Chapter 1451 You Really Have the Mood

"Well, Mrs. Green, I think I may leave now."

Cara was about to run out when Nicole stopped her.

"Why the hurry? Laurence doesn't bite. Well, is there something between you two that I know not of? Like...why don't we start with the trousers story?"

Seeing Cara's face lightened by a flush, Nicole moved back to this topic playfully.

"Mrs. Green, please!"

Cara felt so embarrassed.

'I thought Laurence was the only one who knows about it except me! How could Samuel and Mrs. Green knew about it?'

'Besides, Samuel usually didn't gossip much. There is no way that he went to watch the CCTV merely for a piece of gossip!'

'But wait!'

'She was in her own room when doing the laundry?'

'Was there a surveillance camera in her room?'

Cara's face immediately turned pale with fear.

Looking at Cara, Samuel knew at once what she was thinking about. He smiled and said, "Don't worry, I didn't have your room monitored. What I saw was the footage of the laundry. I only knew that someone asked you to wash something."

Cara's face blushed again.

Laurence heard everything right outside the door, then he knocked on the door and said, "Mr. and Mrs. Green, I don't think there will be any need for the CCTV in the laundry room."

He walked in as he spoke.

Nicole was going to burst out into laughter.

"Why? We should definitely have the laundry room monitored. What if some really bad people sneak in and hide in the laundry room?"

Laurence said calmly, "Privacy is privacy."

"Privacy is only privacy because someone wants to hide something. But when you went to ask Cara to do the laundry for you, apparently you weren't hiding it from anyone. And now you call that privacy?"

Samuel pursed his lips and looked at Laurence, clearly in a good mood.

Laurence threw a glance first at Samuel and then at Nicole, who was obviously in waiting for some juicy gossips. Then he saw that Cara was about to cry and suddenly took a step forward and pulled Cara over. He said, "Yareli wants you there."

"Oh, sure, I'll be right there."

Cara fled.

"Well."

Nicole smacked her lips twice and looked at Laurence with a smile in her eyes.

Laurence said calmly, "Didn't you want to play Cupid? Since you've shot a pair of arrows, then please don't ever give me another shot."

Nicole immediately widened her eyes.

"Holy shit! I thought you had no feelings for Cara! Besides, even Cara agreed that you go to that blind date. I've already settled everything! How can you break it!"

Laurence threw Nicole a glance yet didn't say anything, but the way Nicole saw it, he was interested.

Samuel coughed and said, "You are at liberty to love whoever you want, yet you must take your job seriously."

"Sure thing."

Chapter 1452 She Never Wanted Laurence's Guilt

Cara was suddenly frightened.

Why did she feel like Laurence was everywhere today?

She didn't know if it was because she was so worried about what he had just heard that she became alert.

Laurence glanced at Cara, but he could see she was alert, and a trace of displeasure flashed through his eyes.

Alert?

Since when had Cara been alert to him?

Was she planning to see another man so she decided to keep a distance from him?

Laurence felt a little annoyed even when he was just thinking about it.

"This is for you. Aren't you going on a blind date? Dress up then."

Then Laurence directly threw the dress to her and hit Cara on the forehead. He didn't care if it would embarrass Cara in front of her subordinates. Anyway, he was rather pissed right now.

Cara screamed.

The dress thrown at her blocked her sight. She hurriedly took off his dress from her head, only to find Laurence disappear.

This man was really like a ghost. He vanished just as he spoke.

Cara was a little depressed.

Yareli and the other three exchanged glances without saying anything, but Yareli turned gloomy.

This was Chanel's latest dress. Not to mention the price, it was said that there were only three hundred of them. Girls killed for it and it was almost impossibly hard to have one. She didn't expect that Laurence would actually buy one for Cara and give it to Cara so casually.

She wouldn't buy it if Laurence said he had no feelings for Cara.

On the other hand, Cara frowned as she looked at the dress in her hand and couldn't help but sigh.

This dress indeed looked good, but she was not going on a blind date at all. She was just meeting Mrs. Miller after all. Would there be a need for this?

Cara put away his dress as she was thinking. She then whispered, "The operation this afternoon is highly confidential. We'll eat here at noon. Let's get prepared first. It's best to wear sports clothes for it."

Then Cara returned to her room with the dress.

Yareli's eyes flickered with jealousy, while she was then pulled away.

After Cara returned to her room, she held the dress and showed it in front of the mirror. It was really pretty.

She did not know much about luxury brands. She always wore comfortable clothes. Moreover, she did not have much money, so it was already considered expensive to buy a dress of one or two hundred from a stall. The material of this dress felt especially good now. Cara felt happy and smiled. However, in less than three seconds, Cara turned gloomy.

She just told Laurence that she was going on a blind date and then Laurence gave her such a dress. Didn't that mean that he had no interest in her?

After all, when a man heard that a woman he liked was going on a blind date, he would never help her dress up, not to mention giving a dress for her the blind date?

Cara felt no longer good as she thought about it. Even the dress in her hand looked less pretty.

So this was what Laurence wanted to say, wasn't it?

There wouldn't be any hope!

Cara sat on the bed somewhat frustrated, feeling very sad.

On the other side, Laurence went to Ernesto's room, knocked on the door, and walked in.

Chapter 1453 I'm Just an Ordinary Person

Laurence didn't think too much after Cara hung up the phone. All he thought was that Cara wanted to watch horror movies.

Was it true that watching horror movies could improve the intimacy between two people?

This seemed pretty true.

Laurence checked the film list and chose a horror movie. He booked two seats and paid the fee.

They would eat together at noon. He didn't know where Cara and that man agreed to meet, but Cara seemed to like Mexican cuisine.

Laurence looked around and saw the Bear Mexico restaurant, which was ranked first in terms of reputation and comments, so he reserved two seats.

After doing all of this, Laurence was very satisfied.

By the way, should he buy a bouquet?

It was said that all women like flowers, so Cara must like flowers as well.

He remembered that Cara liked violets.

Laurence bought flowers at an online flower shop, and then he got up. He considered dressing up.

However, there were no special clothes in the wardrobe. Cara bought the latest clothes for him.

Thinking of this, Laurence smiled.

Well, he could wear what she bought.

Laurence changed into sportswear and found a hacker to hack into the man's phone. Then, using that phone number, he texted Cara the location of the restaurant and some other information about the blind date. It should start in about an hour.

Cara should be dressed up in an hour.

After finishing all of this, Laurence canceled everything for the afternoon, ready to focus on his date with Cara.

Cara felt extremely nervous when her phone rang.

She glanced at it. It was an unfamiliar number.

The other party sent the address of the restaurant and the time of blind dating.

Cara was surprised.

She thought the man must have sent it wrong.

She confirmed that this was the first time she had a connection with this number and it was a strange one.

Maybe it was a mistake.

She replied to the text message.

"Did you text the wrong person?"

Laurence frowned when he saw Cara's message.

Thinking that Cara's appointment with the man was not at Bear Mexico restaurant, he could only reply, "The time and location are changed. Let's meet at Bear Mexico restaurant. I'll wait for you."

Cara frowned.

The person was ill-bred.

She was in a bad mood now. Laurence fell in love with a woman, and that woman was not her. This fact upset her and she lost the motivation to do anything. Now that she had reminded the other party of texting the wrong person, he still didn't understand, she didn't want to remind him again.

Chapter 1454 Are You a Man?

Samuel's eyes darkened.

"It is possible."

"Then what should we do? I still want Cara to persuade Mrs. Miller and then coerce Dr. Miller into joining us."

Nicole felt that what she thought was too simple.

She had always thought that it was her own business that Neville studied Laurence's blood. She never expected that Neville had worked together with someone else. Maybe Neville had been working for someone else from the beginning.

Who was that person?

Nicole was lost in thought.

Seeing that she was a little worried, Samuel hurriedly held her hands and said, "Perhaps we can play it by ear."

"What do you mean? Cara will be in danger."

Actually, Nicole didn't want to use Cara as bait.

Samuel also knew this, but there was really no other way out now.

"Alright, we can make sure that Cara is fine, right?"

"I can't give a promise."

Samuel knew that he couldn't reply to Nicole like this because she would get worried about Cara. But he couldn't hide the fact from Nicole.

"I see. Why don't you go arrange it or let Laurence know about it?"

"I will think it over."

Samuel neither agreed nor refused, so it was the most torturous thing for Nicole.

Laurence began to remember his affection for Cara. There were even traces of signs that he wanted to respond to Cara's love. If Laurence knew his health condition, he might have retracted back. When would Cara and he be able to get together?

Nicole felt sorry for Laurence and Cara.

"Alright, have a good rest. Could you leave the rest to me?"

Looking at Samuel's beautiful eyes, Nicole suddenly felt a trace of trust.

"Alright."

Samuel touched Nicole's head and walked out.

He came to the study and frowned.

"Ernesto, where's Laurence? Ask him to come over."

Samuel finally decided to discuss with Laurence. Once something happened to Cara and Laurence did not know the reason, it would be very unfair to him.

Ernesto paused, then he called Laurence. But there was no response.

Since he knew what they wanted, Laurence wasn't too worried. Although Cynthia said Cara was under her control, from what he saw, he thought Cara could make it. Cynthia didn't dare to do anything to her.

Laurence hung up the phone and called Samuel.

"Mr. Green, Cara has been arrested."

"I know. Why did you turn off your phone?"

Speaking of that, Laurence was extremely regretful. He just planned to spend some time with Cara alone, but he didn't expect that so many things were delayed because he turned off the phone.

"It's my fault. It won't happen again. Mrs. Miller called me and said that she kidnapped Cara. They want my blood. Mrs. Miller needs it. What do you think I should do?"

Laurence didn't want to give a drop of his blood to Cynthia, but for Cara's safety, he had to go there.

Now, he had to tell Samuel and Nicole about this matter. If necessary, he needed help from the Night Elf Empire.

Seeing that Laurence already knew Cara's situation, Samuel said, "Cara's being caught was part of our plan. We couldn't get in touch with you at that time, so we had made our decisions."

"Your plan?"

Laurence heaved a sigh of relief when he heard that, but he was still worried.

"Why did Cara go to Mrs. Miller's place?"

"It's our plan. Since we have received information that someone is in contact with Dr. Miller and wants your blood for genetic research. Mrs. Miller would want to approach Cara, so we planned to let Cara meet Mrs. Miller as she wanted. Don't worry too much. Cara has the antidote given by Mr. Blair, so she shouldn't get injured. Our goal is very simple. We just want to find out who is behind Dr. Miller so we can end these things."

Samuel hid part of the truth but still told Laurence the general story.

Laurence immediately understood Nicole and Samuel's plan. What they wanted was to save him.

A glimmer of warmth flew through Laurence's heart.

"Mr. Green, thank you."

"Don't mention it. Where are you now? Are you going there or not?"

"Of course, I will go there immediately. Since their target is me, I'm worried that something might happen if I don't show up. I guess Mr. Green has a plan, right?"

"Yes. You go there as bait. I've arranged for people around. As long as they want to hurt you, we will take action at any time."

Samuel had arranged everything.

After all, this was the Seapolis City where could be considered his place. These days, he had not caught any attention. Moreover, Morty had men here. It was not a problem to borrow some men from Morty at this time.

"Alright, I'll follow your plan."

Laurence hung up the phone and stood up.

The restaurant, which was supposed to be lively, looked deserted with only a few people. His blind date with Cara was a total failure.

It was lunchtime. Laurence thought perhaps Cara hadn't eaten lunch yet, so he had someone pack a box of food and take it away.

Cynthia felt that she had been completely ignored. Moreover, she felt they were doing PDA.

Her face was puce with rage.

"Bitch! You're still seducing him in front of me."

Cynthia slapped Cara hard across the face.

Cara was caught off guard and didn't dodge. She was slapped by Cynthia.

Laurence's face darkened.

Before everyone figured out what was going on, Laurence had arrived in front of Cynthia and slapped her twice, causing Cynthia to see stars and fall to the ground. The next moment, Laurence grabbed her by the collar and lifted her. Laurence grabbed her neck with one hand, which scared Cynthia.

Cara marveled at his speed.

She knew that Laurence had a lot on the ball. During this period of time, when Laurence was trained, he did not avoid her. Because of his blood, Laurence's speed was simply not something ordinary people could compare to. Even if she knew it, Laurence's speed just now still shocked her.

However, Laurence did not notice Cara's admiration for him. He coldly said, "In the past, for Adela's sake, whatever you did to me, I can pretend that it never happened. I even wanted to take care of you. But you're way out of line. You've erased the last trace of guilt I had for you. Therefore, even if Adela blames me, even if I will go to hell, I don't care. You have wicked ideas and have hurt a person who is important to me. It's time for you to pay for what you've done."

After hearing what he said, Cynthia screamed with fright.

"Laurence, do you want to kill me? How dare you do this to me! I'm warning you..."

Before Cynthia could finish her words, Laurence grabbed her hair and said coldly, "You can do whatever you want when I still have a trace of guilt towards you. Unfortunately, I'm heartless now. So what if I kill you? Guess which of us is more important in his mind."

After saying that, Laurence tightened his grip on Cynthia's neck, his voice a little louder.

"Dr. Miller, let go of Cara, or I'll kill your wife!"

"Neville, help me!" Cynthia cried out as if she had found someone to rely on.

Neville finally walked out.

Cara and Laurence looked at Neville who seemed to be much younger than before. Furthermore, Neville was no longer cowardly. On the contrary, he had an aura of confidence.

Neville stared at Laurence with greedy eyes, as if he was seeing countless wealth and power.

As long as the research about Laurence's blood was successful, he would be the most famous doctor of genetics in the world. He would go down in history.

Laurence saw the fanaticism in Neville's eyes.

'Perhaps he looked at my parents the same way many years ago.'

Thinking of his parents who had died tragically, Laurence's eyes darkened.

Cara drove to the barricade before Laurence could say anything. It was not expected and shocked the people there. Between safety and blocking the car, of course, they would choose the former. They dodged quickly.

Cara rushed over and several cars followed her.

Laurence was somewhat anxious. He glanced at Neville and hit him unconscious, and then he drove into the city.

Samuel's people were waiting for him there.

Laurence handed Neville over to them and turned around.

"Captain Kent."

The subordinate called. But Laurence ignored him and drove away.

There were so many cars chasing after Cara. Laurence was worried about her.

When he caught up with Cara, the cars had surrounded her.

Laurence stepped on the accelerator and crashed into one of the cars. It distracted the others' attention.

It was a chance for Cara to drive off.

She glanced at Laurence and stepped on the accelerator.

Laurence had been through this. When Cara left, he started the car and got rid of the car behind him quickly.

This operation was dangerous. Luckily, they returned safely.

Cara was injured. Although it wasn't too serious, Nicole let her go back to rest and found a doctor for her.

Considering that Cara was a woman, Nicole let Morgan look after her.

It was midnight when Laurence had done everything and returned to the old mansion.

Everyone was asleep.

Laurence arrived at the door of Cara's room. Cara had locked the door.

Samuel seemed to have guessed something and had someone throw Laurence a key.

Laurence inserted the key into the lock. With a crack, the door opened.

Cara was sound asleep on the bed.

"What a heartless woman."

Laurence thought this to himself and came to Cara.

Cara was quite alert normally. But she didn't wake up when Laurence was beside the bed. She might have taken some sleeping pills, Laurence thought.

Laurence lifted the blanket carefully. He undressed Cara and looked at the ferocious whip wounds on her chest. His eyes turned a little gloomy.

That damn woman! If Neville didn't fire, he would definitely torture Cynthia in all sorts of ways.

The wound was somewhat infected and swollen.

Laurence took out a small bottle of ointment from his pocket and applied it on Cara's wounds with a cotton stick. She was half-naked but Laurence didn't feel awkward or anything.

After he applied the ointment, he glanced at her breasts. His eyes darkened a little and then sparkled.

Chapter 1458 You Are So Insensitive

Noticing Cara blushed, Nicole smiled and gossiped, "What's wrong? Did Laurence sleep in your room last night?"

Cara's eyes widened, and she hurriedly denied it.

"No. Really."

"Then so be it. Why are you so nervous?"

Although Nicole was joking, Cara's face reddened.

"Oh right, I have heard about the situation. Laurence is very concerned about you. Are you sure he doesn't fall in love with you?"

Nicole had known Laurence for a long time. He would only care about the life of his love. Even if Cara was fond of him, he wouldn't do this much for her if he didn't fall for her.

Cara blushed to the roots of her hair. She hurriedly said, "Mrs. Green, I felt dizzy. I want to go back to rest. Also, the mission is completed. Should Yareli and the others go straight back to Night Elf Empire?"

"It's up to you."

It didn't matter for Nicole.

Cara rushed out of Nicole's room, but she was still blushing.

'Does Laurence love me?'

Cara felt sweet but uncertain.

Seeing that Yareli was still asking about Laurence's whereabouts, Cara suddenly felt annoyed.

"Yareli, go back to Night Elf Empire with them. Now!"

Yareli was surprised by Cara's instructions.

"Didn't you tell us to stay at the Green's?"

"That was for the mission. Now that the mission is over, you guys should go back. Mr. and Mrs. Green prefer quietness. There're too many people."

Cara's words made Yareli upset.

"I'll leave immediately after speaking to Captain Kent."

"I told you to leave and you must obey. Where do you think you are going? Can you just grab someone to ask about Laurence's whereabouts? Aren't you afraid of offending Mr. Green? Leave!"

Cara had a stern and non-negotiable tone, which made Yareli discontent. However, thinking of Cara's status in the Green family, she angrily turned away and left.

After they left, Cara was finally relieved.

She went to the kitchen to eat. Then she remembered that Laurence hadn't eaten yet, so she cooked another serving for him.

She went into the room. Laurence was still sleeping.

His skin was silky-smooth.

A man who was more beautiful than a woman had so good skin. How enviable!

Cara placed the food on the table and wanted to wake him up to eat. However, seeing the dark circles under his eyes, she hesitated. Then she decided to bring the food down so he can eat after sleep. But Laurence suddenly whispered, "Isn't it for me? Why take it away?"

Chapter 1459 Doesn't She Want to Marry Him?

"I don't give a shit about you! Get out!"

Cara was really pissed off. She tugged at Laurence's pajamas and pushed him out of the door. She did not care whether his clothes were disheveled or not.

Laurence could push Cara away, but he didn't want to. He didn't really feel that Cara was treating him badly.

Just like that, Cara pushed Laurence straight out. She slammed the door so hard that the walls shook.

When the servants heard the sound, they jerked their heads up and saw Laurence, disheveled, being pushed out of Cara's room. Their eyes widened in surprise.

Oh, God!

What a titillating scene that was!

"Cara, you can't kick me out of the house every time you're angry! My clothes are still inside." Laurence pounded the door with a grievance.

Cara became angrier when she heard what he said, and she immediately threw Laurence's clothes out of the door.

"Oh, God, when did Miss Clint get so feisty?"

A servant whispered.

The other said, "Something happened. Didn't you see Captain Kent's disheveled clothes? And I heard that Captain Kent didn't go back to his own room. Was he in Miss Clint's room the whole time?"

"That's possible."

The way they looked at Laurence changed.

Laurence sighed and picked up his clothes. He glanced at the servants before going back to his room.

It wasn't long before everyone in the Green's knew that Laurence had spent the night in Cara's room and had been kicked out with his clothes disheveled.

When Nicole heard that, she was stunned.

"Is that true? Laurence spent the night in Cara's room? Geez! Laurence finally understands Cara's feelings?"

"Mrs. Green, I saw it with my own eyes. Miss Clint kicked him out. Maybe she was not satisfied."

Nicole spurted out the porridge because of the servant's words.

Cara wasn't satisfied?

This topic was too appalling.

"Who told you that?"

"We made a guess. Captain Kent stayed in Miss Clint's room all night. If he wasn't impotent, Miss Clint would not be able to get out of bed. So how could she kick him out? And she seemed ashamed of him and didn't even give him his clothes."

The servant spoke as if she was sure Laurence was impotent, and Nicole was astounded.

"If he really has a problem, we should treat it as soon as possible. I will let Morgan take a look at Laurence later."

Nicole said as she laughed.

It wasn't long before everyone in the Green's knew that Laurence was impotent. He irritated Cara and was kicked out of her room.

When Ernesto heard these, he was shocked.

"Really? Laurence looks quite sturdy. He is impotent?"

He called Laurence at once.

Laurence had just finished his shower when he got Ernesto's call. He thought that Samuel was looking for him, so he answered at once.

"Bro, it hasn't been easy for you all these years."

"What?"

Laurence was confused.

Ernesto cleared his throat and said, "Morgan knows how to treat it. Do you want her to take a look for you? After all, it is a life-long matter."

"What do you mean?"

Laurence felt that Ernesto was weird today.

Don't Try to Escape, My Wife!

Chapter 1460 You Are Not Welcomed Here

When Nicole heard this news, she laughed her head off. It made Samuel so worried that his face turned pale.

"Don't laugh, please. Be careful of your baby."

"It's fine. My baby is strong."

Nicole laughed, waved her hand, and then asked, "Why is he so headstrong?"

"It has something to do with his experience. Adela and he are childhood sweethearts, so she told him that she liked him. She did not feel strange, nor did she think a woman's reserved attitude necessary. Therefore, in Laurence's opinion, if a girl likes a boy or vice versa, they should tell each other."

Hearing this, Nicole stiffened for an instant.

"Cara said that before. She said that she liked him."

"But Laurence refused then, didn't he? Cara said nothing after he refused. I guess the reason Cara going to the island isn't clear to Laurence. He probably thinks that Cara really wants to improve her skills."

Samuel's analysis left Nicole shocked.

"He can't be that insensitive, right?"

"Why don't you ask him?"

Seeing his wife's disbelief, Samuel came up with an idea. He wanted to see what would happen.

Nicole then called Laurence.

"Laurence, do you know why Cara went to the island and train?"

Hearing Nicole's question, Laurence paused for a moment and couldn't help but feel a little worried.

"What? Is there another reason?"

"What do you think the reason is?"

"Because she feels that she is very weak and wants to hone her skills?"

Hearing this, Nicole immediately looked at Samuel with admiration and gave him a thumbs up.

Sure enough, only men understood men the most.

Nicole was extremely glad that she did not fall for a headstrong man like Laurence, otherwise, she would be depressed.

"Did something happen to Cara?"

Laurence's voice showed that he was worried, which made Nicole somewhat feel sorry.

"If I tell you that Cara went to the island for you, what would you think?"

"How is that possible? She got the training for herself. What does it have to do with me?"

Laurence's answer made Nicole depressed.

"Are you dumb?"

Nicole became angry.

She felt sorry for Cara. Why did she like such a dumb-head?
