Chapter 571 The Secrets of the Green Family

"Kemp, what do you mean?"

Samuel's face was pale.

Kemp looked at Samuel and smiled, "Mr. Green is so smart. You must know what I mean."

Samuel's hands tightly clenched together and the blue veins stood out.

He had never knelt before anyone. Kemp's requirement was obviously meant to damage his morale.

"What? Mr. Green doesn't want to do it?"

Kemp was gleeful to watch him hesitate.

Samuel felt mad. If it was in the past, he would have gone forward and beaten him up. But he couldn't do it now because Nicole was in danger.

Compared to Nicole's life, his dignity and pride were not that important.

Thinking of this, Samuel coldly glanced at Kemp and slowly knelt.

Kemp was shocked. He didn't expect Samuel to sacrifice his dignity and pride for a woman.

"Samuel, is a woman worthy of this? Look at you. Do you still look like the king of Seapolis?"

Samuel said indifferently, "I am not the King of Seapolis now. I am just a husband, an ordinary man, and a person who is desperate to save his wife. So, if you are satisfied now, please give me the medical ingredients I need."

Samuel knew that he didn't have much time left.

Satan King was right. He could send people to the black market to buy these things, but they were too precious and difficult to find. He wouldn't be able to collect all of them until tomorrow. And Nicole was running out of time.

Kemp had everything here, so it didn't matter if he lost some face, dignity or pride.

To save Nicole, he would even give Kemp his life.

Kemp stared at Samuel as if doubting whether he was the most influential man in Seapolis.

"You can do anything for a woman. Then, Samuel, can you give me what I want?"

Samuel stiffened.

"I will give you the ownership of the Green Family's oil mines in Saudi Arabia, as long as you give me the medical ingredients I want."

Samuel said expressionless.

"Mr. Green, do you still need to consider it? The oil mines are the lifeline and foundation of the Green family. Without them, your family can barely reach the upper class, not to mention the leading position in Seapolis. You don't want to lose the hundred years' inheritance, do you? But the vehicle technique is different. You are talented and outstanding. I believe that you will be even more proficient in car making in the future, right? I don't understand. Why do you hesitate for something that you can easily come up with? Isn't it ridiculous?"

Samuel was angry.

"Is the belief of our people so ridiculous in your eyes? If you just need me to make a car for you, I'll do it. Why do you want the one I designed in the army?"

Samuel did not know how that design got leaked, but now it was not just about the Green family. It was related to national interest and military secrets. He would not betray the military no matter what. This was his bottom line and principle as an ex-soldier.

Kemp's face immediately fell.

"What do you mean? Do you think that design drawing is more important than the Green family and your wife?"

"National interest overrides anything else!"

Samuel coldly looked at Kemp and said, "You won't understand, nor will you feel the supreme sense of honor and mission given by the country."

"Mr. Green is really a good soldier. However, are you a good husband? Are you a good son? Are you a good father?"

What he said was like a knife lunging at Samuel's heart.

He was a good soldier. He was discharged from the army for the design. He would sacrifice everything of the Green family for the blueprints. He had always felt that this was his duty as a soldier for people. It was his responsibility. But now, he felt bitter because it was related to Nicole's life.

He couldn't change his faith or give up his beloved one. Such dilemma was a torment for anyone.

What Kemp said shook Samuel's faith.

Soldiers' wives had to give up a lot of things for their husbands, so they were respected by people. However, Nicole did not know anything, and she was no longer the wife of a soldier. Samuel had been discharged from the military, but he was still doing what a soldier should do.

Seeing that Samuel's expression had changed, Kemp hurriedly said, "How much benefit has the country given you? What do you need now? You are the leader of Seapolis. You have a lot of wealth that people dream for. You have a beautiful wife and two lovely children. Your family should be very happy, shouldn't it? Why would you destroy your family for that useless belief? "

Samuel suddenly felt sorry for Nicole. It was unfair for her to go through misery with him. However, as an ex-soldier, he knew what he should do.

He looked at Kemp and said word by word, "Give me the medical ingredients to save my wife. And I will consider giving you the blueprints."

"Really?"

Kemp was overjoyed.

Samuel said coldly, "Have I ever broken my promise?"

"Alright. Remember what you just said!"

Although Samuel hesitated, Kemp felt that no one could sacrifice his family for worthless beliefs. Besides, Samuel had a good reputation and he would never go back on his promise, so Kemp believed him.

He had someone bring those precious medical ingredients over and personally handed them to Samuel.

"Mr. Green, after Mrs. Green recovers, I hope you will fulfill your promise."

Samuel nodded and left with the medical ingredients.

Chapter 573 Do I Need to Do It Myself

Samuel went slightly pale. If it was really the Miller family in his mind, it would be quite troublesome.

What was the relationship between Allen and the Miller family? Why would he change Nicole's look into that of Adela?

Samuel was not clear about all of this, but he had no time for an investigation now and could only figure it out later.

Laurence went to look for Joseph, and Karina sat down beside him.

He was worried about Nicole and couldn't calm down at all. Seeing Karina sit down, he threw a glance at her.

Karina took out a pen and wrote on a piece of paper. "I'm sorry. It is because of me that she didn't save you in time. I asked her to punish Fiona of the Emperor Hotel first before telling her your whereabouts. It's all my fault."

"Fiona? What did she do to you?"

Samuel looked at Karina. He had always felt that a girl like her was sensible enough, so it must be that Fiona did something unacceptable so that she would do this. But he wanted to know what Fiona had done to her.

Karina told him that Fiona almost killed her, and it was Nicole who saved her. Therefore, she had a mix of feelings, both guilty and self-condemned.

She looked in the direction of the operating room and wrote, "If anything happens to her, I'll die with her."

"She'll be fine. Don't think too much. Go back and rest first."

Samuel knew that Karina felt bad and didn't blame her.

Karina wanted to say something, but she finally left quietly.

Samuel suddenly felt a little cold when he was alone in the corridor. It killed him to see Nicole like this.

He looked in the direction of the operating room and remembered the five years he spent with her, feeling worried and scared again.

Satan King would definitely save Nicole!

He was sure about it, wasn't he?

Samuel comforted himself.

The operation lasted 14 or 15 hours, and Samuel waited outside without eating or drinking. He didn't care about how he looked in front of others with stubble covering his face.

Laurence came back with Joseph.

Seeing Samuel, Joseph cried and said, "Uncle, I'm sorry, it's all my daddy's fault and I'll make amends for what he did. Why not you let me get medical training from that woman? Besides, that's really what I want to do and I'm not interested in doing business at all. When I return to the Green's, Daddy will definitely force me to study business, but I hate it. Uncle, I don't want to see Daddy turn against you. Please let me stay here. "

Hearing this, Samuel felt extremely sad.

He brought up the child alone, who actually became so depressed without being as happy as before.

Samuel put Joseph in his lap and asked in a low voice, "Do you know what it means if you're away from home for ten years? You can no longer do whatever you want with nobody waiting on you. Perhaps you even have to take care of Satan King. Have you really thought about it?"

"Yes, I have. Mommy said that only by suffering the hardships can I rise above the ordinary. I've been living under your protection for so long, so it's time for me to be independent."

What Joseph said made Samuel more grieved.

Samuel's face suddenly changed.

"Samuel."

Seeing the look on his face, Vincent wanted to say something, but he didn't know how.

He paused for a moment and then said, "I did it. I did it all."

Samuel looked at him as if he did not know him.

He remained silent with calm eyes, which panicked Vincent a little.

"Samuel, don't you ask me why I would do this?"

"I think you have a reason, but Vincent, no matter what it is, you cannot use it as an excuse to hurt your family."

After saying this, Samuel left.

Vincent watched him leave and couldn't speak for a moment.

Seeing Jacob here, he frowned and felt slightly restless intuitively, but he said nothing and directly walked out.

Jacob followed Samuel to the study.

"What is the result of the test?"

Samuel turned his back to Jacob and looked at the sky outside.

The sky was cloudless and clear, but Samuel felt upset and troubled.

Jacob didn't say anything and directly gave the test result to Samuel.

Samuel's hand trembled. He took a deep breath and took it.

The DNA test result came as a shock to him.

"How is this possible? How can this be?"

Samuel abruptly turned to look at Jacob.

Jacob whispered, "This was tested by Mr. Blair, and then a foreign authority again. The results were the same."

Samuel tightened his grip on the test result with veins standing out on the back of his hand.

"Sure enough, he is not Vincent! Then who is he? Where did Vincent go? Why does he look exactly the same as Vincent?"

None of Samuel's questions could be answered.

Jacob stood there quietly.

He knew how brokenhearted Samuel felt now.

Samuel had always thought that Vincent had died five years ago and was overwhelmed with joy when seeing him come back. But now, the DNA test showed that he was not Vincent. It was somewhat hard for Samuel to get over the shock.

He rushed out of the study and went straight to Laurel's room.

Samuel suddenly looked back, but seeing Nicole remain unconscious, he asked with some uncertainty, "Gabrielle, did you see Nicole's fingers move just now?"

"She won't wake up so soon. She is too weak now, and just had a major operation, so she won't wake up until this time tomorrow. Mr. Green, I know you're anxious and worried about Nicole's health. Don't worry, there will be no problem with the operation. She will wake up sooner or later."

Gabrielle comforted Samuel, looked at Nicole, and then left with her medical kit.

After seeing Gabrielle go, Samuel came back without seeing Nicole and immediately panicked.

"Nicole! Nicole!"

Samuel shouted madly. He even wanted to run out to look for her, but the bathroom door opened and Nicole popped her head out.

"I'm here!"

Nicole looked at Samuel affectionately with her beautiful eyes. Seeing her, Samuel felt as if he was dreaming.

"You're freaking me out!"

He quickly walked forward and hugged Nicole tightly.

The touch of her skin made Samuel tremble slightly all over.

Nicole knew that he was frightened.

To be honest, she didn't even know that she could survive, stand in front of Samuel safe and sound, and even spend the rest of her life with him.

"Sorry, I made you worry."

Nicole patted Samuel's shoulder gently.

Samuel whispered, "If you dare to do this again, I will break your legs so that you have to depend on me for the rest of your life."

"Do you have the heart to do that?"

Nicole smiled mischievously, and Samuel immediately felt helpless.

"Then I'll break my legs and blind myself so that I can't see and chase after you. Is that okay?"

"What are you talking about?"

Hearing him say this, Nicole couldn't help but frown.

"Are you feeling well? Gabrielle just left, and I'll call her back."

While speaking, Samuel was about to walk out when he was grabbed by Nicole.

"You don't have to. I feel good. You stay here with me."

After hovering between life and death this time, Nicole panicked. She could not bear to die alone.

She wanted to stay alive, to accompany her husband and her children. And she wanted to watch them grow up, get married, and have children. This was just the beginning of her life, wasn't it?

"OK, I'll be here with you."

Samuel held Nicole's hand tightly and pulled her out of the bathroom.

They sat on the bed. Nicole leaned in Samuel's arms and asked worriedly, "Have you had Blair check your nerves? How about the hypnosis?"

Samuel smiled mysteriously and told Nicole to start eating.

At this point, Nicole did not want to think too much. After they finished the meal quietly, Samuel carried her into the car and turned on the air conditioner.

"How are you feeling now? Is it still cold?"

Because of Nicole's previous health condition, even now, Samuel still did not dare to let her expose to the cold temperature.

Nicole shook her head and said, "No, it's not."

"You should wear more clothes."

As he said, he took off his coat and draped it over Nicole's shoulder.

Smelling Samuel's unique aura and enjoying the warmth of this moment, Nicole wished the time would slow down.

"Where are you taking me?"

"You'll know when we get there."

Samuel kept it mysterious.

Nicole did not ask again. She leaned against her seat and watched Samuel drive, remaining silent.

Actually, this felt good.

If she could spend the rest of her life like this, Nicole would be satisfied. She wasn't greedy.

The car drove out of the Green's mansion.

Nicole found this road somewhat familiar, and she frowned.

Wasn't this the villa where she had been taken after being kidnapped by Chuck?

Nicole looked at Samuel.

Was he taking her to Chuck's villa?

For what? To meet Mr. Bates?

Or did Samuel want to show her what he had given to Mr. Bates?

Nicole couldn't figure out the answer. She looked at Samuel, but she couldn't read any emotion from Samuel's calm face.

Usually, this meant that Samuel was not in a good mood.

Others might not know this, but as someone loved Samuel so much, she knew him very well. To outsiders, Samuel was always serious and cold, but Nicole knew that the angrier he was, the calmer he looked. When he was furious, he would act as if nothing had happened.

In other words, Samuel was angry at the moment.

Why?

What was he angry about?

Was he angry that Chuck had kidnapped her or that the family doctor had given her that medicine?

Nicole suddenly felt nervous.

"Samuel, are you...?"

Samuel hushed her.

Samuel turned to smile at Nicole, "I'm driving. Please don't chat with me. We'll talk when we get there."

Nicole was surprised.

He smiled at her, and his eyes were filled with tenderness. Could it be that she had misread the situation? Maybe Samuel wasn't angry.

"I can't believe that you're with Vincent! Was it staged when you were captured by Vincent's people back then?"

Nicole was agitated.

Samuel held her hand tightly and said, "Don't be agitated, darling. It's already over. Alright?"

Nicole suddenly felt like a fool.

She had always stayed alert, yet she got deceived by them.

"I'm so stupid."

Nicole blamed herself.

It broke Samuel's heart to see her blame herself, and he said, "It's not your fault. Vincent has studied psychology, and he knows how to find people's weakness and use it to his advantage. He and Chuck cooperated and played the good cop and the bad cop. Even others couldn't spot their trick, let alone you."

"You're just saying this to make me feel better."

Nicole was still upset.

Samuel was surprised before he said smilingly, "Yes, I'm saying this to make you feel better. Will you please do me a favor and cheer up?"

His humble tone somehow amused Nicole.

"Don't dote on me so much. You'll spoil me."

"Why not? Doting on you is the most important thing I'm going to do from now on."

Samuel whispered sweet nothings to Nicole so frequently that it made her feel uncomfortable sometimes.

"There are so many people here. Stop it."

"Did you guys hear anything?"

Samuel asked with a loud voice, and everyone in the living room shook their heads.

Come on. They didn't want to lose their jobs.

Nicole felt her cheeks burning instantly, and she wished to find a hole to hide herself.

Well....

They were in the middle of a serious interrogation, but Samuel just turned it into a love confession scene.

Nicole didn't even know how to react.

Chuck was also shocked.

Was this really Samuel, who was known as Stone-faced Lucifer?

Or was he mistaken?

Seeing that Chuck was in a daze, Jacob gave him a kick.

"What are you looking at? Hurry up and answer the question."

"Okay." Chuck finally came to his senses and confessed to Nicole, "Yes, it was all staged. Mr. Vincent told me to go to find you at the amusement park. Then, I pretended that I was monitored by his people and then taken away by them as we planned. We did this to make you trust me and eventually give us what we wanted."

"What did you want from me? You told me that you wanted to take me to Mr. Bates."

Nicole realized that she had lived in their lies from the very beginning.

Chuck responded in a low voice, "Mr. Bates didn't know I was doing this. Mr. Vincent promised me that as long as I take you to meet Mr. Bates and get him what he wanted, he would give me a sum of money and even arrange for me to go abroad."

"Mr. Bates has always been nice to you all these years, hasn't he?"

Samuel said in an emotionless tone.

Chuck looked down and said, "I owe a debt because of gambling."

"What's going on?"

Samuel frowned slightly. Obviously, he was disgruntled to be bothered.

The bodyguard immediately went out to take a look, but got pushed back by someone.

"Samuel, what do you mean?"

It was Vincent.

Samuel glanced at him without saying anything. He put down the grapes in his hand and said softly to Nicole, "Are you through?"

"Yes."

Nicole did not know how to treat Vincent now.

Although she already knew that Samuel had fallen out with Vincent, they were brothers. She didn't know how to spare Samuel's feelings.

Just as she was racking her brains, Samuel stood up and looked at Vincent.

"Why do you come?"

"Samuel, are you going to start a war with me?"

Vincent pulled a long face.

Nicole did not know what Samuel had done, but she could tell Vincent was raged.

"Start a war? Do you think you're good enough to start a war with me?"

Samuel looked coldly at Vincent.

Vincent was taken aback.

He noticed that there was no warmth at all in Samuel's eyes, which were as cold as a sharp dagger, overwhelming him.

"Samuel, don't you underestimate me?"

"Nonsense. Let's talk later. I don't have time to argue with you today. Get lost now! Don't disturb us."

Samuel said rudely.

Nicole sensed the difference in the way Samuel treated Vincent.

Without saying anything, she sat there and tidied up the grape seeds.

Vincent's lips twitched. When he saw Nicole, he whispered, "Nicole, are you feeling better?"

"I told you to get lost. Didn't you hear me?"

Samuel suddenly raised his voice.

The atmosphere turned explosive.

"How can you be so good?"

His compliment embarrassed Nicole.

"I'm not so good, and I just don't want you to be a guilty person. I know that you like to be a soldier. If you could make your own choice, you would definitely not devote yourself to the scheming business world. You like to be a soldier, don't you? I always wondered why you suddenly retired from military service since you had done a great job in the military command. They said that you retired because you suffered an injury in a crackdown campaign on drug trafficking. But I'm your wife, and I know well about your health. Today I finally know that you took the order and retired. In this case, how can I stain your record?"

"You're not a stain. On the contrary, you're the brightest star in my life. I did promise to give them the design drawing, but I didn't say I would give them the one for the military."

"What do you mean?"

Nicole was puzzled.

Samuel smiled and said, "I made another design of a combat vehicle, and I asked Lucas to print it out and send to Blair. Jacob had taken it back. Blair has talked to the leaders of the military command, and they agree to my plan of luring out the person behind the scene. Someone who covets the benefits of the military must not be a good person. Moreover, he is a hidden danger, and the military hopes to capture him through the plan. Therefore, I haven't violated the military order."

"Really?"

"Of course it's true, but I need your help."

Nicole was taken aback.

"My help? What can I do for you?"

"Designing."

Samuel took out the design drawing and handed it to Nicole.

"Take a look and tell me what's wrong."

"Me?"

Nicole was surprised.

She knew that Samuel was very talented in design, and she had chosen automotive design under the influence of Samuel.

Samuel didn't like fame. Otherwise, other people would not be able to win any awards if he participated in the National Design Competition.

Now he asked her to find fault with his design, Nicole felt stressed.

"Are you kidding me?"

"I'm serious. I came up with the design when you were in the operating room. It's not perfect, and some details are not good enough. You're a designer. Help me figure out the areas to be improved."

Nicole felt shy.

"How can I figure out? I'm not a soldier and I don't know how to design a combat vehicle."

"It's not a design of combat vehicle. I will give them this design after I apply for a patent. This will be something we design together, and I want to make a commemorative edition of it."

Samuel told her his plan.

Nicole was taken aback, and then she felt delighted.

"Are you saying that this design will be made by us? And you are going to put it into production?"

"Can't we?"

Nicole got elated.

"Of course we can!"

Chapter 580 Women Need the Company

Nicole suddenly drew back, but Samuel wrapped his arms around her waist.

His voice was hoarse and he whispered, "Don't worry about it."

"But I'm afraid it is Mom that needs us."

Nicole was a little embarrassed.

"Ignore it."

As he spoke, Samuel was about to continue, but there were sharp knocks on the door.

Mr. Green, I have something urgent."

Jacob's voice came through the door.

This time, Nicole pushed Samuel away.

It almost happened. Samuel didn't look quite good. He angrily went straight to the door and opened it. He grabbed Jacob's collar and said fiercely, "You'd better report something important. Otherwise, I'll kill you."

Seeing Samuel's angry expression, Jacob was slightly confused. He saw Nicole subconsciously tidy up her collar and suddenly realized something.

"Sorry, Mr. Green."

"Say it."

Samuel wanted to kill Jacob now.

Didn't Jacob know that a man who was interrupted at this time would have unsmooth flow of blood and lose his temper easily?

Jacob did not dare to delay. He hurriedly handed a report to Samuel and said, "Mr. Blair sent an urgent document and told you to read it carefully."

"What documents are urgent?"

Samuel took the document and turned to look at Nicole. "You rest first. Jacob and I will go to the study to deal with some things. What do you want to eat? I will make it for you at noon."

Nicole felt extremely happy to have a man with hundreds of millions cook for her.

"I'm not hungry yet. You go ahead. I'm a little sleepy, so I'd like some sleep."

"Alright. Tell me what you want to eat whenever."

Samuel's gaze was gentle, and he no longer wore a cold expression.

"Alright. But don't you need to go to the company? Didn't you seize the power of Vincent? Doesn't the company need you?"

"I don't need to go back for the time being. Besides, Jacob can handle it."

Jacob was silent.

He hadn't rested since he was called back.

"Mr. Green, I'm going to get married."

Jacob couldn't help but complain.

Samuel said coldly, "Get married? You don't have to work after you get married?"

Jacob was lost for words.

Samuel was taking revenge for being interrupted just now. However, Jacob just happened to come with a sad expression, was
