

Every Night 190

Chapter 190: Heartache

Although Olivia Jenkins was not physically stronger than George Jenkins, who stood over a meter tall, she was able to land several blows using the martial arts tactics her Taekwondo teacher taught her. She also managed to kick him ferociously multiple times.

Aria Douglas and Leaf Fiona, who had stealthily trailed Olivia, made their timely appearance.

Aria Douglas pulled Elizabeth Richardson aside and slapped her multiple times, Suddenly, Elizabeth Richardson collapsed to the ground, bursting into tears.

Leaf Fiona, who was skilled in martial arts, quickly subdued George, pressing him to the ground. She twisted his arm behind his back, causing George to howl in pain.

“Sis, I messed up, stop hitting me, please spare me! Elizabeth is pregnant, don’t hurt her.”

Olivia glared menacingly at George and threatened, “If you dare to hit me again, I will kill you. You’re about to be parents, can’t you think no better than acting in kindness for your child’s sake? Honestly, I feel for your unborn child; having you two as parents is a great tragedy.”

George winced in pain, his face was screwed up in agony as he kept pleading frantically and offering lame excuses.

“Grandma let us live here. She said that this place was for us as a marital home.

Sis, it’s not our fault, it hurts, please let me go!”

“Don’t use grandma as a shield! You were just acting all tough and cocky, weren’t you? If you’re brave enough, don’t beg now you coward!” “Sis, I’m wrong, I won’t dare to bully you again...”

Olivia ignored him as if she heard nothing. She was on the phone with Seraphina, instructing her to come take them away.

As Seraphina heard her son crying through the phone, she filled with anger and annoyance. While her heart ached for her son, she also began to panic.

Before Olivia can finish, Seraphina piped up and then rushed quickly from the hotel.

Aria Douglas and Leaf Fiona kept glaring at George Jenkins and Elizabeth Richardson. The property manager arrived to find a serious confrontation, so he did not dare to interfere. They kept apologizing to Olivia Jenkins.

It was known to the property management that someone else had moved into Olivia's house and even changed the locks. They did not notify Olivia, assuming they were family and thus did not meddle in their affairs.

Olivia rejected the property manager's apology and threatened to sue them.

Even if the property manager was ready to waive the property management fee for a year, Olivia would not compromise.

If it wasn't for her timely discovery that the house had been occupied, it might have been misconstrued that the house belonged to George over time. They were absolutely helping George seize her house, which was unforgivable.

Aria Douglas and Leaf Fiona glared threateningly at the property manager so they didn't dare to engage with Olivia directly, forcing them to report the situation to their superiors.

Olivia threw George Jenkins and Elizabeth Richardson's possessions onto the street, outside her door.

When Seraphina arrived, she just happened to see Daniel Marshall as well.

Daniel brought several bodyguards with him, who cast a powerful glance her way.

Instantly, Seraphina's face turned as white as a sheet out of fear. She shivered subconsciously, nearly losing her balance as she walked.

As soon as Seraphina came out of the elevator, she could hear a hoarse sobbing noise. Although her heart ached for her son, she didn't dare to make any sudden move.

Seeing his mother, George Jenkins, who was still held down on the floor, immediately burst into even louder sobbing, "Mom, save me! Ask sister to let me go, it hurts so bad!"

Seraphina's teeth were chattering uncontrollably. She wanted to plead for mercy, but her throat seemed to constrict in fear, preventing her from speaking.

Suddenly, Seraphina knelt down before Olivia Jenkins.

Olivia's icy gaze ignored Seraphina.

With a nod from Daniel, Aria Douglas ushered Elizabeth Richardson out.

At this moment, the highest official from the property management arrived.

Before he could even speak, the official received a phone call. The property developer had terminated their contract with the property management company, resulting in the immediate dismissal of all property management personnel. From then on, all property management personnel were to withdraw, and another property management company was to take over..