Chapter 114: What time will you be home?

The woman in the photo looked very familiar!

In Olivia Jenkins' mind, the image of a long-haired, sweet and gentle woman she had seen at ResilientCare Hospital came to mind.

It must be her!

In the photo, Daniel Marshall held her, both of them smiling sweetly, their faces filled with joy. They must be a couple in love.

This woman must be the one whom Seraphina claimed Daniel loves to death!

Seraphina had deliberately sent this kind of photo to her, clearly aimed to disgust and provoke her, trying to make her argue with Daniel... However, this simple scheme of Seraphina's was something Olivia simply didn't care about.

Moreover, Olivia had already prepared herself mentally and had a good understanding of her situation. This intimate photo indeed failed to stir waves in her heart.

She put her phone aside and continued eating as if nothing happened.

Seeing that Olivia did not respond, Seraphina sent her another message.

[Bitch, look clearly. This is the woman Daniel loves to death. You are nothing in his heart, and you are not worthy of him.]

[You're silent, you must be heartbroken to death, hahaha, you deserve it, you're not worthy!]

[Olivia Jenkins, you're the one who's the most shameless, let me tell you, that woman will come back. You will surely be humiliated, and Daniel will definitely abandon you.]

[In front of that woman, you're less than a speck of dust. There's no place for you in Daniel's heart. Hahaha, you're so pathetic!]

Olivia's beautiful face showed no emotion.

She decisively blocked Seraphina and deleted the messages she sent.

Indeed, shameless bitches are always so self-righteous. If Seraphina wanted to amuse herself, Olivia wouldn't play along.

She didn't show any sign of displeasure and continued to enjoy her dinner.

Daniel, his deep eyes watching Olivia, asked with his sexy thin lips slightly parted, "What's up? Who's looking for you?"

Olivia responded in a light-hearted manner, "Just some spam, no need to pay it any mind. "

"Where are you going after dinner?" Daniel's voice was low, enchanting like a cello, captivating.

Olivia slightly fluttered her long eyelashes and replied dismissively, "I have to go back to work after eating. I'm very busy!"

"What time will you be home?"

"Not sure."

In an instant, Daniel's attractive thin lips tightened, his handsome face stiffening, as if layered with frost.

Indifferent to everything, Olivia continued enjoying her meal with relish.

When Mrs. Jenkins woke up, she found herself in a convalescent hospital, refusing to eat or take medicine.

She even threw away the meals that the nurse prepared for her and started throwing things around.

The nurse patiently consoled, "Mrs. Jenkins, your family knows that your health is not good. They specifically sent you here to recuperate. As soon as your health improves, they would come to pick you up."

Mrs. Jenkins was furious, "You are lying, Seraphina wouldn't send me to a place like this. She takes good care of me and treats me just like her own daughter. Immediately take me back to the Jenkins residence, I won't stay here." "They're very busy and it's inconvenient for them to take care of you."

"I want to make a call, I don't believe you."

"Mrs. Jenkins, you're not allowed to go anywhere or make any calls. The doctor requires that you rest. If you want to go to court, you have to get better first. As far as I know, lawyers in court ask very sharp questions. If you're physically weak, I'm afraid you won't be able to withstand the trial."

That's right, she couldn't even walk straight with her cane. If she was to get excited, she might lose consciousness.

That's something which could only benefit that girl, Olivia Jenkins. No, she must get better.

"Was it really my daughter-in-law's idea to send me to the convalescent hospital?"

Facing the sharp gaze of Mrs.. Jenkins, the nurse calmly replied, "Yes, it was!"
