

Escape Wife 751

Chapter 751 How Ironic It Is

75Ballard knew that Martha was Tim's soft spot, but also Tim's entire world.

He said hurriedly, "Someone has seen your mother at the harbor area, but she doesn't seem to be alone. There are a man and a woman beside her. The woman is not very tall, dark-skinned."

Ballard tried his best to tell Tim the clues.

Maia's face immediately flashed upon Tim's mind.

It couldn't be her!

Absolutely not!

"Are there any surveillance cameras there?"

"Yes, but the footage is blurry. And because it's so blurry, we can't identify the person. I've called the police and the police have begun to investigate it. Don't worry. I will definitely find your mother back."

Tim didn't respond, as if he didn't hear Ballard's words at all. He just said coldly, "Show me the surveillance video."

Seeing Tim's icy response, Ballard felt sad in his heart, but he still had people handed over the surveillance video to Tim quickly.

Tim opened the video to have a look. He froze when he saw Maia's figure in the video. His face immediately clouded over.

"You know this woman?"

Ballard could tell that from Tim's expression and asked hurriedly.

Tim didn't say anything, but he copied the video and then turned around to leave.

"Hey, what does he mean? He has pulled me by my collar and threatened me after he came back. Now he just leaves here without saying a word. What does he take me for?"

While Mrs. Louis was shouting, Ballard shot her an angry glance.

"Shut up! Don't you know the situation is serious now?"

"Serious? It wasn't me who took Martha away. Why are you all so angry at me?"

Mrs. Louis still wanted to continue, but suddenly something was thrown towards her. It scared her so much that she screamed and squatted down.

At the same time, Tim slammed the door.

Mrs. Louis shivered as she looked at the hanger beside her which was still spinning.

"Ballard, your son is trying to kill me."

"If you don't want to die, you'd better shut your mouth."

Ballard was very upset.

After leaving there, Tim went straight to Samuel's place.

When Samuel saw Tim, he whispered, "Keep your voice down. Nicole just lay down."

"Did Trevin contact you?"

Tim cut to the chase and asked about Trevin's whereabouts. Samuel was shocked as he heard that.

"No. Why are you looking for him?"

"My mother was taken away by Maia."

As soon as Tim said that, Samuel knitted his eyebrows.

"Are you sure?"

"See for yourself."

Chapter 752 I Have a Conjecture

Samuel ran up a little earlier than Tim.

When he saw Nicole squatting on the toilet in the bathroom, he couldn't help but step forward quickly.

"What's the matter?"

"The mirror!"

Nicole gasped for breath.

Samuel looked at the mirror and saw the blood red handwriting on it, telling them to "mind your own business."

When Tim ran up, he also saw this.

"Who did it? Someone has sneaked into the Green's?"

It reminded Samuel.

Right now, this house was in his charge, so there shouldn't be anyone new here.

"Claudina, get everyone to the hall."

Samuel's voice was as cold as ice.

He didn't care about some little tricks against himself. But he couldn't forgive that someone scared Nicole.

Nicole was scared at first. But now that she found out these words were actually written with her lipstick, she quickly got up and wiped the handwriting off the mirror.

"What are you doing?"

Samuel was puzzled.

Nicole whispered, "I've already taken the picture. We can't keep this. If the children see the mirror, they'll be frightened."

As they spoke, Zoe and Joseph walked in.

"Daddy, Mommy, what's wrong? What happened?"

Joseph looks at Nicole with worry.

"Mommy, what did you shout just now? Did you see the mouse?"

Zoe rubbed her eyes, still sleepy.

With the children here, Samuel did not say anything.

Nicole smiled and said, "Nothing. I saw a cockroach and it was already killed by your daddy."

Her face was pale, but she smiled gently.

"Mommy, you're so lame. How can you be afraid of a cockroach? I can kill it myself!"

Zoe seemed to be a little proud.

"Zoe, you are so great! Joseph, can you take your sister out? Daddy and Uncle Tim want to clean up the bathroom."

Nicole smiled and said to Joseph.

Chapter 753 Was There Anything Wrong with the Green Family

When Mark and Jason knew that Nicole was going to visit them with her kids and stay for a few days, they felt extremely happy, especially Jason. He didn't expect that he had just made a proposal to Nicole and she agreed.

To their hospitality, Nicole felt actually a little awkward, but for the safety of her children, she still decided to go to the Don's.

"And my mother has sent me a letter."

Nicole took out the letter which Jason gave her and handed it over to Samuel.

"It's for you. Why do you give it to me?"

Samuel was slightly confused.

Nicole whispered, "What do you think she sent me a letter when she could totally send me a call or a message? To be honest, I'm a little worried that she'll apologize for what she has done in the letter and I don't know how to response to it."

Samuel suddenly smiled and said, "You should be happy. More people love and care about you now in the world."

"I also tell myself this way, but I'm really not used to it yet."

Samuel was a little relieved when Nichole confessed to him, frowning.

"Alright, you can take your time to read it at night after you arrive at the Don's. This letter is given to you by your mother. I think it's better for you to read it first."

"Okay, then let's go back. It's rude for us to leave Tim in the living room alone for too long."

Then Nicole held Samuel's hand and they walked back to the living room.

Tim had turned on the TV and was watching it.

When Nicole was about to tease him being too comfortable at their home, Tim abruptly stood up and ran outside quickly.

"What's going on?"

Nicole hurriedly asked but Tim did not pause to explain it at all.

On the screen showed the news that the police discovered a female body in the harbor and they were salvaging her.

Nicole's heart skipped a beat.

"Could it be...?"

"Not sure. But I guess Tim won't stay at our house for a meal. Then you go tell the children that I'll send all of you to the Don's at once."

Samuel didn't care about Tim at all now.

His mind was on the safety of Nicole and his children. Nothing was more important than them.

Nicole was going to say something else, but when she saw Samuel's anxious and worried expression, she held out.

She walked into the bedroom and found Zoe and Joseph playing with puzzles together. Hearing someone entering, they involuntarily looked up at Nicole.

"Mommy, what's wrong?"

"Mommy wants to take you to your uncle's house for a few days, okay?"

Nicole said with a bright smile, but Joseph perceived something unusual quickly.

Maybe what she thought was wrong?

Maybe Laurel was really dead?

Nicole was not sure.

"Alright, don't bother with it and leave it to Samuel since he wants to clean up the Green family thoroughly. Just stay at home with us, two old men, these days."

Hearing Mark's words, Nicole laughed immediately.

"Old men? You guys are only in your thirties."

"Almost forty."

Mark sighed and said, "We probably can't carry on the Don family line. No one is willing to marry an old man like us."

"I'm popular, unlike you."

What Jason said amused Nicole at once.

"Jason, are you in love?"

"What a joke!"

Mark was good at making fun of Jason.

Their bicker was actually interesting.

Nicole smiled and suddenly saw Mrs. Don's mourning portrait.

"Mark, Jason, may I worship Grandma?"

"Of course."

Mark led Nicole to the ancestral hall.

This was not the first time Nicole had come to the ancestral hall of the Don family, but this time, she was extremely grave.

Nicole didn't really like Mrs. Don before, but she died for Nicole. Thinking of this, Nicole couldn't blame her anymore.

Nicole bowed sincerely in front of Mrs. Don's mourning portrait.

There were tears in her eyes.

"Grandma, I'm sorry."

This was the first time Nicole had apologized to Mrs. Don. Unfortunately, she could no longer hear it.

Mark stood aside and saw how sad Nicole was. He couldn't help but say, "Nicole, don't be sad. My mother felt she owed your father a lot. Back then, if she hadn't insisted on your father joining the army, things probably wouldn't end up like this. Now that you are his daughter, my mother was willing to do anything for you. As long as you are happy, the Don family will be happy. "

"But Grandma died because of me. If it hadn't been for me, Grandma wouldn't have..."

"The past is past. We all respect Grandma's choice. Don't make things difficult for yourself. It super hurts me and Jason to see you cry too much."

Chapter 755 I Didn't Mean It

Nicole didn't know how to answer Jacob's question.

"Jacob, I'm not sure about this. You should go ask Tim. Also, not long ago, there was a woman's corpse at the harbor. Tim is afraid that it's his mother so he has already been there. If you're worried, you can go over and take a look. I'm here at the Don's with the children."

Nicole told Jacob about her current situation.

Jacob understood.

"Alright, madam, I'll go take a look. You don't worry about this. I'll ask her to give you a call if Olivia calls me."

"Alright."

After learning that Olivia was fine, Nicole heaved a sigh of relief.

Lying in bed, she felt that she was too tired recently.

It wasn't that she didn't want to help Tim, but that she didn't know where to start.

Finn and his men no longer listened to her. She was alone now. What could she do to help Tim?

In the end, Samuel would surely help Tim with the influence of the Green family. Therefore, she was completely assured now and let Samuel handle these.

Thank goodness! Olivia and her sister were fine.

Nicole told herself that she had to concentrate on the studies. Since she had almost forgotten her major, she would have to work much harder than others did. If she really wanted to win the prize. However, when she lay on bed, these things would fill her mind.

Why did Maia approach Tim?

Could it be because of Martha?

Tim did not tell Maia about his mother's whereabouts. Moreover, if Martha was the reason for Maia approaching Tim, she should have stayed by Tim's side instead of escaping, right?

Nicole could not understand at all.

Now Trevin was also missing. It would be even more difficult to find them.

Nicole turned over and sensed something under her body.

She sat up and realized that it was her bag.

Thinking of that there was a letter from Audrey inside, Nicole took it out and opened it.

Audrey's letter was very simple.

"I'm fine. Don't worry about me."

There were only two sentences on a piece of paper, which was placed neatly in the envelope.

Nicole was wondering what Audrey would write to her. She didn't expect it to be so simple, just two sentences.

Rather than telling her "I'm fine" through a letter, why didn't Audrey directly tell her on Twitter?

Nicole was a little disappointed and folded the letter. But she suddenly felt that it was strange.

"That's not right. If she wanted to tell me she was fine, she wouldn't have written only two sentences. Besides, Twitter can also do that. Why did she send me a letter?"

Nicole muttered as she read the letter again and again. Finally, she stopped when seeing the mailing address.

It was Maia.

Why did Maia call her instead of Tim? What did it mean?

"What's the matter?"

Seeing that Nicole's expression was a little strange, Jason hurriedly asked.

"It's fine. I need to go out now. Please help me take care of my child for a while."

After Nicole finished speaking, she put the phone into her pocket.

"The meal is almost ready. Where are you going?"

Mark walked out with a plate in his hand.

Nicole took a piece of food from the plate. It tasted pretty good.

"I have some personal matters to attend to. Help me take care of the child."

"Wash your hands!"

Mark slapped Nicole's hand off with a face full of disapproval.

"Look at you. You're a mother. You should set a good example for your child. Besides, why do you have to go out now? Can't you leave after the meal? I'll drive you there after we have meal together."

Jason agreed with Mark.

Nicole said, "Come on. I'm an adult now. Can't I have some private space? I'll only go out for a while. Leave me some food and I'll come back to eat later."

"Do you have to go?"

Mark intuitively didn't want Nicole to leave.

Nicole waved her hand and said, "I said it was personal. Don't ask anymore. I'm leaving. Remember to leave me some food."

Then she quickly ran out. After walking out of the door, the smile on her face disappeared.

It must be about Tim and Martha.

Nicole knew that she did not have many social connections to deal with this matter, but she had to help them. After all, Tim was special to her. Moreover, Tim nearly sacrificed his own life to save Samuel and her.

After driving out of the Don's, Nicole stopped at the side and called Maia.

"Speak."

Maia was displeased to hear Nicole's commanding tone.

"Pardon me?"

"Yep, you're right. Just because I spoke ill of you, Tim hit me right here and it swelled immediately. Are you happy about it? You are married, but he is still loyal to you. Even though he was having a date at that time, he protected you. Nicole Bush, what spell have you cast? Why is every man attracted to you?"

Maia's face became hideous.

Nicole thought she went crazy.

"Maia, I don't wanna argue with you about this issue. Tell me your requirement for releasing Aunt Martha."

"I want you to die. Accept it? Tim could save you at the risk of his life. Are you willing to save his mother at the cost of your life? I indeed hope he can know whether you are worthy."

Nicole looked at her, asking in a low voice, "Do you mean if I die, you'll release Aunt Martha?"

Nicole thought it was a waste of time to bring about the facts and reasons with such a crazy woman.

The best solution was to ask her directly.

Perhaps it never happened to Maia that Nicole would ask her so directly, so she was stunned.

"You are willing to die?"

"Sure. I was saved by Tim. If my death could save his mother's life, it can't be better."

Hearing so, Maia became nervous right away.

"Don't play tricks on me. I warn you. If you..."

"You want me to die. Be quick! Don't hesitate. Don't you envy me just because Tim cares more about me and stands on my side? Don't you feel unfair just because you lack love while I have a happy family? As for people like you, there's nothing wrong with your mental health. And there's no need to say anything with you as it insults my intelligence. I'll follow your instruction as long as you let Aunt Martha go. Before I kill myself, I must see that she is alive, or it's impossible for you to leave here."

Her words made Maia totally stunned. However, when she digested these words, she smiled.

"Nicole, is there something wrong with your mind? I can't leave here? I chose this place. Don't you know I've arranged everything here? How naïve you are!"

"Who knows?"

While saying so, Nicole unbuckled the buttons on her coat.

Maia was so frightened that she stepped back.

"You crazy woman!"

But Nicole smiled, "Not as mad as you. I'm here for Aunt Martha. If you don't allow me to see her, it doesn't matter for I'll bring you to the hell and let's seek justice in front of King of Hell. You're right. I have a happy family with two lovely son and daughter. Even though I'm dead, my husband will take good care of them and avenge for me. Guess whether he'll make trouble to Trevin?"

"How do you get my brother's name?"

Maia's face turned as pale as a piece of paper.

Right in this moment, Nicole knocked Maia from her back.

Maia hoped to finish her question, but she had no chance. She fell down backwards and Nicole held her right away.

"Is she okay?"

Finding Maia faint, Marta asked hurriedly.

"Don't be worried, aunt. There's a minibus outside. I'll take you away. I guess Tim is very anxious now."

Nicole laid Maia onto the bed, but she finally carried her outside after thinking for a moment. She laid Maia on the backseat beside Martha.

After getting on the minibus, Martha gently put Maia's hairs behind her ears, whispering, "Actually she treats me well. Is she really Tim's girlfriend?"

"I guess so."

Nicole couldn't lie, so she had to answer in this way.

She took the photo of herself and Martha and sent it to Tim and Samuel.

Seeing the photo, Tim was too excited to cry. He immediately called Nicole.

"Nicole, is my mum there?"

"Sure."

Nicole handed the phone to Martha.

"Aunt, Tim's call."

Martha picked the phone right away.

"Tim, it's mum."

"Mum, where have you been? Why did you follow anybody you didn't know? Why didn't you call me? Don't you know how worried I am?"

Tim burst into tears.

It was Nicole's first time to hear Tim's cry which was so upset.

Martha replied immediately, "Don't cry, darling. I'm sorry. But she said she was your girlfriend, so I followed her. I had been in sanatorium for years. Without your dad's visit, I would have been in the dream like a dreamer. Tim, you're so tired these years and it's all because of me. You won't be so tired anymore. I'll look after myself well. I'm looking forward to your marriage and taking good care of your kids."

Hearing her saying so, Tim felt relieved.

"Mum, Nicole is my friend. Listen to her and do whatever she asks you to do. Remember she'll never hurt me. It's she who saved me out of the fire when I was young. Mum, Nicole is my benefactor. "

In case that Martha took cautions against Nicole, Tim told everything to Martha.

Knowing that Nicole was the person who saved Tim, Martha was extremely excited.

"I know. I'll hang up now. See you later."

Martha hung up the phone. When she returned the phone to Nicole, she couldn't help holding her hands.

"Nicole, my son said that you saved him at that time. Is it true?"

"I happened to stop by."

Nicole gave her a smile.

She thought it was only a small piece of cake. She was very young and what she remembered was that the fire was on and a boy was crying. So she ran there and pulled him out of the fire.

Tim was excited that his mum recovered consciousness, but he neglected Nicole and Samuel.

He hurriedly caught Martha's hands and walked to the car, but found Martha stop.

"Nicole, do you have time tomorrow? Come and visit me. I'll cook something delicious to show my gratitude to you."

Martha treated Nicole very gently.

Until this time Tim understood what Samuel said just now.

Samuel looked at Tim as if he wanted to eat him up. Tim smiled slyly, "Yes, my mum is good at cooking. I haven't tasted the food she cooks for nearly 20 years. Nicole, come and visit us."

"I..."

"Nicole has no time. We have something to do tomorrow. Next time. I'm sorry."

"Well, I'll invite you next time and don't refuse me."

Martha pulled Tim away with a smile.

Seeing them leave, Samuel felt released.

"Sons are like their mums. Tim stopped badgering you. Then his mum started to badger you. Nicole, would you please stay far away from them? I'm really afraid that you will disappear when I'm inattentive."

Hearing his words, Nicole laughed immediately.

"Don't exaggerate, will you? Maybe Aunt Martha just wants to thank me?"

"Why don't I believe it? Let's go home! Were you in the Don family? Why did you leave there?"

The more Samuel said, the angrier he became.

Nicole comforted him, "I had no choice. Maia wanted to make me trouble. What could I do? It was impossible for me to keep avoiding her, right?"

"No one will blame you if you avoid her."

"Samuel, we owe Tim."

Nicole's words successfully made Samuel shut up.

If they didn't owe Tim, Samuel would have turned against them and Nicole didn't need to take risks.

Nicole knew Samuel had untied the knot in his heart.

She held his arm and smiled, "Shall I tell you another piece of news?"

"Hope it's not terrifying."

"Of course not."

Nicole smiled and said, "I entered for the International Car Design Competition. The preliminary contest is next month."

"When did you enter for it?"

Samuel was more or less surprised.

For him, the trivial matters inside and outside home really affected him. If possible, he hoped Nicole could keep away from them and it wouldn't be better if she could never touch them.

Now he was told she would attend the car design competition and he felt relieved.

Nicole smiled, "This afternoon, Uncle Jason reminded me of the competition. I thought I needed some prizes to win face in front of the kids. So I entered for it. You're so excellent and I don't want to fall behind you as if I was useless."

"I don't think you're useless."

Peering at Nicole's flickering eyes, Samuel rubbed her nose with a smile.

"Why do I disagree? My wife wanna portray me. However busy I am, I'll squeeze time."

"You seem to have eaten honey. Your words are so sweet. I can't bear you."

Nicole shook her head, quickly turned around and left.

But Samuel caught her hands, "If you can't bear me, who do you wanna bear?"

"No idea. Maybe someone dull."

"Dare you!"

"Wait and see."

Saying so, she turned around and ran away.

"Don't run if you dare!"

Samuel chased her.

Nicole ran while smiling, "I'm not a man and of course I don't dare."

"Stop!"

"It depends on whether you can catch me."

They ran on the road like two kids.

Their laughter swirled in the sky, so pure, so clean, so relaxing.

They didn't care about others' gossip and played happily until Nicole felt tired. She collapsed over the parterre, but she was pulled up by Samuel.

"What? I'm too tired."

Nicole acted like a spoiled child.

Samuel said nothing but took off his coat and spread it on the steps of the parterre.

"Now take a seat. You're sweating. Don't catch a cold."

Looking at the coat on the ground, Nicole smiled, "The coat cost much."

"You miser. Nothing is more expensive than your health. I earn money for you and kids. Besides, you told Jase that we had nothing but money. So the coat was only a small piece of cake. From tomorrow, my darling will drink a bottle of yogurt and throw away another bottle."

Samuel behaved like a new money, which made Nicole burst into laughter. She asked, "Why will I drink a bottle and throw away a bottle?"

"It's stylish! We've enough money to waste."

"Samuel, you've lost your mind."

Nicole poked his head.

But Samuel didn't care about it. He sat next to her, "I have such a smart and pretty wife. How can I keep rational?"

"Stop. Please don't say so. You're not suitable to be a new money. Mr. Green, please keep cold and elegant, thank you."

Nicole was amused by Samuel and she couldn't straighten up her waist.

"I'm glad to be your joke. Lady, I have a piece of bad news for you."

Samuel said seriously.

"Please, I'm strong enough to bear it."
