Chapter 1821 This Is My Assistant

“Where did the Young Master go?”

“No idea. Haven’t we been here watching altogether?”

These two looked at each other, with helplessness written all over both of their faces.

Lucas immediately found a shortcut after he left. However, he cracked up when he found out it was actually on the mountain.

So my brother Joseph was really into this kind of life.

As soon as Lucas went away, he ran into Kylie Gust at the mountain foot.

The moment he saw Kylie, he was a little shocked. He paused and couldn’t help but wonder if Kylie was coming here for Joseph.

Kylie was not surprised at all to come across Lucas here, she was all smiley, “Are you with Joseph?”

“No, I’m not.”

Lucas couldn’t tell Kylie where Joseph was right now. But his eyes rolled around quickly, and he said with a soft voice, “My dearest Kylie, can you please do me a favor?”

The Young Master of the Green family rarely asks for help, which everyone knows. But now he was asking her, Kylie couldn’t be more surprised.

“What’s wrong?”

Kylie asked in such a gentle and elegant way. Lucas was a bit shied, “I wanted to meet Yasmeen Shaw. Is there any way to arrange a secret meet-up with her for me?”

“Of course.”

Kylie chuckled.

Lucas had to admit that Kylie was truly a beauty, just as classy and elegant as her name. Her presence was gentle, pleasant, and soothing.

Kylie and Joseph would make a perfect love story if they got together.

Lucas pondered the idea of this while he thanked Kylie, and got on her car.

Their car was on the way to the Military Hospital.

"Are you going to take a closer look at me?"

Their two bodies were against each other intimately. Yasmeen blushed right away. Kylie made a dry cough and said, "Hello...I'm still here. Alright, I will be on my way out. I will be outside when Lucas is leaving - let me know."

Jaydon walked away from their PDA, too.

Now that Lucas was here, Yasmeen was surely protected and safe.

At that very moment, they had the room to themselves.

Yasmeen could hear her heart racing as if it was about to pop out of her chest, and she could feel Lucas's warm body more and more vividly.

She was a little excited and out of breath, "I thought you said you couldn't make it?"

"But I've missed you."

What a pleasant surprise! What Lucas said was heartfelt and sweet.

"But seeing you in that dress was definitely a huge surprise."

Lucas said with ease, "As long as I get to see you, I don't mind dressing up as a woman. If I had to go naked, I would too."

Now Yasmeen could totally see in her head how Lucas would look half-naked.

"But... no."

"Why not?"

"You can't just walk around naked. That should just be for me."

Yasmeen's face was burning from shyness. But she was staring straight at Lucas as if she was waiting for a specific answer.

Lucas cracked up.

The make-up seemed to have added more volume to his charm. And the smile on Lucas's face right now was breathtaking, and it fascinated Yasmeen immediately. She was caught in his glamour and didn't know what to say.

The embarrassment of being in women's clothing eventually faded away.

"Do I look good in this?"

"You look amazing."

"Shut up!"

Hearing Lucas's familiar voice shocked Michele.

This made no sense at all.

Michele found it hard to believe the beautiful woman in front of her was Lucas in disguise.

She was in awe and the way she stared at Lucas made him feel uncomfortable. So he said, "Stop screaming, and I will let go of you."

Michele nodded immediately.

Lucas let her go.

To be honest, it was a struggling challenge for Lucas to wear women's attire. He tugged at the collar as if doing so would help avoid himself from getting out of breath.

Michele was still staring at Lucas in astonishment and swallowed.

Goodness!

This was the first time she saw a man dressed up as a woman, not to mention that Lucas looked awesome!

"Lucas, are you into cosplay?"

Lucas glanced at her, and then looked outside from the window. He noticed some unknown faces were setting up stalls.

Even though they seemed like they were setting things up, they were actually all looking straight into Yasmeen's room. They didn't look like ordinary small businessmen.

Lucas squinted slightly, and said at ease, "How was your detoxification going?"

“I just get started. It’s going to take a while.”

Michele saw Lucas looking down from the window, she decided to keep her thoughts to herself. She figured Lucas was doing so to look out for Yasmeen, but she still felt a bit bitter at heart.

How come all the good guys that she had a crush on were in love with other women?

Michele was a bit depressed, but there weren’t any struggles. After all, it wasn’t meant to be for her. It would be better to focus only on what you could do rather than what you want. Because there were things you might never get no matter how hard you fight for them.

“Dr. Green, is everything alright? Are you happy with this place?”

Julian Farley walked into the room just now.

Joseph was not pleased with Julian getting in uninvited. He squinted his profound eyes, turned around to lean on the balcony railing, and motioned a hand gesture casually with his hands behind his back. But he did not say a word.

Lucas in the dark was feeling a bit stunned.

That was their unique hand gesture. Joseph was “telling” him to be patient and stay put.

Was Joseph aware that Lucas would come?

Lucas had a slightly surprised smile on his face.

Joseph was a great soldier material, and it was a shame that he wasn’t.

He told everyone to stay put. Instantly everywhere around quieted down.

Joseph wasn't sure if Lucas had seen his hand gesture though. He gave Julian a cold look and said, "You didn't know you should knock before getting in, Mr. Farley?"

Joseph had always been straightforward when he spoke with Julian, as well as with Mr. Frye.

Even though Joseph came prepared, he still felt a bit awkward. He coughed to disguise his embarrassment, "Dr. Green, I'm here for my son today."

"I'm not changing my mind. You have to agree to my terms before I save anyone. I can save your son, but you have to let my family go, my brother Lucas and his future wife included. I won't back down."

Joseph insisted on this.

Julian choked.

There was no way to argue back when Joseph got back at him using his own words.

"So you still refuse to operate on my son, Dr. Green?"

"Negative."

That gave Julian hope. But Joseph whispered, "I just told you my bottom line. You are a smart guy, Mr. Farley, I am sure you know what to do."

Julian went in complete silence.

Joseph figured what was going on in Julian's mind at the moment so he didn't push it. Joseph continued in his lowered voice, "Even if I saved your son, do you really think he would be able to get away the influence of what you and Mr. Frye have done and grow up healthily? Perhaps it wasn't a bad thing at all for your son to die at a young age. At least he won't know anything, neither will he have to put up with judgemental gossips behind his back all his life. How could he survive if Mr. Frye and you were behind bars?"

Joseph's words were a bit harsh. Julian frowned in deep concern.

Joseph wasn't urging him to make a decision now. He just said lightly, "Mr. Farley, go back and sleep on it. I can wait, but I can't say for sure that your son can. Now please, see yourself out. I am taking a rest."

As Joseph was throwing him out, Julian stood up in despair, turned, and walked outside.

It wasn't that he didn't know what Joseph was trying to get at, but it was really hard for him to choose between his father and son.

Mr. Frye didn't have much affection for Julian, however, blood was thicker than water - He never thought about sending his biological father to prison by himself.

But what Joseph had said wasn't wrong. His son was still young, besides, what Mr. Frye and himself had done might be exposed one day. What would happen to him then?

Julian fell into a dilemma.

Joseph didn't care about Julian's struggles. He immediately locked up the door right after Julian went out and signed a hand gesture towards a direction outside the window.

Lucas told the rest of the team to stand by. He hopped on the balcony by himself and went straight into Joseph's bedroom.

Joseph's beautiful eyes went all smiley as soon as he saw Lucas.

“I can’t believe you’ve found me here.”

“Isn’t this part of your plan?”

Lucas was a little upset. He glanced at Joseph, sat down directly on a chair beside him, and said funnily, “Fine, Joseph. You are unbelievable! How could you drug me? I won’t trust anything you pass me from now on.”

Chapter 1826: She's Going to Get Married Some Day

Right after Lucas landed safely, the door of Joseph's bedroom was opened and Mr. Frye walked in with company.

Mr. Frye was observing around in the room as if he was in search of clues and traces. Seeing Joseph standing there with a sneer, Mr. Frye couldn't help but feel a little aggrieved. He could only endure it though.

“Why are you still up, Dr. Green?”

Mr. Frye spoke in embarrassment.

Joseph said coldly, “Right now you've put me under house arrest, but you assume I would have no trouble sleeping. How big-hearted do you expect me to be?”

Mr. Frye was a little ashamed of this.

“Dr. Green, you don't have to clash with me like this, you know, I've treated you as my honorable guest.”

“Don't you feel sorry about saying this? Just come straight to the point and tell me what you want from me.”

Joseph wasn't giving Mr. Frye an easy time, therefore Mr. Frye was pissed off.

The smile on Mr. Frye's face finally faded, and he said unemotionally, “What did Julian speak with you about when he was here just now?”

“Well, he came to beg for my help to treat his son. This is what you are here for, too. Am I right?”

Joseph used the word “beg”, which provoked Mr. Frye. Mr. Frye had a sulky look on.

“Julian begged for your help? How?”

“On his knees. He got the attitude right. Don’t you think?”

Joseph looked at Mr. Frye with a crooked smile.

Mr. Frye’s facial expression seemed funny and uncertain.

He knew Julian’s temperament better than anyone else. Julian seemed obedient, but he was really proud. And there was no way a proud person like Julian would kneel down and beg Joseph for help.

Considering the kid’s situation now, Mr. Frye wasn’t so sure anymore whether Julian would get on his knees for his son. After all, Mr. Frye knew how Julian felt about his child.

On the thought of this, Mr. Frye stopped beating around the bush and spoke, “What does it take for Dr. Green to operate on my grandson?”

“I did tell you what my terms were.”

“You are not going to sugar-coat it anymore, aren’t you, Dr. Green? Do you really think I’m running out of ways to get you to do what I want?”

Chapter 1827: That Didn't Make Sense at All

"Dr. Ashley, may I have the honor to be your surgical assistant?"

Kylie's voice was clear and melodious. It was pleasant to hear her speak.

Ashley heard about Kylie. Kylie wasn't as well-known and popular here, but she had definitely made her name in the medical field abroad in the past few years. In fact, Ashley could see her younger self in Kylie somehow.

"Miss Kylie, it'd be a waste of your talent to be my assistant."

Ashley put on a gentle smile. She seemed easy-going.

Kylie smiled along and said, "Don't worry. I'm trying to do what I'm entrusted to do."

Ashley was surprised. She quickly thought of the relationship between Joseph and Kylie, and then things all added up. Joseph and Kylie were fellow apprentices in medical school.

“I look forward to it.”

“This is the donor kidney sent from Joseph. Let’s start making a surgical plan if Yasmeen is in good condition.”

“Great!”

Ashley had no objection to this. After all, she was going to operate on her beloved daughter.

Kylie and Ashley walked away. Patrick had to wake Yasmeen up. But he decided to wait quietly outside the ward in the hallway instead. He found being the bad guy to go in there and disturb Lucas and Yasmeen would be annoying.

However, Lucas got woken up when Ashley and Patrick walked in. He figured it’d be embarrassing to get caught so he decided to fake sleeping.

Luckily it was his future mother and bother-in-law who walked in instead of anyone else.

It made perfect sense to fake sleeping this way. But Lucas did hold Yasmeen less tightly.

He wasn’t bold enough to get too intimate with Yasmeen whenever his future mother-in-law was around. Anyways, Lucas was always respectful to Ashley in fear.

Yasmeen was still asleep but woozy. But when she felt the arm around her was loosened, she let out moaning and reached out her long leg to wrap around Lucas’s waist.

Lucas was aroused with a hard-on.

He quit faking sleeping and moved Yasmeen’s leg away from him. When he was about to get up, Yasmeen rambled, “Stay in bed a little longer.” Afterward, she wrapped her arm around Lucas’s waist.

Lucas blushed.

Yasmeen’s movement and posture would be a lot easier to handle if it was just the two of them in the room. Unfortunately, they had company.

Chapter 1828: If It Can Be Cured, It's Great

When Yasmeen was feeling rattling and not sure what to do, Michele said with ease, "Well, I was about to go to the bathroom. But a random rat frightened me. Let's go grab some breakfast instead."

Michele didn't even bother to check Edison's facial expressions. She grabbed his arm and headed out. And she slammed the door heavily behind her so Yasmeen wouldn't miss it.

A rat?

Michele called her a rat!

Yasmeen was a little upset. She was actually glad that Michele was kind enough not to tell Edison she was here. So she moved on.

Yasmeen put herself together quickly and went on the way to her ward. She ran towards the end of the hallway and saw Patrick was on the phone. She grabbed Patrick by his hand and walked on.

"Hey, sis. Hold on, I'm on the phone."

"Where's mom?"

Yasmeen didn't know how to deal with Lucas now.

What the heck did she do?

She didn't stare at Lucas's penis like a stupid pervert.

She didn't.

Except that she did. Yasmeen was trying to sort things out in her mind while she was pulling Patrick away.

Seeing Yasmeen acting this way, Patrick knew he wouldn't be able to finish his phone call. He let his sister drag him away and said, "Mom and Kylie were in the office probably discussing your operational plan. By the way, where's my future brother-in-law?"

Patrick now directly called Lucas brother-in-law in front of Yasmeen's face.

Mentioning Lucas, Yasmeen blushed.

She straightly said, "Shut up! Quit nagging like a girl!"

Patrick got a little upset.

Why was wrong with him calling Lucas brother-in-law?

"Mrs. Bradford, I am not sick."

Lucas thought for a while and replied.

The way Ashley looked at him seemed to speak even more volumes now.

Men would typically deny their incompetence.

Whatever it was.

Seeing that Yasmeen had fallen deeply for Lucas, she reluctantly prescribed some medication for him.

"Head to the pharmacy and grab these. Don't forget to take them on time. Do what I said if you truly care about Yasmeen."

Ashley finished the prescription and handed it to Lucas.

Lucas was a little confused, he couldn't help but pause when he heard it was about Yasmeen.

Yasmeen donated a kidney to Lucas, and she was about to have another operation. Could this prescription be for drugs to help with transplant rejection?

Lucas frowned upon the handwriting on the prescription note though. Doctors' handwriting was hard to read.

Lucas gave up. He took the prescription with him. And Ashley said, "Get out and pick up your medication as soon as possible. Don't make Yasmeen worried."

"Sure."

Lucas exited Ashley's office very cleverly.

Seeing Lucas off, Ashley frowned her brows slightly.

How come such a handsome young man was incompetent?

Lucas couldn't figure out what his future mother-in-law meant. He took the prescription to the Pharmacy anyways.

It was a lady on duty at the Pharmacy. When she took a look at the prescription, she couldn't help drifting her eyes to Lucas.

A pretty face like that wasn't competent in his bedroom, was he?

The pharmacy lady signed. Lucas couldn't look straight at her look and gesture of regret.

Was there something wrong with him?

Lucas couldn't believe that lady was sympathizing with him.

The warmth of Lucas's voice faded instantly.

Patrick was trying to hide, however, Lucas's fists always seemed to get him as if Lucas could foresee his move.

Patrick didn't dare to speak out even though he felt terrible and bitter at heart.

And why the heck was Lucas so aggressive and battle-some?

Patrick was wondering if he would pass here?

As soon as Patrick shouted, he felt a pain in his ribs. Lucas’s fist hit him like a hammer and Patrick almost vomited blood.

“I’m out, okay?”

Lucas's voice was cold and indifferent, but it sounded like a trace of suppressed storms, all the anger was condensing, and the prelude movement began like a tornado.

Patrick instantly realized why he was beaten up. He quickly said, “Lucas, you got it. You got me, man! Don’t hit me anymore!”

His older sister was in love with the person in front of him, and he even needed Lucas’s help with his career. He couldn’t afford to offend Lucas.

Patrick was no match for Lucas. Even if he was, he wouldn’t want to fight back. But Lucas didn’t show any mercy. His fists were in place, and Lucas left no trace on Patrick’s body. People couldn't tell that he was beaten, but he could feel severe pain all over his body as if all of his bones had been dismantled and reorganized.

Patrick almost cried.

Lucas’s beating made Patrick scream. Lucas finally got the anger out of his chest.

Lucas said coldly, “I don’t want to see your face this following three months.”

“I am not sure about that. If you and my sister get married, I will be there.”

Patrick rambled immediately.

Lucas frowned his brows slightly. What Patrick last said did make Lucas feel a bit more comfortable.
