

CEO's Lovely Wife Has Escaped by Anuo

Chapter 24: Injured

Mia was so focused on finding Noah that she didn't pay attention to her surroundings. She took another step forward, and the blanket that had slipped down was stepped on by Mia.

Mia felt something soft under her feet, but before she could take a look, she heard a cry.

"Ma' am, be careful!" The waiter shouted nervously. When Mia heard the voice, she instinctively wanted to turn around and dodge, but the waiter's tray had already touched Mia.

"Crash." There was the sound of plates falling to the ground and shattering. A lot of soup was spilled on Mia's body. When the waiter saw that he had spilled something on someone, he instantly became extremely nervous and rushed forward to help Mia.

Mia was also given a huge fright by the sound of the plate shattering, and the dazed look on her face disappeared as well. All she wanted to do was to get away from this scene as quickly as possible, but she had only taken two steps back when she tripped on the blanket that had just slipped from under her feet, and she fell to the ground.

When the waiter saw that Mia was about to fall to the ground, he was shocked. The floor was filled with broken plates, and they hadn't been cleaned up yet. If she fell to the ground, the consequences would be disastrous. Hence, the waiter hurriedly reached out to pull Mia, but before he could do so, he only pulled Mia's sleeve.

Mia's arm scraped against the plate fragments on the floor, leaving a cut on her arm, which was bleeding profusely. However, the waiter noticed that the lady didn't seem to notice the bleeding on her arm. She was just holding her stomach while looking worried.

"Ah!" Mia was shocked by the fall and couldn't help but cry out.

Fortunately, she was pulled by the waiter just now. Coupled with the thick carpet on the floor, Mia's legs fell to the ground first, so the force of her fall was lessened. Hence, Mia didn't feel much pain when she fell to the ground. She was only worried about the baby in her stomach, so the first thing she did was to hold her stomach.

Noah, who was chatting with his business partner, suddenly heard a scream. The voice was very familiar. Noah instinctively felt that it was Mia's scream, so he hurriedly stood up to take a look. It was indeed Mia.

"Mia, what's wrong?" Noah asked anxiously as he ran over.

The waiter at the side was about to help Mia up, but he was stopped by this anxious man.

At this moment, Noah did not have the time to care about how Mia was suddenly injured. He only hurriedly made his way through the crowd and helped Mia from the ground.

Seeing Noah's appearance, Mia slowly regained her senses and also noticed the wound on her arm. At this moment, the pain nerves seemed to have just started working and Mia's tears flowed out.

Noah first took off his coat and draped it over Mia. Then, he instructed the waiter to quickly get a clean napkin and tie it to Mia's injured arm. First, he stopped the bleeding. Then, he instructed the secretary to quickly get a car and send them to the hospital. Noah had been very calm during this entire process, but little did they know that Noah was already extremely anxious.

When the secretary parked the car at the door, Noah picked up Mia without a word and walked out. He had even forgotten to give his business partners a heads up. Noah's phone had been ringing since he carried Mia to the car. He didn't know what urgent matter it was, so he called again and again. He had no choice. After putting Mia in the car, Noah could only pick up the phone first.

"CEO Noah, Jenny fainted on the set because of the filming progress. What should we do?" The photographer's anxious voice could be heard from the other end of the phone. The incident had happened so suddenly that the photographer could not find a person who could handle it. Then, he remembered that he had seen the scandal between the CEO and Jenny and mistakenly thought that the two of them were a thing, so he called Noah's phone.

As Mia's arm had lost too much blood, her consciousness gradually started to become hazy. In a daze, she heard Noah pick up a call, saying that Jenny had fainted. Then, she heard Noah instruct the driver to send Mia to the hospital first.

As soon as the car started, Mia forced herself to stay awake. Sure enough, Jenny was more important. Mia laughed at herself. But it was good that Noah wasn't coming. Originally, Mia had been afraid of what she would do if she went to the hospital for tests. What if he found out she was pregnant? If Noah told her on the spot that he didn't want the child, she would break down.

Thinking of this, Mia made a decision and instructed the driver to go to the hospital where her doctor friend was.

"Madam, this... the CEO wants to go to our family hospital," the driver said with a troubled expression.

"I must go to this hospital today. If you don't send me, then stop by the roadside." This was the first time Mia had spoken so directly. When the driver heard this, he was stunned for a moment. This was really different from his impression of Madam in the past.

The driver couldn't help but turn back to look at Mia again. Her face was a little pale due to the loss of blood, but her eyes and eyebrows were still the same. She was still the weak and delicate Madam.

Although he didn't know why Madam insisted on going to this hospital, his duty was to deliver Madam safely. Therefore, after some thought, the driver quickly replied, "Madam, that's not what I meant. Don't worry, I'll send you to this hospital immediately.."

Chapter 25: Suturing the Wound

After saying this, she sent a text message to her doctor friend to inform her of the situation. Mia's energy was almost depleted.

The driver sped all the way to the hospital. By the time he reached the doctor's friend's hospital, Mia was about to fall into a coma. The driver called Madam several times, but she did not wake Mia up, so he had no choice but to step forward and help Mia out.

The driver had just helped Mia out when he saw a doctor in a white coat running towards them with an anxious look on his face. This must be Madam's friend, the driver thought.

By the time the doctor took Mia and put her on the hospital trolley, the sound of wheels rolling woke Mia. The moment Mia opened her eyes, she saw the doctor's friend anxiously arranging surgery for her.

Mia's consciousness had always been blurry, but when she heard the word "anesthesia", she instantly sobered up. She reached out and pulled her doctor's friend's white coat while whispering, "No anesthesia, it'll hurt the baby."

The doctor froze for a moment before he looked at Mia. "What kind of situation is this? You don't want anesthesia? Do you know how painful it is to suture? Your wound needs stitches now, do you know that?" Her doctor friend said angrily.

Mia nodded to show she understood the doctor's words.

The doctor thought that he had persuaded Mia and was about to instruct his assistant to get the anesthetic when he heard Mia's weak voice.

"I know. I have a baby, so I can do this. I'm not afraid of pain." Mia's voice was weak but her tone was firm.

Hearing Mia mention the baby in her stomach, her doctor friend got even angrier. "Where's Noah? You're already so injured. Where did that jerk go?"

Mia said nothing, and only shook her head silently.

Her doctor friend knew the situation between Mia and Noah best. After persuading her so many times, he had thought that there would be a change after Mia's pregnancy, but who knew that pregnancy would become the beginning of Mia's pain.

Hence, her doctor friend could only nod his head in the end. He could not dissuade Mia. If he did not relent, Mia would refuse to undergo the suturing. However, if he did not do it now, Mia's life would be in danger if the blood continued to flow. The doctor had no choice but to agree to Mia's request.

The entire suturing took about half an hour. Mia might have been the first mother in the history of the hospital not to use anesthetic.

She was strong and noble. He didn't know how the usually weak and delicate Mia could have such strength at this moment. Even a strong man might not be able to endure not receiving anesthesia. However, Mia forced herself to endure it. Her tears kept flowing, but she never said "It hurts." She just placed her uninjured hand on her collarbone and pressed it tightly there.

The doctor and his assistant were moved to the end. When the suturing finally ended, Mia lowered her palm, and they saw a tattoo on Mia's collarbone.

The delicate and pretty tattoo was on her collarbone. When he got closer, he realized that it was a moon. At this moment, her doctor friend remembered that this was the symbol of Noah's family's partner. Mia had once told him that Noah's family's male lead was the sun, while the female lead was the moon. They corresponded with each other and also meant that they loved each other.

At that time, Mia looked so happy when she talked about it, but who knew that after a few years, Mia would become like this? Thinking of this, the doctor could not help but feel pity for Mia. When he was suturing, Mia was still thinking about Noah, but where did Noah go?

On the other side, when Noah received the photographer's call, he hesitated for a moment. After all, Jenny was the spokesperson that he had just signed. It concerned the major progress of the new project of the corporation. If anything happened to the spokesperson, the project would probably be completely ruined.

However, time was of the essence. Noah did not have time to think about it for too long. If Mia's wound did not stop bleeding soon, there would definitely be a problem. Hence, Noah instructed the chauffeur to send Mia to the family hospital first. With the familiar doctor around, Noah was more at ease. Then, he quickly arranged for his secretary to visit the spokesperson, Jenny. After everything was arranged, Noah rushed to the hospital to prepare to visit Mia.

But sometimes, things were just so coincidental. They were just one intersection away from the hospital when Noah received a call from his grandfather's doctor-in-charge. He said that his grandfather had just finished dinner today and his condition suddenly worsened. He was in the hospital for emergency treatment.

Noah weighed the pros and cons slightly. Mia should be in the middle of suturing by now. If he called Mia, she would be worried and run over. This would not be good for anyone. Hence, he decisively turned around and went to visit the Old Master first.

When he arrived at the hospital, he saw his grandmother waiting outside the emergency room. His grandmother, who usually looked very energetic, seemed to have aged a lot all of a sudden. She sat on the chair in a daze with her eyes staring at the emergency room lights, as if she was afraid that the emergency lights would suddenly go out. Noah did not dare to come up and disturb his grandmother.

He stood quietly outside and observed the situation, but many things began to surface in his mind..