Every Night 216

Chapter 216: Investigating the Leaker

Hearing Olivia Jenkins call out "Daniel", the gang got scared and scattered in all directions.

The "Black King" of Serene City was not to be trifled with!

Especially the leader, who ran faster than anyone else.

Reinforcements led by Colin Davis arrived and immediately started capturing people.

Simon Howard also joined the pursuit, grabbing two henchmen, forcefully stepping on them, and viciously interrogated, "Who sent you?"

The two henchmen were scared witless, white as ghosts, their bodies shaking involuntarily.

They shook their heads repeatedly, "We don't know. The boss told us to grab someone. They showed us a photo and wanted only that woman."

Simon Howard stepped on them harder, "Are you telling the truth?"

The two men were on the verge of tears, their voices trembling: "It's true! We truly don't know anything, we just followed orders."

"Who do you work for?"

"We work for Daily Finance Debt Company. We thought we were just doing a simple job of scaring people to collect debts."

Unexpectedly, Simon Howard brutally kicked them a few more times then gave orders to his men to keep a tight watch on them.

On Colin Davis's side, he managed to capture a few men, but the rest escaped.

Bearing the pain, Daniel Marshall spoke in a low tone: "Don't call the police. Find out who leaked the information."

Simon Howard and Colin Davis exchanged glances, they also agreed with the boss, there was a traitor amongst them.

It was probably tied to Beverly Hills.

Whoever could buy them off was likely no ordinary person.

The information about the boss and the lady going out to sea wasn't widely known. Moreover, in order to let the lady relax and live more comfortably, they hadn't assigned bodyguards to accompany them, only Simon Howard was left on standby.

The sudden appearance of this gang was definitely not a coincidence. "Understood. We will first take these people back for a thorough interrogation." Olivia Jenkins was still holding Daniel Marshall. Her face and her eyes had softened a lot.

Olivia Jenkins also knew that the situation was extremely complex.

Daniel Marshall's face showed some pain. He squinted at Olivia Jenkins, "Take me to the hospital first."

Simon Howard aided Olivia Jenkins in lifting up the boss. Then, dutifully retracting his hand, he let the boss lean on his wife.

Fearing Daniel would fall, Olivia Jenkins held him all the way and helped him get into the car.

In the car, Olivia Jenkins continued to take care of Daniel Marshall attentively.

After making a phone call to the assistant to notify about some matters, Olivia Jenkins stayed in the ResilientCare Hospital to accompany Daniel Marshall for a thorough check-up.

Since Daniel needed to be hospitalized for observation, Olivia stayed with him in his VIP room as well.

Seeing him in so much pain and not uttering a single moan, Olivia's heart softened. She didn't provoke Daniel and gave in to whatever he asked for.

If it weren't for Daniel shielding her in time, it could have been her struck by the iron rod, lying in the hospital. She didn't even want to think if she would have survived.

Giving each matter its due, she wouldn't hold grudges over any past matters with Daniel now.

Seeing Daniel in so much pain that cold sweat broke out on his forehead, Olivia helped him wipe it away with a dry towel, her movements also extremely gentle.

At this moment, Daniel finally didn't have to bear Olivia's indifferent expressions.

"As long as you're okay, I can rest assured," he told her.

Daniel held Olivia's hand, and she didn't shake it off, letting him hold it for as long as he wanted. "If you can't bear the pain, I'll get the doctor to prescribe painkillers. The CT scan results won't be out that soon. I'm worried it might affect your previous injuries … Actually, you don't need to worry about me, you could have let them take me…'

Daniel's eyes were filled with affectionate tenderness, "You're my wife, my woman. I can't let them hurt you. Given their malicious intents, I can't allow them to take you away."

Olivia gently bit her lower lip, remaining silent.

Daniel let out a faint laugh.. In his eyes, every small movement of Olivia was bewitching!