Chapter 1431 I Don't Want to See You Now

"I can bid on my own. Why would I lend the money to you?"

Samuel rolled his eyes at Tim.

Tim said with a smiley face, "With such a big business, you won't care about small profits. Hurry up, let me go back and run it. Then I can participate in the bidding."

Samuel really didn't care about this land. If the Louis Group had not been experiencing dismal sales recently, he wouldn't have told Tim about this news.

This piece of land was useless for the time being, but once the government made plans next year, the Louis Group would make a profit no matter what they used the land for.

Although Tim was the son-in-law of the Mason family, if the Louis family was supported by the Manson family, Tim wouldn't be able to stand it according to his personality. Samuel had known Tim for so many years, so he knew about it of course.

But it would be different if he lent Tim money.

At most, it was a friend's kindness.

So Samuel wrote him a check.

"Go to the bank and cash it yourself. However, you couldn't deal with this land for the time being. Your money will be held up this year. Think about it carefully."

Tim waved his hand and said, "If you didn't tell me this news, the Louis Group may close next year. I have thought about it."

"What happened to the Louis Group?"

Samuel believed in Tim's business skills, but the stock prices of the Louis Group were indeed unstable during this period.

Tim's face was stilted.

"No big deal. A few shareholders are making trouble. It is an internal dispute. I can handle it."

"If you need help, just say it. I would manage to help you, especially with money. If you need money, tell me at any time."

"I see. I will if I need it. Thank you."

Tim put away the check. "Don't tell Nicole and Evelyn. I can handle it myself. It's just a few clowns. However, if you are idle recently, you can help take the shares of the Louis Group."

Samuel immediately understood what was going on.

"Are you planning to expel all the shareholders of the Louis Group?"

"Since they don't want me as the chairman, why do I keep them? You said that you have a lot of money. Since you support me, why would I keep these annoying bastards? Why don't I take back all the shares with your help? Then I can do everything at will."

Tim was resolute in big issues.

Samuel nodded.

"Alright. But aren't you afraid that I'll take the shares of the Louis Group for myself?"

"If you have no shame, fine by me. At worst, Evelyn and I can move to your place. You can run the Louis Group for me. I will be all happy and relaxed."

Tim said nonchalantly, but Samuel knew that Tim would not ask him to do it if Tim didn't completely trust him.

"Go to the Sawyer's." Phoenix said.

Lynde was stupefied by her words.

"Princess, you can't go there. It's in a mess now. They are about to revolt. King is sending troops to suppress them. Perhaps the entire Sawyer family would be the dead meat."

What Lynde said frightened Phoenix.

"The whole family?"

How come?

King was going to kill the entire family?

Phoenix became worried about Davon who had returned.

"Go to the Sawyer's!"

"Princess"

"Don't you understand what I said?"

Phoenix was somewhat angry.

Lynde understood and didn't stop her anymore. Also, he fetched some guards to protect Phoenix.

Phoenix was thinking.

She was away for several days.

How come Country F be like this?

"What is Jayden doing?"

If it was because Jayden asked Eason to meet him, then why didn't Jayden help when the family was in danger?

She guessed there was something wrong.

Lynde said, "Prince Jayden fell ill ever since then. Many doctors went to his house, but he didn't get better. It's said that his illness came from anger."

"Bullshit!"

Lynde was a little surprised about her response, but he didn't hear the swear.

Phoenix thought it might be Jayden's scheme. He attempted to kill the whole Sawyer family with a borrowed sword.

The Sawyer family was important who could be either a friend or a powerful enemy. Therefore, if Jayden failed to draw the family over to his side, he would kill them through the king's hand.

"Davon!"

Phoenix was heartbroken.

Was he crazy?

Didn't he know that he was thought dead in Country F? How could he come out?

A smile spread over the handsome face. He said, "As long as I am with you, no one can hurt you."

He spoke in a low voice, so only Phoenix could hear it. Memories suddenly came crowding into her mind.

Davon rolled out of the battlefield where flames raged around with Phoenix tightly in his arms. He said, "As long as I am with you, no one can hurt you."

At that time, she was fine, but Davon was covered in bruises.

Back then, she was eighteen, and he was in his twenties.

In those days, Davon was thin and weak and looked pale. Although he was physically delicate, he had dared to save her again and again.

Phoenix had a bad headache. The fragments of memories that she had forgotten were pieced together.

They had known each other a long time ago.

They used to be so close.

Phoenix smelt the blood of him. She burst into tears.

"Stupid."

"Don't cry."

Davon wiped her tears. A pocket pistol slid down from his sleeve. He aimed at the temple of the guard captain.

The captain was killed by a single shot from the pistol with a silencer.

The other guards did not know what to do when they found their leader dead.

At this moment, Kim returned.

When he saw that Davon's back was injured and Phoenix was crying hard, his eyes turned red with rage.

"I'll kill you bastards!"

He went mad and fired shots at the guards.

They said the Sawyers had rebelled.

So what if he did rebel?

Davon heard the gunshot. He instantly looked back and frowned when he saw Kim was going wild.

"Damn it!"

Davon became worried, and so did Kim.

"What?"

Phoenix didn't know what happened, then Kim said, "The people outside blew up the house. I didn't think about that when I dug the secret passage. So once the house exploded, the secret passage below would probably be blocked, which means we're trapped here."

There was no way out and no food. What's worse, Davon was injured. If they couldn't get out, they would die here. Moreover, Phoenix knew that as long as they went out now, there were many people outside waiting for them with guns and nets.

'What should they do?'

Davon's face was getting paler and Phoenix was very anxious.

"I'm going out! I don't believe that Leo dares to kill me in front of everyone! As long as he doesn't kill me, I will have my way to get you out."

She was about to stand up when Davon stopped her.

"It's useless. If he really cares, I wouldn't be injured."

He would not allow Phoenix to go out and die anyway.

Phoenix felt heartbroken while looking at Davon.

"We need to do something with your wound. Not here."

She meant that she had to give it a try anyway.

With Phoenix's words, Davon was very happy.

"Wait a moment. I'm fine. You can simply deal with my wound now. I'll teach you how."

Davon taught Phoenix to deal with the wound.

Phoenix did as he told.

Because of the collapse, they could hear the voices above clearly. So they talked in a low voice in case bringing soldiers here.

They could hear the sounds of footsteps coming from above one after another. It seemed that there were a lot of people here.

Phoenix did not believe that the soldiers went back without telling Leo that she was also here. But Leo still sent people here, and even ruthlessly exploded this place. He never cared about her life. Although she no longer had any hope for this man, Phoenix still felt heartbroken.

This meant that she had no home or family here.

Only the people who had the same experience could understand the feeling of not being loved by their parents. They felt hollow inside even with money and power.

Davon hugged Phoenix and whispered, "I'm tired. Let me lean on you for a while."

Phoenix knew that Davon had done it on purpose. Maybe he had noticed her sadness and tried to divert her attention.

Besides Samuel, Davon was the only one who would treat her well unconditionally.

She was pretty lucky.

Phoenix was stuck in her memories. She remembered things that happened in her youth, which had become her invaluable assets. She would reminisce old days once in a while.

A soldier's hard life may make a soldier regret enrolling himself, but only for some time, while not being a soldier would be a lifetime regret. She was glad that she met Samuel and that she had been a soldier.

Even now, the faces of those brothers who lived and died together with her were vivid in her memories.

As Phoenix spoke, she discovered that Davon's hand stopped moving. She thought that he stopped because he got tired of playing with her fingers. She thought he was listening to her now. Although her throat was as dry as bone, she continued.

Davon was leaning against Phoenix. Suddenly, Phoenix felt his body temperature was a little high.

Phoenix came back to earth. She touched Davon's forehead. It was very hot.

"Davon! Davon!"

Phoenix shouted in a low voice, but Davon gave her no response.

Kim, on the other hand, opened his eyes.

"What happened to Davon?"

"He has a fever."

Phoenix blamed herself.

She was by his side, yet she didn't know when he had a fever and when he fainted. She was too careless.

Davon was so nice to her. She didn't deserve it!

Phoenix was very sad.

"No, we can't delay. Davon will die if we do nothing."

Phoenix was firm.

Kim knew what she was going to do, so he stopped her. And he was the first one to do that.

"Phoenix, you mean a lot to Davon. He will cling to life as long as you're here. If something happens to you, it will destroy Davon. Perhaps you don't know what Davon has done for you all these years, but I dare say that you are more important than Davon's life in his heart. So please take good care of yourself for his sake. I'll take care of this."

Kim was very serious. Hearing his words, Phoenix felt terrible.

In their relationship, she took advantage of Davon. Davon had done so much for her, and she could never pay him back. Previously, Phoenix didn't care about that. Because she knew she had a lifetime to repay him.

But now that Davon's life was in danger, and she was a little scared.

"Kim, you can't go. I can't let you take risks. I am important to Davon. You are also important to him. Listen to me, I know how to avoid them."

"No."

Kim firmly disagreed.

They had different opinions.

At this moment, the sound of gunfire suddenly came from outside.

"Some are coming."

Phoenix and Kim were both stunned.

Based on the intensity of the gunfire, they concluded that quite a few people were approaching them.

Who were they?

Jayden's men?

Phoenix pondered for a moment. Then she put Davon into Kim's arms and whispered, "Take good care of him."

"Phoenix, don't."

"Shut up!"

In fact, Phoenix did not care who came to power in Country F, as long as it was not Leo. Now that Zayn decided to replace Leo's position, she would help him.

"Zayn, what do you want to do? I still have some people to help you."

Zayn looked at Phoenix with mixing feelings.

He once wanted to use Phoenix's power to clear away his obstacles. But now her identity changed.

She was someone Davon cared about.

Zayn finally refused to ask for her help, even though he grew up in the royal family and knew that Phoenix was able to help him control the whole situation more quickly.

"You stay here and take care of him."

Zayn frowned when he saw Davon's pale face.

Davon shouldn't be like this.

He should be a remarkable person who was admired by everyone, instead of lying there weakly and needing other people's help.

Suddenly, Zayn felt that he didn't want to see Davon being fragile.

Seeing Zayn's mixed emotions, Phoenix whispered, "Kim will take care of him. The Sawyers are also here. They will..."

"You're different from them. I think the person he wants to see the most is you. So you stay here. This is my private residence. Have your people protect here. Once I'm going to force Leo to abdicate, I might take all the troops with me and can't protect you."

Phoenix paused for a while after hearing Zayn's words. She knew that Zayn just didn't want her to take risks.

"Alright. Tell me at any time if you need my help. I've already sent people to gather evidence that Jayden framed the Sawyer family. If found guilty, he will lose all standing and reputation in Country F. Although the Sawyer family is not large, ordinary people can't stand that the entire family is killed for no reason. Such a cruel person doesn't deserve to have a high position."

Zayn nodded after hearing Phoenix's words.

"Okay. I'll deal with his affairs. Your people can keep me posted."

"Alright."

They exchanged messages.

Then Zayn looked at Davon and whispered, "Is he alright?"

"Of course."

Zayn was relieved because Phoenix said in a firm tone of voice.

"Take good care of him. I'm leaving."

Zayn felt at ease when he knew that Davon was fine.

Seeing that Zayn was about to leave, Kim quickly stepped forward and said, "Mr. Freeman."

"What?"

Zayn knew that Kim was Davon's assistant and Eason's son. He abandoned his identity as the next head of the Sawyer family and became Davon's assistant for so many years, which made Zayn feel that it was worth making friends with him.

Moreover, the ties of brotherhood between Kim and Davon were much closer than Zayn and Davon, even though Zayn was Davon's brother.

Of course, Zayn felt jealous. He hadn't been alone since he was young, and his boyfriend, Pedro, passed away early. So Zayn looked at Kim with very mixing feelings.

"How is he, doctor?"

Phoenix had never felt so worried. It was as if someone was strangling her, and she couldn't breathe.

She finally understood the concern Davon had toward her. She felt so bad even if she just had suffered it for the first time. But Davon had gone through similar situations for times as he had been caring about her for so many years.

She hadn't been aware of his deep love. What a pity!

The doctor glanced at Phoenix and whispered, "He is fine. But be careful about the postoperative infection in the following days. As a doctor, he knows it. Princess Inez, you just need to get someone to take good care of him."

Everyone in the country knew that the assistant of Mr. Jarrod had taken away Phoenix. Then it was said that he had died, but now he was right here. So the doctor naturally knew who he was.

"Well, Princess Inez, I'm free these days. So I can stay and take care of him."

The doctor knew exactly how cruel life in the court could be. Since he had known some secrets, he had to stay until this court campaign came to an end for the sake of his family.

Phoenix knew what he meant. She nodded, "OK. I will get someone to protect your family."

"Thank you, Princess Inez."

He knew that this was the best result for him.

Phoenix got someone to bring his family over, but he did not say anything else.

Davon was pushed into the ward. Zayn had prepared everything inside, which showed that he cared about Davon.

That was awkward.

Phoenix looked at Davon, who was lying on the bed, unconscious. She felt sorry for him.

Davon wasn't that sturdy type, but thin. Judging from his figure, no one would believe that he was a skilled soldier. But after his top was taken off, Phoenix saw his muscle and blushed.

Even though she remembered everything, she didn't expect Davon was so hot. How seductive he was!

Phoenix patted her face and walked over.

Davon didn't wake up.

Phoenix touched his forehead and found that he was at normal temperature. She just sat by the bed, waiting for Davon to wake up.

Phoenix had a lot of things to do, but she didn't want to think about them. Since Zayn said she could just put it aside, it meant that he was completely prepared. Her men would tell her what Jayden had gotten. So no matter what happened, it didn't matter to her.

As her loved one was right in front of her, this was her home.

Phoenix wiped him from time to time. Not knowing when Davon would wake up, she just said to herself, "I don't have a good life, but I only served few people since childhood. And you are one of them. Lucky guy, when you wake up, we have to make everything clear."

"After what you've done for me, you think you're great, don't you? No! You can't take those I don't know into account. It occurs to me that you didn't even ask me out before you made me a married woman. How could you do that?"

Phoenix was so preoccupied with her thought that she did not notice that Davon had opened his eyes and was smiling at her.

"In addition, your identity is so awkward. What can I do? You are Zayn's brother. What should Zayn and I address you if we get married? You call him brother-in-law? Or should he call me sister-in-law? What a difficult question! And how about Mr. Green? You are Nicole's cousin, and she is his wife, which means I am supposed to call her sister-in-law. But if we get married, she has to call me sister-in-law. What a mess! Forget it. It will be better if I don't marry you."

"Oh..."

Phoenix was caught off guard and her tongue was almost bitten. But Davon didn't allow her to resist but kissed her to dizzy.

By the time she reacted, the kiss was over.

Phoenix pushed him away, "You know you're sick, do you? I don't think you're a qualified doctor!"

After she finished speaking, she left angrily. But it looked like she was escaping from him.

Looking at her back, Davon smirked.

What did he do?

It was just a French kiss. It was nothing.

Davon tried to move but had to stop after he felt the pain.

After coming out of the room, Phoenix breathed heavily.

In just a few days, Davon had kissed her several times. Although they were married, she still couldn't take it very well.

Her lips hurt, and maybe they were swollen.

That barbaric soldier!

Phoenix cursed darkly and quickly returned to her room. She was right. They were swollen.

Shameless man!

Phoenix cursed him aloud.

She couldn't go out like this.

Davon was in a good mood. He called Mark and Emory to explain the situation and ask for leave.

"Why? Davon, what are you doing?"

Mark was stunned.

Davon said in a smiling tone, "Uncle Mark, I'm injured."

"Is it serious? Come back. I'll send you back to rest."

Mark did not know about his injury in the beginning, and now he was very nervous.

Davon was somewhat stunned. He stopped Mark, "Inez is here."

"But is there any connection between her and your injury? Send me the location!"

This depressed Davon.

He finally knew why Uncle Mark was still single.

Mark couldn't understand...

How upset Davon was!

"Uncle Mark, stop worrying about me. I have my lovely wife here to take care of me. Perhaps you should pay more attention to girls around you if you're free."

Davon tried his best.

Suddenly, Cara was surrounded by a cold aura. She didn't dare to move.

They had never been so intimate. Laurence even had never taken a real look at her. Even if she was involved in the incident that Adela's parents treated him, there was no bodily contact between them. What was going on?

Cara was panicked. She subconsciously turned her head to find out whether it was Laurence.

Just as she was about to move, she heard Laurence whispered, "Don't move. I feel uncomfortable."

Cara immediately didn't dare move.

"Do you want a blanket?"

Cara wanted to say that his comfort had nothing to do with her. However, what she spoke out was different.

"Alright."

Laurence immediately raised his head and made a way for Cara.

It was obvious that he wanted Cara to get him a blanket.

Cara was surprised.

Since Nicole and Samuel went on a trip, Laurence had come here for special training. She worried about him. She also wanted to learn some skills to protect herself. So she followed him.

It had been a long time since she followed Laurence to the island. However, he behaved as if she didn't exist. They didn't have any interaction other than greeting.

Cara even felt that there might be no chance between her and Laurence. So she was in sorrow for several nights. She had finally accepted the fact that Laurence was just one of her colleagues. But he was so close to her. What was going on?

Looking at Laurence's puzzled expression, Cara hurriedly went out and brought a blanket for him.

"Go in."

Laurence said indifferently. Although it was not an order, Cara believed that she should execute it.

She went in before Laurence. In the next moment, Laurence put his head on her shoulder again.

Cara was frozen. Before she could think of anything, a blanket had completely wrapped them together.

She was so frightened that she almost jumped up. However, Laurence said indifferently, "Don't move. It will take more than an hour to go back. I want to sleep."

"OK."

Cara nodded as if she was wronged. Then she really didn't dare to move.

Laurence smiled slightly and closed his eyes. He could smell Cara's scent.

Unknowingly, he fell asleep.

Hearing Laurence's even breath, Cara calmed herself down.

She turned her head to look at Laurence. The special training had not changed him. His face was even smoother than a woman's and his blue hair was eye-catching.

Cara had never dreamed about such a man resting on her shoulder.

She knew that Laurence loved someone else and that he might not love her for the rest of her life. But she was satisfied with such a short time.

Cara smiled softly. Then she took a deep and greedy breath as if she could suck in the cold aura from Laurence.

Cara didn't even know how she managed to tie Laurence's belt on. She felt her face was burning hot, but that cold aura was still rippling around her.

Laurence didn't rush her but left her trembling to finish her job. Then, he whispered, "Are you hungry?"
"No."

Cara was so embarrassed that she didn't care if she was hungry.

She hurriedly left her seat and sat down at a distance from Laurence. Only then did she feel much better.

Laurence looked at her and pursed his lips, and smiled.

"Captain Kent, we're almost there and going to land. Please stay where you are if not necessary."

The pilot pretended not to have seen the scene just now, but he was shocked.

He thought, 'Captain Kent had always been indifferent and inaccessible. However, he seemed to treat Miss Clint well. Did these two treat me like an invisible person just now?'

'Miss Clint seemed very gentle. But she had the guts to untie Captain Kent's belt. What a brave girl.'

A sense of embarrassment stroke Cara again.

She almost forgot that there were other people on the plane. Didn't they see the embarrassing scene?

She thought that she was done.

And her reputation would be totally ruined.

Laurence smiled when seeing Cara was on the verge of tears but then he turned to look outside.

They were arriving in Seapolis City.

His eyes were filled with mixed feelings, but he immediately restrained them all.

He didn't say more to Cara.

After the plane landed in Seapolis City, Cara ran off the plane without waiting for Laurence, nor did he say goodbye to him. She called a taxi and ran away.

Seeing her fleeing helter-skelter, Laurence couldn't help but smile again.

The pilot saw it all clearly. Captain Kent laughed more times today than ever before.

"Captain Kent, you and Miss Clint..."

Before he could finish his sentence, Laurence gave him a knife-like gaze. The pilot was so scared that he quickly shut his mouth.

Laurence got off the plane with his luggage.

Seeing Laurence, Ernesto walked towards him, gently punched his shoulder, and said, "You're finally back. Are you sure you went for special training? Why didn't you get that suntan?"

"I was born so. Well, are you jealous?"

Laurence dodged Ernesto's hand and got into the car.

Ernesto was a little depressed by Laurence's joke.

He thought, 'He had fair skin, but so what?'

"What a gigolo."

He got into the car dejectedly. He had to be Laurence's driver.

"What's wrong with Cara? I saw her got off the plane and ran away. I'm telling you, there aren't many foolish women like Cara in this world. Cherish her."

"You're the foolish one."

Laurence's words instantly stunned Ernesto.
