

Every Night 123

Chapter 123 Make Olivia Jenkins Shut Up Forever

There must be a vile person trying to sow discord between her and her mother, looking to bring her down with devious tactics.

However, she was feeling conflicted deep down, the DNA test results made her anxious and scared!

Stumbling, she rushed to the parking lot. She could no longer hold back her tears, and her hands were trembling uncontrollably.

Back at the hotel, Hannah was dim-eyed with tears as she looked at her mother; she looked in a pitiful state.

Seraphina looked at her daughter with heartbreaking sorrow.

She wanted to embrace Hannah, but Hannah evaded her reach.

Seraphina had received a call from Lawyer Hall and somewhat knew what had transpired at the meeting, but she never imagined that not only was Olivia Jenkins cruel, but she was also extremely cunning with a knack for turning situations in her favor.

Her innocent Hannah was no match for the devious Olivia; it was unbearable to see Hannah wronged and mistreated!

“Hannah, it’s okay, we still have a chance to bring Olivia down. The shareholders of the Jenkins Group are blind, they will soon regret not seeing Olivia’s true colors. Don’t feel sad anymore.”

Hannah didn’t heed her mother’s comfort; she cried even harder, and the tears just kept flowing down her cheeks.

“Mom, are George and I not our dad’s children? Who are we truly?”

Suddenly, Seraphina’s eyes instinctively narrowed, her pupils contracted, and her face showed a trace of spasm.

A wave of uncontrollable anger surged through her heart; she resented Olivia deeply.

She was determined to take Olivia down.

While feeling sorry for her daughter, Seraphina was also filled with discomfort. Yet, she maintained her composure, and showed no traces of guilt.

Seraphina didn’t want to disclose her hidden secrets, let alone expose her sordid deeds to the public eye. She wanted to protect her children from harm.

Seraphina pulled her daughter into her arms and comforted her gently,

“Hannah, as you know, Olivia is the worst. Yesterday, she kicked us out of the Jenkins house, it’s clear how despicable she is. No matter what she does, all she wants is to shake us up and disquiet us so that we can no longer fight back against her. Don’t fall for her manipulation.”

“Mom, did you really not do anything disgusting?”

Seraphina looked seriously at her daughter and said, “I swear I have not done anything to hurt your father or the Jenkins family. If I lie, may I be struck by lightning. If you and George are not Jenkins’ children, why would your grandma love you so much? Hannah, don’t let Olivia influence you; she’s a bad person!”

Her mother’s words seemed plausible.

It must be Olivia’s trickery.

The DNA test results she showed her must have been fabricated.

Grandma loves her and George so much; they can't possibly be someone else's children.

Thinking this way, Hannah's mood brightened, and she stopped crying.

"Mom, I'm sorry, I shouldn't have doubted you, and should not have believed Olivia's instigation."

Seraphina gently looked at Hannah, wiped her tears, and even stroked her hair.

She felt slightly relieved.

A bluff can work temporarily, but not forever. The best way is to silence Olivia forever.

A hint of murderous intent flickered in Seraphina's eyes but she disguised it well when looking at her daughter.

"Good girl, mom is not mad at you, don't blame yourself. Today's plan failed, we can think of other methods, we can certainly pull Olivia down."

Hannah nodded, but she was still perplexed.

"Mom, do you know about Uncle Charles transferring the assets of the Jenkins Group? I heard that the results of the audit are serious, and many people have been asked to assist in the investigation.."
