Chapter 1411 You Are Not Disturbing Me

"Mr. Green, what are you...."

"Be quick. Pour me a glass of water. I'm choking," Samuel hurriedly said, with a hiccup.

He had been waiting for Morgan to come in.

Morgan had thought of many possibilities, but none of those was near. With a sigh, Morgan poured a cup of water for Samuel.

Samuel gulped down it and felt much more comfortable.

Morgan knew Samuel never ate hurriedly or choked, unless he was overjoyed. The food was bought by Nicole, so he ate hastily. Surely he would choke.

Samuel looked satisfied. Morgan thought that was not the time to tell him that Nicole was attacked. Samuel hadn't been delighted for a long time, and she'd better not break his joy.

"Anything else?"

When Samuel raised his head and saw Morgan still standing there, he frowned.

"Mr. Green, aren't you going to lie down? You are not supposed to sit for long with your injuries."

Morgan reminded Samuel.

Samuel looked at the food in front of him for a while and decided that his health mattered more.

He put the food on the side table and whispered, "Heat them for me tonight. I am not finished. I can't just throw away the food my wife personally bought me."

"Alright."

Morgan still wanted to say something, but she didn't and quickly lowered her head.

Nicole was injured. How could she personally buy food for him? It was nothing more than having his bodyguards buy for him, but Samuel treated it as a treasure. They were not on speaking terms and it obviously afflicted Samuel a lot.

Even the slightest bit of kindness delighted him much.

Morgan sighed and helped Samuel onto the bed.

Samuel didn't want to rest immediately after eating greasy food. Instead, he wanted to go over and chat with Nicole. However, when he thought of Nicole's refusal with exhaustion, he gave up this idea.

"You can go out. I'll rest for a while."

"Alright."

Morgan hurriedly walked out, afraid that if she stayed any longer, she would tell Samuel about Nicole.

Samuel took out his phone and checked the news about the company. Suddenly he saw a piece of news, in which there was a photo of a car. It looked a little familiar.

He hurriedly zoomed in and looked at the license plate number.

That's right. It was his car!

What did the news say?

Mrs. Green Attacked at the Entrance of Fairley Restaurant?!

It was breaking news! And no one ever told him? Did they think that he had lost all of his power?

Chapter 1412 Samuel's Deal with Tim

Samuel was afraid that Edwin would be too anxious to keep a secret. Besides, he was skeptical that Sally didn't regard Edwin as her elder at all. Instead, she wanted to exploit him or take revenge on him. After all, Sally didn't grow up with him. Samuel wasn't sure if she hated Edwin or not and he dreaded to take a risk. So, he didn't tell Edwin about Sally.

Since Sally was determined to be with William, Samuel thought it was time to tell Edwin the truth.

Samuel thus told Edwin what had happened to Sally.

Edwin became furious after hearing his words.

"Leo kidnapped my daughter?"

"That's right. Leo raised Sally and trained her to be a killer. When Sally fell in love with William, he used William to force her to marry him. Zayn is their child. In fact, Sally had given birth to a son for William before it. For his safety, she delivered him and asked the Sawyer family to bring him up without letting anyone else know. Morgan must have helped her. It is dangerous to have a baby alone. Morgan is a doctor and she is a good friend of Sally."

Samuel told Edwin his guess.

Edwin was extremely excited.

He had thought that he would be alone for the rest of his life. Surprisingly, he had a daughter.

Sally was his eldest daughter. He had been guilty of failing to protect her. Since she was kidnapped, his wife kept having quarrels with him and at last, divorced him. They didn't meet each other anymore even when his wife died.

He did not expect that Sally was alive. What was more, he had two grandchildren. Edwin couldn't restrain his excitement.

"Where is she? Can I see her?"

Samuel whispered, "Grandpa, she and William are in the Capital City. Mr. Morty's men are there as well. If you want to see them, you can call Mr. Morty to figure out what Sally is thinking."

Edwin was in his twilight years and had little time to waste. Samuel hoped he and Sally could be together soon. Otherwise, Sally probably would regret when she wanted to see him.

In an instant, Edwin understood Samuel.

"Alright, I'll call Mr. Morty. Please take good care of Nicole."

"I'm her husband. I must do it."

Samuel said directly.

After hanging up, Samuel heaved a sigh of relief.

Actually, he wasn't going to tell Edwin about Sally until Nicole insisted on going to the Shaw's and visiting Edwin. He feared for Nicole's safety.

The person behind the scenes even dared to shoot Nicole in public in Seapolis City, let alone in other cities. However, Nicole was angry with him. If he said so, she would not listen to him.

As Edwin went to the Capital City, Nicole had no reason to go out.

Someone else occurred to Samuel.

Tim and Evelyn were in Seapolis City as well.

Samuel became increasingly upset.

To be forgiven and protect his wife, he had to resort to every expedient.

Lucas always followed the news in Country F. Even though Samuel and Nicole told him that there was no need to do so, he still kept an eye on the population changes. Then Lucas discovered this subtle change.

Samuel hadn't taken it seriously, but a foreboding occurred to him when he heard Lucas' words.

"What's his name?"

"Back Freeman."

Samuel had some guesses about this name.

"Back? Does it mean sending back or the coming back of the Freeman family? This name is interesting. It sounds like Jayden's idea."

"Samuel, you're so smart. It's indeed Jayden who gave this name. He said that Back is his adopted son. But hasn't he been keeping Uncle Jarrod all these years? Uncle Jarrod is not called Back."

Samuel felt it familiar when he heard Lucas call him by name, and his heart was full of warmth.

"Perhaps he was Jayden's biological son."

"How is that possible? I heard that Major is dead."

Samuel realized that Lucas had been keeping an eye on Country F after hearing his words. He wanted to stop him, but he did not say anything in the end, because he thought Lucas was quite sensible.

"I will send someone to investigate what happened to Major's corpse. Don't care too much about it."

"Alright."

Lucas did not insist, but asked, "Samuel, did you and Mommy come back? When are you coming to pick us up?"

Samuel paused for a moment. Nicole still didn't want to talk to him. It occurred to him that children might be helpful, so he said, "Yes, we have returned to Seapolis City. But your mother got angry with me. I can't soften her up. Now I'm wounded, so I hope you come back and help me."

"You're wounded again? Samuel, can you do it? It was just a mission and you got wounded. Do you want Mommy to be worried about you?"

Samuel lost his words after hearing Lucas' complaint.

He was really his son!

"Lucas!"

Samuel shouted and he was obviously a little unhappy.

Lucas stopped cutting him to the quick and hurriedly said, "Alright, I'll stop. Send someone to pick us up tomorrow."

"Fill will send you home. If I'm right, those people might keep an eye on you at the same time because they can do nothing to your mom now. So, wait for a day before my people find out what happened to Major's corpse."

Davon's voice shocked Phoenix for a moment, then she wanted to push him away. But they fell onto the bed in an intimate posture as Davon pulled her.

"Let go of me! Are you crazy? They are all looking for you now. Why are you risking your life?"

Phoenix could not break free from Davon, so she could only press his wound.

Davon moaned in pain but still did not let go. Cold sweat dripped down from his forehead and fell on Phoenix's face.

Suddenly, she felt that this seemed to have happened before. Phoenix looked up at Davon and realized that his eyes were filled with mixed feelings.

Some memories flashed through Phoenix's mind, but she couldn't catch them anyway. After all, she did not continue and immediately let go.

Forget it. He was just a rascal, so she didn't need to be worried.

Davon was a little surprised as Phoenix drew back her hand. Then he said with a smile, "Do you feel heartbroken?"

"You think too much. Feel heartbroken for you? Davon, are you still not awake?"

She meant that Davon was daydreaming.

Davon was not annoyed, and he seemed a little happy. He laid on Phoenix, and she frowned again.

"Don't go too far."

"If I had gone too far, you are already mine. Stop talking. I want to sleep for a while. I'm a little tired."

Davon's voice was somewhat weak.

Remembering that he was chased, Phoenix did not say anything in the end and did not even push him away, although she was annoyed that he was lying on her.

Not long after, Davon breathed evenly.

He was very relieved about Phoenix.

Phoenix looked at his sleeping face. There were dark circles under his eyes. She didn't know if he had ever slept.

Was he an idiot?

She had asked someone to send him away, but why did he come back?

Phoenix actually had an answer in her heart, but she was unwilling to admit it.

She sighed and pulled the blanket over to cover him up. She sent a message to Helen and asked her to keep everyone out. Then she just lay quietly in Davon's arms.

She looked at the ceiling and had nothing in her mind. Surrounded by Davon's breath and fragrance, Phoenix's eyes closed and she fell asleep in the end.

Not long after she fell asleep, Davon opened his eyes.

His eyes were filled with tenderness.

This stubborn woman was still unwilling to find back her memory even though her attitude towards him had changed.

Davon woke up quietly. Just as he was about to leave, Phoenix hugged him from behind.

"Where are you going?"

Phoenix never expected that there would be Davon's people in her palace.
She knew this guard. His father was an official and made a mistake two years ago. She saved him from
Leo's punishment, so the official was grateful to her and he sent his son to be her guard.
The guard had done a good job on her orders and requests these two years, but what was going on?
He was actually Davon's man!
Phoenix's eyes suddenly became sharp.

"Get in here and explain to me!"

After saying that, Phoenix turned around and returned to her room.

How ridiculous!

The guard was not afraid or worried. He followed Phoenix back to the palace and hurriedly knelt down in front of her.

"Princess, please forgive me."

"What happened? When did you become Davon's man? Tell me the truth!"

Phoenix was so angry.

The guard did not feel any fear. Instead, he looked at Phoenix and whispered, "I have always been Mr. Davon's man."

"Always? Didn't you offend Leo that time?"

"I did, but it's also Mr. Davon's plan."

The guard whispered, "At that time, you wanted to develop your own power and attracted Leo's attention. To protect you, Mr. Davon asked me to make a mistake on purpose and get caught by the king. My family was a rivalry of the one you wanted to draw in, so Leo hoped that my family could stand by your side. In this way, you couldn't draw that power over to your side. That's why Mr. Davon asked me to take that chance and follow you. I'm supposed to report your movements in time, and protect you."

Phoenix felt somewhat uncomfortable in her heart.

Two years ago?

Davon began to keep an eye on her two years ago?

Although it wasn't surveillance, it didn't feel good.

But Phoenix did not care too much about it. She was thinking about the words of the guard. Leo was afraid of her two years ago, but she was complacent that she was really powerful and Leo didn't notice what she did. It turned out that it was just a fantasy.

She would have died earlier if Davon didn't protect her in secret.

She had a mixed feeling as she thought of the injuries the guard had suffered for her over the past two years.

She felt that she owed Davon a lot as she knew more about the truth. But she didn't want to owe others, so what should she do?

How could Davon be so hateful?

She owed him a lot before she could notice it. What should she do?

Phoenix had a sullen face.

"I didn't bribe her. She volunteered everything."

At this point, Davon's tone was serious.

"What happened?"

Phoenix was slightly stunned, and she became nervous.

Davon whispered, "Major killed her beloved man and drove her mother crazy. Her father couldn't stand it, got drunk, and died in a car accident. His mother drowned in the water shortly after his father left."

This was a tragedy. It was because of Major that the family died tragically.

Phoenix suddenly felt a little sad.

"How is that girl now?"

"She should be dead, right?"

"Should?"

Phoenix hurriedly said, "Why didn't you bring her out?"

"She wanted to die, and I couldn't bring her out."

Davon also felt uncomfortable in his heart.

But that girl really didn't want to live. No one but Davon knew what that girl had suffered.

There were many scars and wounds on her body. Most of them were burn scars caused by cigarette butts. Apart from bruises, there were also scars of being whipped and being burned by candles.

Major was simply a monster.

He could cure the girl's injuries, but he couldn't cure the girl's heart. Moreover, the baby in the girl's stomach had died. The medicine which the girl took killed the baby in her belly.

She refused to have the baby removed, so she shouldn't be able to live much longer.

Davon told Phoenix about these things in a somewhat uncomfortable manner. Phoenix was extremely depressed.

"Major died too easily. He should have suffered before he died."

"It's not an easy death. The girl drugged him and made him weak. Then she took out the scissors and made him a eunuch. This was probably the biggest blow to Major. Furthermore, the girl told Major that the baby in her belly had died. At that time, Major wanted to kill her, but unfortunately, he didn't have the strength."

When Davon mentioned this, he felt depressed.

Earlier, the girl had asked someone to give him the news that she could help kill Major. They had agreed to get the girl out after that, and the girl had also agreed. But she was lying to him. She had no intention of surviving.

The girl dismembered Major, threw him into the pot, cooked him and gave it to Jayden to eat. After Jayden took a bite, she told him the truth, causing Jayden to be furious and kill the girl on the spot.

It was said that the girl's death was tragic and unbearable.

Davon didn't tell Phoenix about these things.

Although Phoenix looked tough, she was just a kind little woman.

It was meaningless for her to know about these bloody things...

After Phoenix told Samuel about this, she saw Davon staring at her.

Chapter 1417 I Was Kidnapped to Be Here

When the plane landed in Seapolis City, Mark was already waiting, and Jason was by his side.

Nicole told Jason everything, so when Davon decided to change the time to return and deal with Major first, Mark also confessed to Jason.

Right now, William and Sally hadn't returned yet.

The matter of Country F was not over yet, so they couldn't show up to avoid causing even more chaos.

"It's landing. Is that Davon?"

Jason was a little excited.

Mark nodded and walked over quickly.

"Davon, welcome home!"

They hugged warmly.

Seeing Mark, Davon felt he was home, because Mark was like a father to him, guiding him. Without Mark, Davon would not be the person he was now.

"Uncle Mark, I'm back."

Davon's smile slightly stunned Phoenix.

She had never seen Davon smile so sincerely.

He looked handsome when he smiled.

Mark's heart finally calmed down.

"You scared me! You told me to do something back then, but I didn't expect it to be so serious and dangerous. If something happened to you, how could I face your father?"

Mark patted his shoulder hard, feeling sorry for him and blaming him.

"I'm back, right? I won't leave this time."

"That's great. Don't leave again!"

Mark's eyes were a little moist.

Jason pushed the wheelchair over.

"Davon, I'm Jason. Welcome home."

Davon knew how Jason's legs were crippled. No man from the Don family was a coward. At this moment, Davon was very glad that he was a member of the Don family.

"Uncle Jason, I've heard a lot about you."

Davon hugged Jason, his eyes turning red.

Apart from Mark, the other members of the Don family in Mark's generation were either dead or injured. They could no longer suffer any misfortune.

"Good boy."

Jason was not much older than Davon, but at this moment, his mood was extremely complicated.

"Have you met your father?"

"Not yet. When the matter with Country F is over, I will personally go pick up my father and bring him home."

This was Davon's promise.

"Good. That's good."

Jason only said "good" because he didn't know what else to say.

Davon pulled over Phoenix, who was dumbfounded at the side and smiled, "Uncle Mark, Uncle Jason, this is my wife, Inez Freeman. Please take more care of her in the future."

"Mr. Green, when did you come out? Why didn't you say anything? How is your injury? Are you alright?"

Seeing that Samuel's expression was not very good, Phoenix couldn't help but ask.

Samuel's gaze never left Nicole.

Nicole didn't care about his life. She had been back for three days, but she didn't say a single word to him. Even though he did everything he could, Nicole still ignored him.

What exactly could he do to get his wife's attention?

Samuel was speechless.

Now that he heard Phoenix's question, he only said, "I'm fine. I won't die."

He went back to his bedroom.

Phoenix knew that he was angry, but she didn't offend him. Could it be that Samuel was angry because she married Davon and became his sister-in-law?

As Phoenix thought this, she felt that her marriage was too hasty.

No!

She must tell Davon that this marriage didn't count.

As Phoenix thought this, she asked Helen to send the nutrients up and followed in.

Samuel did not lie down. He sat in a wheelchair and looked at the scenery outside. No one knew what he was thinking.

When Phoenix arrived behind him, she suddenly felt emotional.

He used to be the person she wanted to marry the most, but now that she saw him again, she didn't feel too sad anymore.

Was it because she didn't have deep feelings for Samuel? Or was she a woman of easy virtue?

Phoenix was puzzled and somewhat depressed.

"Mr. Green, can I ask you a question?"

Now that Nicole was not here, Phoenix felt that it was still okay to ask Samuel some sensitive questions. This was also the last time.

Samuel nodded.

Phoenix said embarrassedly, "Mr. Green, do you think that I am a woman of easy virtue?"

"How come?"

Samuel couldn't help but frown when he saw Phoenix's shilly-shally expression.

Chapter 1419 Tim, You're Dead!

Well, Phoenix did hit the nail on the head.

Samuel put himself in Nicole's place and pondered what he would do if Nicole did the same thing as he did.

He suddenly felt twitchy and almost couldn't breathe, with his stomach in knots.

If Nicole sacrificed her life to save him without his knowledge, he would plumb the depths of despair. Besides, he would blame himself and feel guilty for the rest of his life, and might even die in depression.

He finally understood what Nicole was mad about.

When they got married, they had said that they would share weal and woe. However, he left her out of his plan when danger really came. Although he did it for her good, this put her in an awkward place.

He always thought that sacrificing his life for his beloved was a great thing and should be proud of. This showed how much he loved her. But now he realized how foolish and insulting it was to a woman like Nicole.

This was a sign that he didn't trust her. He forced her to abandon him and endure mental suffering she shouldn't have borne. Thus, it was reasonable for her to get angry.

Samuel was silent.

Phoenix knew he had figured it out.

She whispered, "Women are different from each other. Some are weak and depend on men, while others are tough and work hard to keep pace with their lovers to weather the storms together. Mr. Green, you know your wife. If she only wants you to do things for her, there will be no twists and turns in your relationship."

"I know, but how should I ask for her forgiveness?"

Samuel humbly asked for advice.

Phoenix shook her head and said, "It's not easy. Once one gets hurt, it'll be difficult to get over it. Nicole is devoted to you, so she won't leave you. However, she might need a long time to recover from the pain."

"How long?"

"I don't know. Maybe a week or a month. Or maybe a year or two. Anyway, she will be fine in the end. You can rest assured."

Phoenix patted Samuel's shoulder as a comfort.

Samuel was depressed.

He almost couldn't bear it for a day, yet he had to endure for a month or even a year?

Was Phoenix joking?

"Davon is good at developing strategy and tactics. I will recommend a cadre to the military for a peacekeeping mission later. Davon is the ideal candidate for the task."

Samuel said calmly, and Phoenix got anxious.

"Mr. Green, don't do this. I just married Davon. We haven't taken our marriage leave yet."

"Soldiers don't have marriage leave. I'm recovering from an injury now, so I can just leave my work to Davon. The higher-ups won't object."

"Mr. Green!"

Phoenix raised her voice.

"Mr. Green, you can't do this. Nicole doesn't talk to you, but it's not my fault. Why do you punish me?"

"Well, I'm a petty person. Now I'm upset, but you actually show how close you're to Davon. It makes me feel worse."

Samuel said in a flat tone.

Phoenix felt aggrieved.

She didn't show off her relationship with Davon.

Miguel was slightly stunned, and he smiled at Samuel politely and said, "Hello, Mr. Green."

Samuel wanted to tease him, but Miguel smiled and said hello to him. If he were to lose his temper for no reason, he would look vulgar.

He could only suppress the anger in his heart and nodded coldly.

Tim smiled and said, "Samuel, what do you want for lunch? It's my treat."

"Eat you."

Samuel glared at him fiercely, then turned around and went back to his room in wheelchair.

"Holy shit. Eat me? I'm not a woman. Was he provoked?"

As Tim spoke, he was pulled by Evelyn.

She now fully understood why Tim would suffer a loss in front of Samuel. He was risking his neck.

"Nicole, we have things to do at noon. Miguel's schedule is pretty full. We won't eat here."

"What are the things?"

Tim was a little depressed, but he was dragged out by Evelyn. She didn't even forget to say to Miguel, "Don't you have a business meal at noon?"

"Yep."

Miguel nodded, smiled at Nicole, and said goodbye.

They came and went in a hurry, but Nicole was somewhat depressed.

Samuel didn't show him respect.

This was the first time Nicole stepped into the master bedroom after Samuel's operation. She was so excited that even though she almost died of jealous just now, she smiled.

"Nicole, you're back?"

"What do you mean? Do you dislike the people and things I like? If so, I'll move out. I just happened to hear that Grandpa has gone to the Capital City. I'll stay at Grandpa's house for a few days."

After saying that, Nicole turned around and left.

Samuel's heart skipped a beat and he quickly grabbed her hand.

"What exactly do you want me to do to forgive me? I admit that I wasn't considerate enough. I didn't care about your feelings. I was a little selfish, but we're a couple. We survived a great calamity. Do you have to mess with me?"

Samuel couldn't stand it anymore.

However, Nicole looked at him coldly and said, "Do you think I'm messing with you?"

"I don't. I said the wrong thing. Nicole, listen to me."

"I don't want to hear you. If you think I'm messing with you, then don't bother with me. Or you can just decide on your own. You don't have to discuss it with me. Anyway, you're Mr. Green, and I'm just your wife."

After saying that, Nicole shook Samuel off.

Samuel knew that she was pissed off, but he couldn't help but feel aggrieved. Now that he heard Nicole say this, he couldn't hold back any longer.

"What decision? What are you trying to say? You won't stop, will you? It's been days! You don't care about me. I'm your husband, and I'm seriously ill. Do you think it's fair to me? Nicole, your husband is seriously injured in bed while you're obsessed with a pretty boy, yet you have the reason to accuse me?"
