Chapter 281: Zoe Needed to Have Surgery

Samuel was badly hurt, and he went into a coma shortly after getting on the plane.

Nicole held Samuel's hand, feeling his temperature drop and her heart ached with unspeakable pain.

He saved her again.

Why was she a drag on him every time?

If she had learned some skills, if she had been more alert, this wouldn't have happened.

She always said she'd stand by Samuel, and had to be good enough for him, but every time there was a danger, he would save her.

Why was she so lame?

Nicole felt so guilty.

Finn wanted to say something, but in the end, he didn't say anything and quickly flew to the Seapolis City.

Lucas was unusually quiet, not even like a child.

His eyes flickered with tears. He looked at Samuel blankly, and even tugged at his sleeves.. That worried look was so distressed.

Nicole remembered what Samuel told her before he passed away.

He had to save Zoe.

But how could she let him die for her daughter's sake?

The plane quickly arrived at the military hospital, where hospital personnel had been arranged.

Jason had mixed feelings when he saw Nicole. Mrs. Don was about to say something to Nicole, but Nicole didn't have time to talk with her now.

She followed the stretcher straight to the hospital.

Audrey stopped Mrs. Don when she saw Nicole so busy.

"We had better go back. I'm afraid she doesn't have the time or the mood to talk to us now. The first thing is to ensure Samuel's safety. I am relieved to see that she is safe."

Mrs. Don had no choice but to do so. Besides, she was tired as well due to her old age.

Jason stayed, but Finn gave him Zama and Petty.

"Mr. Don, Miss Nicole said that there are still Zama's men in Green family in the Seapolis City. Please don't let them escape."

"Don't worry."

Jason really wanted to stay and take care of Nicole. He was worried that Nicole couldn't handle this on her own, but Jason didn't feel ease to let others keep an eye on Zama and Petty.

He took Zama and Petty back to the Don family.

The hospital was quiet again.

Nicole was nervous when she saw the operating room lights were on.

The blood was here ahead of time, but Nicole didn't know how Samuel was now.

Nicole kept walking back and forth, and felt restless.

She always reminded of the sight of Samuel protecting her from the knife.

Suddenly, Nicole punched the wall, which scared Lucas.

"Mommy?"

Lucas called out nervously.

Chapter 282: I want Samuel

Nicole never expected to see Soseph here.

Nicole thought she was hallucinating the moment Soseph turned to look at her.

“Soseph?”

Nicole walked over, confused.

Soseph wasn't quite the same as she was a while ago.

Dressed in jeans and a leisure shirt, she looked particularly rebellious, with a touch of youthful arrogance.

Soseph smiled when she saw Nicole's surprised expression.

“We meet again.”

“What brought you here?”

Nicole struggled to suppress her feelings and doubts, and spoke faintly.

“Do you need money? Or do you need some help? I'm afraid I don't have time to help you now, and I've got a few things to deal with here, so...”

Before Nicole could finish, Soseph waved her hand and said, “Don't think of me as a beggar. I'm not here to blackmail you.”

After hearing Soseph delivered such harsh words, Nicole was momentarily at a loss as to what to say.

Because of Samuel, her relationship with Soseph had soured, and now it was a bit awkward to meet her.

Nicole had been thinking that she might never see Soseph again in her life, but they met again at such short intervals.

Samuel asked her to leave the Seapolis City, and apparently, she didn't plan on doing so, and neither Samuel nor Nicole really had the time or attention to figure out where Soseph was going.

“What do you want to see me about?”

Nicole took a deep breath and spoke directly.

Instead of beating around the bush, it had better to ask directly. There was no emotion between her and Soseph.

Soseph looked at Nicole, took out a diagnosis from her pocket and handed it to Nicole.

“Look at this first.”

Nicole was surprised.

It was a bit like the mistress who took a pregnancy test to force the wife to give up her status.

Nicole felt a little silly.

It was strange that such an idea should have entered her mind at that moment.

“What!” Nicole's voice was stern.

She could agree to anything but Samuel, even if it would cost her everything.

Soseph whispered, “I want Samuel!”

“You want to die, do you? Do you really think I'm not going to kill you?”

Nicole felt like she was going crazy.

She never knew she would be cornered by a girl of eighteen.

Trying to get her to let Samuel be with others was like killing her.

After so many years of separation with Samuel, she still couldn't forget him, let alone now that he and she were more closely related.

But Soseph didn't care about Nicole's anger, or even her power at all.

She whispered, “I only want him for three months! Just three months! I don't need him to be with me the whole life! Nicole, is it too much for me to donate my kidney in exchange of being with him for three months?”

Nicole was stunned.

“What did you say?”

Soseph freed from Nicole's hand, looking at the distant and said, “I am an orphan since child. I don't know what warmth is, let alone the taste of being loved. When I saw Samuel treated you, so kind, I am particularly eager to that warmth, and to be the apple of someone's eye. I know who I am, and I know that a man like Samuel is beyond the reach of a person like me, but so what? The god has given me such a chance, why don't I grasp it?”

Her words left Nicole surprised, but before she could say anything, Soseph went on, “If relationship is strong enough, you will not be afraid of three months of me getting involved in. If he falls in love with me in three months, I'm sorry, I won't let him go. But my request is only for being with him for three months. He must be with me for three months, and you must not visit him, nor see him. That is my requirement.”

Soseph looked straight at Nicole.

Nicole's mind was in a mess.

She couldn't imagine how there could be such a woman as Soseph in the world.

“You could choose any man. Why do you want him?”

“I just loved him, and I couldn't think of a better man in the Seapolis City than Samuel. I can only blame you for letting me meet him.”

Soseph talked so brazenly that Nicole really wanted to slap her, but now she found herself powerless.

“Samuel is not an object,” she whispered, trying to keep herself calm. “He has his own mind. Even if I have promised you, it doesn't mean he will leave me or the children alone.”

“That is my business, and it has nothing to do with you. Promise me not to come to him within three months, and not to contact him or see him.”

Soseph's words made Nicole have no idea what to say.

To tell the truth, there was no difference between three months and a lifetime, but what choice did she have now?

Laurel called Nicole again.

Chapter 284: Not Hitting Women Is Not My Rule

Nicole didn't talk to Jason on the phone, but on her WeChat.

Seeing that Nicole was replying messages on her phone, Soseph said coldly, "It looks like you won't be too lonely for the next three months. You still have a lot of people who care about you even Samuel isn't here."

Nicole's eyes were cold, looking like a sword heading straight for Soseph.

"You'd better stop mentioning about the deal, or..."

"Or what? Don't you need my kidney?"

Soseph was arrogant, and Nicole was so depressed that she wanted to jump out of the car.

But she had to suppress her anger!

So, she could only be bullied by Soseph, right?

Nicole looked down angrily and continued to tell Jason about what she had heard from Petty and Zama's conversation, so as to distract herself from being angry. Otherwise, she was afraid that even if she didn't jump off the car, she would kick Soseph off.

Jason was also worried after hearing Nicole's words.

"Don't worry about the operation. I'll send someone to the hospital downtown to have a check."

Nicole disagreed with Jason.

"Jason, we have no time to check the doctors. I have a doctor who knows Zoe's illness conditions very well. I can ask him to operate for Zoe, but as for the man in the hospital, I need your help."

As soon as she had sent Zoe back, Nicole had asked the doctor who she knew to have an operation for Zoe.

That doctor was Mike's man, and Mike was Samuel's best friend, so he would definitely be highly responsible for the operation.

But Nicole didn't expect that there would be so many things happened. The doctor was still here, fortunately, but downtown hospitals wouldn't let an outside doctor do the surgery.

Hearing Nicole say this, Jason whispered, "I'll take care of it. I'll call the dean right away. When you get there, don't do anything until I arrive. By the way, are there enough people over there to take care of Samuel? Shall I send someone over?"

"No, there's my man and Lucas over there. Besides, I've already called Jacob, and Jacob will be there soon. Jason, let's meet at the downtown hospital."

After that, she hung up the phone and saw Soseph staring at her for a long time, not knowing what she was on her mind.

Seeing Nicole look at her, Soseph looked away.

Silent all the way, they soon arrived at the downtown hospital.

Chapter 285: I Believe You

It was just a few days later since she hadn't met Zoe, but Zoe had lost much weight. Her eyes were sunken, and her lips were even bloodless.

Tears welled up Nicole's eyes.

"Zoe..."

She gently called her and dared not raise her voice, as if afraid of waking her up.

Laurel saw Nicole coming in. She stood up and patted her on the shoulder, and then went out with Joseph without saying anything.

Words were powerless at that moment, and no mother could hear anything of comfort.

Nicole came to Zoe's bed and took her hand in hers.

Zoe's hands were cold, and even her breath was faint. If she didn't listen to it carefully, she might think that Zoe had gone.

The feeling that she could lose her daughter anytime made Nicole's heart tightened and now, even as she had said that she could not trade her love for saving Zoe, she didn't care to lose everything as long as she could save Zoe.

Zoe was her child. From the day she was born, Zoe hadn't seen what the world outside looked like. How could she let Zoe leave so young?

Nicole kept reminding the past five years of her life. Zoe, who was so naive, lively and sensible, was not energetic now. She, as a mother, could do nothing. Now the only person who could save Zoe was standing in front of her. She had no choice now.

Nicole gently stroked Zoe's dry and yellow hair which looked particularly malnourished.

Thinking of a small child to suffer so much, Nicole fell down her hairs.

Perhaps sensing Nicole's arrival, Zoe woke up.

She looked at Nicole's tearful face and spoke weakly, "Mom..."

Nicole dried her eyes and gave her daughter her best smile.

"Honey, do you feel hurt?"

Zoe shook her head, looked at Nicole and asked in a low voice, "Is daddy here?"

Nicole's heart tightened and she said with a smile, "Daddy's got something to do and hasn't come back, but daddy cares about you. You are going to be fine.”

“Mommy, are you worried about me? I seem to see my brother. He said he would bring mommy home. I don't know if I was dreaming. I miss my brother.”

Jason had mixed feelings when he met Nicole again, but now he knew that Nicole's mind was all about Zoe.

He quickly arranged everything. Seeing how worried Nicole looked, he whispered, "Don't be afraid. We will stand by you."

Nicole looked at Jason and felt he was always so nice, but she didn't know he was her uncle. She didn't know what to say, only nodded.

In fact, sometimes her personality was a bit like Xander, and she was reserved and didn't know what to say.

"Your mom wanted to come here when she heard about what you've been through, but someone has to be in the Don family. You know, Zama and Petty are still at the Don family, so..."

Nicole was taken aback by Jason's words.

She hadn't been able to see Audrey as her mother now, so she was stunned for a few seconds. She just nodded without saying anything.

Soseph had changed into a hospital gown and was lying in the operating bed.

"Wait a minute!"

Laurel walked over. She looked at Soseph in the bed and said to the doctor, "You have to protect this girl. My granddaughter needs a kidney to survive, but the girl is still young. Please do what you can to make sure there are no aftereffects."

Soseph was stunned, her eyes slightly moist.

This was the first person to treat her so well all these years.

Whether it was because she was about to save her granddaughter or not, that attitude touched Soseph.

And this woman was Samuel's mother!

Soseph wanted to be with them all the more.

"Thank you, Mrs. Green. I'll be all right." Soseph smiled at Laurel.

"It is I who should thank you."

Laurel nodded and released Soseph.

Nicole looked at Soseph with a mixed expression, but she didn't know what to say.

At this point, Soseph laughed.

"Don't worry, I'll be all right. I am strong."

Nicole nodded and said nothing.

Soseph and Zoe were wheeled into the operating room at the same time. Nicole was nervous as the lights were on.

She would be alright, right? Nicole had no idea.

It was not only a near-death experience for Zoe, but also hers.

Jason wanted to comfort Nicole when he saw her so distressed, but he didn't know what to say.

Joseph was very obedient and stood beside Laurel, silent like a big child, with his eyes fixed on the operating room.

Chapter 287: Let Me Rest on Your Shoulder for A While Nicole was getting nervous.

She quickly rang the emergency bell, but her hands were shaking and she kept praying that Zoe would be safe.

By the time the doctors and nurses arrived, Nicole was still unresponsive that Zoe had been wheeled into the operating room.

At night in the hospital, the hallway was quiet, and Nicole was increasingly upset.

At that moment, she wished that Samuel could be with her. At least she would not be so afraid. She was like a sail in the sea, not knowing where she should go nor did she know what Zoe would face. This feeling made her fidgety.

Suddenly another glass of hot milk was handed over.

Nicole looked back and saw Tim standing behind her with a smile on his face.

"Hanging out on the porch in the middle of the night? Your daughter's not all right yet?"

Nicole shook her head. "The operation is successful," she said. "But she has a fever. It's probably a sign of rejection."

"Have some milk, calm down. It will be all right. She's your daughter, Nicole. She must be as strong as you are. Now she is fighting with her illness, and you must not fall down first."

At this point, Tim was a little serious.

Nicole nodded. She knew that these words might be comforting, but they were reasonable.

She should have faith in her daughter.

Taking the milk from Tim, Nicole took a sip of it, still not knowing what it tasted like.

Her eyes had been fixed on the operating room, feeling blank. She knew that the blank feeling could only be filled by Samuel, but now she did not know how Samuel was now. She hadn't had time to ask about it.

Tim sat down next to Nicole.

He looked at the operating room lights and whispered, "You know what? I've been through so much like this."

"Yes?"

Nicole was so worried about Zoe that she didn't hear him very well. She just responded subconsciously.

Tim didn't know whether Nicole was hearing him, he just continued, "That happened a lot when my mom went crazy,' he said to himself. I was young then, and my dad stayed with me at first, and then I became alone. My dad abandoned my mom, saying that she was a crazy woman, and always self-harmed. He didn't mind if she died or not. From then on, I will sit alone on the porch, watching the operating room lights flickering, but never saw my mother come out. It was quite hopeless at times."

This was the first time Nicole had heard Tim talk about his mother, and despite the rumors, few would dare provoke the Louis family, and not many people dared to report anything.

"Your mother..."

Since then, she'd been hurting herself. I've always felt that my dad and I were the ones who made my mom the way time, and now she didn't know how to comfort him. "How's mother now?" asked Nicole.

She cut her wrist last time, but I found it in time, or I will have lost my mother now. My dad used to say that my mom has lived a life as if she is dead, but it's not the same to me. My mother is alive, and I still have someone to love. But if she is really gone, I

She rubbed her eyes hard, thinking she was having a dream.

How did Samuel come here?

Didn't he just have the operation a little while ago?

And Lucas said Samuel needed to rest and recuperation. Why would he be here?

Nicole thought she was hallucinating.

How much she missed Samuel!

She missed him so much after only one day of being away from him.

With a wry smile, Nicole turned her head again, feeling helpless.

Samuel expected Nicole to push Tim away and quickly came to him, but Nicole was only slightly surprised when she saw him, and then looked away as if she had not seen him and allowed Tim to continue to lean on her shoulder.

From where he saw, Tim and Nicole were too intimate.

He knew Nicole wouldn't cheat on him, but Tim's feelings for Nicole were well known.

Now Tim was so in love with Nicole, couldn't Nicole know about it?

Samuel flared up.

He trotted up to Nicole.

The huge shadow made Nicole and Tim look up at the same time.

Nicole was somewhat surprised to see Samuel again.

Tim sat up lazily and said softly, "Don't get me wrong. She is helpless sitting here alone, so I accompany her."

"You can get lost now.'

There was a chill in Samuel's voice. And Nicole, no matter how stupid she was, knew Samuel was angry.

It was no wonder that Samuel didn't look well when seeing some man lean against his wife in the middle of the night.

"Tim was just passing by," Nicole said, "He didn't mean anything."

It was fine if Nicole had kept her mouth shut, but now she was speaking for Tim, Samuel looked even worse.

Tim, who knew Samuel's temper, slowly stood up and said, "You don't think your wife would do anything behind your back, do you?"

Chapter 289: That's My Respect for Her

Nicole tried to push Samuel away, but she didn't have the strength, and Samuel just held her tightly. Nicole was helpless as he held her in his arms like a scoundrel.

Samuel sensed that Nicole had given up struggling and he kissed her softly.

He was jealous. Although he knew there was nothing going on between Nicole and Tim, he just couldn't stop himself from feeling jealous.

Nicole gradually was indulged in Samuel's kiss.

As they released each other and were panting, Nicole leaned on Samuel's shoulder and asked him wearily, "You hurt so badly; how did you get here?"

"I am worried about you and Zoe." Samuel meant that.

Lucas was exhausted and fell asleep after Samuel was out of danger, while Samuel left Finn in the hospital to take care of Lucas, and he drove over alone.

Nicole was a little moved, but she didn't know what to say. It happened so quickly and unexpectedly that there was no time to negotiate. And now if she were to talk to Samuel about her deal with Soseph, Samuel would probably anger to death.

Forget it. When Samuel got better, she would talk to him.

When Nicole was silent, Samuel thought she was tired and worried. "Just take some rest, he said, "I'll call you when Zoe comes out.'

"How can I sleep?" Nicole didn't dare to sleep.

How could she sleep with so many things piled up that almost crushed her down?

Thought she was sleepy, she wouldn't sleep.

Samuel sighed, and took her in his arms.

"Everything's going to be fine, and Zoe's going to be fine."

"I hope so."

At this moment, both of their minds were totally on Zoe.

The lights in the operating room finally went out.

As Nicole tried to get up, she saw darkness and nearly fell, but Samuel helped her up.

"Sit down. Don't worry."

But Nicole couldn't wait to know the result.

She stood up slowly, letting Samuel help her to the door of the operating room.

The door opened, and the doctor was tired. They were shocked to see Samuel here, and still greeted him and said to Nicole,

"Don't worry. There was just rejection, and we thought that the operation might fail, but in the process of emergency treatment, Zoe's cells began to automatically accept the new kidney, and now she is out of danger. I can be proud to say she's had a really successful operation!"

Nicole burst into tears at the doctor's words.

Chapter 290: You Are My Only Wife

"You respect her by asking for her advice for such a small request, but do you know whether she respects you or not?"

What Soseph said made Samuel's eyes cold. If it wasn't for the fact that she saved Zoe's life, Samuel would turn around and go.

"There's a lot you don't understand about marriage and I don't need her respect. She is a woman and has the right to be willful. I would let her do whatever she wants and I am willing to spoil her, but I have to treat her with respect because she is my wife and the one I want to share my life with. She can be like a child in front of me, like a princess, but I have my own principles.”

Hearing Samuel's words, Soseph felt sad and angry.

"Well, you can ask her, but I don't think she'll refuse."

That was her agreement with Nicole!

But Soseph wouldn't say that to Samuel.

Samuel looked at Soseph, lost in thought and then asked, "I heard you're an orphan?"

"Yes!"

"What's your name?"

"Soseph." she responded lightly.

In fact, she did not know what her name was. A crazy woman took her as the woman's own daughter and called her Soseph, and she thought it was pleasant to hear, so she used this name.

Soseph did not know why Samuel asked so.

Samuel asked again, "What's your last name?"

"I don't know. How could an orphan have a last name?"

Soseph let out a wry smile, and felt the pain started to hit her all over.

Sure enough, one couldn't stop the pain by will.

Samuel suddenly thought of Nicole as he saw Soseph frown and hold back the pain.

Nicole also withstood the pain.

He frowned slightly and said in a low voice, "How about I give you a surname?"

"Green?" asked Soseph.

Laurel had said so, but Soseph wasn't happy about it.

If she had become Samuel's god-sister, she couldn't have any further relationship with Samuel.

Samuel shook his head and said, "Bush."

"Bush?"

Soseph was a little confused.

Samuel then said, "You are saved by Nicole, and you saved our daughter, to tell the truth, this is a kind of fate. You'll take her last name, Bush, and you'll call her sister. We'll treat you like one of my family. From now on, your name is Soseph Bush."

"Soseph Bush?"

Soseph pondered on the name and suddenly smiled.
