she became Joseph's master. Nicole knew Morgan did this was because Samuel was now the head of the Harper Town. Morgan had no choice but to respect her.

At this moment, Nicole was not in the mood to care about this. She directly walked in front of Morgan and asked, "Who is the person watching Joseph?"

Hearing Nicole's words, Morgan was stunned for a moment. Morgan avoided Nicole's eye. Nicole didn't know what Morgan was thinking about.

Joseph happened to get to the door. When he heard this, he paused a little.

Sally did not say anything, but she was also curious.

Based on Nicole's words, Morgan was being threatened. She once promised that she would take her to William. But would she keep her promise?

Nicole is not in the mood to care for others. She was very anxious in her heart.

Morgan lowered her head and whispered, "I don't know what you're talking about, Mrs. Green."

"You know what I'm saying. Morgan, you're smart, but don't treat others as fools. You think you can find a balance between that person and Samuel. You think you can protect the Harper Town and Joseph. But let me tell you, no one can have the best of both worlds, and neither can you! If you care about Joseph, then tell me, who is watching Joseph?"

Hearing Nicole's words, Joseph understood something.

He walked into the room, looked at Morgan, and whispered, "Master, are you threatened because of me? Who is that person? What does he need you to do?"

At first, Morgan didn't want to say anything, but when she saw Joseph, she hesitated.

"Why are you here? Don't listen to me and your mom talking. You are just a kid! Go out and play, or see how Jarrod is doing."

Morgan wanted Joseph to go out, but Joseph shook his head and said, "Uncle has been drugged. Daddy and Mommy decided to take advantage of that. They will lure that person out soon. Master, I'm right in front of you. You must believe that my Daddy and Mommy can protect me. Please just say it."

Joseph looked straight at Morgan with his clear eyes, but Morgan still remained silent.

Nicole was extremely anxious. After a while, she said anxiously, "The other party's target is not Joseph all along, right? They approached Joseph, watched Joseph, and even used Joseph's life to threaten you. What do they want?"

"They just told me to wait patiently. They said they will come to me when they need me. You keep saying that you would take good care of Joseph, but didn't you let dangerous people sneaked their way to be his side?"

Morgan finally said something. There was a trace of reproach and dissatisfaction in her tone. Because of Samuel's identity, Morgan could not judge him. But she was doing it for Joseph.

She didn't allow anyone to hurt Joseph.

Hearing Morgan's words, Nicole was stunned for a moment. Then she suddenly figured something out.

"Morgan, the person they wanted to deal with is not Joseph all along. They want nothing from Joseph. And even if they want to kidnap Joseph, Joseph will be fine because Samuel and I are here. If their target is Joseph, they would have taken actions long ago instead of waiting until now. They used you."

Nicole hurriedly took out her phone. She was a little scared. Her hands were trembling as she held the phone.

"What is your relationship with Lindo?"

Nicole was straightforward.

Aaron, however, did not speak. Instead, he looked coldly at Nicole with an expression that was somewhat elusive.

Nicole didn't force him. She smiled faintly and said, "Aaron, let me guess, you must have been abandoned. You have been captured by us for so long, but they don't even care about you at all. There is even no rescue operation. You did everything you could for them. Do you think it's worth it?"

Aaron remained silent. The contempt in his eyes made Nicole immediately understand that she had guessed wrongly.

Could it be that Aaron knew from the beginning that he was just an abandoned pawn?

It couldn't be.

If that was the case, it was impossible for him not to plan for himself, so could it be that this was a strategical plan?

Right now, Nicole was cautious. She did not know who, of the people around her, were enemies and who were friends. Nor did she know when those people would set up a trap for her and Samuel.

Thinking carefully, she realized that they had caught Aaron too easily.

How could she and Samuel catch this fellow who had schemed thirty years ago so easily after thirty years?

The more Nicole thought about it, the more she felt that something was wrong.

The smile on her face also subsided.

"Aaron, no matter what plan you have or what idea you have, you can't leave here. I advise you to think about your own future."

"Future? I really regret not strangling Samuel when he was born. I let him grow up so strong and become my enemy. But Nicole, don't be cocky. You two are still too young after all. I was just caught by you. We'll see who will have the last laugh."

Aaron sounded confident, as if being caught wasn't a big deal.

Nicole observed him but was unable to read his expression. She could only say indifferently, "Then let's wait and see. However, it's a pity that Zama fell in love with a man like you."

Nicole had said it sincerely.

Although Zama had done so many wrong things, she must never have thought that the person who betrayed her and the entire town was her first lover, Aaron. But now, Aaron didn't have the slightest bit of feelings for Zama, and it could be seen from his attitude towards Jarrod.

Thinking of Jarrod, Nicole was very angry.

Everyone said that even a ferocious tiger doesn't eat its cubs, but Aaron was even worse than a beast.

When Aaron heard Zama's name, he was slightly surprised. Then he sneered, "How can a woman from a small town be worthy of me? It is her honor and good fortune that I was willing to toy with her!"

Nicole was astonished.

When Aaron said these words, his disdain for Zama was deep, as if he was a natural noble. The innate quality could not be changed.

"I thought the same thing at first, but Aaron's tone just now made me suddenly think that maybe we were all misled by our own thoughts." Aaron was able to get away from the incident of the destruction of the Harper Town that year without leaving a trace, and could even continue to live peacefully in the past thirty years. Was it really because Lindo had given him protection? We haven't heard of Lindo in all these years. If Samuel didn't have a special channel to find out about Lindo, perhaps we wouldn't have known about his existence at all. However, this person has indeed disappeared over the years.

Chapter 1290 This Is Too Ironic

When Nicole finished speaking, Amelia's eyes dimmed before she said, "That's part of the reason."

"There are other reasons?"

"It's not convenient for me to tell you now. Can you stop forcing me?"

Amelia was very aloof, as if she would open her heart to no one.

Nicole couldn't help but be a little surprised. She even doubted that her feelings for Jarrod were truly indestructible. Did she have other intentions?

However, this was their own business. She could make decisions for neither of them.

Nicole thought for a moment and said, "I won't stop you doing what you want, but I hope you can wait until Jarrod wakes up. If he wakes up, you can deal with the baby whatever you want. But now, I won't let anything happen to you because Samuel promised Jarrod that he would take good care of you and the baby. If you abort it now, what are we supposed to tell Jarrod?"

Amelia did not respond. She only gave Nicole a meaningful glance, then turned around and walked out.

Just as Nicole was about to follow her, Amelia said indifferently, "Don't follow me. I want to be alone."

Nicole stopped.

She looked at Jarrod who was still asleep. She did not know when he would wake up, nor did she know if Amelia would try to abort the baby again.

Nicole felt a headache.

Why couldn't things go smoothly?

She felt that she should go and interrogate Aaron.

Thinking of this, Nicole once again came to the cave where Aaron was imprisoned.

Aaron was surprised that Nicole was back.

"What? You want to get information from me? Nicole, I won't say anything. Don't waste your time."

Nicole looked at him and said with a smile, "I won't ask any questions. I don't want to know anything. I just want to keep an eye on you here."

"What?"

Aaron was confused.

Nicole ignored him and sat in a chair opposite Aaron. Then, she took out her phone and started playing games.

She was calm and unhurried. Aaron wondered what Nicole was up to, but he knew that the longer she stayed there, the more disadvantageous it would be for him.

"Nicole, I'm hungry. Get me something to eat."

"There's nothing to eat. Deal with it. Don't forget that you're a prisoner now."

Nicole didn't even bother to give a single glance to Aaron.
