

Escape Wife 711

Don't Try to Escape, My Wife!

Chapter 711 Women Shouldn't Make Things Difficult for Women

Zama looked up and saw Lucas standing in front of her with a gentle look on his face.

"Stop crying. You're an adult, so you should be tough. Just set an example for me."

"Lucas!"

Blair wanted to pull Lucas back, but was stopped by him.

"Uncle Blair, she won't hurt me."

"How do you know? She's a vicious woman. You can't get close to her. If something happens to you, how should I explain it to your mother? Come over!"

Lucas was still a child, so he might be fooled by Zama. However, Blair was cautious.

Lucas shook his head with a smile and looked at Zama with open arms, "Didn't you want to hug me?"

Hearing this, Zama was excited.

She stepped up and tightly held Lucas in her arms.

"Thank you, Lucas. Thank you."

She had never felt that a hug could be so warm and touching.

In the meantime, Blair kept a worried eye on her every move.

Lucas gently patted Zama's back and whispered, "Thank you for your offer to save my mommy and daddy. Although I decided not to forgive you for those bad things that you've done before, I'm grateful to you for having cured my parents. It's because of you that I can have a happy family. My teacher has said that people are not infallible. As long as one truly repents and corrects his mistake, he is still a good child. So I can forgive you for what you've done to me, but you can't hurt my family anymore."

"Alright!"

Zama cried bitterly, almost out of breath.

Even a four-year-old child knew that one should correct his mistakes. Why did she come around to this in her old age?

How could she be less mature than a child?

She clasped Lucas in her arms.

This was her grandson!

If she hadn't taken her revenge crazily, she could have been able to spend quality time with her grandson now.

However, she destroyed all of this. She ruined her chance to have happiness.

Lucas uttered when he saw that Zama was crying pathetically.

"Mommy said you suffered from a disease, a serious one. I don't know if you can cure yourself, but I want you to stop hurting my parents. My mommy suffered a lot in this life, so I want you to be nice to her. Just as the saying goes, women shouldn't make things difficult for women."

Zama hastily nodded.

She didn't want to let go of Lucas, not in the slightest.

This was the first time she thought that Lucas was so sensible and cute. She really felt sorry for him.

If it wasn't for her, he could have had a wonderful childhood and a happy family. But she caused her grandchildren to go through a hard time.

She really cherished this moment and hoped that time could stop here. However, she knew this was her extravagant hope.

She finally released him.

Lucas reached out and gently dried her tears.

His little hands were so soft and warm.

Zama's heart completely melted.

Lucas let out a scream.

Then Nicole was woken up.

"What's happening?"

She got up and rushed towards Lucas, checking on him.

"What's wrong? Are you in pain? Quickly tell me!"

Nicole was extremely worried.

Had Zama done something bad to Lucas?

Lucas pointed at Samuel and stammered, "Samuel opened his eyes."

"What did you say?"

Nicole was slightly puzzled.

Blair didn't pay much attention to Samuel just now. Upon hearing Lucas' words, Blair jumped up from his chair and dashed to Samuel, discovering that Samuel had indeed opened his eyes.

"Samuel, how do you feel?"

Nicole turned sharply and pounced forward to hug Samuel tightly after confirming that his eyes were open.

"You finally woke up! Samuel, you bastard! You're scaring me to death!"

Samuel found himself almost unable to breathe because of the weight on his body, and he was a little confused.

Wasn't he in Bordeaux?

Didn't he fall off the cliff?

He was still alive?

He should be alive!

Otherwise, how would he see Nicole and hear her voice?

Wait!

He pushed Nicole away abruptly and looked at her in surprise.

"Your throat...."

"It's cured, but still hurts a little."

Nicole was overjoyed now.

Samuel sat up and suddenly felt a splitting headache.

He groaned with his head in his hands.

Blair quickly took out silver needles and inserted them into the acupuncture points on Samuel's head.

Nicole's heart was in her throat.

"What happened to him? Why does he have a headache?"

"That's normal. It's not that easy to cure neuralgia, which actually takes a long time. Now that he is dehypnotized, his neuralgia needs to be treated slowly. Zama said that he would wake up three days later, but he woke up now. This is amazing."

Blair explained quickly.

Chapter 713 Everything's Gonna Be Fine

Nicole and Samuel were stunned.

"What are you waiting for? She is dying! She's now transferred from the prison to the hospital! Now go check her out! Nicole's throat is still burning, because she still needs one more medical ingredient. Now go ask her. We need to figure it out!"

Hearing his words, Samuel came to himself.

He grabbed Nicole's hand and rushed to the hospital.

When they arrived, Zama was still in the emergency room, where the lights made Samuel more upset and frustrated.

Zama had taken up so much space in his life. She was like a mother to him. Although she had done something unforgivable, at this moment, all he could recall was how nice she had been to him.

Now, he could not believe that she was leaving like this.

She had just reached middle age.

Could it really be that the things you did would eventually come back to you?

Nicole held his hands tightly. At this moment, any consolation was not helpful. And she even didn't bother to think about comforting him.

The only reason she was here was because she was worried about Samuel. Zama told her before that she had poisoned Samuel, but she didn't know whether she meant it.

Lucas also came here, standing quietly behind Blair.

The clock's ticking. When the lights of the emergency room went out, Samuel's heart almost skipped a beat.

The doctor walked out.

"Doctor, how's she doing?"

Blair asked him anxiously.

Shaking his head, the doctor said, "Sorry. We've done all we can, but her cancer has already spread. You can go to see her one last time. Sorry."

Everyone here had mentally prepared themselves for such a result, except for Samuel.

He had just woken up, and still felt confused about so many things. How could she suddenly be dying?

Seeing him stunned, Nicole pushed him gently and said, "Honey, go say goodbye to her."

Looking at her, Samuel was conflicted. On the one hand, he thought it would upset Nicole if he went to see Zama; on the other hand, he would regret if he didn't see Zama one last time.

Hearing Samuel's cry, Nicole and Blair were stunned. Nicole knew that Zama had passed away.
She would not say that she was sad for her death, but she did feel sad for Samuel.

"Mommy, is Grandma Zama gone?"

Lucas blinked his eyes and asked.

"Yes, sweetheart."

Nicole nodded.

Hearing this, Lucas fell into silence.

After staying inside for a while, Samuel opened the door and walked out.

His eyes were red and swollen because of crying.

"Are you alright?"

Nicole quickly stepped forward.

"I'm fine."

Samuel held her hand and asked the doctor to take Zama to the morgue.

She was a prisoner, and had to go through some procedures even if she had passed away.

Nicole stayed in the hotel with Lucas. Samuel went out to arrange for Zama's funeral.

Zama had been a housekeeper in the Greens from the very beginning, and never married. Samuel was her only son. The funeral was a simple one.

After having her cremated, Samuel went back to the Land City with Nicole and Lucas.

Seeing them coming back, Joseph and Zoe were happy.

"Daddy, you know what. Mommy doesn't allow us to have a video chat with you. She's so mean. She wants you to be hers only."

Zoe hurriedly complained.

Looking at his lovely daughter, Samuel was delighted, but given Zama's death, he couldn't manage to squeeze a smile out.

"Mommy is protecting Daddy. Daddy was sick back then. I was worried the virus would reach out to you through the computer, so actually you need thank mom for that, got it?"

His words stunned Zoe for a moment, and then she embarrassedly apologized to Nicole, "Mommy, I'm sorry."

"It's all right."

Lucas did not say anything and directly went to his room.

Seeing there was something wrong with him, Joseph wanted to ask him what was going on, but he found it hard to say.

Nicole glanced at Lucas, not knowing what he was thinking either.

Putting Zoe down, Samuel said to Joseph, "Pack up. We'll go back to the Seapolis City. Uncle Jacob will take care of you. Your mommy and I need to go to Bordeaux.

"Daddy, are you going to travel again?"

Zoe pouted her little mouth and was upset.

Samuel whispered, "No, we go there because mommy's throat hurts. She needs to see a doctor."

"Really? Mommy, what's wrong with your throat? Does it hurt?"

Zoe hurriedly ran to Nicole and reached out to touch her throat.

"Lucas!"

Nicole shouted aloud.

Lucas turned around and saw Nicole running towards him quickly, feeling a little puzzled.

"Mommy, slow down, or you'll fall."

Lucas hurried to walk up to her.

Nicole pulled Lucas behind her and vigilantly looked at the jeep in front of her. "Who are you? What are you doing here?" she asked.

It was a young man. Seeing how Nicole protected Lucas, he was confused and then explained hastily, "Don't mistake it, I'm just here to take a look."

"What do you want to look at? It is already a deserted old house. What's there to see?"

Nicole didn't relax her vigilance.

The man smiled apologetically and said, "I know that, but I just want to come back and have a look at it. I heard from my parents as a kid that this was their hometown. Now that so many years have passed, I want to come back and see what the place where my parents grew up is like."

"Your parents?"

Nicole was stunned for a moment.

Wasn't it that everyone here died in that accident?

Why would anyone survive?

"Yes. My parents left the town at the age of eighteen and joined the army. When they considered coming back again, this place no longer exists."

The man got out of the car and stood on the land with a sad expression.

Only then did Nicole react.

It seemed that there were still people from that town alive.

"Do you remember your grandfather's name?"

"His name is Hugh Harper."

Hearing this, Nicole paused.

While going through the memorial tablets in the ancestral hall, she did see the name.

"We've bought this place and it'll be a private land. Since you're here, go and take a look. My husband is cleaning up the ancestral hall. He's going to rebuild it."

"Rebuild it?"

The man was a little surprised, but quickly became happy.

"Madam, my name is Trevin Harper. Can I bring back my parents' memorial tablets and set them here? Don't worry, I'll try my best to pay you no matter how much it costs. After all, this is my parents' hometown, and I want them to rest in the place they belong to."

Trevin looked at Nicole sincerely.

Nicole thought for a while and said to him, "Go ask my husband. His mother is also from this town. She has been away for many years and now has passed away. My husband intends to help her return to her hometown."

"Thank you, thank you very much."

Trevin happily followed Nicole and Lucas to the ancestral hall.

Along the way, Nicole held Lucas' hand tightly, seeming to fear that he would get lost.

Lucas felt Nicole's tension and followed her quietly.

After arriving at the ancestral hall, Samuel was still cleaning up.

Trevin saw that the ancestral hall had collapsed, but all the tablets were neatly placed aside. His eyes went moist.

Nicole didn't understand why she couldn't tell his sister this.

Trevin thought for a while and said, "My sister doesn't agree with me sending my parents' memorial tablets back. She said that there's no one here and it's meaningless to do that. Moreover, there is something unsettled about my parents, and my sister wants to bury them in the Martyrs' Cemetery."

Nicole paused.

She investigated Maia's family background because of Tim and only knew that her parents had died in the line of duty. Logically speaking, they should be martyrs.

"Shouldn't your parents be martyrs?"

"Yes, but the money for the transaction is gone, which remains unsettled now. Therefore, they can't be buried in the Martyrs' Cemetery. My sister is very angry at this and insists on letting everyone know that my parents are innocent. I know she's doing this for their good, but sometimes I really want them to go back. No matter how others talk about them, they are my parents."

Trevin looked slightly upset.

Nicole understood him, patted his shoulder and said, "I see. Don't worry, I won't tell her."

"Thank you, Mrs. Green."

"What are you talking about?"

Samuel happened to come over after the acupuncture. Seeing that they were having a nice chat, he asked.

Nicole told Samuel about Trevin's identity, and also told Trevin about what happened between Maia and Tim.

Hearing that his sister had a boyfriend, Trevin felt quite happy.

"My sister has a boyfriend, but why didn't she tell me?"

"Perhaps they haven't been in a serious relationship yet, but that boy is very good. There is nothing to worry about if your sister is with him."

Hearing what Nicole said, Trevin grew more interested in Tim.

"Do you have any photos?"

"Yes, take a look."

Nicole found one of Tim's photos and sent it to Trevin.

Seeing them focus on talking, Samuel shook his head with a smile and walked away.

Blair saw him like this and touched him with his arm, saying, "Aren't you jealous?"

"Why would I get jealous of a child?"

Samuel sat down at the side.

Blair also sat beside him.

"To be honest, Nicole has spent much time and energy on finding anyone she knew to cure you these days. But it was Zama who cured you in the end. Perhaps this is your destiny. I know you are grieved over Zama's death and that you two have a strong bond. No matter what she had done, she is your mother. You may not forgive her when she was alive, but you will do that after her death. However, Samuel, Nicole is different from you. You may forgive Zama for what she did to Nicole, but Nicole could never bear children again, which she can't get past easily. So, you can be sad, but you have to think more about the living, don't you? "

Hearing Blair's words, Samuel nodded.

Because Samuel was holding Nicole's hand, he fell with her.

Samuel turned in the air and took Nicole in his arms. When they landed, Samuel was under Nicole.

Nicole was unharmed. But she panicked as she heard a groan.

"Samuel, are you alright?"

"I'm fine."

Samuel suppressed the pain and held Nicole to get up.

The place they fell on to looked like a cave, but there was light inside.

"Where are we now? I remembered I was walking with you. It's not a valley. Why did we suddenly fall down?" Nicole said in fear.

Samuel was also a little vigilant and put Nicole behind him.

"Follow me. If anything happens later, just run."

"What are you talking about? How can I leave alone?"

Although Nicole was afraid, she would not leave Samuel behind.

Samuel whispered, "It seems that someone lives here."

"What?"

"Look. It's very clean. It won't be spotless without cleaning."

Nicole got more nervous.

"Let's get out. This place is too gloomy. It's scary."

"Keep quiet. Follow me. We won't be able to return the same way. We can't climb up, can we?"

Samuel held Nicole's hand tightly. Her hand was covered in sweat.

"It's alright. I'm here."

Samuel's gaze calmed Nicole down.

They walked inside one after the other.

After walking through a path, they saw a larger place.

It looked like a warehouse, but there were beds, instant noodles and bottled water.

Nicole felt relieved.

"There must be people living here. But who would live in a cemetery? It's too terrifying."

Nicole felt goosebumps all over.

Samuel held her and they sat down beside the bed. He then looked at the surroundings.

People here didn't go out very often, because there were boxes of food. And the garbage was also kept here.

Samuel did not know who was living here. He said in a low voice, "We can only wait here."

"Lucas may get worried. I should give him a call."

She picked up her phone, only to find that there was

Nicole got tired. She was exhausted, Samuel said softly, "You can

Chapter 718 To Leave or Stay

"What?"

Samuel frowned slightly. Zama had told him about Blue Star Herb. Was there something wrong?

Johnnie looked at Samuel and then at Nicole. He asked, "Which one of you needs the herb?"

"My wife. What's the difference?"

Samuel felt that Johnnie had hidden something.

Nicole also stared at Johnnie. She was vigilant towards this man, who had suddenly showed up.

Johnnie pondered for a while and said, "Blue Star Herb is a specialty here. To be exact, it is a specialty of our town. Because there are many graves and it is moist here. The herb mostly grows in the cemetery. However, it's not easy for outsiders to find it. It's cold in nature. It can only be used on people poisoned by heat toxin. You must think about it. If you are not poisoned by heat toxin, having Blue Star Herb might cause permanent infertility "

Samuel heaved a sigh of relief.

"We've got children."

"You have children? Alice has grandchildren..."

Johnnie felt sad again.

Nicole tugged at Samuel's sleeve and whispered in his ear, "I feel there is something wrong with this man."

"Forget about it. He may help us find Blue Star Herb. If anything goes wrong, you should play it by ear. And don't worry about me."

Samuel patted Nicole's hand and said softly. To him, Nicole's health was the most important thing.

"How could I ignore you?"

Nicole rolled her eyes at him. Samuel laughed slightly.

"You guys seemed to like each other very much. I used to be like this with Alice."

Johnnie noticed that they were really intimate. He couldn't help but said as he saw them being affectionate towards each other.

Samuel said indifferently, "Judging from your expression, I think you will take us to look for Blue Star Herb. Right?"

"Since you are Alice's son and daughter-in-law, I'll show you the way. But you have to follow me closely. This place is in the zone of subtropical monsoon climate. It's hot and humid, especially in the graveyard at night. The ground is quite slippery. You must walk right after me."

As Johnnie finished, he walked out.

Samuel followed him.

Nicole hesitated. Then she also walked out.

The place did have secret tunnels.

Nicole followed Johnnie and Samuel. The moonlight was bright when they got out of the cave.

Nicole checked the time. It was midnight.

She wondered how Lucas and Trevin were doing.

Nicole took out her phone. It had a signal now, so she immediately called Lucas.

"Mommy, where did you and Samuel go? We nearly turned the town upside down and we didn't see you."

Chapter 719 Is Johnnie Alive or Dead?

"Are you sure he is dead?"

"Yes, the locals erected the tombstone for him. My father said that because he was not from our town, his tombstone was not in our town's cemetery, but it was not far away. It should be at the edge of the cemetery."

What Trevin said confused Nicole a lot.

"Can we find that tombstone?"

"I don't know. After so many years, there hasn't been anyone in the town. I don't know if the tombstone has been covered by withered grass."

Although Trevin said that, Nicole still decided to go over and take a look.

"Thank you, Trevin. I'll go take a look there."

Nicole was about to walk out, but she suddenly heard Lucas' voice.

"Mommy, I want to go too."

He rubbed his sleepy eyes and looked at Nicole as if he had just woken up.

"Lucas, no. That's not a place for children to go."

"I want to protect Mommy."

What Lucas said touched Nicole.

"Don't worry, Mommy is fine."

"Anyway, I'm going."

Lucas stepped forward and hugged Nicole's thigh.

Seeing him like this, Trevin smiled and said, "Mrs. Green, let him go with me. It's fine, I'll take care of him."

"Are you going there too?"

Nicole was a little surprised.

Trevin nodded and said, "I'll go take a look. After all, I'm from this town. No matter what, I have to see if my parents were right. Besides, I should be a little more familiar with the terrain here. I heard my parents talk about this place a lot when I was a child."

Hearing this, Nicole pondered for a moment and nodded.

When Lucas heard that he could follow them, he trotted to change his clothes.

Nicole kept frowning.

Johnnie couldn't be dead.

Although that sounded very frightening just now, was there ghosts in this world?

When Blair saw that Nicole hadn't gone out for a long time, he walked over and happened to see Nicole in a daze in the pavilion.

"What are you thinking? Are you not leaving?"

"I'll wait for Trevin and Lucas."

Nicole told Blair what Trevin just said.

Blair thought the same.

"There are no ghosts in this world. Johnnie may not have died back then."

"But Trevin said that the people here had erected a tombstone for him. If he hadn't died, how could it be like this?"

Facing this question, Blair could not answer.

Chapter 720 Where Is Samuel?

"Mommy, will we hunt ghosts? I have runes."
Lucas took out some yellow papers with runes drawn on them.
Nicole couldn't help but laugh. She stretched out her hand and gently tapped his forehead.
"Do you think we are filming a movie? Where did these come from?"
"The old lady in the farm house gave them to me. She said that these can ward off evil spirits."
Lucas pouted and said.
Nicole and Blair couldn't help but be stunned.
"The owner of the farmhouse? Why couldn't I tell that she was a witch?"

Trevin smiled and said, "Mrs. Green, she is not a witch. Since the Day of the Dead is coming, we have this tradition here. We will take some papers with runes on them along the way to expel ghosts and ward off evil spirits. It can be considered as a kind of psychological comfort and also a custom."

"I didn't even notice it if you didn't tell me. Indeed, the Day of the Dead is coming."

Nicole sighed.

It had been more than half a year since she returned from the United States, and her relationship with Samuel had stabilized. However, she did not expect that there would still be so many tribulations ahead.

Nicole touched Lucas' head and said, "Did you say thank you to that old lady?"

"Of course, I am a polite and cultured child."

Lucas said proudly.

They arrived at the back of the cave while talking.

This place was a bit gloomy. The weeds around were very tall, and they almost covered Nicole's waist.

She couldn't help but feel a little worried.

"There can't be anything dangerous in those weeds, right?"

"Don't worry. We have pills."

Nicole forced a smile.

Suddenly, Blair discovered something.

"Come over and see if this place has been dug up."

Hearing this, Nicole hurriedly walked over with Lucas in her arms.

The weeds here had already been mown. There was a small soil mound. It seemed that it was made not long ago, or....

"Could this be Johnnie's grave?"

Nicole guessed.

"It should be. I heard from my parents that it was in the shade behind the mountain. Because he was not from this town, he could only stay here. As for the people in our town who died, they were buried in the
