Chapter 651 Are You Going To Have Mercy On Me?

"I'll get it!"

Nicole quickly stood up and hurried to the door.

Looking at her who ran off nervously, Samuel suddenly thought she was really cute. He felt they seemed to go back to their university days when Nicole never dared to look straight at him but could only glance at him secretly. Whenever he turned his eyes on her, she would run away as she did today.

Samuel felt completely relaxed. As long as he stayed with her, everything was different.

Maybe it was because of love.

Samuel lay on the chair leisurely, watching Nicole open the door. He didn't know how to make his feelings clear.

He hurriedly stood up and strode over to protect Nicole behind him, speaking to the visitor, "What's the matter?"

"Hello, sir! I'm a travel agent nearby. May I ask if you need any help from us?"

Stood at the door was a young girl who looked like a graduate.

Samuel apparently saw the young Nicole in her.

"Thanks," he said indifferently. "But we've already booked a travel agency."

"Sir, here is an autonomous region. Many villages have their own management system. You, as outsiders, if choose an unreliable travel agency, may suffer a great loss. Our travel agency is a legitimate one. We..."

"Alright, we don't want it. Thank you."

Samuel interrupted her, feeling her too noisy.

"My wife has already booked a travel agency. Well, thank you."

After saying that, Samuel directly closed the door.

Nicole blushed when she heard Samuel called her wife directly. She broke free from his restraints and ran to the bathroom to take a bath.

Seeing her like this, Samuel couldn't help but laugh.

At night, Samuel did not ask to sleep with her. Instead, He let her sleep in bed while he himself lay on the sofa.

Nicole was a little hesitated when she saw him, being six foot, hunching on the sofa.

'Should I ask him to sleep in bed?'

'Or just watch him sleep on the couch?' Nichole thought.

Samuel perceived her hesitation and said, smiling, "What? Are you going to have mercy on me and let me sleep in bed?"

Nicole's eyes met his. She hurriedly pulled the quilt over her and didn't say anything.

Samuel knew that Nicole wouldn't disagree even if he went to bed now, but he decided not to.

They had plenty of time being together, so he wanted to take it slow.

Samuel turned off the lights and returned to the sofa.

Finding that Samuel did not get on the bed, Nicole heaved a sigh of relief, but at the same time, she also felt slightly disappointed.

Aware of her disappointment, Nicole hurriedly warned herself internally.

'How could I feel frustrated?'

'Couldn't I really hope to have something to do with Samuel?'

Nicole covered her head with the blanket and forced herself to fall asleep.

Why was Soseph here?
Samuel and Nicole had never expected that they would encounter Soseph here!
Back then, Soseph was forced out of the Seapolis City by Samuel. It was said that she was sent abroad.
The couple could not figure out her presence.
Obviously, Soseph also discovered them.
She hated Nicole but loved Samuel, though he didn't love her back.
Now she was also shocked to bump into them here.
Samuel was quick to respond.
"Let's go! We'll choose another travel agency."
No matter what, the encounter made Samuel make up his mind to quit this agency with Nicole.
Soseph stopped them.
"Mr. and Mrs. Green, how are you?"
Soseph smiled sweetly. She has changed, not as she used to be in the Seapolis City at all.
Nicole couldn't help but sigh over the changing nature of the world. She didn't expect that they would meet here. Now she didn't even have the chance to greet Soseph.

Samuel protected Nicole straight behind him and said coldly, "I remember you were abroad. Who told you to come back?"

"Mr. Green, you're so overbearing. This is Bordeaux, not the Seapolis City. Are you trying to continue to ban me? I was new and spoke a different language abroad. Do you want me to starve to death there?"

Soseph sounded like accusing him.

Samuel said flatly, "I remember I gave you a sum of money. If you use it properly, you can live to the age of sixty or seventy."

"Mr. Green, what you meant was that you wanted me to leave you guys and not ruin your life. I'm abiding by it here now. If you don't come here, we'll never meet again in this lifetime. Speaking of which, I am still grateful to you. You gave me enough money to buy a house here and open a small travel agency to support my family. It's not bad. Is there anything wrong? Are you two here for a tour?"

Soseph was especially approachable, as if she forgot everything from before.

In contrast, Nicole remembered everything and felt somewhat disgusted.

Nicole turned around and left.

When Samuel saw her leave, he said coolly to Soseph, "Just run your shop. You don't need to know why we're here."

With that, he hastily chased after Nicole.

"Nicole, slow down!"

He knew that unhappy memory might come back to her. He said, "If you mind, I'll have someone send her away again to make sure that she won't pop up to upset you again."

Samuel looked at Nicole with affection. Listening to the beautiful song, all the girls on the bus began to scream.

In Nicole's eyes, however, Samuel was the only one.

He was singing for her!

This was something she hadn't even dared to think about.

She smiled as tears filled her eyes.

After Samuel finished singing, the whole bus was seething.

Samuel said to Nicole, "Honey, I love you. The most romantic thing for me is to spend my life and grow old with you."

Nicole couldn't suppress her tears anymore as she threw herself into Samuel's embrace and shed tears of emotion.

"Kiss! Kiss! Kiss!"

The surrounding people began to heckle.

Nicole felt a little embarrassed.

She hid herself in Samuel's arms like an ostrich.

Samuel smiled like a rewarded child. He held Nicole's face and slowly lowered his head.

Nicole felt her heart beating faster, as if it was going to jump out.

She had only had this wonderful feeling eight years ago, when she had still been a teenager. She hadn't expected to experience it once again today.

She watched as Samuel's face getting closer and closer, and finally, his lips touched hers.

Nicole felt like she was going to get drunk, and she felt so excited.

Here came another round of applause and cheering.

Nicole hurriedly pushed Samuel away and sat down, her face blushing.

Looking at Nicole's red face, Samuel sat down contentedly, his smell enveloping Nicole right away.

The other programs went on, but Nicole had already been distracted.

Her heartbeat was accelerating, and all she could think of was the affectionate kiss just now.

Nicole grabbed the hem of her own clothes like a child, so adorable that Samuel's whole heart just melted for her.

Samuel held Nicole's hand. This time, Nicole did not break free. They suddenly got the feeling that they had found the lifetime lover of each other and the moment was going to be eternal.

The journey was boring, especially in Bordeaux. Most of the time, they were on the bus.

After the game, most people were tired. The guide told them to have a break and he would wake them up when arriving at the destination.

Nicole snuggled up in Samuel's arms, feeling sleepy.

"Take a nap. I'm here."

Samuel said softly.

Nicole glanced at him and knew that Samuel was tired too, but he was still taking care of her feelings.

"This is a tour bus. Nothing will happen here. You didn't sleep well last night, so have a rest out. After all, it's a temporary tour team and people don't know about each other. If something happens, we may want some time to react. I'm fine. I'm not sleepy. Come on, take a nap now. If you feel tired later, you won't

Samuel looked at Nicole and smiled, "We'll go wherever you had wanted to go. But we'll go by ourselves."

"Why?"

Nicole was puzzled.

They were not in the Seapolis City. This place was rich in land and resources and they simply could not tell where they were and where they should go. That was why they chose to follow the tour group. Now that Samuel said that they would go by themselves, Nicole did not understand.

Samuel explained in a low voice, "If we didn't meet Soseph, everything would be fine. But we've met her, we have to be on guard. She is a travel agent and she must have connections with these travel agencies. Moreover, the government supports the development of the tourism here. I don't know whether she has contacted the officers or not. Take what happened just now as an example. We don't know if the car really broke down or if they were plotting something. The best way to avoid danger is to go on our own."

Hearing what Samuel said, Nicole understood.

Staying with Samuel, she was already accustomed to not to think.

She sighed.

This was not a good habit!

Nicole thought to herself.

The noise below was getting lower and lower. In the end, there was no sound at all.

Perhaps those people did not expect that Samuel and Nicole had already gone up the mountain, or perhaps they did not want to delay their journey. They just left.

Nicole felt a little thirsty. But only when she wanted to get some water did she remember that she had put her schoolbag in the car.

Now they had no food, no water, and there was no shop here. What should they do?

Seeing that Nicole's mouth was a little dry, Samuel took out a small water bottle from his pocket and handed it over.

"Keep hydrated."

Nicole was stunned.

When did he put the water in his pocket?

Nicole suddenly remembered that when they were about to get in the car after seeing Soseph, Samuel bought two bottles of water.

Her bottle of water had already been drunk up. Before seeing Samuel's water. She thought that Samuel had put it in his bag or had already drunk it. She did not expect that it would actually be in Samuel's pocket.

In other words, Samuel had been on guard since then.

Nicole admired Samuel's caution.

Seeing that Samuel was also thirsty, Nicole handed the water to him.

"You climbed the mountain with me on your back. Your physical exhaustion is much more than mine, and you need more water. Drink it."

Samuel smiled when seeing Nicole's gestures. "I'm not thirsty. You drink. This kind of consumption is nothing to me."

Samuel knew what Nicole was thinking when he saw her sunk in thought. Samuel tightly held Nicole in his arms and whispered, "Don't worry. I'm here. No one else will get a chance to hurt you again."

Nicole only smiled and didn't say anything.

Samuel knew that things needed to go slowly.

The other passengers were complaining.

Nicole was a little worried. In that case, when would they get out of here?

Just then, a jeep drove over and stopped in front of Nicole and Samuel.

"Mr. Green, madam, Mr. Wood asked us to drive over."

Nicole looked blank. Before Nicole knew who Mr. Wood was, Samuel took the car key and said to Nicole, "Let's go. Get in the car."

When the other passengers saw that Samuel had a car, they became friendly forthwith.

"Dude, how about we give you money and you take us with you?"

Nicole looked at them, most of whom were strangers. Even if Nicole was on a bus with them, she didn't pay much attention.

However, Samuel directly pulled Nicole into the car and said coldly, "Sorry, we have something to do. We won't be able to take you guys with us. There will be four buses passing by later. You'd better wait."

With that, Samuel didn't wait for their reactions, directly closed the car window, stepped on the accelerator, and sped away in haste.

Nicole fastened her seat belt and didn't comment on Samuel's action.

After driving for a while, Samuel asked in a low voice, "Do you think I'm cruel to do that?"

"No! We should be cautious when we're out. Those tourists are a mixed lot. They don't know each other. It'll be awful if they get in the jeep and have a dispute."

Nicole gestured.

Samuel felt that Nicole had grown.

Nicole would have been very kind to take those tourists with her. But she didn't say anything just now and actually looked at it from this point of view. Samuel wondered whether he should feel relieved or regretful or not.

Nicole naturally couldn't tell what Samuel was thinking. Nicole felt sick. She felt bad about her behavior. However, Nicole knew that it was the best way to reduce the damage.

The car drove into the nearby village. Nicole's eyes were so sharp that she saw the bus Samuel and she had took.

Nicole pulled Samuel and gestured, "We won't stop here. Let's just drive over."

Obviously, Samuel also saw the bus.

Samuel nodded and directly drove past the bus driver. Because the window was slightly open, Nicole and Samuel listened to the driver calling someone and saying, "They ran away. We looked for them but couldn't find them. I'm waiting here. I think they'll come to this village."

Nicole had a thoughtful look.

Fortunately, Samuel was thoughtful. Otherwise, they wouldn't know what would happen.

Sure enough, it was definitely related to Soseph. After all, Nicole and Samuel didn't have many acquaintances here, and Soseph had always been in conflict with them.

Thinking that Soseph would always eye on herself with hostility during the travel, Nicole felt awfully uncomfortable.

But Nicole didn't want to say that to Samuel.

Samuel was also thinking about this, but he didn't say it, afraid that Nicole would think too much.

Nicole waved her hand in front of Samuel when he was still in a daze. Samuel regained his senses.

"What's the matter?"

Nicole looked confused.

Samuel looked at Nicole, hesitated for a moment and asked.

"What is the bottom line for you to leave me?"

Nicole paused.

In the old days, as long as this man loved her and did nothing wrong to her, she could tolerate whatever he did. After all, she loved him so much. But now there was a human life involved in this bottom line. What should she do?

Nicole didn't even know the answer herself.

She looked at Samuel without a word.

Samuel's heart sank as Nicole remained silent.

Sure enough, she wasn't ready to talk about it yet.

Samuel forced a smile, "Forget it, I won't ask anymore. Let's go buy a car."

With pedal to the metal, he drove off.

Nicole could tell by how fast Samuel was driving that he was in a bad mood, but what could she do?

It was only a seven-day deal between them.

But was it really just a deal?

Why did she lose herself in Samuel's gentle eyes every time he looked at her?

Nicole felt a little upset.

But when she looked outside the car window at the fleeting scenery, she gradually calmed down.

After driving for a while at a high speed, Samuel also calmed down a little.

He glanced at Nicole and saw her pale face. Still, she wasn't complaining. Samuel couldn't help but blame himself.

Why did Nicole have to make sacrifice every time?

It was just like eight years ago. Even in this case, Nicole still tolerated it as he blew off like that.

No one could be a better wife than her. He didn't want a divorce! Never!

After making up his mind, Samuel slowed down the car.

He turned on some soft music, only to find the songs on the playlist were all her favorite. Samuel was somehow a little jealous.

Finn really had worked hard on this!

But Samuel did not show it. He did not want to make things all about Finn.

Nicole did not think of that as well.

Soft music could make people feel better, especially those good ones.

With her fingers following the beat, she became obsessed with the music.

Samuel watched her with greed, eager to capture this moment with a camera.

He then took out his mobile phone and took a picture with a "clip". The sound startled Nicole.

"Who did you see?"

Seeing Nicole frowning, Samuel couldn't help but ask.

Nicole hastily gestured, "Karina. I saw Karina! But she is gone after I am here."

"Karina?"

Samuel was somewhat surprised.

Ever since Bruce died, Samuel did not care about other people who were related to him anymore. Now that he couldn't help but be stunned when he saw Nicole gesturing Karina.

Nicole nodded.

"Why is Karina here? Well, her house is nearby. It's normal for her to be here. But why are you chasing after?"

Nicole instantly froze.

What did she want to do?

She didn't know.

When she saw Karina, she subconsciously chased after her. Perhaps in Nicole's heart, she still wanted to do something for Bruce.

"Alright, whether we will meet her or not depends on the destiny. We have to move. If we park the car there, it will block the traffic. Let's go."

Hearing Samuel's words, Nicole hesitated for a moment. She nodded and walked back with Samuel.

As they passed by an alley, Nicole suddenly heard a cry for help. That voice sounded very familiar.

Samuel also heard it.

They exchanged glances and quickly ran towards the voice.

At the end of the alley, four or five men were kicking and punching around a little girl.

Nicole saw that the little girl was Karina!

"Stop!"

Samuel shouted angrily.

The four men turned around and paused when they saw Nicole and Samuel. Then, one of the man said fiercely, "Get lost! Don't meddle in other people's affair. Otherwise I guarantee that you won't be able to leave this place!"

Nicole angrily kicked him directly. She kicked the man in the chest.

When the others saw Nicole beating the man, they shouted and scolded as they walked towards Nicole.

Karina was stunned when she saw Nicole and Samuel, but when she saw them pestering these men, she quickly got up and ran away.

Nicole wanted to stop her, but she was caught by someone.

Samuel quickly beat down two of them.

Samuel and Nicole knocked down the four men shortly. Just as they were about to ask why they wanted to hit Karina, one of the man said, "Please spare us! We didn't do it on purpose. It was that little girl who stole our things, and she did it again and again. We were furious."

Nicole opened the door, and it was Samuel standing outside.

"Is she better?"

Samuel asked.

Nicole nodded and brought him in.

Karina had already packed up her stuff. When she saw Samuel, she gave him a faint smile.

She was only one or two years older than Hedy, but her life was far worse than her younger sister's.

Samuel was reminded of Hedy's current life in the Hawk's. At that moment, he had no idea what he should say to Karina.

He took out his phone and handed it to her. He whispered, "There are some recent videos of Hedy on it. You can watch them."

Karina's eyes turned red when she heard what Samuel had said.

She did not reject it. Taking the phone with her, she walked toward the room inside, leaving Samuel and Nicole alone.

Nicole's gaze followed Karina until she closed the door. Only then did Nicole withdraw her gaze.

Samuel poured her a cup of hot water and said, "I suppose you've already known how to deal with Soseph."

Nicole was surprised at his words. But then it occurred to her that she and Samuel had been together for so many years. Of course he could figure out what was in her head.

She nodded and said in sign language, "I'm going to drive her out of here. She has to give back everything you've given her. She doesn't deserve sympathy. I saved her from the danger, but she didn't feel grateful at all. Instead, she wanted you. In order to get you, she even turned against me. She came here with the money you gave her to do evil and hurt the innocent. Knowing that we're here, she has no intention to stop but tries to get rid of us. She is a serpent. We cannot take the risk of letting her hurt us. I might as well end her now."

A trace of ruthlessness flashed past Nicole's eyes.

She used to be very kind, but her kindness did not do her any good, so she preferred to combat evil with evil.

Seeing Nicole became like this, Samuel felt both pleased and sad.

"Do you need my help?"

Nicole hesitated for a moment.

She did need his help, because she could not speak now.

Considering Nicole's voice problem, Samuel said gently, "The seven-day deal is cancelled. If you want, I will arrange for someone to operate on you immediately."

Nicole's eyes instantly lit up.

"Hold on. Don't be thrilled so early. I haven't finished yet. Nicole, do you know why I postponed the operation? It's not because I want to threaten you to accept the condition. But your body may not be that good to do that."

Samuel looked Nicole in the eye. He decided to listen to her opinion.

"Morgan said, there is a good chance to cure your throat, but it takes a greater risk. Because you've got Laurence's blood and those precious Chinese herbs in your body some time ago. There is a high risk of drug rejection during this operation. If that happens, the consequences will be very serious. It will be worse than you cannot speak. You may die. Do you understand? I recommend conservative treatment, but it's all up to you. If you want an operation, I have no objection. Remember, if anything happens to you, I will definitely not live alone."

Samuel stared at Nicole.

Chapter 659 I Can't Help You

"What is their condition?"

Nicole asked with a sinking feeling.

Morgan shook her head and said, "I don't know. They didn't say anything. They just said that as long as you accept, I can perform the surgery for you."

"How can I agree without knowing anything? What if that is a contract to sell myself?"

Nicole felt that it was unreasonable.

Morgan whispered, "They said they wouldn't ask you to sell yourself. They'll let you know when it's the right time."

"How ridiculous."

Nicole stood up and drank a glass of water with a cold look.

Why did the Millers think that she would agree to their condition in return for her voice?

Seeing this, Morgan felt uneasy.

"Nicole, I'm sorry. I know I shouldn't have done this, but I have no choice. Please accept their condition. I can assure you with my life that you won't lose anything."

"What can I do with your life? I just want my freedom. If this is the price I have to pay to heal my throat, I would rather be dumb. I hate being threatened and don't like to do unknown things. The scenery here is good, so you can stay for a few more days."

Nicole gestured and put down the cup.

Morgan knew that Nicole was angry.

She soon said, "Nicole, I really need freedom. I..."

"Morgan, I can't help you."

Nicole refused outright.

She knew how cruel it was to dash her hopes of freedom. But if she was not cruel to others, others might be cruel to her.

She was no longer the innocent girl she used to be.

Morgan was surprised as she looked at Nicole and hesitated to say anything.

"Does Samuel know about this?"

Nicole couldn't help asking.

Morgan smiled bitterly and said, "How dare I let him know? If I let him know, I probably could not come to Bordeaux."

Fortunately, Samuel did not know.

This thought flashed through Nicole's mind.

She gestured to Morgan, "Alright, let's stop here. I'll accompany you around in the afternoon. If you're busy, I can ask Samuel to send you back."

Chapter 660 Please Call Her Mrs. Green

The caller ID was Soseph.

Why did she call Samuel?

Did she still have feelings for Samuel?

Noticing Nicole's absence of mind, Samuel asked immediately, "Who called?"

She then handed over the phone to Samuel.

When he saw the caller ID, Samuel frowned.

He didn't say anything but turned on the speaker in front of Nicole.

"What's up?"

Samuel asked in a cold voice.

However, Soseph answered gladly, "Mr. Green, since you came to Bordeaux, I haven't entertained you yet. How about this? I'll treat you tonight."

"Just myself?"

Samuel looked at Nicole and he could read the displeasure in her eyes. He really felt helpless.

Soseph's voice sounded more coquettish.

"Oh, Mr. Green! What? Are you afraid that I will eat you up? You are an honored guest who came all the way here. I told the guys from the Tourism Bureau about you. Now they regard you as a big financier, and they are counting on you to invest here. They believe that with your help, they can develop tourism and more industries to drive the local economy. So they asked me to call you. I really have no other choice. Mr. Green, what do you think?"

Soseph was smart. She left Samuel no choice in fact. If he refused her, he had to face the consequence that he offended the guys from the Tourism Bureau.

Samuel sneered. Just as he was about to answer Soseph, Nicole grabbed his hand.

"What?"

Nicole mouthed a yes.

She knew that Samuel could understand her.

Although Samuel did not know what Nicole was going to do, now that Nicole agreed, he would say yes to Soseph's invitation.

"Alright, I'll go tonight."

"Thank you, Mr. Green. I'll be waiting for you at the Hudson Grand Hotel tonight."

Soseph seemed to hint at this special night.

Nicole's face darkened immediately.

She was still Mrs. Green now. How could be Soseph so blatant?

However, Nicole's eyes narrowed when she thought of what Soseph had done before.

After Samuel hung up the phone, Nicole got up and left.

"What's going on? Why are you leaving?"

Samuel stopped Nicole in a hurry.

The way Nicole looked at Samuel was scary, which sent a shiver down his spine.

"Please don't look at me this way. She called me first. It's not my fault!"

The look in Nicole's eyes became colder after she heard what he said.
