Chapter 1291 Who Tells You to Let Him Go?

"Amelia!"

Nicole quickly stepped forward and grabbed Amelia's arm. She asked angrily, "Did you let Aaron go?"

"Yes."

Amelia confessed.

In front of so many people, she admitted it so calmly, which stunned Nicole.

"Do you know what you're talking about? Do you know what you're doing? Amelia, you're Jarrod's woman. What do you mean by doing this? Who told you to? Jarrod is still unconscious. Don't sling mud at him."

Nicole could not understand why Amelia did this.

If she was a member of Aaron's team, she shouldn't have treated Jarrod so well. Moreover, when Samuel and Nicole were in the ancestral hall, Amelia could talk to Aaron. Why did she pass up such a good opportunity?

If she told Aaron that they were in the ancestral hall, both Samuel and Nicole would be caught.

Could it be that Amelia dangled them to draw Emory out?

Nicole's heart skipped a beat.

If that was the case, Amelia was very scheming. Did Jarrod know that Amelia was like this?

Many questions flashed through Nicole's mind, but she had no answer to either of them.

Amelia was still calm, indifferent, and even emotionless. "Capture me."

What else could Nicole say at this point?

"Amelia, if you have anything hard to disclose, you can tell me."

No one was around when Amelia took the poison. Even Jarrod was still in a coma. However, tears ran down his face. He might hear what Amelia said.

Nicole felt a little uneasy and anxious. She didn't know what to do. She paced the room and pondered what went wrong.

'Amelia looked calm and seemed to have known that we would catch her. Since that was the case, why didn't she leave with Aaron?'

'Moreover, when Aaron was mentioned, there was hatred in Amelia's eyes. Amelia hates Aaron so much. Then why did she save him?'

It couldn't make sense.

Nicole carefully thought about the process of capturing Amelia, and suddenly, she thought of Amelia's calm face.

No.

She wasn't calm!

She seemed to be in utter despair and didn't care about anything.

Was she in utter despair?

Nicole's heart sank.

Nicole thought hard about it. It seemed that Amelia didn't care about her child. Now, she looked...

"Damn it!"

Nicole quickly turned around and ran towards Amelia's room.

The door was locked from the inside.

Nicole was more worried.

"Amelia, open the door!"

Nicole knocked on the door, but no one answered inside.

"Amelia!"

Nicole hurriedly asked someone for help. When they kicked open the door, Amelia was on the ground, and the corner of her mouth was covered in blood.

"Hurry up and call 911! Hurry up!"

Nicole trembled. She knew that this time, regardless of whether Amelia could survive, the fetus in Amelia's belly could not survive.

Nicole stayed outside for a while. She didn't leave until there was no sound in the ward.

Nicole did not know how Jarrod felt after learning that Amelia had taken the poison. If it was Samuel, he would probably be very sad. However, this was between Jarrod and Amelia, and there was nothing she could do about it.

Nicole returned to the Harper Town.

Sally was still busy. She was probably investigating Aaron's identity. When Morgan saw Nicole, she whispered, "Samuel contacted me."

"What?"

Nicole was a little surprised.

Why did Samuel contact Morgan instead of her?

Morgan seemed to know what Nicole was thinking and said, "Samuel is monitored, so he can't make a phone call. He contacted me via the unique contact method of the Harper Town."

"Bugs?"

This was the only way Nicole could think of.

Morgan nodded.

"Samuel is very talented. He actually used bugs to contact me. He said that they are fine and told us not to worry. He asked us to protect the entrance of the Harper Town and wait for his news."

Morgan looked very excited. After all, she had received news from Samuel. Samuel was the mainstay of the Harper Town. However, Nicole was not as optimistic as her.

"Samuel doesn't know how to use bugs."

After saying that, Nicole left, leaving Morgan standing there alone in confusion.

Samuel didn't know how to use bugs?

How could that be?

"Mrs. Green, I'm not lying. Samuel really contacted me. I still raise that bug, only for delivering the message."

Morgan hurriedly explained. A figure came to Nicole's mind.

Juliana!

Juliana's mother was a descendant of the Harper Town, so it was normal for her to know about bugs. The master of the Bryan Town said that Juliana had never come into contact with bugs since she was young, but Nicole did not believe it.

If it was really Juliana who used Samuel's identity to send this message, Nicole would be worried sick instead of relaxing.

Nicole didn't know whether Juliana was a friend or an enemy. Even if Juliana used Zoe to find Emory, it didn't mean that Juliana was Aaron's people.

Amelia was another example.

She let Aaron go.

However, her attitude towards Aaron was dubious.

Nicole had a headache. Many things that she didn't understand revolved around her. She was very tired.

Joseph appeared with a bowl of jujube soup in his hand. He whispered, "Mommy, have something. I told the servant to cook it."

Walk right into the trap?

Nicole did not know. She only knew that she needed to figure out Juliana's identity now. After all, Samuel and Zoe weren't around. She was worried.

"Let me go with you."

Sally was still concerned about Nicole.

Nicole looked at Sally and thought of her mother, Audrey. If Audrey was still alive, she should be worried about herself too.

A trace of pain flashed through Nicole's eyes.

She nodded and said, "If my mother was still alive, she would care about me as much as you do."

Sally was surprised and sighed, "The biggest regret in my life is that I didn't come back as soon as possible."

"Some things are destined, right? Some destinies can't be forced. When these things are over, come home with me to see your grandfather. He missed you so much these years."

Nicole still couldn't trust Sally completely, but there were some emotions that she could not suppress.

She hoped she was doing the right thing to trust Sally in this.

Sally nodded. "I'll go get ready to go to the Bryan Town with you later."

"Alright."

Nicole nodded and turned around to pack up.

She arranged for Morgan to be in charge of the Harper Town in her absence. There shouldn't be any problem. Moreover, the Harper Town was Morgan's hometown. Nicole also asked Joseph to stay.

Joseph agreed to Nicole's arrangement and reminded her to be careful.

Shortly after, Nicole and Sally went to the Bryan Town.

The Bryan Town looked the same as when Samuel was still around. When Asher Humfrey, head of the Bryan Town, saw Nicole, he was a little surprised.

"Mrs. Green? What brings you here? Didn't you and Mr. Green go into the mountain?"

"Has Juliana returned?"

Asher shook his head in surprise when he heard Nicole's question.

"Juliana and Miss Zoe went to look for you. Didn't you see them?"

"May I see your wife?"

Nicole did not answer, but still smiled. However, Asher sensed something happened.

"Did Juliana do something wrong?"

"Mr. Humfrey, what do you think Juliana can do wrong?"

Nicole's question made Asher a little nervous.

Chapter 1295 He Must Have a Big Plan

Jarrold looked at unconscious Amelia with a trace of pain in his eyes. He said in a low voice, "I don't know. Perhaps there is something between Amelia and Aaron. There is a grudge between them. Even if she let him go, it is not to save him. Perhaps she has other arrangements."

Jarrold no longer had any feelings towards Aaron. Although he had devoured Golden Bug, he still knew clearly what had happened outside. He heard clearly what Aaron had done to him and how he had dealt with his corpse. Perhaps from that moment, he had been disheartened.

Aaron gave him his life, and he had returned it over the past thirty years. In the future, they would have no relationship at all.

Looking at Jarrold's cold face, Nicole recalled the past Samuel.

Actually, they were quite similar sometimes. For example, after being hurt by their relatives, they felt more painful than anyone else.

Nicole felt that she had to tell Jarrold something.

She pondered for a moment and whispered, "Jarrold, there's something I think you should know."

"What is it?"

"About Aaron."

Nicole knew that talking about Aaron was a taboo now, but she knew that Jarrod had to face it in the end. Even if he could escape for now, he couldn't escape for the rest of his life.

Jarrod was slightly stunned and his eyes slightly changed. Then, he said indifferently, "What's wrong with him? Didn't he run away?"

"Do you know his true identity?"

This question confused Jarrod.

"What do you mean?"

"I sent people to investigate Aaron. Aaron died more than 30 years ago, and all his relatives disappeared overnight. But now, fake Aaron had used his identity for thirty years. Back then, the network was not developed, and many files in remote areas could not be found. That was why there was this loophole. Now that Aaron has been released by Amelia, we don't know what his true identity is. There is no clue at all. "

Jarrod's eyes suddenly narrowed.

"What did you say? Aaron is dead?"

"It should be said that the real Aaron is dead. We don't know who the fake Aaron is right now."

Jarrod was suddenly stunned.

When Nicole heard this news, she was shocked and even couldn't believe it.

They had been regarding Lindo as a clue for so long, but he had been dead for more than twenty years.

How was that possible?

However, Jarrod had no need to lie.

Nicole couldn't help but miss Samuel more.

If Samuel was here, would he be able to think of some other connection?

Jarrod was also thinking about his suspicions. When he turned around and saw Nicole, he paused slightly and asked, "Samuel hasn't returned yet?"

"No. Juliana seemed to hide something from us."

Nicole told Jarrod the thing.

She was very worried about Samuel and Zoe, but it was just as Mrs. Humfrey had said, Juliana had no reason to betray Emory, so what was her intention?

"Perhaps she intended to confuse the people outside and make Aaron think that there was a spy by Emory's side and lured them out."

Nicole had thought about Jarrod's words, but she still couldn't figure it out.

"If that's the case, then Samuel and others would send us a message. However, only one bug returned and it told us to wait. I don't know if this news is true, so I'm a little worried."

Nicole frowned.

Jarrod said, "If you want to know if it's true, then let Amelia bring us in."

"You've seen Amelia's current situation. We don't know when she'll wake up. Even if she wakes up, we can't guarantee that Amelia will help us. Jarrod, I don't know about the hatred between Amelia and Aaron, but since she's so determined to take the poison, I'm afraid..."

Nicole stopped speaking.

The most difficult thing to understand in this world was feelings.

Jarrod glanced at Amelia, who was still unconscious on the bed and whispered, "She will wake up. You go back first. When she wakes up, I will call you. Take good care of yourself. Otherwise, Samuel will feel heartache."

Nicole didn't know if it was her own illusion, but she felt that Jarrod's mood was better.

Shouldn't Aaron's matter be a blow to him?

Why did he look a little happy instead?

"Jarrod, are you alright?"

Nicole asked worriedly.

"It's fine. You can go back now."

Jarrod let her go back, and Nicole could not stay here anymore, so she could only nod and leave.

When she walked out of the ward, Jarrod directly closed the door. His attitude made Nicole somewhat depressed.

Was she so troublesome?

Now Jarrod and Amelia were the only ones left in the ward. Jarrod looked at Amelia on the bed with deep affection in his eyes.

I want him to experience everything that I've suffered. I even thought about putting poison on myself. If you touch me, you'll die. I will take you to hell with me!"

Amelia cried so hard. She was inconsolable.

"But I'm useless. I'm a fool. I thought you would have sex with me that night. I prepared for so long, but you didn't even touch me. You went to the study room and left me alone. I've been looking for opportunities to approach you for years, but you still didn't touch me. At first, I thought you didn't like me. So I waited for you to bring another girl. Then I would get that girl to work for me. But years passed, I still didn't have a chance."

Amelia cried out loud, and Jarrod's eyes became a little wet.

"Then why didn't you kill me?"

"I want to, but I can't. The first time I saw you being tortured by the bugs, I wanted to kill you, but you held my hand and called me Mom. At that moment, I seemed to see myself in my mother's arms. Why? Why is Aaron so ruthless? Why doesn't he give a shit about you? If he loves you, he'll suffer a lot if I kill you. But he's too cold-blooded. He doesn't care about you at all. What's the point of my killing you?"

Amelia covered her face and cried.

After so many years, she could finally express her depression.

She had driven herself mad.

She hated him and loved him. She kept reminding herself of her purpose in life.

She was so tired.

She would feel better if Jarrod treated her badly, but Jarrod was kind to her that she could not continue her hatred.

No one could understand. She was suffering every day.

Jarrod sighed and hugged her in his arms.

"Don't touch me! Don't!"

Amelia suddenly resisted fiercely. But she did not have the strength to break free from his embrace.

Jarrod hugged her tightly, "Listen to me."

Jarrod's voice was soft. Amelia lost her strength. She could only stare blankly at Jarrod, tears streaming down.

Jarrod felt hurt.

From the age of eighteen, he had hardly seen her cry. She was always strong. No matter what difficulties she encountered and no matter how much she was hurt, she never shed tears. But now, she was so vulnerable.

Jarrold once complained that Amelia never showed her weakness. But now, he realized that he never wanted to see her cry.

"What's wrong? What happened?"

Morgan and Jarrod asked when they noticed Nicole didn't look well.

"Nothing. I'll go back first. Morgan, you stay here to take care of Amelia."

Then Nicole hurriedly left with Sally without saying anything.

Morgan was a little puzzled, but she did not leave. She began examining Amelia's body carefully and thought about how to help her recover soon.

Jarrold made a motion to the outside and two people quickly followed Nicole to secretly protect her.

Nicole and Sally left the ward and hurried over to the Harper Town.

"Is it true? Is Samuel really back?"

"Yes, He is back, but he is not very well."

Sally wore an anxious expression.

Nicole became worried when she heard it.

"Is he hurt?"

"Yes, not that bad, but he has been unconscious."

Hearing it, Nicole was shocked.

"Why didn't you tell me when you saw me? I have asked Morgan to stay there. Now who can help Samuel?"

"Joseph is taking care of him. Samuel said that he doesn't need Morgan for the time being and just asked me to tell you he is back."

Nicole paused for a moment and said no more. Then she quickly drove back to the Harper Town.

After she came back, she went to the bedroom. When she saw Joseph, Nicole felt a little excited.

"Where is Samuel?"

"Daddy is in bed."

Joseph stepped aside.

Nicole quickly walked over and saw Samuel lying quietly on the bed, as if he was sleeping.

It had only been a few days since they last saw each other. But Nicole felt like it was a long time.

She walked over gently, afraid that she would wake Samuel up.

When she touched Samuel's face with her hands and felt the warmth of his cheek, she finally believed that Samuel was really back.

"How was he?"

"I don't know. I can't find anything wrong about his body. There are only a few cuts, but he has been unconscious as if he falls asleep."

Joseph said in a low voice and Nicole became nervous and worried.

"Then why don't you let Morgan come back?"

"What's wrong? What are you worried about?"

Morgan glanced at Nicole and asked when she saw that Nicole was hesitant.

"Are you not going because of what Sally said?"

Nicole felt nervous.

"It has nothing to do with Sally. We should put William aside now. There is too much going on around here. Jarrod is taking care of Amelia in the hospital. Our people are scattered. If we go find William now, no one will keep an eye on the town."

Nicole decided to take no action until Samuel wake up.

Hearing what Nicole said, Morgan was silent and went back to her room. Nicole did not know what Morgan was thinking and she had no time to care about it.

She didn't trust anyone except Samuel.

Although Nicole was torn with anxiety about Samuel, she didn't go back to her room because she was afraid that someone would pay special attention to her.

Nicole kept on patrol and nothing special happened in the surroundings.

Finally, it was evening. They had dinner together. Jarrod and Amelia were in the hospital. Samuel could not come out. And Sally stayed in her room looking into Aaron. Therefore, there were only a few people having dinner together.

Morgan kept quiet and did not talk about finding William anymore. Joseph seemed to have something on his mind and did not say anything all night.

They didn't enjoy the dinner.

After finishing her meal, Nicole was eager to go back to her room. She said that she was tired and asked them not to bother her.

Morgan looked thoughtfully at Nicole's back.

"Joseph, is your Mommy hiding something from us?"

Morgan looked at Joseph and pretended to ask unintentionally.

Joseph shook his head and said with a puzzled expression, "What is Mommy hiding from us?"

"What were you thinking just now?"

"I was thinking about the Golden Bug in Uncle Jarrod's body. It may be different from the one in my Daddy's body. Master, you gave my Daddy the Golden Bug back then, but why it seems so different from the one in Uncle Jarrod's body?"

Morgan was nervous and looked away. She immediately bent her face over her plate.

"I don't know. Perhaps the Golden Bug that Alice gave Aaron is better. After all, Aaron is Alice's first love."

"But your Golden Bug is left behind by the old master, isn't it? The best one should be the one you gave my Daddy. When my Daddy was controlled by bugs, you gave him the Golden Bug to help him detoxify. He was not in a coma. Why Uncle Jarrod was in a coma? Would the Golden Bugs have different effects on people due to different physical states of them?"

Joseph looked at Morgan and asked frankly. Morgan didn't know how to answer him.

"It is indeed strange. I'll go back and check the ancient book later."

"OK."

Nicole's heart skipped a beat.

Wasn't Morgan too urgent?

She had not even spoken, but she came in like this.

At this moment, Nicole could not leave.

Jarrold didn't expect Morgan to be so anxious. He couldn't help glancing at Nicole, but he didn't say anything.

After Morgan entered the room, she didn't see Nicole. She was puzzled for a moment.

"Where is she? I didn't see her leave."

Morgan muttered to herself, and then she seemed to start searching for something.

Nicole could hear it, but she couldn't see it, so she couldn't help but feel a little anxious.

Jarrold gestured for her not to act rashly. The two of them held their breaths and listened to the movements outside.

Morgan searched for a while, found something, and then hurriedly left.

Just in case, Nicole did not go out immediately. Instead, she waited for a while before she opened the door of the secret room and walked out.

The furnishings in the house were no different from before, but Nicole knew that Morgan had moved something.

Morgan had moved something on the desk. Although the traces were almost indiscernible, Nicole still saw them.

She quickly walked over and opened the drawer.

"Is there something missing?"

Jarrold also followed.

Nicole shook her head and said, "No, she put something here."

"What?"

"This."

Nicole handed Jarrold a bottle.

"I don't know what this thing is, and it is indeed not mine."

Nicole was confused.

Jarrold took it and sniffed, then he felt relieved.

"This is the antidote, the antidote to the bug poison in Samuel's body."
