

Escape Wife 1541

Chapter 1541 It Is Her!

"Can't you let me at least imagine it?"

Nicole was amused.

She knew that Samuel wanted to spend some relaxing time with her, but sometimes he had to solve some problems even when they were away. Moreover, Tim was nowhere to be found now. The person who poisoned the Masons with bugs wasn't found out yet. Their enemies were hiding in the dark, waiting to launch an attack. The peace they enjoyed now would end in no time.

Nicole and Samuel couldn't be free from this shit.

She gently patted Samuel's shoulder and whispered, "I'm afraid Morty is determined to bring Molly and Michele back to Capital City. But I heard that his father has already decided on a candidate for his bride. There will be another tension once they are back."

"It's inevitable, but Morty might stay here for another two days."

Samuel knew Morty best, and so he knew that he couldn't stay out of it. But the last thing he wanted was to give up the chance to stay with Nicole, so he suggested, "Maybe I can call Steven for help."

Nicole said, "Steven is very busy right now. He may not be able to get involved too much, but he may be able to help us restrict those people's freedom."

Her words made Samuel smile.

"That's right. Let's enjoy our trip first. We still have another day, right? This tour group seems fine. We can talk about it later."

"Okay."

Nicole didn't mind.

Samuel called Steven and asked him to help restrict the freedom of the Bells.

Steven was aggrieved and said, "You're really good at keeping me busy. Do you have to ask me to deal with an ordinary family? I am not the boss of a gangster."

"Well, you're the only person I know in Country Y. Besides, you're one of my best buddies. Who else can I turn to?" said Samuel.

"Yeah, I'm so 'lucky' to be your buddy."

Steven hung up without waiting for Samuel's response.

Samuel found Steven's words quite familiar.

After thinking for a while, he remembered them to be the words he said to Morty. They all thought alike. No wonder they could become friends.

Samuel did not feel guilty at all and went sightseeing with Nicole after hanging up.

Nicole was having a good time. She had taken part in all the activities she hadn't had the chance to try before. She felt sweet and happy when she was boating on the lake with Samuel.

She took a lot of photos and short videos with her phone then posted them.

Having seen these photos and videos, Zoe admired the carefree life of Nicole very much.

She sent a text to Nicole, which said, "Mommy, don't make me envy anymore! Otherwise, I will ask Uncle Ernesto to book a flight for me and come find you immediately. So please be more low-key, unless you want me to interrupt the romantic time between you and Daddy."

When Nicole saw the text, she instantly shielded Zoe from reading her posts.

Zoe immediately found out that she was shielded.

When she was pushed down by Evelyn, Nicole subconsciously made a protective gesture. By the time she reacted, Evelyn's car had left.

Looking at the pistol in her hand, Nicole was very worried.

Was this Evelyn's self-defense weapon?

Now that Evelyn had given her the gun, how would Evelyn protect herself?

Nicole still didn't know who was driving the Bentley. But if Evelyn was caught at this time, something bad would happen.

Nicole didn't have time to think of anything else as she quickly ran into the church beside her and called Samuel.

"Samuel, help me."

Samuel happened to come back and didn't see Nicole. The driver told Samuel that she ran out when gunshots were heard. Samuel was afraid that Nicole would be in trouble, so he hurriedly ran over the place where the gunshots sounded. However, he received a call from Nicole at this time.

"Nicole? Are you alright?"

"I'm fine, but Evelyn might be in trouble. I saw her. Someone who drove a Bentley was chasing her. The license plate is XXXXXX. Stop that car!"

Nicole didn't have friends or relatives in Country Y, but Samuel did.

Wasn't this Steven's territory?

Samuel could only rely on Steven to stop the car.

When he heard Evelyn's name, Samuel knew why Nicole ran out regardless of dangers. Fortunately, Nicole had memorized the license plate number.

"Okay, I'll do it. Where are you? I'll go find you."

Nicole sent Samuel a location.

Samuel quickly called Steven.

"What do you want me to do this time? I should be here to serve you, shouldn't I?"

Steven had been busy all morning. Seeing Samuel's call, Steven was so angry that he even wanted to throw his phone away.

However, Samuel did not have time to argue with him. Samuel quickly said, "Help me stop a car! A Bentley! The license plate number is XXXXX. I am on the Riverside Road now."

"Alright."

Samuel's tone was very anxious. Steven knew that Samuel would not stop a car for no reason. So something must have happened.

Steven quickly gave the order. Samuel had arrived at where Nicole was.

"Nicole."

"I'm here."

Nicole came out of the church. Her knee was a little scratched, and her arm was stained by a trace of blood, which worried Samuel.

Chapter 1543 What Am I Doing

Hearing that Samuel was going to kill her son, Cierra did not dare to say anything else.
Samuel finally stopped giving Cierra a dirty look after she shut up.
Kicked by Samuel, Dylan felt bad for he hadn't recovered from the injury the last time. That being the case, Dylan glowered at Samuel as if he wanted to kill him.

Since the last time he saw Samuel, Dylan had felt that his face was vaguely familiar. Now he finally remembered who he was.

As a member of one of the big families of the Seapolis City in the past, Dylan should have known Samuel. However, after all these years of underclass life, he had forgotten a lot about the posh life in the past. He had been thinking about who Samuel was for the past few days and now he finally knew who he was.

"Samuel, you bully. What if I expose what you've done to me on the internet? Aren't you afraid?"

It was the era of technology and the internet. No matter who you were and how much wealth you possessed, people could know what you had done at once if you did anything evil.

Dylan glared at Samuel, his eyes open wide, but he thought Samuel wouldn't really kill him.

Samuel sneered. The guards beside him immediately moved over two stools, one for Nicole and another for Samuel.

Samuel flicked the dust off his sleeve and said coldly, "What made you think that I would give you that chance?"

Right.

Dylan realized that he could expose it, but he couldn't do it right under his nose.

A glimmer of hope that had just lit up in his mind disappeared.

However, Dylan didn't give up. He turned to Nicole for help.

"Mrs. Green, that bitch, Molly, is a mistress. Do you really want your husband to take her back? Her child will compete with your children for the Greens' wealth."

All women care about that. Moreover, Dylan believed that Samuel and Nicole must have had children over the past eight years.

Nicole knew that Morty didn't want others to know who Michele's biological father was. That's why he let Samuel come here. So, whether she was happy with it, she had to help Morty cover up the truth. That meant she had to lie to the outside world that Molly was Samuel's mistress.

Nicole thought, 'Fuck! What am I doing now?'

Nicole felt uncomfortable. She said angrily to Dylan.

"The Green family has so much money. We don't care about that. If it is really Samuel's child, I will be nice to her."

Although Nicole said as if she was tolerant, she felt disgusted with it. If Molly was really Samuel's mistress, she might have tortured her to death, let alone raised her child.

Nicole definitely was not a tolerant woman.

Dylan suddenly felt that all his efforts in the past years were meaningless.

When he had just married Molly, she treated him fairly well. Although she had no feelings for him, she would do her duty as a wife with all her heart. But what had his kindred done for him?

It was said that one could see through a person only after going through something. But Dylan did not see through his kindred when the Bells experienced a change years ago. Now it seemed too late for him to thoroughly know his kindred.

Dylan suddenly laughed self-deprecatingly. It looked a bit pathetic.

Seeing her son so depressed, Cierra shouted angrily at the kindred.

"Shut up! Without Dylan, you would have starved to death years ago. You required Molly to earn money for you, and you didn't want to see Michele doing nothing at home, so you suggested sending her to Samuel to earn money. And now, you ungrateful people just watch my son encounter the misfortune. Have you no conscience?"

Cierra's questioning made the kindred hurriedly lower their heads, afraid that her words would implicate them.

Nicole considered it a boring farce that contained the vicissitudes of life. She felt impatient.

"Alright, that's it. Do you want to sign it? We don't have much time to waste."

Nicole sounded much colder for she was anxious about no tidings of where Tim was taken to and what Evelyn was doing.

Dylan stopped Cierra when she was about to say something, "Mom, let it be. I've lost my pride and come to an unknown me these years. I've decided. From now on, you and Dad take care of yourselves when I'm not around. Now the Bell family has declined, so leave those ungrateful people to themselves. Mom, if there is an afterlife, I will serve you as my parents again."

"No, son, don't leave me."

Cierra cried in extreme sadness.

"Mom, I'm a treasure to you. So is Molly to her family. I've brought to Molly much hurt these years. Shouldn't I pay the price?" Dylan smiled calmly, "I'm an adult now. I should have known my fate when I tortured Molly. I have no right to complain."

Upon hearing that, Cierra fell silent.

Surely she understood Molly's resentment as Cierra was a woman too. But at that time, things caused by Molly happened to Dylan, making him miserable. So Cierra hadn't stopped her son's deeds. If putting her affection aside, she, as a female, knew that Molly was in agony.

"I can sign it and bear any consequences, even death. But you need to arrange my parents' life properly," Dylan turned to Nicole and Samuel as Cierra kept silent, "My father is paralyzed in bed by the brain infarct. They need money. I don't care about the rest of my kindred, but my parents must live comfortably. The Hawk family owes us!" Dylan continued, "Since you want to avenge Molly and ask me to pay, this is my condition. Otherwise, I will fight to the death for justice. Although you are so powerful to do anything freely, I can still have a way out. Don't you think so?"

The rest of the Bell family felt furious when hearing what Dylan said.

"Dylan, what do you mean? We are all Bells."

"These years I have done enough for you. It's not you who earned money even before you were involved in that misfortune eight years ago. You are always our vassals. I don't need to feel guilty when I discard you." Dylan answered, "Our Bell family will also decline even without the bad luck of eight years ago. You will remain the same when I discard you. But you will realize who you really are."

Dylan was in despair.

Then why did the Bell family treat Molly and Michele like that?

How wicked and abhorrent!

Noticing Nicole's gaze, Dylan lowered his head. He couldn't argue for himself because he knew he was detestable.

Samuel did not gloat. Perhaps because he became a lot nicer after falling in love with Nicole.

"All right. Tell me the reason. What happened back then?"

Dylan pondered for a while and said in a low voice, "At that time the business of my family suffered a great loss. One of our shipments traveled by sea through the sailing route of the Mason family, but sank. That shipment was all we had. We thought that there wouldn't be any problems if we took this route, but something went wrong. When we went to the Masons, they actually said that they didn't have our shipment. At that time, we were in great despair. "

Thinking of the past, Dylan could still feel the depression of his father.

"The Mason family?"

Nicole squinted a little.

"Ethan Mason? The Mason family in the Seapolis City?"

Dylan nodded.

"That's right. Which family else could have a sailing route other than the Mason family?"

"What happened afterwards?"

Samuel continued to ask.

Dylan frowned and said, "At that time, we thought that the Mason family did not want to compensate, so we met Ethan and asked for an explanation. However, my shipment wasn't on the shipping list. I remembered clearly that it was registered. How could it just disappear? I didn't know whether my shipment sank or not. Perhaps the Mason family wanted the goods themselves."

Dylan became very angry. If it weren't for the accident, he wouldn't be short of money and marry Molly.

"It's impossible."

Hearing this, Nicole hurriedly shook her head.

"I know Ethan well. The Mason family has traveled on its own sailing route for so many years and nothing went wrong. If what you said was true, their reputation would be harmed. How could they still do business?"

"It was the butler of the Mason family who registered for me. The goods were very important, so I sent them aboard myself. Because the sailing route was private, no other people were allowed aboard. I could only go back by plane first. When I came back, I was told that my goods had sunk. And I couldn't even find the goods registration information. If it wasn't the Mason family, who would it be?"

Dylan could be shameless and despicable, but he didn't lie. He would admit everything he did. There was no need to frame the Mason family.

Nicole and Samuel glanced at each other. Then Samuel asked, "Can you get in contact with Aiden now?"

"Yes!"

Dylan nodded.

He took out his phone and called Aiden directly. But Aiden did not answer the phone, which had never happened before.

Dylan frowned slightly.

Samuel and Nicole began to have some doubts.

There may be something wrong with Aiden.

"Go and investigate Aiden Mathews now."

Samuel went out and said that to one of his people. He just did so in front of Dylan. After that, he returned.

Dylan thought of something and became nervous.

"Did Aiden do something wrong?" Dylan asked.

"Are you familiar with him? You know him well?"

At first, Dylan was silent and then he whispered, "We are just sexual partners. As for his job, I heard that he works in a nearby casino. However, he is absent from work for a while every month. I once asked him why. He only told me that he went to help his boss during that period."

At that time, Dylan did not think much of it. He thought that it would be good if Aiden could earn more money. After all, Aiden would treat him well if he had money. But now, he thought that Aiden might have done something bad during the days when he disappeared.

"Casino? Do you know its name?"

"The Convergence Casino. It's near here."

Nicole soon realized what Samuel wanted to do.

"You want to go over?" Nicole asked Samuel.

"I should go and see. Maybe I can find Tim there."

Samuel did plan on it.

However, Nicole shook her head and said, "No. They should have known what you look like. If you go, you would only alert them."

"Then what should we do?"

Chapter 1547 Did She Think Wrong

Samuel thought Nicole was feeling unwell, so he hurriedly asked, "Are you alright? Why don't you go back and have a rest?"

"I'm okay."

Nicole shook her head.

After about half an hour, Dylan wasn't back yet. It was late, so Samuel said to his people, "Take Dylan's parents to the hotel. Two people stay here to wait for Dylan. As long as he comes back, bring him to see us."

"Yes, Mr. Green."

Samuel brought Nicole back to the hotel.

He thought he had done a stupid thing. How could he just stand there and wait? Nicole was weak and he should take good care of her.

Samuel poured a cup of hot water for Nicole and asked her if she was hungry.

Nicole was worried about Evelyn and Tim, so she did not have the appetite. But when she saw Samuel's worried expression, she forced herself to eat some.

Samuel thought that he was just doing a favor for Morty, and he didn't expect Tim would get involved. Where exactly was Aiden?

Nicole knew that Nicole was anxious, but he didn't know how to make her happy. He could only comfort her and tell her to rest.

Samuel went to the balcony and called Morty.

"What's the matter?" Morty answered.

Morty wasn't in a good mood either.

Molly was very repulsive to his approach due to her bad experiences. Furthermore, Molly was no longer as happy and confident as before. She isolated herself and was unwilling to walk out of her shell. But Morty could do nothing about it.

Thanks to Michele, Morty could get along with Molly. But he knew that Molly didn't have plans to marry him.

This made Morty upset.

And Samuel's phone call provided an outlet for his bad emotions.

Samuel could tell that Morty was in a bad mood from his tone. Since he was also bothered, he didn't care much about Morty's emotions and said, "I want Dylan to live."

"What's the reason?"

Morty frowned slightly.

Morty hated Dylan and he even wanted to kill him in person. He wondered why Samuel pleaded for him.

"He can help me find Tim and Evelyn, and can even find out if Jeffrey had some contact with Martin."

Samuel told Morty what he had known from Dylan.

After that, Morty frowned tightly.

Waiting was a torment. Samuel asked Nicole to go to sleep first. But she could not sleep and was hungry.

"I'll make you something to eat."

And Samuel felt hungry, too.

"I'll do it."

Nicole knew that Samuel hadn't rested well while she had slept for a while. So she intended to go downstairs to cook, but he stopped her.

"Stay here. The cooking smell is terrible."

Then he went downstairs.

She curled up her lips slightly.

The cooking smell?

It was as if he wouldn't get it on him when he entered the kitchen, but it was good to be spoiled.

Although what he cooked was just two bowls of egg noodles, she liked it very much.

Perhaps this was the so-called "Love me love my money". They were married for many years, but he still cherished her.

After they finished their meal, she went to the kitchen to wash the dishes, and he did not stop her.

Morgan arrived at five in the morning and was taken to the basement by Samuel.

Dylan was stunned when he saw Nicole bring a woman in. He dared not to ask but stepped aside.

Morgan frowned when she saw Aiden.

"Mr. Green, is he controlled by bugs?"

"Can you remove the bugs?"

"Yes, but it takes time."

Hearing her words, Samuel nodded and said, "I'll leave this to you."

Then he took a few steps back.

He was still quite disgusted with bugs, even though he was a member of the Harper Town.

Dylan was slightly stunned when he heard their conversation.

Few people knew it and it was mysterious to many people. Dylan had been together with him for many years. If Aiden really had the bugs, it would be horrifying for him.

"Are these bugs contagious?"

Chapter 1549 Who Are You to Me?

"He may be in Steven's villa."

"Does that mean..."

Nicole recalled that Molly and Morty were all inside, so she quickly figured it out.

"Mr. Morty even brings Lucas here! Is it for Michele?"

"Maybe, after all, they are both at the same age."

Samuel frowned.

"I want to pick up my son in person."

Nicole found out that Lucas was here, so she couldn't do anything. People who had never been a mother couldn't feel the torture of missing their children. Previously, she thought that Lucas was in Country Z, so even if she missed her son, she couldn't meet him in person. Now that she knew that they were in the same city, how could Nicole bear not to meet him?

Samuel looked at Nicole's expectant eyes and felt a little soft-hearted.

"Alright, I'll take you to see him."

Although it was not good to be jealous of his son, at this moment, Samuel really wanted to kick that brat Lucas back home.

Why couldn't he just stay at home and focus on training? Why did he come out and now steal his wife from him?!

Although Samuel complained about his son in his heart, he did not dare to let Nicole know. He could only follow Nicole and drove towards Steven's villa with her.

The bodyguard was a little worried about them and followed them afar.

Just as Nicole and Samuel arrived at the entrance of the villa, they saw Steven's daughter Yasmeeen standing at the entrance, while Lucas was facing her with an impatient expression. Behind Lucas was Michele who looked very uneasy.

Nicole got very interested in the good show between them.

"Who do you think our son will choose? I've never seen Lucas protect a girl other than Zoe. But now Michele is being protected by him. Is he interested in that girl?"

When Samuel heard what Nicole said, his mouth twitched a little bit.

"Lucas is only seven years old. If he really likes one girl now, it's too early. Honey, we should stop this."

Nicole waved her hand and said, "Nonsense, he is a boy and puppy love is no harm to him, but you need to tell him how to be a gentleman."

Samuel's mouth twitched again.

"What if it is Zoe who gets involved with boys today?"

"I will break the boys' legs."

Nicole said without hesitation. Immediately Samuel understood that raising a son was different from raising a daughter. Fortunately, there were four sons at their home that could guard their only girl.

Samuel's words made Nicole a little angry.

"Who did I bully? I'm teaching my son a lesson. I'm not bullying Yasmeen. Get away!"

Nicole was about to freak out. While Michele was slightly stunned to see Lucas and Yasmeen fighting from the side. Then, she quickly ran over and stood in front of Yasmeen.

"Lucas!"

Although Michele was shorter than them, her voice was not low.

When Lucas heard Michele, he retracted his fist, and his voice also softened a bit.

"Michele, step aside. You may get hurt."

Yasmeen was a little stunned.

Michele stood in front of her?

What did she mean?

Yasmeen didn't say anything but observed them. And she heard Michele say, "Lucas, how can you hit a girl?"

Michele thought that every time Dylan drank too much wine or lost money, he would come back and hit them, and even smashed the pots and pans beside them. But he seldom really hit Molly. Michele still had a bad impression of those men that hit women.

Now she liked Lucas very much, but she didn't expect that Lucas would hit a girl. Her eyes were filled with much disappointment.

Lucas was questioned by Michele and subconsciously said, "She is not a girl."

"What?"

Michele was stunned.

Not a girl?

But Yasmeen was wearing a princess dress and looked like a Barbie doll. Could she be a boy?

Yasmeen freaked out and she asked angrily, "Are you blind? I'm not a girl but a boy?"

Lucas stared at Yasmeen and said coldly, "You just look like a girl. But actually, you are a manly girl. No! You are a boy!"

These words were so harsh.

Yasmeen finally recognized how much Lucas hated her. She was so angry that she directly pulled Michele away and gritted her teeth and said, "Lucas, say it again."

"I can say ten times that you are a boy!"

As soon as he finished speaking, Yasmeen took off her shoes and threw them at his mouth.

His mouth was so filthy that she could stick it with her shoes.

Lucas never thought that Yasmeen would do this. He was stunned for a while, and then subconsciously caught her shoes. Although there was no unpleasant odor, Lucas looked so ugly.

"Or a shrew? Yasmeen, even if you are a princess now, you still haven't changed your character, right?"

Yasmeen's face was about to contort.

"Shrew! I'll show you what a shrew is!"
