Chapter 1441 She Must Be Insane

Nicole suddenly didn't want to say a word to Laurence.

"Well, nothing special. I just want you to pay attention to the situation in Country F. Although we can't deal with it, I should know its situation at least. If you have nothing else important recently, you'd better go back to Night Elf Empire to rectify it. Don't only focus on increasing your strength and try to increase the overall strength of Night Elf Empire. You were in a bad mood a few days ago, so you should take a vacation to relax. From now on, come back and do your business."

When Laurence heard this, he remembered what the pilot had told him and couldn't help but frown.

"Mrs. Green, I heard that you had invoked the old unit of Night Elf Empire when you were in trouble in the border town."

"Well, what's your opinion about it?"

Nicole knew that Laurence was not interrogating her. She understood Laurence. He must have an opinion about it before raising this question. There was no such thing as jealousy.

Laurence pondered for a moment and said, "I want to recruit Finn and the old forces behind his back. It was unfair to the others to dismiss them because of Finn's personally mistake."

"You can handle it. You are the captain of Night Elf Empire. I'll leave all the matters related to Night Elf Empire to you. You've seen my situation. I have no energy and mood to care about it. I believe you can do it."

Nicole touched her belly and a maternal aura appeared on her face.

Laurence said indifferently, "You don't care about Night Elf Empire. But you care about matchmaking."

Nicole was surprised about his words.

In the past, Laurence lived for a promise. He was a walking dead with no light in his eyes. But currently, Laurence was in high spirit. Although he was still calm and reserved, the light in his eyes could not be covered.

Who gave him a new life?

Cara?

Nicole instantly understood when she remembered the depressed Cara.

"How do you think about Cara?"

"It is a private affair and is not in the scope of business. Mrs. Green, if there is no other business, I would like to go. You are in poor health. Take good care of yourself. I will consider what I should report to you."

Laurence turned around and left.

Nicole was depressed.

"Hey, I'm your owner. But you're so tough to me. How dare you!"

"I believe that Mr. Green will forgive me."

Laurence said with a smile, which made Nicole can't believe her eyes.

The man knew how to smile.

It seemed that he was relieved from his past.

However, Cara said that they hadn't talked much. So, Laurence needed to be stimulated by external forces. Since she was bored, it would be a good idea to introduce someone to Cara.

Thinking of this, Nicole immediately laughed.

"Why are you laughing so happily?"

Samuel drove the wheelchair in and asked when he saw Nicole's brilliant smile.

"I am going to arrange a matchmaking for Cara."

As soon as Nicole said this, Samuel was shocked.

Cara was stunned.

Laurence was calculating the time, wasn't he? Or was he waiting outside to get his clothes?

No, something was wrong.

Didn't he walk away?

Cara's expression was extremely complicated. Laurence smiled unnoticeably.

"What? You can't bear to give it to me?"

"No. Go find a servant to do this for you. I'm not your servant and not responsible for washing your clothes."

Cara hurriedly stuffed Laurence's clothes into his embrace. She was about to close the door when she found that Laurence's foot was stuck in her door.

She frowned slightly.

"What are you doing?"

"If you don't wash it for me, will you wish clothes for someone else?"

His clear voice sounded indifferent as usual, but it made Cara a little angry.

"No one will wash it for you. Scram!"

She gave Laurence a push. But she found that Laurence seemed to be fixed there, not moving at all.

"I'm closing the door. If you don't leave, don't blame me for hurting your foot."

At this moment, Cara was like an angry cat. She was about to burst into rage, but Laurence didn't care.

"I didn't stop you from closing the door."

His expression showed that he was certain that Cara was reluctant to hurt him.

Stimulated by his gaze, Cara pushed the door up with anger but stopped when she felt his resistance.

"What exactly are you doing?"

Cara was on the verge of going crazy.

Laurence said indifferently, "There are a few female students in the Night Elf Empire. Come and help guide their movements."

"I'm not from the Night Elf Empire. Why should I do that? Besides, how can I play tricks before you people from the Night Elf Empire?"

Cara felt that Laurence was here to find her fault.

However, Laurence said very seriously, "Not many people can train with me on the island for such a long time. I am certain you are capable of this. If it's because of your position, I'll talk to Mrs. Green. I assure you that you will be the instructor of the Night Elf Empire."

"Don't tell Mrs. Green. I will go with you."

When Cara heard that Laurence was going to find Nicole, she hesitated.

Nicole was so kind to her. It was an easy job for her to guide the female students. She would be too embarrassed if Laurence bothered Nicole for giving her an order for such a small matter.

However, Cara muttered, "It was simpler when you were training me on the island. Didn't you say that there was no difference between men and women in training? Why do you talk about averting suspicion now?"

Laurence's eyes turned a little cold. The invisible majesty instantly frightened Cara so much that she didn't dare to speak casually anymore.

She reluctantly followed Laurence to the Night Elf Empire Training Base.

Not everyone could come in here.

When everyone saw Laurence bring in a young girl, they couldn't help but be stunned. The man was rather interested, but the woman had a trace of hostility.

"Laurence!"

Frustrated she was, Cara wanted to bite his head off.

"Hurry up and start training," Laurence said as if nothing happened.

"You are their captain."

"People will talk if I get too intimated with a group of young females."

Laurence left directly, leaving Cara stood there frozen in shock.

What did he mean by "too intimidated"?

Why did he ask her to wash his underwear? How could people get more intimate than that?

Cara wanted to drag him back for some explaining, yet she had to suck it up and follow his order with all eyes on her.

As the remaining female students watched Laurence and Cara interacting, they had reached some sort of conclusion simultaneously. Yareli was expelled for disrespecting Cara. There was no way they would throw their future away at a moment of jealousy like Yareli after working so hard to enter the Night Elf Empire.

"Miss Clint, start our training, please. We want to learn about the move you just made. It seems like a difficult move to pull off."

As one of the female students spoke up, the others naturally followed suit.

Being put on the spot, Cara had no choice but to train them.

An amused smile crept across Laurence's lips as he observed the girls' training session from afar.

Ernesto walked in at the moment. Following Laurence's line of sight, he was perplexed at the sight of Cara.

"What is Miss Clint doing here?"

"I invited her. Is there a problem?"

Laurence said indifferently, yet Ernesto detected a hint of hostility.

He didn't say something out of the line, did he?

"Nothing. Mrs. Green asked me to bring over the photo of the man who would have a blind date with Miss Clint tomorrow and ask about her opinion. If she agrees, Mrs. Green will arrange it."

Ernesto replied without thinking.

Laurence's eyes darkened.

A blind date?

Was Cara actually going on a blind date?

"Leave it to me. She is currently training the female students."

Laurence extended his hand towards Ernesto.

Ernesto was slightly stunned.

"Since when did you two get along so well? And why is Cara training the female students? Isn't that your responsibility?"

"You talk too much."

Laurence grabbed the photo from Ernesto's hand and looked at it.

The man in the photo was quite polished, wearing a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles and looking refined.

Chapter 1444 What a Narrow-Minded Man

Looking at Cara's angry expression, Laurence felt a little uncomfortable.

Why did she want to go so much?

However, Laurence said faintly, "I told you, and I gave you all the photos. Everyone in the Night Elf Empire saw them."

"Nonsense."

Cara didn't remember this at all.

Laurence looked at Cara with a sharp look. And this made Cara suddenly feel a little timid.

Did he really tell her?

She frowned and thought from the time Laurence came back to that she fainted. It seemed that Laurence said something but she didn't hear it clearly.

Cara asked with some uncertainty, "Did you speak to me after I finish the ten kilometers weight-bearing running?"

This time, Laurence didn't want to say anything. Instead, he took out his phone and played a recording to Cara.

"Go back and take a shower and have a good rest. By the way, Mrs. Green told me to give it to you. And come to Blue Mountain Cafe at 7:30 tomorrow."

Laurence's voice came from the phone.

Cara immediately felt a little embarrassed.

Alright, Laurence indeed told her.

It was all her fault that she didn't hear this before she fainted.

She did see Laurence's mouth moved, but she didn't know what he said.

"I'm sorry."

Cara hurriedly apologized.

Laurence snorted coldly and grabbed his phone then left. Cara felt very uncomfortable.

Could he be a little better with her?

However, Cara was also a little depressed. Why did she sleep so soundly?

Was she really tired?

Cara was puzzled, but she didn't dare to delay and ran to Nicole's room.

Samuel was feeding Nicole a swallow nest soup when Cara entered without knocking on the door. Seeing this scene, Cara felt a little embarrassed.

"Sorry, Mr. Green."

"Have you lost your manners?"

Samuel frowned slightly. If it weren't for the good relationship between Cara and Nicole, he would have been angry.

Cara had changed a lot and became reckless.

Cara's embarrassment, Nicole immediately drank all of the soup. Then, she gave the bowl to Samuel and said disdainfully, "Go away. We'll have

Cara was pushed hard and almost fell onto the floor, but was held in time by the waiter.

She turned around and looked at Cynthia, a little annoyed, and then she heard Cynthia say, "What are you looking at? If you don't want to pay for me, I'll call Laurence. I'm sure he will take good care of me."

Hearing this, Cara remembered everything that Laurence had been through. She seemed to once again see Laurence standing in the yard and being whipped by Cynthia.

Laurence had an obligation to raise them because of Adela.

Thinking of this, Cara felt so uncomfortable. She didn't want Laurence to know Cynthia's existence, and to disturb him, so she took a deep breath and followed the waiter to pay the bill.

"What a bitch! Only this way can make you listen to me, right?"

Cynthia swore with a frown on her face.

"How could a mean woman like you have such a kind daughter-in-law? It's a misfortune for her."

"What are you talking about? It's none of your business! Give me my dress."

Cynthia took her dress over.

She packed her dress directly without giving Cara a second look.

After Cara paid the bill, there was only some change left on the card.

She let out a sigh and put the bank card back in her purse. Then she heard Cynthia say, "I have nowhere to stay. Tell Laurence to arrange a place for me, or he can pay for my stay in a hotel."

"Which hotel?"

"Blue Sky Grand Hotel."

Cynthia's words suddenly made Cara frown.

Blue Sky Grand Hotel was a five-star hotel. It was easy for her to say since she was not the one to pay.

"Mrs. Miller, Laurence is not rich. He barely earns much money a month. You have taken his house, what else do you want to take now? Even if Laurence owes Adela, you have no right to torture him like this."

Cara really couldn't stand Cynthia's behavior.

Moreover, Cara knew how Cynthia left Seapolis City back then. She could just give Nicole a call and ask Mr. Green a favor to have Cynthia thrown out of town again.

As long as Laurence didn't know, there was nothing Cynthia could do about it.

Laurence owed Cynthia, but she did not.

Cynthia sneered and said, "I torture him? What about he asked Samuel and Nicole to chase me out of Seapolis City? He promised my daughter that he would take care of me, so what? It's been less than a year since my daughter passed away, and now you want to break your promise? It's fine if you don't let me stay in a hotel. Give me a million and I'll leave. I promise I will never show up again."

Cynthia was shocked by Laurence's resolute attitude. Just as she was about to make an unreasonable scene again, Laurence said, "By the way, I'm working for the Green family. If you make things difficult for Cara, I can tell the Green family to deal with the matter. I don't think I'll protect you then. I only promised to take care of you, but I didn't promise to clean up the mess you left behind."

Hearing this, Cynthia felt depressed.

Cynthia knew that Samuel was powerful. She still remembered the unlucky experience last time, so she did not dare to provoke the Green family. Furthermore, Dr. Miller didn't know that she sneaked out. If he knew that she caused trouble again, it was hard to imagine what he would say.

Thinking of this, Cynthia said, "I'm just buying clothes. Nothing else."

"It'd better be."

With that, Laurence grabbed Cara's hand and left the store.

Just now, Cara could barely breathe with her head being pressed by Laurence. At that time, she smelled the dry and clean aura of his body and heard the strong beating of his heart. Now she left under his protection. Cara's heart was beating rather fast.

After leaving the mall, Laurence let Cara get in the car. Then, he drove back to the Green's without a word.

Reaching the Green's, Laurence got out of the car and ignored Cara. He seemed to be a bit angry.

Cara was somewhat puzzled.

Did she provoke him?

Did his anger have anything to do with her?

Cara wanted to ask, but thinking that Laurence didn't say anything, she gave up.

Maybe she shouldn't have meddled today.

Thinking of her 100,000, Cara was heartbroken!

Cara pouted and got out of the car, and then she returned to her room. The more she thought about it, the more distressed she felt.

Was she a fool?

She actually gave the clothes worth 100,000 to someone else. If she had taken them back and sold them, she would have earned some money, wouldn't she?

She just wanted to cry.

Her savings! Her money!

Cara felt uncomfortable all over.

It was all because of Cynthia!

Since Laurence returned to his room, he had been waiting for Cara. However, she didn't come. So he went out to take a look, but Cara was not in the car.

Where was she?

Laurence's face darkened immediately.

Seeing Laurence looking for someone, the servant hurriedly said, "Captain Kent, are you looking for Miss Clint? She seems to have returned to her room."

Laurence looked even gloomier.

She went back to her room?

Wouldn't she tell him what happened today?

The more Laurence thought, the angrier he became. He called Cara at once.

Cara was still sad about losing her money. When the phone rang, she answered in an irritated tone, "Who is it?"

"Come out! I'll wait for you in the backyard."

With that, Laurence hung up the phone.

Cara was stunned.

Laurence frowned and thought for a moment. Picking up one pair of his underpants, he took another pair of underpants bought by Cara and the diarrhea medicine, walking directly to Cara's room.

At this moment, Cara's door was locked inside. She was afraid that Laurence would ask her something. However, as Laurence might not be at home now, there was no need for her to be so nervous. Only then did Cara relax, lie on the sofa and pour herself a glass of water.

When Cara was drinking water, Laurence threw two pairs of underpants at her, causing Cara to choke and cough.

"Do you think these two pairs of underpants are of the same size?"

Laurence's voice was clean and crisp.

Cara looked first into the window and thought to herself, Laurence came in through the window again.

She couldn't believe it.

"Laurence, are you a thief? Can't you use the door?"

"Don't change the subject. Answer my question."

Laurence looked at her indifferently and said word by word.

Only by then did Cara come back to her senses.

Cara flushed immediately at the sight of two pairs of underpants.

Probably she would never be able to look straight into underpants again.

"What are you doing?"

"I told you to buy it according to my size. Why did you buy me one of small size? Do you think I can wear them? Do you need me to put them on now so you can see what's wrong?"

As Laurence spoke, he was about to untie his belt. Frightened, Cara jumped onto the sofa immediately.

"Stop! No one wants to see that."

Now Cara's cheeks flushed red.

There must be something wrong with Laurence, Cara thought to herself.

Why did he suddenly become so crazy?

She was still a young girl. But he forced her to wash his underpants and asked her to buy some for him!

"Laurence, I warn you! I'm going to have blind dates. For the sake of my future husband, we should keep a distance. So from now on, you should do all these things yourself. I will not do them for you anymore. Take them away!"

Cara stammered while Laurence's eyes darkened with a fickle of disappointment.

"Who is your future husband?"

"I don't know, either. I haven't had a blind date yet. Perhaps I would attract a good man as I'm such a kind and lovely girl. Take them away and leave my room. I warn you again! If you dare to come into my room through the window again, I will..."

"Will what?"

Laurence took a step forward.

Cara was so frightened that she retreated, without realizing that she was standing on the sofa. Cara immediately missed her steps and fell over into the arms of Laurence.

"So you want me to hug you?"

"I didn't say that!"

Cara was still in shock when she heard Laurence say this. She tried to push him away, but Laurence had such great strength that she couldn't.

There was something wrong with Cynthia!

Perhaps there was something wrong with Dr. Miller, too!

Cara became nervous.

"Mrs. Green, what happened?"

Nicole wouldn't ask her to investigate Dr. Miller and his wife for no reason. Even if she wanted to avenge them for her, she would not be so serious. Cara felt a little uneasy.

Looking at Cara's worried expression, Nicole sighed, "I'm not sure yet. Check their residences, the people they connected recently, and the money transactions in Dr. Miller's account. Give me the results secretly. You could tell Laurence that I'm investigating them, but don't inform him of the results."

Nicole wasn't straightforward, but Cara understood.

"Okay."

"You look beautiful."

After Nicole arranging these things, the corner of her lips curled up slightly.

Cara suddenly felt a little shy.

"I'm not..."

"Girls should dress up. Nothing wrong with that. You're young. It's nice to wear a little makeup."

Seeing Cara's expression, Nicole thought of herself. She remembered what she was like five years ago.

She was also like this when she faced Samuel.

Because she liked him, she wanted to show him the best in her. Because she liked him, she tried her best to conceal her shortcomings.

This was how love worked.

Nicole felt that she had returned to the past. She smiled, "Love is a very beautiful thing. When people are in love, they let themselves be led by their feelings. They might fail, but at least, they had fought for it, paid for it, and had no regrets. Love is sweet like candy. It can always let people smile unconsciously. Love is also sour. People in love would worry about gains and losses because of other people or for some unknown reason. But love is just like this. Only after one had experienced it could she understand what it was like. Cara, grasp your happiness."

Cara felt that Nicole knew something. Otherwise, why did she say these words?

Laurence kissed her. Did Mrs. Green know about this?

Cara became a little shy.

"Mrs. Green, I've thought for a while. I'd rather not go on blind dates."

Nicole had expected this answer. She sensed something was going on between Cara and Laurence?

Nicole instantly wanted to have a gossip with Cara.

"Why? Did Laurence confess to you?"

Cara shook her head, a trace of loneliness flashing through her eyes.

"Then why don't you go on a blind date? Laurence is stupid. I think you should meet a guy to provoke his anger. Otherwise, he may never confess to you."

Nicole's words stunned Cara.

"Provoke his anger?"

"That's right. You love Laurence so much. And you have paid a lot. Laurence also has feelings for you. But he was too proud to admit that. He cold. But he is passionate inside."

While Nicole was gossiping, Cara recalled Laurence's kiss.

Cara told everyone to keep quiet and slid to answer in front of everyone and put it on speaker.

Cynthia's voice came.

"Cara, Laurence has a secret. Do you want to know? If you do, come to the place I tell you. Don't tell Laurence, or anyone else. Otherwise, I won't tell you. It's a secret that concerns his life and death. It's up to you to come or not."

With that, Cynthia hung up the phone.

Cara trembled slightly.

Life and death?

Really?

However, this could also be a trap.

Yareli was immediately excited at the secret of life and death bit.

"True or not, we better go and find out, right? What if it's true?"

She liked Laurence.

Laurence was like the stars in the sky, so dazzling that no one could take their eyes off him. Moreover, he looked so cool that made Yareli liked him even more. However, Laurence wasn't interested in her and even fired her from the Night Elf Empire because of something she said against Cara.

If it weren't for Laurence calling her personally this time to ask her to help Cara, she definitely wouldn't have come.

She didn't come here because she liked Cara. She just felt that she might be able to see Laurence. As long as she could see him, that was all she wanted.

Though Cara frowned deeply.

She was also worried about Laurence's health.

Yareli did not know that Laurence was an experimentee, but she knew. People like him usually had some defects or unstable factors. Now, Cynthia's words were like a time bomb to her, making her worried and uneasy.

However, the task that Nicole gave her earlier allowed her to know that Cynthia was not a simple person. At the very least, not now. That was why Nicole said Laurence was allowed to know about the investigation of Cynthia, but nothing detailed.

Was Mrs. Green protecting Laurence?

Or did she know something?

"You guys stay here. I'll go to see Mrs. Green."

As soon as Cara finished speaking, Yareli said, "Are you scared? What can an old woman do to us? I don't think you care about Laurence at all. And I don't understand why he treats you so differently."

Differently?

Cara paused for a moment.

Perhaps he did, but was this love?

At least Laurence himself didn't admit it, did he?

Perhaps it was just a bit of kindness to someone who had loved him for so long?

Cara had a weird feeling, but she looked at Yareli indifferently and said, "Remember, you're here to help, you can only do as I tell you. If not, I will punish you."

"Cara, you..."

"Mutation?"

Cara repeated it and her face was pale with fear.

"Why?"

"This is Laurence's medical report."

Nicole gave it to Cara.

She was concerned about Laurence's health condition and arranged a medical examination for him every month. Laurence agreed to her arrangement.

Now the data on his medical report had changed compared to last month, Cara was a nurse, so she could understand some of the data.

"Why does his cell separate so fast?"

"Yeah, his cell separation was fast, which means that he is dying, and his metabolism is much faster. Few experts in our country have studied this field for now, and Laurence's identity needs to be kept a secret, so I have asked Samuel to find Davon to come back. However, you know that the internal strife in Country F has become intense. We don't know whether they can come back in time. And we are not sure if Laurence will get well."

Nicole was also anxious, but anxiety didn't help.

Laurence was an experimental subject. He had been injected with all sorts of drugs when he was a fetus. People were surprised that he was born and grew up.

Dr. Miller was the person who studied Laurence. Some experiments were suspended because of Adela. Now that Adela was dead, Nicole was not sure if Dr. Miller would continue to study experiments of human genes with Laurence as his subject.

Back then, Dr. Miller was kept for Laurence, because he knew Laurence's health conditions the best. He might be Laurence's life-saver.

Therefore, even if Cynthia made trouble out of nothing, Nicole would bear with her just for Laurence.

Otherwise, with the power of her family, it was easy to kill her.

Cara was at loss, and her heart was wrenched.

She finally understood why Nicole wanted her to take over this thing.

Laurence's health condition must be a secret, so she was the most suitable person. Moreover, Mrs. Miller had a conflict with her not long ago. Even if she was with others now, people would think that it was because of the conflict, not Laurence.

Right now, Cara was a little confused.

"Mrs. Green, does Laurence know?"

Nicole had tears in her eyes.

Nicole held her hand and whispered, "I haven't told him yet. Remember what I told you? Love is sweet and bitter. A lot of things are beyond our control, but we can try to keep things in control. Cara, Laurence is my friend. I wish him a happy life, but you are also my friend. I also wish you a good life. Laurence is seriously ill. He hasn't told you his love and asked you to be his girlfriend. If you have another choice, I will help you."

Cara recognized her meaning.

Therefore, it wasn't her whim to arrange her to a blind date, nor rouse Laurence, was it?
