Chapter 921 Don't Listen to Her Nonsense

"Mom!"

Nicole crazily ran to the basement, and knocked over all the guards there.

Harley was a little surprised, but he still followed.

"Mom!"

Nicole fell down all of a sudden, but she got up immediately and continued running towards the basement.

Elvis grabbed Nicole at the sight of all these.

"Let me go! Elvis! Let me go!"

Nicole waved her arms like mad.

Elvis got extremely angry.

"You'd better not provoke me now, Nicole. Your mother has ruined everything. She ruined Xander!"

Nicole suddenly understood something at the sound of this word.

"My dad was in the basement? Why didn't I see him the day before yesterday? He was so close to me. Why didn't I find my dad? Why did my mom know? Why? Now that my dad was found, why didn't you let me know, mom? Why didn't you bring him out? Why did you leave together like this? What should I do now that you're gone? Mom!"

Nicole knelt on the ground.

The raging fire soared into the clouds, illuminating half the sky.

Nicole knew that Audrey was about to die. She knew that Audrey suffered great pain every day, but she still couldn't believe that Audrey would leave her like this.

Not long ago, they were sleeping and chatting together. Why would they become eternally separated all of a sudden?

Elvis was so angry that his entire body trembled.

"Damn it!"

Elvis remembered the notebook that Audrey still had with her and suddenly asked Nicole.

"Where's your mother's notebook?"

Nicole was overwhelmed by sadness. When she heard his question, she subconsciously said, "My mother has always carried it with her. The thing you want has already been buried in the sea of fire with my mother. Elvis, you've been planning for so long. Have you thought that there would be such a day?"

"Damn it!"

He slapped Nicole in the face.

Nicole staggered and fell to the ground.

Her heart hurt so bad.

"Is this all true?"

Una's heart was broken.

She might have guessed something before she got out, but she didn't expect these things to be even crueler.

How could this be?

Her best friend Lillian never came back. Una thought that Lillian had settled down and did not want to have anything to do with Una. So Una tried not to think about and ask about Lillian. However, she did not expect that Lillian would have a daughter with her beloved man.

Una knew that she shouldn't care. After all, she was not even able to do the most basic thing as a woman. She couldn't let Elvis be a monk for the rest of his life, but why was it Lillian?

Why?

Her best friend slept with her beloved one and had a child. Now the child was all grown up, yet she had always been in the dark.

She felt as if someone had suddenly stabbed her with a knife. She was covered in blood, yet she couldn't do anything but suffer from the extreme pain.

Una grabbed her collar and stared straight at Elvis.

Elvis almost collapsed.

"It's not what you think, Una. I don't love her. She's the one who crawled into my bed. I was drunk at that time. And I've already punished her. She has had a miserable life for many years. It's the price she must pay."

Hearing Elvis' words, Una wailed miserably.

"How could you do this? How could you? If Lillian likes you, you can tell me. You totally deserve it. But why did you torture her like that? Why did you do such cruel things to your child? Elvis, that's your own child! No matter who her mother is, her father is still you! Do you know how much I wish I could have your child! Even if that woman is not me, I will still wish you happiness. But why did you lie to me? Why did you treat Lillian like that? "

Una cried her heart out.

Nicole, on the other hand, showed no sympathy at all.

She sneered, "Don't play dumb. You already know what Elvis did for your condition, don't you? Can't you tell those scientists were forced? Don't you expect a good result of those researches? You've tried to maintain your innocence, but you want it to work more than anybody. You ignore what Elvis might have done in the name of love. You are literally a phony, a fake!

Una's mask of innocence cracked.

She bit her lower lip, weeping pitifully. It almost broke Elvis' heart.

The first thing Samuel noticed was Nicole's blood-stained leg.

His face was purple with rage.

"Elvis, how dare you hurt her!"

Samuel threw himself at Elvis, swinging a punch on his face.

Nicole had mixed feelings.

She muttered, "Samuel, I can't hold on any longer."

"What?"

Samuel turned around and saw Nicole falling.

"Nicole!"

Samuel rushed towards Nicole. The moment she was about to fall down, he held her body. With her tears trickling down her face, Nicole fell into a coma.

"Nicole! Doctor!"

Samuel's heart was broken.

He was still late, wasn't he?

Ernesto, Laurence and the others quickly ran over. They surrounded Elvis and his gang.

Una had already accepted the fact. She silently came to Elvis' side, held his hand, and said softly, "I will be with you."

"Alright."

Elvis' ruthlessness disappeared, and now he was just like an ordinary person.

He held Una's hand tightly and didn't say anything else.

Samuel quickly carried Nicole into the helicopter.

On the helicopter, Gabrielle had already taken out some medical equipment. He was a little worried when he saw Nicole.

"Put her down and let me check."

Samuel quickly placed Nicole on the stretcher beside him.

Elvis and his gang were taken to other helicopters.

Samuel transmitted the situation to Lucas using his phone. Then Lucas informed Mark and Jason. And all the people involved were rushing towards this small island. However, these things had nothing to do with Samuel anymore.

"Are you awake? Why don't you sleep a little more?"

Samuel quickly walked over.

Nicole glanced at Lillian, nodded slightly and smiled. She turned to look at Samuel, her eyes glittering with shyness.

"I miss you. I'm afraid that I won't see you again."

"Are you stupid?"

Samuel took a step forward and directly held her in his arms.

Nicole wrapped her hands around Samuel's neck. They entered the bedroom.

Lillian looked at the couple in love and whispered to Petty, "Is Samuel a brother to you?"

"That's true."

Petty nodded.

Zac arranged a place for Lillian. Then the family went into the room to chat.

Samuel gently put Nicole on the bed after entering the room, but she did not let go of him. Samuel was slightly stunned.

"What's the matter?"

"My mother is dead."

Nicole felt gloomy, her eyes filled with tears.

"Do you know? She set herself and father's corpse on fire so that they could die together in the ocean. I couldn't even bring back her ashes. How am I ever going to explain what happened to my grandfather?"

"Your grandfather won't blame you!"

Samuel had already knew about her mother's death. He knew that would deeply hurt Nicole, but he wasn't sure how to comfort her.

Nicole buried her head in his arms and whispered, "I feel so useless. I've been thinking how to take care of my mother, but it turns out I don't even know when she got into the basement. What kind of a daughter am I?"

"Don't talk about yourself like that. You've already done a good job. She may be just too tired. Nikki, think about it. The love she ever wanted was that from your father but he was gone. Now, she finally fulfilled her wish by dying with him. Perhaps this is also a kind of relief. For her, this must be the best ending. As children, we should be happy for them."

"But I'm not happy. That's my mother. My father has been gone for so many years. I have no idea what kind of person he is. But my mother is alive. She talked with me, she comforted me, and she even did many things for me. I remember all of this. In my memory, she was real, but now she suddenly left like this. Samuel, I can't stand it, really."

Seeing that Nicole seemed frightened, Edwin hurriedly grabbed the phone.

"I'm okay."

Nicole smiled embarrassedly.

At this time, to be honest, no one wanted pick up the phone. However, Edwin could not pretend not to hear the phone ringing. He took a deep breath before answering the phone.

Nicole didn't know who called, but she noticed a sudden change in Edwin's expression.

"Grandfather, what happened?"

Nicole hurriedly asked.

Edwin's expression turned serious, and he whispered, "Morgan just now said that she had got your mother's physiological analysis. She didn't have cancer."

"What?"

Nicole became anxious.

"Why? Didn't my mom have stage four stomach cancer? What is it now?"

Edwin shook his head, "I'm not sure. She said that if time permitted, we'd better check it ourselves. However, I am not in good health these days. Why don't you and Samuel go and take a look after lunch? No matter what, although your mother passed away, we still have to figure out her illness."

"Alright, Samuel and I will pay Morgan a visit."

Nicole immediately promised to go.

When Samuel came out, he saw that Nicole and Edwin looked gloomy. He thought that they were still in grief. He quickly said, "Grandfather, Nicole, what happened can't be changed, and we have to look forward, right? Besides, I believe that mother also doesn't want to see you like this."

Nicole nodded.

Edwin kept silent, but his look showed that he agreed with Samuel.

Samuel hurriedly filled a bowl of soup for Edwin.

"Grandfather, you haven't been eating much these past few days. The warm soup will be good for your stomach."

"Alright."

Edwin nodded and picked up chopsticks.

Before Nicole started, Samuel had brought up the special meal for pregnant women.

"I've searched the website to get the recipe. If it tastes not good, just go with it. I'll practice more."

His words made Nicole feel warm.

"It's fine. I think it tastes good."

She forced a smile and ate up all the food in front of her. She failed to enjoy the meal, but she still ate everything to encourage Samuel.

Seeing her like this, Samuel felt heartbroken even if he didn't say anything.

He wished that his wife could be happy every day, instead of being faced with danger and sorrow.

Nicole stopped eating, Edwin also

Chapter 926 A Man Always Has a Dream

Samuel was afraid of disturbing Nicole, so he hurriedly got up and walked out.

As soon as he went downstairs, Samuel saw Zac and Petty coming down as well. It seemed that they also wanted to go out and see who it was.

Samuel whispered, "You can go back and rest. I'll just go out and take a look."

"Samuel, it's better for me to do that."

"No, I will go. It should be Jacob."

Hearing Samuel's words, Petty pulled Zac into the room.

Jacob, as Samuel's special assistant, had worked for Samuel for many years. There shouldn't be any problems.

Seeing Petty and Zac go back, Samuel stood up and walked out.

Outside the door, it was indeed Jacob, but his condition wasn't very good.

"What's the matter?"

Samuel rarely saw that Jacob was as upset as he was now, not even when Olivia wanted to break with him.

Jacob loosened his tie, seemingly a little bit uncomfortable.

"It's fine. I'm just a little bored. I come over and want to have a drink with you."

His bloodshot eyes showed that he hadn't had a good sleep recently.

Samuel frowned slightly and whispered, "You didn't drink before."

"I just suddenly want to have a drink. I don't have any friends, so I want to ask you to drink with me. If you're busy, forget it. I'll go to the bar myself."

"Come with me to the cellar. My wine is much better than the wine in the bar."

Samuel patted Jacob on the shoulder.

Jacob nodded.

The two of them went to the cellar. For fear that Nicole could not find him when she got up, Samuel told the servant where he went.

Once they arrived at the cellar, Jacob picked up one bottle wine and just drank it.

Samuel did not feel pity for his wine and allowed Jacob to do whatever he wanted.

Jacob was not a man who would do things without consideration. In fact, for so many years, Jacob had always been strict with himself and even scrupulously abided by his duty, without overstepping. Even though Samuel said that they were brothers, Jacob still couldn't relax. In Jacob's heart, Samuel was his benefactor and boss. Although Samuel was also a friend, he still felt inferior in front of Samuel.

But now, Jacob was like a child who had been stimulated and had forgotten all these things, which rarely happened. Now that it had happened, there must be something happened that Jacob couldn't bear.

Jacob had developed his business quite well under the support of Samuel these years. Even if he left the Green family, he was still a person that many people in the upper class looked up to. Now, his depression was most likely related to Olivia.

However, since Jacob didn't want to say anything, Samuel didn't ask. He would talk about it when Jacob needed him.

Only taking a bottle of red wine, Samuel took a sip. He didn't drink much, but Jacob drank too fast as if it was water. Jacob finished one bottle of wine by only a few gulps.

"Samuel, where are you going?"

Lillian called out to Samuel. It seemed that Samuel did not hear it or spared no time to answer because he was too hurried. In short, he just went out without more words.

When Nicole got up, Samuel was already gone.

Pregnancy made her a little lazy.

After she got up, she lingered in the bed for a while before she went downstairs. She saw Lillian and the servants rushing to clean the room.

"Lillian, just sit there. They are paid. Do you want them to resign?"

Nicole was in a good mood and could not help but tease Lillian.

Hearing this, Lillian felt a little embarrassed.

"I just can't sit here and do nothing. Samuel and you are so kind to Petty and me. If I don't do anything, I always feel like I am a good-for-nothing. I..."

"What are you talking about? How could you be a good-for-nothing? You are our elder. Now what you should do is to enjoy yourself. Don't mind these chores. The Green family has servants. Don't tire yourself out, or Petty will be distressed and we will also be sad. Oh right, is Petty up? I woke up late today."

Hearing Nicole's words, Lillian hurriedly said, "Petty is a little sleepy and isn't up yet. By the way, Samuel got up early in the morning and made breakfast for you. I'm warming it up, and I'll fetch it now."

As she spoke, Lillian wanted to stand up, but was stopped by Nicole.

"Wendy, bring over the food that Mr. Green has prepared."

"Alright, Mrs. Green."

Wendy nodded and went to fetch the food.

Nicole couldn't help but ask, "Has Samuel eaten yet?"

"No, he received a phone call just as he finished cooking for you. Then he hurriedly went out and even had no time to wear a coat."

Nicole paused for a while.

"Did he say anything?"

"No, he left with no words."

Nicole was a little worried and quickly dialed Samuel's number.

"What happened? I heard that you left early in the morning?"

Where Samuel was now was a little noisy. When he heard Nicole's phone call, he said, "Wait a moment." Then, he found a quiet place to continue the chat.

"Are you still there?"

"Yes!"

Nicole replied as she ate her breakfast.

Samuel looked at his watch. It was already nine o'clock.

"You just woke up?"

"Yeah, I'm a little lazy today."

Nicole didn't hide that from him.

Samuel sighed and whispered, "You should eat first. I'll tell you later."

"You came alone?"

Chapter 928 I'm All Yours

"Yes, I just came to see you. I haven't heard from your sister lately. How is she?"

Nicole thought for a while and said. She was trapped on the island by Elvis recently so she didn't know if Olivia was worried. But now it seemed that Olivia was too busy dealing with her own troubles.

She had to take care of a paralyzed younger brother and a father with brain disease.

Booth's eyes were dim.

"Nicole, can you do me a favor?"

"What's that?"

"Can you find me a job that I can do at home? I originally applied for a job as a translator. However, they fired me because I couldn't deliver the manuscripts in person. Our family's financial status is not good, and my sister is exhausted. As the man in our family, I have to do something to make it easier for her. It doesn't matter how much does the job pay, as long as I can share the burdens with my sister."

Hearing Booth's words, Nicole's tears were rolling in her eyes.

Booth used to be a rich kid with great ambition, but now he came down because of the Green family. Nicole felt sorry about that.

"Don't worry. I will help you."

"Nicole, I know you are a good person and you blame the Green family and yourself for what happened to us. However, my sister said that this was our destiny, and had nothing to do with you. She might not be able to help you a lot for the circumstance now. But let her know if there is anything she can do. She will do her best like the old times."

Nicole was deeply touched, but also felt grieved.

"Your sister and I are the best friends forever. Don't worry. I know your family is too stubborn to accept my financial support. So I will keep it in mind and find you a job so that you can share some of the burdens for your family."

"Thank you, Nicole."

Booth finally smiled brightly, just the way she had seen before when he was young.

However, Nicole couldn't even force a smile.

When she came out of the Kent's, she was extremely depressed and sad.

Nicole called Samuel immediately.

"Is Jacob out?"

"Yes, but it doesn't look good."

Samuel's voice was somewhat low.

"I'm at the Kent's. It isn't good here either."

Nicole told him about Booth.

Samuel whispered without hesitation, "I will call the company. We happen to be in need of translators lately. Just let Booth take the job since he should be excellent with languages due to his background. I will send someone to pick up the manuscripts every day. After all, as important documents, it is better not to send them online. I will pay him as usual."

"Thank you, Samuel."

Nicole thought for a long time about whether she should tell her about it. Then they arrived at the hospital.

Olivia got out of the car first and supported Harper, with Nicole following behind.

They went to the doctor's office and told the doctor about the detail of Harper's decease. Then Nicole went through the hospitalization procedures.

After everything was done, Olivia looked at her watch and whispered, "I have to go somewhere else. I have already hired a nurse and will be back soon. I'll write you an IOU later. Do not refuse."

Nicole nodded.

Olivia was a stubborn person. Since she insisted, Nicole should just accept it.

Seeing Nicole nod, Olivia smiled bitterly and said, "Why didn't you ask me where I'm going?"

"I believe that any decision you make is after careful consideration. You are not an impulsive woman. You have your own thoughts. You know what you are doing and what you need. As a friend, all I can do is to help and support you when you need it. There is no need to ask as long as you take good care of yourself. Remember, I get your back."

Nicole held Olivia's hand and said.

Olivia's tears were about to run out.

"Thank you, Olivia. I know that your must had a hard time when you were detained by Elvis. I also know about your current state of health. Don't worry. I will take care of myself. I hope you do the same. I probably don't have time to help you with your business these days."

"You don't have to say that. It's us. Do whatever you have to do."

Olivia nodded and said a few words to Harper before leaving.

Nicole did not tell her about Jacob's car accident.

Looking at Olivia's weak back, Nicole couldn't help but sigh.

After she settled Harper down, she went to Jacob's ward.

"How's he?"

When Samuel saw Nicole coming over, he looked behind her to check if there was someone else and whispered, "He is still unconscious and has already been sent to the ICU. Did you find Olivia?"

"I did, but I didn't tell her."

Nicole sighed and whispered, "She is having a hard time now. Booth can't take care of himself and Harper is a mess. If I tell her about Jacob now, what do you expect her to do? She's almost crushed. I'm afraid Jacob's car accident will thoroughly break her down.

Samuel frowned slightly and hesitated to say anything.

"What is it? Do you think I made a bad decision?"

"No."

Samuel took a deep breath and whispered, "Jacob may never get out of the coma."

"What?"

Nicole was stunned.

Chapter 930 We Don't Need You Anymore

Nicole actually saw Melissa here!

After what happened to Elvis, she did not recall Melissa at all, nor did she think about where Melissa had been taken by Elvis and what the consequences would be. Now that she had met her in the hospital, she was a little curious.

"What are you doing here?"

Nicole directly walked over and asked.

When Melissa saw Nicole, she was a little mad.

"What did you do to Elvis?"

It seemed as if Nicole had cursed her whole family. Her voice was filled with resentment.

The way that Melissa defended Elvis like this made Nicole feel as if she was his biological daughter. Nicole found this incredibly unfair.

"He has no one to blame for. It's for everyone's good that he cannot harm others any more. He deserves it."

"Nicole, don't be too complacent! Without Samuel's protection and the Don family's support, you are nobody."

Melissa said angrily, "If you grew up in an orphanage like me, eating the leftover food of others and sleeping under the overpass, I don't believe you would have the dignity and elegance as you have now."

After saying that, Melissa ruthlessly hit Nicole and left.

Nicole almost fell, but she didn't say anything. Instead, she followed Melissa into the hospital.

Melissa walked into a ward.

Nicole suddenly had a bad feeling and followed her in.

She saw Mrs. Bush lying in bed, taking an intravenous drip and kept coughing, while Mr. Bush was sitting by her, with profuse white hair on his temples. It seemed that he had aged significantly.

"Mom and Dad, I'm back."

Melissa walked over, took out two mangoes from her pocket and handed over.

"I only bought two for Mom because I want them to be fresh. Try them."

Melissa said as she handed the two mangoes to Mrs. Bush.

Mrs. Bush was very happy. She smiled and said, "What a thoughtful girl. You don't have to buy me mangoes. I have no appetite now. Hurry up and eat them. I know you like mangoes."
