Chapter 881 I've Told You That I'm Not Different from Any Wife

How could it be possible?

Elvis might not believe what Nicole said before. But now that he heard the report from his trusted subordinate on the phone, he was totally shocked.

"What is your relationship with the Order of R?"

Elvis' voice was deep, but it carried a trace of doubt.

Nicole did not reply. But just because she remained silent, Elvis became even more alert.

He hadn't expected that such a weak woman would actually have some connection with the Order of R, a terrorist organization oversea.

The Order of R was notorious, for it was hard to get in. And its members were extremely arrogant. Ordinary people simply could not know any of them, and any member would never do anyone else a favor easily, unless the person he helped was his trusted confidant or family member.

However, Elvis couldn't believe that Nicole knew someone in the Order of R.

The more doubtful Elvis was, the more assured Nicole felt.

They were stuck in a face-to-face silent stalemate. Neither of them spoke, as if they had something on their mind.

Finally, after about ten minutes, Elvis began to talk.

"Will you withdraw your men as long as I withdraw the charges against Samuel? And swear to stay away from my research base?"

It seemed that Elvis really cared about this research base.

Nicole's goal was to save Samuel.

Elvis had done so much just to win the Green family and Eternal Group back. As for why, Nicole didn't know, but she knew that they were definitely useful to him. Now that Elvis compromised for the research base, Nicole somewhat understood. To Elvis, that center should be more important than the Green family.

And he was afraid of the Order of R.

As she figured it out, Nicole nodded.

"Of course, I've told you that I'm no different from any wife. All I want is to make sure that my husband is safe. It would be great if you could fulfill my demand. As for the research base, I'm not interested in it at all. As long as you release Samuel, I will withdraw my men immediately. However, Uncle Elvis, please don't set us up again. You know, I can make it by the grace of God once, so I can do it twice. At that time, it won't be as simple as it is now. "

Nicole said unhurriedly, but Elvis looked gloomy.

Right now, he felt terrible as if he had eaten some bad food. A target within reach was gone. And he was to blame for it. No one could understand how he felt now.

"Deal."

Elvis gritted his teeth and said.

However, Nicole smiled radiantly.

"Thank you. Then I may go home and wait for your good news."

After saying that, Nicole left.

When Heather saw Nicole come out, he moved aside after confirming that she was fine.

Chapter 882 Company Was in Trouble

In fact, ever since Elvis suddenly appeared and the Kent family had that accident, Nicole had an inkling that she no longer had anything in control. Then something happened to Samuel even before this inkling grew into a concrete feeling.

She had to admit that Elvis moved fast and accurately. That Gerry was already dead, but what about the one who was still alive?

He was like a pair of eyes hidden in the darkness, staring at Nicole and her family all the time. It set Nicole on edge.

After she relaxed for a while, her phone rang again.

Nicole glanced at it. It was Melissa. Apparently, Melissa got the phone number from her father.

Without even looking, she blacklisted Melissa's phone number.

Right now, she was upset about Samuel. She was in no mood to deal with Melissa.

Then, Nicole restarted the car and drove to the detention center.

She hadn't eaten much in the morning. After noon, she was not hungry at all. Now that the sun was about to set, but there was still no news. Nicole was a little anxious.

Did Elvis regret it?

Or did he have new plans?

Nicole called Heather. Heather told her that Elvis had never come out of the room.

Lucas also said that although the men from the Order of R had gone away, with some people left nearby, Elvis' men could still see them.

Nicole didn't know what was wrong, but she could only keep waiting.

However, she did not see Samuel come out. Instead, Jacob's call came.

"Mrs. Green, where are you?"

"Is anything wrong?"

Temporarily, Nicole was reluctant to say anything about Samuel.

Although such a big accident happened to the Green family, Nicole had blocked the news. And the press did not report it, because the senior leaders in the media industry had no intention to make it open. Now, Jacob's call made Nicole confused. So she asked directly.

Jacob hurriedly said, "Mrs. Green, can you get in touch with Mr. Green? Something happened to the company."

"What is it?"

Nicole's heart skipped a beat.

Mr. Bates was intimidated by Nicole's gaze.

The gaze was so close to that from Samuel. For a moment, he thought that he was speaking to Samuel.

After spending such a long time with Samuel, Nicole had acquired the same coldness in her eyes as that of Samuel.

Mr. Bates was nervous inside yet sounded confident, "What: Did I say anything wrong? We are all shareholders, and we have the right to know everything. When you whispered to Jacob in front of all of us, you are causing doubts among us."

Nicole noticed the flash of guilt in Mr. Bates' eyes.

It turned out that there were some things that Mr. Bates was afraid of.

Nicole turned around and sat on Samuel's seat.

"Mr. Bates, I don't think I have the duty to tell you what I was talking about with Jacob. Who do you think you are? Do you keep more shares of this company than me?"

Nicole finally understood what was going on here. She was the biggest shareholder in Samuel's absence. She could do or say whatever she wanted, with the authority granted by Samuel.

Mr. Bates was irritated by Nicole's indifferent appearance. He suppressed his anger and said in a low voice, "Mrs. Green, please stop being sarcastic under this critical condition."

"Alright, let me ask you something. After decades since its founding, the Eternal Group must have a full-fledged PR team. Where is the team now? And what about the senior management? You earn good salaries and are expected to do something for the Group. The Eternal Group is not a charitable organization. We don't pay those who don't contribute."

Nicole said the words loudly, which carried a trace of anger.

She then turned to Jacob, "Jacob, go and sign Manager Benington a paid leave. The company will pay his medical expenses. Then go and find out who is held accountable for this accident. Do not leave anyone out. Ask the PR team to release an announcement of our solutions to this matter. Call the police to look into the accidental death of the worker. Now I need an executive manager to visit the family of the worker on behalf of the Group. Take the accidental death policy and the compensation. Any volunteer?"

Nicole looked around the conference room.

The shareholders immediately turned their faces away, for fear that Nicole would call their names.

Nicole snorted.

"If you are not willing to stand out when the company is in trouble, just keep silent and wait for the yearly dividend. When Samuel was in charge, I had never heard so many complaints from you. Some of you even did not show up throughout a year. Why do things change now? Are you trying to take Samuel's position while he is absent, or do you have something else in mind? You should know the company keeps you because Samuel values the difficult times when you weathered with my father-in-law. That is the only reason he gives you a paycheck without asking you to do anything. As a matter of fact, the Green family is able to buy out the shares from all of you. If any of you does not want to stay, just say it now and I will buy your shares out. Jacob, write down the names of those who want to quit. Even if the Green family does not have enough cash at hand, we can turn to the venture capitals. I think our oil mines in East Africa is profitable as well. Take back all the shares. We don't need any shareholders."

The expressions of some shareholders' changed immediately when they heard Nicole's words.

"Mrs. Green, we never intend to sell our shares out. We had no idea of putting pressure on you, either. It was Mr. Bates who asked us here."

"Yes. Mr. Bates asked us here. We have no idea of what happened."

The other shareholders put the blame onto Mr. Bates.

Mr. Bates' look was not of a pleasure to look at.

"I heard about what had happened. It is a trap. It is hard to tell whether it was an accident when a person fell off from such a high elevator. You should not go. Also, you should check if that worker is contractual. If yes, he should be covered by accident insurance. Contact the insurance company immediately. I will go to the construction site on behalf of you."

It was Jason.

Nicole felt touched at his words.

"Uncle Jason, I know you are trying to help me, but I have to face it by myself. Neither you nor grandfather should step in. I believe that it is a trap set up by Uncle Elvis and the other man, and it is all about the Green family. If both Samuel and I fail, you can step in by then. But now it is not the time. I do not want to get you in trouble. I am afraid that if you step in too early, there will be no one to help us later."

Nicole's words surprised Jason.

Although what Nicole said was reasonable, he still feel uneasy if Nicole went to the site by herself.

"I will go with you. I don't think they could so powerful that they can get the Don family involved."

"They are not influential, but could get Samuel detained. And they are able to keep you and grandpa away from this matter. All this has said much about them. Uncle Jason, I will watch out. Do not worry about me."

Nicole's words depressed Jason somewhat.

"But you are pregnant..."

"It is destiny as for whether the baby could come to us or not. It would be the best if he could make it; if not, we could do nothing about it. Now that our company is in trouble, I cannot just wait at home for other people to rescue my husband and save the company. It is not my style. I understand that I am not good at running business as a designer. But it is a matter of attitude if I choose to get away from the challenges. I will be careful, Uncle Jason. Just go back home."

Nicole smiled at Jason. It was a firm and stubborn smile.

Jason's heart ached, but he could not insist anymore.

"Alright. If you need anything, call me. Remember that the Don family is behind you. We will never leave you alone under any circumstance."

"I will keep that in mind."

Nicole smiled again and got into Zac's car.

When the car started, Nicole took out her phone and called the construction company.

"Did the worker that was dead have accident insurance?"

The company manager was stunned and then answered, "No, he is a temporary worker and had only been here for a few days. Mrs. Green, I am so sorry. We did not check everything carefully. We..."

"Do not say it. You are not expecting this to happen either. Besides, we still have no clue what happened exactly. What the situation is now there?"

"Ah!"

Seeing this scene, the crowd could not help but scream. Nicole seemed to be awfully frightened, standing upright blankly to watch the dagger coming towards her chest.

Mrs. Mead was obviously ruthless. Many people even thought that Mrs. Mead had been waiting here all the time with the pure intention of witnessing the Green family's manager do this.

Some people wanted to pull Nicole, but they were afraid of getting hurt.

Nicole sobered up at the most urgent moment. She screamed and attempted to turn around, yet Mrs. Mead's dagger directly stabbed in her left chest.

Crimson blood sprayed out immediately.

"She's killed!"

Some people screamed out at once.

The news media were also stunned and hurriedly started shooting.

When Zac heard the voice, his heart involuntarily skipped a beat.

He bulled his way through the crowd in a hurry and rushed in. He saw that Mrs. Mead had already pulled out the dagger, with crimson blood sprayed on her face in an extremely ferocious way. She did not even pause to stab the dagger at Nicole again.

Nicole held Mrs. Mead's hand tightly with both of her hands, but she was somewhat powerless. The veins on her forehead became obvious while she watched the dagger slowly approaching her.

"Mrs. Green!"

Zac stepped forward all of a sudden and kicked away the dagger in Mrs. Mead's hand. Then, he quickly held Nicole in his arms.

Nicole became extremely weak.

The blood was continuously stimulating everyone's eyes.

Mrs. Mead got up in a hurry after she was kicked over, as if she could not feel the pain. Once again, she headed towards Nicole.

"A life for a life! You rich people should pay with your life!"

Zac knew how important Nicole was to Samuel, and he also knew how important Nicole was to the Green family. Now Nicole was pregnant, yet she was injured before his eyes. How could he explain this to Samuel?

Hearing Mrs. Mead shouting crazily at this moment, Zac lifted his leg and kicked her again.

"You're courting death!"

Everyone shivered at the sight of Zac's ruthlessness.

At this moment, Nicole fainted from excessive bleeding.

"Dead! Mrs. Green is dead!"

Someone shouted. It was explosive, like a drop of water dripped into a pot of oil.

"Steve of the Shaws?"

Zac looked at Nicole with a little admiration.

"Mrs. Green, when did you contact Edwin? I thought you had been very busy."

"I can do anything as soon as I want."

Nicole said nothing more.

She lay in the ambulance for a rest.

The ambulance fell into silence for the moment, yet the doctor and the nurses were all glad that Nicole was not their opponent, because they were already filled with apprehension after hearing of the internal strife between the wealthy people.

The ambulance soon arrived at the hospital. Nicole was carried off and sent to the emergency room as soon as possible.

Zac was contacting someone. It seemed that Nicole was seriously injured, so Jacob quickly contacted Samuel.

The news media had also arrived. After all, no one dared to treat Nicole shabbily considering her identity.

As for Samuel, originally he had been released, yet he received a note asking him to come out an hour later.

He was a little confused, but he still followed this instruction as the note was handwritten by Nicole.

To be honest, the fact that Samuel was able to leave the detention center already could prove his influence. Therefore, as long as Samuel gave the staff here some benefits, they would naturally allow Samuel to sit here for an hour longer without asking the reason.

The news media outside waited for more than half an hour with no gain. They even witnessed Ernesto went away by his car. At this time, at the sound of the news that Nicole had been stabbed, all of them hurried to the hospital with cameras on their shoulders.

"Who told us that there's big news here? Where's the big news? Something happened to the Green family's construction company while we were foolishly waiting here. I think someone was playing with us on purpose."

Some reporters began to complain.

When the other reporters heard this, they all felt that this was the case and left anxiously. However, there were still two or three reporters who wanted to wait here to see if there really was some big news. Ernesto entered the detention center through from another entrance.

"Mr. Green, Mrs. Green asked me to pick you up."

Samuel frowned slightly when he saw that Ernesto did not come from the main door.

"Where did you come from?"

"The back door."

"There's a back door here?"

Samuel looked at the policeman beside him.

The policeman said dejectedly, "That door is for special people only. Let alone us, even our director might be unqualified to walk that way. Mr. Green, you are indeed very influential."

Samuel frowned.

Naturally, he was clear about his influence, but he had not arranged all this. Could Nicole be behind this?

However, Nicole would not know about his interpersonal network.

Neither the Dons nor the Shaws had the right to do so, then why would Nicole make such an arrangement?

When Samuel returned from the outside, Zac had already come back. However, Zac's expression was not very good. Samuel did not say anything but sit down on the chair in the corridor.

The reporters were still waiting.

Samuel looked so grim that no one dared to utter a word.

As for Elvis, he knew that something must have gone out of his control, as the reporters waiting at the entrance didn't see Samuel there. But Samuel had already been released.

"Gerry, go pack up. Let's get out of here."

Elvis had no choice but to leave this place.

Although Nicole was now between life and death, the fact that she could get people from the Order of R to find Elvis' own research base had already sent him jitters. Worse still, Samuel had been released. Elvis knew that he could send Samuel to jail only because Samuel was caught unprepared. However, this was Samuel's territory. Given that Samuel was now distracted by Nicole's condition, Elvis thought it was the best time for him to leave.

However, Gerry was somewhat unreconciled.

"Dad, if we leave now, all our efforts will go down the drain. Besides, what about the stuff we want..."

"It's still there, and I don't think Samuel knows anything about it. Otherwise, he would have already taken it out. We can't stay here now. Son, everything I did was for you. If something bad happened to you, I don't know what I can do for the rest of my life. So pack your things right now. I'll see you at the airport."

After Elvis hung up the phone, he looked at the door outside.

It was Heather and the others.

Elvis knew they were skilled, but he smiled contemptuously.

If he wanted to leave the Technology Center, just walking through the gate was impossible.

Elvis came to the window and looked down. There were lines of cars below. This was the 13th floor, and getting out from here wouldn't be easy. However, if he went down to the 12th floor and took the elevator from there, it would probably do the trick.

Thinking of this, Elvis opened the window and jumped over.

He jumped from the balcony on the 13th floor to the one on the 12th floor. Fortunately, it was attached to an empty room.

Elvis smoothed his suit and took the elevator from the 12th floor.

And Heather knew nothing about it.

After Gerry hung up the phone, he felt unreconciled no matter how he thought about it.

He came back to the Seapolis City to take over from Samuel and take control of everything here. And now he had to leave with none of the above accomplished. He was really pissed off.

Gerry thought for a moment, but he still chose not to follow Elvis' words. He took a taxi to the Green's alone.

When the security guard at the Green's saw Gerry, he was slightly stunned and stood straight subconsciously.

"Mr. Green."

"Yes."

Gerry nodded and walked into the Green's fair and square.

There were only Wendy and Lucas in the house. When Gerry walked in, Lucas just opened his room door and was hurrying to the bathroom. He was surprised at the sight of Gerry.

"Samuel? Why are you back? Where's my mommy?"

Gerry was a little surprised, too.

This was the first time he had seen Lucas in person. Although he had seen him in the photo, this close observation made him somewhat excited.

"Jacob, what's going on?"

Samuel unlocked the phone and put himself on speakerphone.

Jacob whispered, "Mr. Green, Elvis disappeared."

Nicole's face cracked into a smile.

"He can't never run away from us. Check who he contacted and go find him."

"Yes, madam."

Jacob would certainly listen to Nicole. Though Samuel hadn't said anything, Jacob knew that Samuel would do the same.

After hanging up the phone, Samuel looked at Nicole, smiling faintly, "Somehow I feel like I don't know my wife. How did you become so powerful anyway?"

"I'm not powerful. I just happen to know someone."

Nicole knew that it was time for her to confess.

She tried to sit up, and Samuel promptly placed the pillow behind her so that she could lean comfortably against it.

Nicole held Samuel's hand and whispered, "I didn't mean to lie to you. It's just that I didn't think it was a big deal. Besides, I didn't have many opportunities. It was just a one-time favor."

"What was it, exactly?"

"It all starts with Lucas."

Nicole paused for a moment and began to talk.

"Lucas has been interested in computers since he was little. I didn't notice this at that time. It was Allen who discovered it. He said that if the kid really liked it, he would invite a teacher to teach him. Either way, it would be good for Lucas."

After saying this, Nicole sensed that Samuel's expression turned somewhat gloomy. She knew that this man might be jealous again.

"Come on. It's all history now. Lucas and I are now with you. Doesn't that mean more to you?"

"But I have missed a lot of your precious memories. And Allen was

After Lucas found the location, I asked the Order of R to surround the research base, which forced Elvis to drop the lawsuit. However, he probably didn't want to be restrained by me, which might explained the incident of Jamar falling to his death. I think he must have asked Gerry to say something to Jamar's wife, asking her to stab me. If I die, then no one will be able to restrain him. And no one can stop what he wants to do. But Jamar's wife was probably too nervous, and I took control of the situation as

Chapter 889 Welcomed Home, Samuel

Seeing Samuel come out, Ernesto stepped forward immediately.

"Mr. Green, where are we going?"

"You stay here with Mrs. Green and keep her safe. Got it?"

Samuel was serious.

Ernesto paused and then nodded immediately.

After being promoted by Nicole, Ernesto was loyal to her, especially when Zac was on duty now. As Nicole's only bodyguard for the moment, Ernesto felt particularly honored.

"Mr. Green, I will protect Mrs. Green with my life."

"Thank you."

With that, Samuel left.

Samuel drove alone, and no one dared to follow him.

Samuel returned to the Green's in no minutes. A man who looked exactly like Samuel was looking for something in the study. Samuel was not sure how Lucas was doing.

The guards were confused when he saw Samuel. Didn't Mr. Green enter the house not long ago? When did he come out?

"Hurry up. Close all the doors. No one is allowed to open the door without my code. I'm going to deal with another ME."

Samuel looked stern and grim, shocking the guards who then knew that the man in front of them was the real Mr. Green.

Did it mean that the person who went inside earlier wasn't Mr. Green?

Although the guards were confused, they followed the order immediately.

Samuel drove in, got out of the car, and locked it up.

Gerry heard a sound in the study. He looked down from the French window and saw Samuel coming back.

Damn it!

Gerry hadn't found what he wanted, and he was going to bump into Samuel soon. What should he do?

Gerry thought of Lucas the next moment.

Yes!

Gerry could have a firm hold over Lucas to oppress Samuel.

What Samuel cared about the most were his children. If Gerry got Lucas on hold, he wouldn't be afraid that he couldn't get out.

Thinking of this, Gerry hurried to the door of the study room to go to Lucas. However, Gerry didn't notice that someone had splashed oil outside the study room.

As soon as Gerry got out of the door, he stepped on the oil and immediately fell to the ground.

Zac was silent.

Samuel didn't say anything else. Time slipped by gradually, and they felt constrained.

Samuel didn't hang up the phone, as if he was waiting for Zac's final decision.

After about ten minutes, Zac spoke again.

"Mr. Green, can I do it myself?"

"Alright."

Samuel hung up the phone and continued to smoke, but looked depressed.

After Zac hung up the phone, he was heartbroken.

Zac looked at the piece of paper he picked up in the hospital over and over again, and his heart ached more than he could bear.

Why was Petty?

Zac believed that Samuel didn't accidentally drop that piece of paper but directly left it to him to save his face.

Zac parked his car by the side of the road and took a long pull on cigarettes before picking up the phone and calling Petty.

"Where are you?"

Petty was taken by surprise when she received Zac's call.

"Have you got a cold? Why is your voice a little hoarse?"

"I smoked a cigarette."

Zac didn't hide it from Petty.

Petty heaved a sigh of relief.

"Why don't you care about your health? Don't you know what's going on with you? We're gonna have children."

"Children? Do you mean you want to have my babies?"

A melancholy smile touched Zac's lips.

"Of course. What are you talking about? We're married. I'm going to have your babies. Are you nuts?"

Petty was very happy.

If possible, Zac really wanted Petty to stay like this.

Zac's eyes lit up, and he swallowed and said, "I remember you liked the seaside best, right?"

"That's right. What happened to you today?"

Petty was puzzled.

Zac took a deep breath and said, "Call someone to fill in. Come to the East Sea. I need to talk to you."

"What is it? Can't you tell me now?"

Petty didn't really want to go out.

"No!"
