Chapter 171: Two More Women in the Family

After a relaxing bath, Olivia Jenkins felt much better.

With dark circles under her eyes and obvious fatigue on her face, Olivia soaked in the bath and applied an emergency facial mask.

Half an hour later, Olivia went downstairs.

Besides Auntie Jane, two women had arrived at her house.

Both donned sleek ponytails and black suits. Olivia gave them a few extra glances.

Could it be that they were female bodyguards?

Did Daniel Marshall have them surveil her?

Did he fear she would cheat on him?

Feeling irritated, Olivia rolled her eyes.

Seeing Olivia, Auntie Jane softly said, "Madam, I'll heat up your breakfast. These two women, Aria Douglas and Leaf Fiona, were sent by Sir to protect you. Sir also said that from today, you don't need to drive yourself, they will be your drivers. He doesn't want you to get too tired and wants to share your burdens."

Bingo, she guessed right!

It sounds great that they're here to ensure her safety, but in an unpleasant way, they're here to watch her. Daniel fears she might run away, perhaps he intends to torment her!

Daniel is so annoying, she just can't like him.

In her eyes and heart, she utterly despises him.

"Okay! I get it!"

Olivia sat at the dining table in a cold and detached manner, sweeping her sharp gaze over the two female bodyguards in front of her.

They look decent, at the very least, they're not the nauseating, green tea bitch kind that she would dislike.

Aria Douglas and Leaf Fiona also observed Olivia.

Aria spoke, her voice was fairly gentle, if not for her sensitive profession and attire, it would not be apparent that she was a female bodyguard.

"Madam, please instruct us if there's anything you need," she said.

Olivia gently fluttered her beautiful eyelashes and calmly instructed, "I have a specific request for you both that mustn't be forgotten. Once we leave this villa, don't address me as Madame, call me Miss Jenkins or Chief Jenkins." Aria and Leaf nodded in agreement, saying in unison, "We will remember."

"Please stand somewhere I can't see. I'm not used to being watched while I eat."

"Alright!"

The two female bodyguards stood behind Olivia, out of her line of sight. Although Olivia couldn't see them, she could feel their gaze on her.

Vexed, Olivia pursed her lips.

She even rubbed her forehead.

In her heart, she cursed Daniel.

Instantly, Olivia clenched her fists tightly, her right hand shaking with uncontrollable anger, her knuckles turned white.

It was clear how much she wanted to strangle Daniel.

Auntie Jane brought out breakfast, but was startled and began to apologize, thinking that she had slighted Olivia.

"Sorry, Madam, I won't let this happen again," she said.

Realizing she had scared Auntie Jane, Olivia uncurled her hand and put on a smile, "Auntie Jane, I didn't blame you, I was just practicing boxing."

Auntie Jane gave a naive smile. "That's good. Please enjoy your breakfast, Madame."

"Did he... say anything else?" Olivia asked.

"He" must be referring to Sir, but Auntie Jane just shook her head.

"Auntie Jane, please leave now. I'll start having breakfast."

With the addition of the two female bodyguards at home, the surveillance had Auntie Jane feeling uncomfortable, so she left without saying more....

Olivia had already received the call for an emergency shareholders' meeting. Upon her return to the Jenkins Group, she headed straight for the conference room.

The two female bodyguards tactfully stood guard outside the door.

As the shareholders entered the meeting room, they couldn't help but stare at the pair of women at the entrance in surprise.

Even before the meeting started, one of the shareholders asked a question. "Miss Jenkins, the two at the door, what's the meaning of this?"

Olivia swept her sharp gaze over the shareholders present, casually saying: "They're just my bodyguards. No need to make a fuss.. If you're clear of conscience, there's nothing to be afraid of!"
