Chapter 1631 It Could Not Be Hers

Nicole wanted to look but Davon stopped her by quickly saying, "Don't look anymore, let's go."

Nicole was rushed out of the room by Davon. Davon slammed the door as they went out.

Nicole began to be overwhelmed by fear and her mind was blank. When she saw Davon closing the door, she yelled, "Morgan is still inside!"

"She can handle it! And only she can handle it!" Davon's back was now covered with sweat. This was the first time in years that he had been so terrified. Had he reacted a moment later or if Nicole did not go with him, he would not have found out that there was something wrong with that maid's stomach and now he would be a pile of bones.

Nicole was gripped with fear and continued to recall the incident that just happened. The maid's stomach suddenly burst open and countless red worms emerged from her stomach. The worms had literally freaked her out.

The worms crawled swiftly and would latch themselves onto any living thing. In just a short matter of seconds, the leg of the chair was totally devoured.

It was easy for Nicole to imagine what would happen if the worms managed to get onto a person. She could not help but be worried for Morgan. Could Morgan really cope with it?

There were so many worms, what if one was to infect Morgan? What would she do?

Nicole wanted to return for a look but was stopped forcibly stopped by Davon.

"Have faith in Morgan. If she can't deal with them, then we will all die here." Davon did not exaggerate.

Nicole immediately turned pale from fear.

"What are those worms? Why are they so frightening?" Nicole asked as she trembled fearfully.

Davon and Morgan were silent as they knew the relationship between Nicole and Cara. However, Cara was the lead suspect now.

Nicole was extremely upset and said, “Clean up this place and don’t leak out what had happened here. Zayn will be married soon and it will cause some panic if news of what happened here leaked out.”

“I understand,” Morgan said and started to direct some people to clean up the place.

Nicole and Davon proceeded outside and remained very troubled.

“Nicole, what’s on your mind?”

“I want to take Laurence away,” Nicole said.

It was obvious that the target was Laurence. If Laurence remained here, there was no telling what would happen during Zayn’s wedding banquet.

Zayn was the head of state, and his wedding would attract the attention of the entire country. Other countries would also be observing his wedding. If anything happened during his wedding, then F country would become a laughing stock.

Samuel was not around so Nicole had to take care of Evelyn and Phoenix. She must not let any harm come to her loved ones.

Everyone would be gathered together during Zayn’s wedding and that would give the enemy the chance to take out everyone with one blow. That would be a tragedy...

Nicole shuddered at the thought of that.

It was obvious that Davon also shared the same concern when he said, "I will inform Zayn to increase the level of security. Phoenix and Evelyn could not leave. Everyone came for Zayn's wedding. If they left at this moment, it would affect Zayn's mood and also would not look good."

Nicole nodded in agreement.

She had thought of what Davon said. Now the most important consideration was how to protect all of them. Nicole and Davon went back to the hall with heavy hearts.

"Who was it?"

"Cara!" Nicole was stunned as soon as Laurence said that the caller was Cara. She wanted to ask about what Cara said but then stopped herself to respect Laurence's privacy.

However, Laurence said without Nicole having to ask. He explained, "Cara asked to meet with me at eleven o'clock tomorrow morning at Rose Café."

Nicole frowned gently. It was Zayn's wedding tomorrow and a national celebration. Why did Cara ask to meet Laurence at such a time?

"Do you want me to go with you?" Nicole asked.

"Okay." Laurence's agreement surprised Nicole.

Laurence seemed to notice Nicole's surprise and said in resignation, "Although I kept convincing myself that Cara must have her reasons for doing these, I had also heard about the horrific manner in which the maid died. This disillusioned me."

"Do you suspect that Cara was behind these?" Nicole wanted to hear what Laurence's thoughts was.

Laurence looked into the distance and then said after a long pause, "I don't know." He felt that it was better that he said this.

Nicole knew how he felt for Cara. She heaved a sigh and then said, "Soon everything would be out in the open. Perhaps you'll know tomorrow."

"Hopefully. I hope that tomorrow will pass uneventfully." This was everyone's wish.

Nicole left Laurence's room and returned home.

She felt lonely as Samuel was not home. Nicole pondered and felt that something was amiss but she could not put a finger on it. Then, her cell phone rang.

Nicole looked around and there were no other guests other than the waiters. She chose a table by the window. Laurence arrived soon after and was surprised to see Nicole.

"Haven't you left?" Laurence asked in surprise.

"I am worried about you." Nicole simply said.

They ordered a cup of Americano and Cappuccino and started to drink the coffee. They remained silent.

Time ticked on and Cara was nowhere to be seen. A waiter came to refill their cups and then realized that there was a note below her cup.

"Run!"

The message shocked Laurence and Nicole. It was Cara's handwriting. Were they not here to meet her? Why did she send a note asking them to leave when they had already arrived? Was the person who made the appointment not Cara?

Nicole was puzzled but deep within her, she believed that Cara would not harm Laurence. Nicole immediately pulled Laurence to leave. Laurence was still in a daze. This was not the first time Nicole held his hand and each time that happened, danger was lurking nearby. Could it be...

Laurence's eyes narrowed, quickly looked around, and felt that something was about to happen.

At this moment, all the doors to the café were suddenly shut. Nicole's heart sank and knew that something bad was about to happen. She quickly drew a pistol from her bag and then shot at the glass door.

"Run!" Nicole pushed Laurence out. It was clear that the attacker was here for Laurence.

Nicole turned on a switch on her bracelet, which was a beacon, and Finn was ready for it and came to aid Nicole.

Before Laurence could say anything, he was already being pushed out by Nicole. At moment, numerous armed men dashed out from the kitchen and started shooting in Nicole and Laurence's direction.

"The person who wanted you dead isn't Cara!" Nicole said.

"What do you mean?" Laurence looked at Nicole. Nicole was very solemn as if she wanted to say something but stopped because of the presence of the doctor.

Laurence stopped pressing and asked instead, "What do you feel like eating? I'll look for something in the kitchen."

Nicole shook her head and said, "Nothing. I'm tired."

When the doctor heard this, he quickly said, "I gave you some local anesthetic. If your body isn't in good physical shape, you will feel very tired or drowsy."

"Then I'll sleep for a while." Nicole laid down on the bed.

Laurence decided not to leave but stay to watch over her. Nicole was soon asleep. Once the doctor completed his treatment, he signaled to Laurence and left the room.

Nicole immediately opened her eyes when the doctor left and startled Laurence.

"You..." Laurence exclaimed.

"Hush..." Nicole quickly signaled Laurence to keep quiet and sent Tony a message to send a car to follow the doctor.

Laurence was stunned and spoke only when the doctor had left, "You're suspecting..."

"That doctor is suspicious," Nicole said. Although the bullet had been removed, she suddenly felt drowsy. That meant that the doctor gave her something so that she would not interfere with Laurence's matters.

Nicole was very troubled when she thought of the person who tried to kill her.

Laurence did not know what Nicole was thinking but noticed her frown and asked, "Tony had sent someone to follow the doctor?"

"Yes. We should find out who sent the doctor if all goes well." Nicole said calmly and then looked at Laurence, "Did you see who the sniper was?"

Olivia was stunned, but her eyes looked somewhat determined.

Initially she didn't feel that this was a conspiracy. However, now it seemed that Jacob's disappearance must have some other reasons.

"Mrs. Louis, should we talk to Mr. Green?"

"Okay."

Olivia was unable to act alone. As she heard what bodyguard said, she nodded and was resolute.

Who was that?

Perhaps by the time they first set foot to this place, they were already being watched and even closely monitored, but the people who knew they were coming here were only the military, apart from Nicole and Samuel.

Could it be that military wanted to get rid of Jacob?

This thought made her shudder.

If it was true, then Jacob would really be in danger.

She quickly called Nicole.

Nicole was awakened by the ringing of her phone, she froze when she saw Olivia's number, but she quickly answered it.

"Olivia, have you arrived? How is the situation over there? Is everything okay with you?"

Nicole had too many things to ask, and now she couldn't wait to see what was happening over there through the phone when she received her call.

Olivia felt warm.

She whispered, "I've arrived and I'm in the guest house, but something weird has happened."

She told Nicole what had happened.

Nicole frowned slightly.

Ernesto was stunned.

How could this be?

“Ma’am, is there a mistake?”

“The injuries on my body were caused by her and I saw it with my own eyes. Are you saying that I’m mistaken?”

Her voice was mixed with some coldness.

Now she was anxious as her son was missing. She knew there was no way she could blame him, but only he knew something about Alison.

Ernesto didn't think it was a mistake anymore at this point. His mood was somewhat heavy.

"I know Alison has a house here, but I don't know if anyone is living there right now."

"Give me the address."

This was a clue for her.

Ernesto insisted on going along with Nicole, perhaps because he didn't believe that Alison would do such a thing, or perhaps because he was afraid that Nicole would get hurt.

Nicole didn't think much and drove to Alison's house with him.

He owned the key to her house. This made Nicole feel surprised.

When they walked in, she looked at the teacups in the living room and the water in them was still hot. This meant that someone had been here just now, and they just left when the two of them opened the door.

Apparently, Ernesto had noticed it too.

"Alison, are you there?"

He quickly searched through the house while Nicole stood in the middle of the living room, looked around, and felt someone looking at her. She said, "Alison, I don't care who you work for or who you are, I just want to know the whereabouts of my son."

The house was silent as if no one was present, but Nicole knew that she was there.

"Alison, I'll not ask or say anything. I just want to know the whereabouts of my son. You've been with my grandpa for so many years and now he suffered from a stroke because of my son's missing. Are you sure this is what you want to see?"

In the dark, Alison clenched her hands tightly and she was struggling. She covered her ears as she didn't want to listen to Nicole, but the more unwilling she felt to listen, the more clearly she heard her voice.

"When you were with me, I wasn't mean to you. If you're not satisfied with me, you can tell me, I can do what I can, I'll try to do something even if I can't, okay? I'm a mother and a woman too, you should be able to understand my feeling right now. I beg you, Alison."

"Ma'am, you go and save Ernesto, I'll distract them away!"

Nicole was taken aback as she looked at Alison and thought of the relationship between her and Ernesto. Although she didn't know how much affection Alison had for him, she was willing to take a gamble.

"Okay."

She directly let go of Alison, then quickly headed towards him.

A lot of bullets shot over quickly, but Alison took out her gun at the first opportunity to aim at the sniper outside.

With a muffled grunt, a figure fell.

Nicole took this opportunity to run to his side.

"How are you? Can you hold up? Trevin and the others will be here soon. You must hang in there."

As Nicole said, he held his injury hard. The pain made him tremble, but he still gritted his teeth and said, "Ma'am, you go first and just leave me alone if anything goes wrong later!"

"What nonsense are you talking about! You're a member of the Green family, I won't leave you behind no matter what happened."

She was expecting Trevin and the others to come faster.

After about two or three minutes, a different sound of gunshots rang out outside. She knew that they had arrived.

"Ernesto, hang on!"

Nicole focused on him attentively. After noticing someone come, Alison glanced at him, then resolutely turned around and fled.

"Ma'am, chase after her!"

"Don't worry about her, let's deal with your wound first."

Nicole knew that she would take this opportunity to escape, but she couldn't let go of him now. Once she did so, he might really die.

Trevin's men came very fast and one of them was Tony.

When he saw his injury, he immediately stopped the bleeding.

She said to Trevin, "Go and bring Alison back."

"Okay."

Ernesto wanted to say something but ended up saying nothing.

Lucas thought he might be overthinking.
If he had really dueled with her before, he should have some impression.
Although there were still doubts in his mind, he instantly forgot his thoughts. He skillfully typed on the keyboard and soon a lot of codes appeared rapidly on the computer.
At the same time, the security system of the training ground suddenly sounded an alarm.
"Someone has hacked into the security system! Quick!"
The entire base got tensed up at once.
Michele looked excited when she saw someone start to intercept the tracking. She really missed it since she hadn't touched the desktop for a long time.
However. Lucas didn't care about the chaotic situation outside, he hacked into the personnel arrangement system of the Ministry of Defense at first.
He remembered that Eaton was under the surveillance of the Ministry of Defense when he was born and they even tried to take him away.
No wonder he suspected them.
His speed was quick. In a matter of seconds, the firewall which the other party thought was perfect was breached by him.
After coming to this base, Lucas found out that Silver Fox was also here and recalled that his hacking skills were still a bit inferior to Silver Fox. Moreover, 531 was also approaching him, but he just didn't consider it temporarily.

Now he suddenly set his positioning to 531.

531 was internationally famous and their hacking skills were even more powerful. Even if they were found out, it was their business and was considered a debt to them.

With this in mind, he started seeking the information he wanted.

As expected, he noticed the recent personnel changes in the Ministry of Defense and basically those people were all transferred overseas.

There was a special department in charge of the business about the overseas battlefield, so what did it mean for the Ministry of Defense to send people out there?

He quickly searched for the person in charge but inadvertently saw Alison's name in the personnel changes.

Alison?

Hadn't she retired from the military?

As Silver Fox heard Morty say that, he said with admiration, "Indeed your child is same with you. This is a good scheme. Are you planning to let Lucas reveal the unknown and then make a move afterward?"

"Yes. We don't even know who the other party is, but it's definitely from the top of the military. Since they know the overseas battlefield well and could force Jacob into a desperate situation, it wasn't simple. Besides, we had no idea about their aim of kidnapping the son of the Green family and assassinating Laurence. Rather than making any wild guess, it's better to let Lucas find out some clues, so that we have a target for our plan."

Silver Fox was a little surprised when he heard Morty say that.

"I warn you, if anything happens to Samuel's son, I won't help you anymore and the whole 531 will help the Green family too."

His words didn't make Morty surprised.

"Don't worry. I know the relationship between Sky Group and Sam. I'm Sam's buddy, I won't harm his family member definitely."

"That's good."

Silver Fox felt relieved, yet he asked with confusion, "Why didn't you ask Lucas to check it out directly since you plan to use him?"

"Do you think everyone in the base is safe? If I call him over here, there will be many people watching there and guessing even if they didn't know. Moreover, it's not good for him to do that as this matter is related to his family. Those people may use this as an excuse to get Lucas off the base."

As he heard what Morty said, he was finally relieved.

"But now that the system is under attack, what do you think?"

"I think Lucas will solve it."

His words were full of appreciation and reliance on Lucas.

Silver Fox couldn't help but despise him.

"Don't you feel embarrassed to be so dependent on a little kid?"

"No, he's my nephew and also a freshman. Isn't it good for me to rely on him?"

Silver Fox was speechless.

Two of them talked for a while before someone from the security system came again.

Morty had to stop talking with Silver Fox.
