

Ex Convict 2041

Chapter 2041

“Grace, don’t mind Chase Harper. Even if you think he’s a good guy, don’t mind him...” he muttered as his sexy thin lips kissed the corner of her lips. He brushed his lips across her thin lips, then down to her collarbone...

Grace gasped and shivered gently. His kiss tickled her senses as he knew her body better than anyone.

“Jay, are you... Are you jealous again?” she asked with a slight pant.

He paused and said in a whisper, “What are you going to do if I say I’m jealous again?”

‘What am I going to do?’ Grace blushed slightly. Then, she suddenly turned over and pressed Jason under her.

His bright peach blossom eyes stared at her.

She lowered her head as she ran her fingers gently over his face. and said in a low panting voice, “Then I’ll try my best to tell you how much I love you.”

This time, she made the first move.

She bent over and kissed the corners of his eyes. Then, she went down the bridge of his nose and eventually reached his lips. Her fingers undid his robe little by little...

After she calmed him down, she said, “You know that I love you the most, yet you’re still jealous. I just feel sorry for the state of Chase Harper’s marriage. He’s such a nice man but has an unhappy marriage. He’s now divorced from his wife with a three-year-old girl.”

Grace said and kissed Jason on the cheek. “You’re always jealous that it makes me feel as if I don’t express my love to you enough that you feel insecure.”

He stared at her. Even now, he would sometimes feel insecure because he loved her so much.

He knew she would risk her life for him but still did not want her to care about other men. He domineeringly wanted all of her.

“Do you think it’s too exhausting to be with me?” he asked in a mutter, afraid his love would suffocate her!

He was afraid he wanted too much, and she would be overwhelmed.

“I just think I have to love you more,” Grace said with a smile and kissed Jason’s lips again.

How could she not love this man?

Kyla suddenly shuddered and looked around. She realized she had been overthinking and no one was staring at her.

‘What’s wrong with me? It feels as if someone’s watching me from a distance.

'Martin Weiss has already left Emerald City and returned to the Weiss family's house. There's no way he'd keep looking at me from afar in silence. Besides, this feeling isn't the same as the feeling of Martin Weiss watching me in secret.

'I must just be nervous,' she thought to herself. Perhaps Nelson's bullying incident at school had put her on edge.

"Mom, I'll go restock. You look after the store," said Kyla.

"Okay," replied Mrs. Corbyn.

Kyla then rode her electric tricycle toward the small market in Emerald City.

The store needed to be restocked once a week. Once she reached the market, Kyla skillfully found the old sellers to restock the goods her store needed.

Chapter 2042

However, after she bought all the goods and put them on the tricycle, she found that a tire had been removed. Two seemingly honest young men went to Kyla and said, "Oh, the tire of your tricycle is gone. You can't ride it anymore. There's a garage right next to us. Why don't we help you take your bike over there to have it fixed?"

Kyla instantly recalled the sellers mentioning how tricycles and electric bikes were getting their tires punctured or removed when she was restocking, which caused the nearby garage's business to soar.

Many who went to the garage to fix their bikes were brutally ripped off.

Many people in the market speculated that the people from the garage were responsible for all these incidents, but the surveillance cameras installed outside were damaged. A few days after they fixed the surveillance cameras, they would break again.

Kyla immediately said, "No thanks. I'll think of something else."

"What else can you do? The garage is just next door, and it's convenient. We only want to do you a favor. It would take a long time for a woman like you to tow your bike to the garage yourself with all these things."

"No thanks! I'll figure it out myself," said Kyla.

The two people's expressions changed instantly. They stopped pretending to look honest and spoke menacingly, "Don't take things the hard way when we're giving you a choice. You have to fix it over there whether you like it or not!"

With that said, the two men wanted to move Kyla's electric tricycle over.

Kyla said quickly, "What are you doing? I'm calling the police!"

“Sure, call the police. You asked us to help you move the tricycle to the garage, and now you changed your mind. We’ll leave if you pay us 500 dollars. We can’t have done all this in vain, can we?”

The two men spoke casually, but Kyla knew she had run into scoundrels.

500 dollars was not a small amount of money for her. She took out her phone and planned to call the police.

The two men immediately jumped at her, trying to snatch the phone from her hand.

Kyla tried to avoid them, but they grabbed her hair so violently that she leaned backward.

“Ah!” A scream was let out from her mouth.

Just then, a man yanked the hand that held Kyla’s hair and yelled, “Let go! I’ve called the police. They’ll be here in a minute! Let’s see who’s the one who’ll be in trouble when we’re at the police station!”

The two men spat at that and snapped, “Damn it! Don’t let us see you again!”

With that said, the two people quickly left. Kyla looked at the person who just helped her out... It was Chase Harper!

“Chase, thank you,” Kyla said gratefully.

Chase Harper said, “I’m old now, almost 40. People call me Old Chase. Are you okay? What the hell just happened?”

Chase Harper looked at Kyla’s hands as she tied her hair dexterously. He could not help but say in envy, “You women have such flexible fingers when tying your hair. I can never do it well. It’s a mess every time I help my daughter tie her hair.”

Chapter 2043

“Just try it a couple of times. If you still can’t master it, I’ll teach you some other time,” she said.

“Okay, thank you in advance, then.” Chase Harper smiled and then added, “Those two men probably removed the tire of your tricycle just now. Some garages are heartless like that! They won’t last long. You have so much stuff here. Let me take you home first.”

“But my tricycle...”

“Give me the keys. I’ll have my colleague fix it for you and help you ride it back to your place. I have a tire shop right here in the market,” said Chase Harper.

“Thank you so much,” said Kyla as she handed the electric tricycle’s keys over to Chase.

Chase talked to his colleague, helped Kyla carry her stuff to his car, and drove her back to the store.

On their way, Kyla learned that Chase had partnered up with a friend to open a shop but they had dissolved their partnership. He was now renting a store in the market by himself, selling electric bikes and various accessories. Sometimes, he would receive orders to modify cars.

opinions when friends do business together, making it hard to go on,” said Kyla.

“It’s not that we had different opinions. It’s just that...” Chase Harper seemed troubled as he spoke.

Kyla knew it might be something he was too embarrassed to talk about, so she did not pursue it and changed the subject.

The car arrived in front of the store. Chase Harper moved Kyla’s goods from the car and greeted Mrs. Corbyn warmly. After finding out that the store’s water pipes were always clogged, he took the tools from the car and helped fix their pipes.

“Thank you so much! You sent me back, helped me with my tricycle, and even helped me fix my pipes,” said Kyla.

Chase Harper said, “It’s nothing. Don’t mention it. I gotta go now. I’ll let you know when your tricycle is ready.”

“Okay,” said Kyla.

After Chase Harper left, Mrs. Corbyn seemed to say regretfully, “Speaking of which, Chase’s pretty good, and he’s nice to Nelson. If you had gotten together with Chase, you would be leading a good life now.”

Kyla said, “Mom, what are you thinking? Chase has never felt that way for me. He’s a good man who deserves to be cherished. I’m at peace with myself. I’ll only be giving him trouble if I get together with him.”

“Oh, I was just saying,” said Mrs. Corbyn.

Two days later, Chase Harper rode Kyla’s tricycle back. He happened to meet Nelson Corbyn as he got off school. Chase Harper mentioned that his daughter would always mention Brother Nelson these days. Therefore, Mrs. Corbyn took the opportunity to propose that her daughter, Nelson, Chase Harper, and his daughter go to the amusement park together to play and relax.

“I’ll take care of the store. Business is slow on weekends anyway,” said Mrs. Corbyn.

Their customers were mainly students, so they were free during weekends as business was slow.

“If Kyla and Nelson are okay with it, I’ll take Juliet to the amusement park this weekend. Speaking of which, I haven’t taken her to the amusement park in a long time,” said Chase Harper.

Kyla smiled. "Okay, Nelson hasn't gone there in a long time either."

Sure enough, after she said yes, she saw a look of expectation on her son's face. It seemed he was happy

Chapter 2044

At the end of the week, Chase Harper drove to the store with his daughter to pick up Kyla. The two children sat in the back, while Kyla sat in the front passenger seat.

On the way, Nelson took care of Juliet Harper like a little adult. Juliet Harper sat in a child safety seat and kept talking to Nelson like a little chatterbox. For example, she talked about what cartoons she had been watching lately, what she had drawn, and how long before she could start going to kindergarten.

"Is kindergarten fun, Nelson?" the little one asked.

Nelson Corbyn's eyes darkened. He did not have a good impression of kindergarten. His mother's case had yet to be reversed at the time, so children and their parents would taunt him.

He was young and did not understand many things back then, but now he understood more about grown-ups and the injustice of society.

Even if his mother had reversed the case, his disability would make him suffer from countless strange gazes.

Even if he was better than many ordinary people, it was useless. He was still deaf to everyone else!

"Nelson?" Juliet asked again.

Nelson Corbyn smiled and replied, "Kindergarten is fun. There are lots of games to play with the kids."

"Can I go to the same kindergarten as Nelson?" the little one asked.

"I'm already in primary school. You can only enter primary school after you graduate from kindergarten." Nelson Corbyn began to tell the little one what kindergarten and elementary school were.

When the car arrived at the amusement park, the four of them entered the amusement park after Chase Harper parked the car.

Nelson Corbyn held Juliet's hand and took care of her like a big brother, prompting Chase Harper to say, "Nelson has really grown up."

Kyla took many photos of her son, and she could see that he was having fun playing with Juliet. Juliet could not play some games due to her height, so Nelson Corbyn did not play them either. He would only play those Juliet could play.

In one part of the amusement park was an indoor play area where parents could not enter but only children. Juliet wanted to go inside to play, so Kyla urged her son to look after Juliet while she and Chase Harper watched the two children play on the platform outside the play area.

“Thank you for coming to the amusement park with Juliet and me today. Juliet is so happy today. She hasn’t been this happy since her mother and I got divorced,” said Chase Harper,

Kyla hesitated a little before saying, “If there’s any misunderstanding in your marriage, why don’t...”

“There’s no misunderstanding, I walked in on her sleeping with my best friend. I asked her and she said she wanted to be with my friend. Life with me wasn’t what she wanted, and she didn’t even want our daughter anymore,” Chase Harper said bitterly.

He had buried these things in his heart. Even after the divorce, he only told outsiders that they had irreconcilable differences. He even kept the truth from his own parents, hoping to preserve some decency for his daughter.

He did not want this to overshadow his daughter’s future.

However, he told Kyla what he had been keeping in his heart. Perhaps he was too miserable, so he would like to talk to someone about it.

Chapter 2045

Kyla paused a little before saying, “Best friend? Is it your business partner...”

“Yeah, so I left and opened my own shop because I couldn’t face them anymore,” said Chase Harper.

“That man was never your friend. Real friends don’t do things like that. Look at it from a different angle. At least you got to see his true colors.” Kyla consoled him.

“Yes, at least I saw his true colors,” Chase Harper said in a mutter and then asked Kyla, “What about you? How are things between you and Nelson’s father all these years? Why is he letting you run a little store like this?”

He knew that Nelson’s father was Martin Weiss. The head of Weiss Group was wealthy, and he even knew that Martin Weiss had donated his liver to her.

He thought Kyla would lead a rich life with Martin Weiss, but now it seemed that she was making a living off running the store.

“I’m me, and he’s him. I make my living running the store, and I’m happy with it,” Kyla said indifferently.

“I’m sorry. I’m just a little curious and don’t mean anything. I...” Chase Harper said quickly.

Kyla said, “It’s nothing. Nelson’s father and I have nothing in common. Maybe it’s best if we never see each other again for the rest of our lives.”

Just then, there was suddenly a commotion in the play area. Several boys younger than Nelson surrounded Nelson and Juliet, shouting, "Wow, he's deaf. He's deaf! I know that thing is called a hearing aid. Only deaf people wear it!"

"Wow, is this girl deaf too? Where's her hearing aid? Where is it?"

A little boy tried to find the hearing aid by Juliet's ear as he spoke.

Nelson Corbyn grabbed his hands. "Leave her alone!"

"Can deaf people talk? Oh yes. You can't speak once you lose your hearing aid!" With that said, several other little boys also crowded around Nelson, mischievously trying to take off his hearing aid!

Juliet

was so mad she started crying. She even tried to help Nelson push away the boys with her small fists as she cried.

However, she was too small. She was pushed down by those little boys in the blink of an eye.

Nelson's expression changed as he got into a fight with the kids. Juliet cried as she got up and joined the fight again, ignoring her small size.

The staff in the play area rushed over to pull the children apart. Kyla and Chase Harper also rushed into the play area right away.

Nelson picked up

Juliet, who fell to the ground. The little one wrapped her hands around Nelson's neck. Even if Chase Harper wanted to hold her, the little one refused.

Kyla watched nervously to see if the two children were alright. Fortunately, the children were younger and weaker than Nelson. Nelson was unhurt, while Juliet was also safe even though she had fallen several times because the play area was full of cushions.

The children were the ones who caused trouble, so they said nothing. Several parents also hurriedly left with their children.

Coming out of the play area, Juliet sobbed as she said, "Why did they call Nelson deaf?"

Chapter 2046

"Unlike normal people, I can't hear without the hearing aid, so I'm deaf," Nelson said indifferently. His indifference pricked Kyla's heart.

It was as if her son had been hurt by the discrimination against the disabled that he had resigned to calling himself deaf.

“Then I’ll be deaf too, so I’ll be the same as Nelson!” the little one said. Her dark eyes were still full of tears, and her face was streaked with wet tears. Even so, she spoke so seriously.

Nelson Corbyn’s heart suddenly throbbed as if something had touched his heart.

The little one was only three years old and had no idea what it meant not to hear!

If he took the hearing aid off, the whole world would be silent and the silence was scary!

It was as if he was the only person left in the world!

“Don’t be like me. You’ll be looked down on if you’re like me,” said Nelson Corbyn.

“I’m not afraid. I’ll beat people up if anyone bullies Nelson!” Juliet sniffled but behaved domineeringly.

The two contradictory states strangely merged in her.

The irony and frost in Nelson Corbyn’s eyes seemed to be melted by Juliet’s young voice.

Kyla’s eyes were misty as she looked at Juliet. She suddenly felt grateful for the little girl, who was warm and friendly like Chase.

“Okay, don’t worry! Nelson is an outstanding child and will succeed in the future. When he does, no one will discriminate against him because of his hearing,” Chase Harper consoled as he patted Kyla’s shoulder.

“Thank you!” Kyla said with a sore nose. She was saying thank you to Chase Harper and Juliet.

However, the four people did not notice that someone was filming them with a phone in the distance.

In Weiss Residence, Martin Weiss silently looked at the photos he received in his email.

Not many people knew this email address. The sender’s email address was registered abroad, and every photo they sent was of Kyla and another man.

Four people were captured together.

Besides Nelson, there was another little girl. In the photos, they looked like a happy family of four.

Martin Weiss only found his chest feeling stuffy as if something heavy was pressing it, making him a little breathless.

He also knew the man in the photo. He had seen the man named Chase Harper at Kyla’s side back then.

This man seemed so ordinary to him, but he could make Kyla smile and Nelson approach him.

In some of the photos, Kyla and Chase Harper were looking into each other’s eyes. Kyla’s eyes were gentle and warm.

Chapter 2047

‘Does she know... how much I long for that warmth?’

She used to look at him like that when he had not fallen out with her and misunderstood her for hurting Paisley Daniels.

Afterward, she looked at him with cold eyes.

Martin Weiss stared at the photos on the computer screen as he raised his fingers and gently stroked Kyla's face. "You said we're even and owe each other nothing, but... is that really true? If we don't owe each other anything, then tell me why I can't get over you?"

The eyes of the woman in the photo were bright, but they were not directed at him.

After

what had happened in the amusement park, Chase Harper came to the store to see Kyla several times. He brought Juliet with him every time because the little one was always asking for Nelson.

"I don't know why this kid loves Nelson. She's always asking for Nelson when we're at home too. I'm so sorry for bothering you so often," Chase Harper said with a slight embarrassment,

"What's there to be sorry for? Nelson likes Juliet too. The two kids hit it off with each other. It's fate," said Mrs. Corbyn before Kyla could speak.

The two children were in the back of the store. Nelson was teaching Juliet how to read. The words they were reading were Juliet Harper and Nelson Corbyn.

Nelson only wanted to teach the little one to read the words. 'Juliet Harper', but Juliet insisted on learning Nelson Corbyn's name as well.

Therefore, Nelson Corbyn wrote his name.

"Nelson Corbyn, Nelson Corbyn, Nelson..." Juliet kept pronouncing the words. She was keener on learning his name than her own name. After reading it out a few times, she even said to Nelson, "I'll keep Nelson's name in mind. That way, I can recognize it the next time I see your name!"

Nelson Corbyn smiled. "Okay, I'll test whether you remember it or not next time."

Kyla could not help smiling when she saw how well her son got along with Juliet. She could tell that her son liked Juliet too. It was why he would smile like that in front of her.

Her son used to smile when he met strangers too, but when he got older, he only smiled in front of people he knew well and were sincerely kind to him.

Thinking of how her son was smiling less and less, Kyla could not help but sigh to herself. Perhaps even if she tried to protect her son, her son still had to face some things himself.

As her son grew older, he might suffer more injustice and discrimination due to his hearing defect... There was no way she could stop these. She could only teach her son to be strong when facing these hurdles.

However, sometimes in the dead of night, she could not help thinking how things would turn out if Nelson had followed Martin Weiss and became the heir of the Weiss family.

Even with such a defect, no one would dare to discriminate against him.

"Chase, stay for dinner today!" said Mrs. Corbyn.

"Oh, that's too much trouble," said Chase Harper.

"It's nothing. You've been very helpful to Kyla. You wouldn't even accept the repair fee for the tricycle. What's wrong with having a meal with us?" said Mrs. Corbyn.

Chase Harper scratched his head awkwardly. "Thank... Thank you, then."

After they were done with dinner, Chase Harper left with Juliet. The little one reluctantly said goodbye to Nelson and got into the car with her father.

Chapter 2048

Kyla looked at her son. "Do you like Juliet very much?"

Nelson

Corbyn said, "Yeah, Juliet's cute. Just like Jasper. Perhaps Juliet and Jasper would become good friends if they met."

"Maybe. Alright, you haven't finished your homework today, have you? Hurry and do your homework," Kyla said to her son.

Once Nelson went to his room to do his homework, Mrs. Corbyn walked to her daughter and said, "Chase's nice. It's inconvenient for a man to take care of his daughter. You and him..."

"Mom, are you trying to matchmake us again? Is that why you deliberately asked Chase to stay for dinner today?" Kyla said as she seemed to see through her mother.

"I just want you two to spend more time together. You'll only have feelings for each other after spending time together," said Mrs. Corbyn.

Kyla smiled. She had fallen in love with Martin Weiss at first sight! She always thought she would fall in love with someone at first sight. Otherwise, she would not fall in love even if they knew each other for a long time!

Her heart was full of sarcasm when she thought of Martin Weiss. "Mom, I'm going to take out the garbage. Don't worry about me.

I only think of Chase as a friend!"

With that said, Kyla headed outside with a bag of trash.

The night breeze outside made her cheeks feel a little cold, causing her to wince. She knew that her mother was afraid it would be hard for her to raise Nelson alone after her mother died.

However, it was hard for her to imagine herself with another man for the rest of her life. It was as if all her love had been exhausted when she was imprisoned.

Just as Kyla threw out the garbage and was walking back to the store, someone suddenly yanked her wrist from behind.

“Ah!” she exclaimed. Then, she staggered and was dragged aside.

The next moment, she was thrown into the back of a car and a body got on top of her.

The familiar scent shocked Kyla. “This is...”

Before she could speak, he kissed her lips. The eager kiss seemed to be trying to prove something, leaving Kyla almost breathless.

There was no light in the narrow car compartment. It was dim as only moonlight was shining through the car window.

Kyla struggled to push him away, but she could not push him away with her strength. The man grabbed her hands and

Chapter 2049

“Martin Weiss, I thought I’ve made it clear. I thought we agreed not to disturb each other from now on? What are you doing now?”

“What am I doing?” Martin Weiss laughed bitterly at himself. “I love you too much and can’t get over you!”

“But I don’t love you anymore. I got over you a long time ago!” said Kyla as she struggled to push him away, but he still kept a grip on her.

“So are you going to be with Chase Harper?” he asked.

She glared at him. “Who I’m going to be with is none of your business!”

His eyes instantly narrowed, and the look on his face turned cold. “What’s so good about a man like Chase Harper? What can he give you?”

“What’s so bad about a man like him? At least he won’t hurt me and send me to prison!” she blurted out.

His face instantly paled, and his grip on her loosened.

Kyla took the opportunity to shove Martin Weiss away and hurried out of the car. Just as she was about to make a quick getaway, Martin Weiss’s voice rang out behind her. “Kyla, you can't be with Chase Harper."

She instantly paused and turned around, only to see him standing beside the car in silence. He exuded a sense of danger and loneliness. He spoke indifferently as if he were merely stating a fact.

She bit her lip. "Martin Weiss, it's up to me who I can be with, not you! You're not some high and mighty god, and I'm not a lowly pest that's at your mercy!"

With that said, she left without looking back, leaving Martin Weiss standing alone.

After a long while, Martin Weiss slowly raised his hand and caressed the cheek Kyla had just slapped. His cheek was still tingling, but he enjoyed it because she was the one who did it!

'Who's the high and mighty god? Who's the pest? I'm the one who's at her mercy!'

"Mr. Weiss, here's the information you asked for." They respectfully handed Martin Weiss a stack of information.

Martin Weiss took the information and looked through them. Most of the information was the investigation results on Chase Harper, including Chase Harper's career, marriage, and children in recent years.

If Chase Harper saw it, he would be surprised at the details.

When Martin Weiss saw that Chase Harper and his ex-wife were divorced, and it was because she cheated on him, Martin Weiss's eyes darkened as if thinking about something.

The information at the back was from the playground that day, including surveillance footage of Kyla, Chase Harper, and the children in the amusement park. It was stored in a flash drive.

When Martin Weiss saw the video of his son and the little girl Juliet surrounded by other children in the play area, he suddenly felt a pang in his heart.

He read the information and learned that the children called Nelson deaf because they saw the hearing aid in Nelson's car!

'Deaf... Deaf! How ironic is it that they called my son that!'

Chapter 2050

He got his men to investigate the situation in Nelson's school and learned that many students discriminated against his son because of his hearing issue.

Those who discriminated against his son only knew that his son's mother was an ex-convict. Even if he had already reversed the case for Kyla, many people did not care about whether the court made the wrong judgment and would only continue to discriminate.

What made Martin Weiss miserable the most was that he caused these people to discriminate against Kyla and Nelson.

"I asked you to check on Paisley Daniels. How is it going?" After reading the information, Martin Weiss slowly asked the person in front of him.

"Paisley Daniels has been released from prison and arrived in Emerald City a few days ago. We haven't found out her specific whereabouts, but she's probably still in Emerald City," they said.

Martin Weiss's eyes grew cold. "Then find her. Find this person for me even if you have to flip Emerald City around!"

'It's all because of this woman Paisley Daniels... If this woman hadn't interfered, would things between Kyla and me go this far?

'Paisley Daniels is so lucky to only spend five years in prison!

"This woman is probably up to no good since she came to Emerald City after being released from prison. I want Paisley Daniels to continue to pay the price for what she did back then...'

Kyla went to the small market to stock up her store again and stopped by Chase Harper's shop. Chase Harper was talking to his staff. Seeing Kyla, he hurriedly stepped forward and asked, "Are you here to restock your store today?" His eyes glanced at the things she was carrying.

Kyla said, "Yeah, I'm done with buying the things, so I dropped by to visit you. Those two people didn't bother you after you fixed my tricycle, did they?"

"No, their garage has been penalized. Two security guards and one administrator from the market were taken to the police station too. I heard they were working with the garage. No one dares to have such ideas anymore," said Chase Harper.

"That's good." Kyla smiled. Then, she took out a pair of flower hairpins and handed them to Chase Harper. "These are the flower hairpins I bought for Juliet. You can put them on for her after you braid her hair."

"That's so generous of you!" Chase Harper said quickly.

"After all you've done for me, buying Juliet some trinkets is nothing. Besides, Juliet is adorable," said Kyla.

"Thank you..." Chase Harper accepted the flower hairpins.

Kyla prepared to leave, and Chase Harper quickly said, "Let me help you carry these things to your tricycle." Without waiting for Kyla to say anything, he took the bags of things from her hands.

Kyla smiled at this.

They went to the car park outside the market together, and Chase Harper placed all the bags on Kyla's little tricycle.

“Be careful on the road and don’t ride too fast,” said Chase Harper.

“Okay, got it. Hurry back,” said Kyla as she rode away on her electric tricycle.

Chase Harper watched Kyla’s back for a few moments before turning back to the market.

Not far away, Martin Weiss was sitting in a black car, staring darkly at Chase Harper’s back. His face was covered with a layer of gloom.

When Chase Harper returned to his shop, his staff member asked curiously, “Boss, who was that just now? She looks pretty. She seems gentle too. She owns the tricycle we fixed last time, right? You even sent it back yourself after fixing it. She’s not your future wife, is she?”
